We feel that it would be well right here to set all stockholders straight regarding the vein. On the 60-foot level it was reported that the vein was 79 feet wide We find now, after crosscutting on the lower level, that 79 feet was not the correct width of the vein. At one time the vein stood out of the ground and in this position tipped down the mountain, making a large body of mineralized matter. It was in going through this entire mass that we cross cut 79 feet. The vein proper, on the first level, we now find was less than 20 feet wide. In going down this 100 feet the vein has widened materially, the values have greatly improved and the walls so stand now that the vein is widening as it goes down. We now have two well defined walls. A vein 25 feet wide is in itself something remarkable, but when at a depth of only 160 feet we find it entirely filled with ore of a good commercial value, the showing is unusual and most gratifying. Our stockholders will find upon investigating, that most of the great dividend payers have veins only a few feet wide and values rarely exceeding $5 per ton.

We are now sinking again. Hereafter the levels will be 100 feet apart. As soon as the next level is reached we will again cross-cut to the vein where we purpose doing a considerable amount of work.

Arrangements have been made to have the work at the Midway in the future, directed by a competent mining engineer, under the supervision of Mr. Hendryx.

It might be interesting to the stockholders to state that the cost of sinking this shaft, including labor, timber and necessary expenses, is about $40 per lineal foot. In many mines such work far exceeds this figure.

With our saw mill we have cut 238,230 feet of lumber and timber which will be sufficient supply until we are ready to build a mill. We have sufficient wood on hand to run us until July.

Our Timber

We have timber growing on our ground to furnish us lumber, timber and fuel for many years.

Our Titles

In the past year we have had all of our claims resurveyed and relocated, in this way fixing our boundaries exactly so that no disputes can arise. Our ground is contiguous. Plats have been made and we are ready to apply for patent from the United States whenever we feel prepared to invest the money.

Money Expended

Up to date about 275,000 shares of the treasury stock have been sold. Out of collections on these sales approximately $45,000 has been received and invested in the Midway proposition. Of this sum about $15,000 was invested in the machinery above mentioned and all of the remainder has gone into the properties. None of this has gone into any salaries to officers as we pay no salary to any officer of the company. The report is too long and too cumbersome to be here recited in detail.

We would necessarily be obliged to recapitulate and the recapitulation would show the amounts as here given. The books and accounts are correctly kept and a voucher is taken and filed for every item of expense. An inspection of the work done and improvements made would satisfy anyone that we have a hundred cents of full value to show for every dollar expended.

Estimated Requirements

After consultation with the manager it is estimated that $30,000 to $35,000 additional will put the property on a producing and self-sustaining basis. We desire to instal a 10-stamp mill as early as possible. Our manager assures us that such a plant, with the necessary equipment will place the proposition in a position not only to maintain itself, but will carry the work through to a satisfactory dividend paying basis

Equipment

Under this head we have installed one first class sinking plant of eighteen hundred foot capacity; one saw mill, with a capacity of twenty thousand feet per day; one electric lighting plant with 120 16 candle power lights capacity.

We have erected all the necessary bunk and boarding houses and are in a position to continue with the present equipment until after the property is on a paying basis.

We cut 238,231 feet of lumber and 390 cords of wood which will run us up until July, and lumber and timbers enough for the mine until we are ready to build a stamp mill or other incidentals in the way of tools for equipment, etc., and are accounted for as itemized in the statement.

The Monarch Consolidated Gold & Copper Mining and Smelting Company of BOULDER, COLORADO

Solicits the co-operation of reputable men in providing means for the thorough and rapid development of two large gold and copper mining estates, which are second to none in intrinsic value, and to this end extends every opportunity for determination as to whether statements made by the company are true or false.

The proposition when developed will pay no less than 50 per cent. per annum on the investment, and it behooves anyone who wishes to better his financial condition, to give immediate attention to this.

Full particulars in every detail will be given to all to whom such a proposition may appeal, but please do not ask for these unless you really are interested, because you waste your own time and ours also.

Capital $1,000,000, 500,000 Shares in Treasury

Property includes two great mining estates—one gold, the other copper—both containing wide, deep, proven veins of high and low grade ore.

Development work has been systematically carried on, with results that more than justify every claim made by the company, and unquestionably proves the destiny of the property to equal that of the greatest phenomenal mining companies of the world.

Above Statement Can be Easily Verified

The following two facts alone will give anyone familiar with mining a rough idea of the great value of the property.

The Copper King Group contains one vein 30 feet wide, 8 feet of which bruns from $10 to $160 per ton, and the Company owns 9,000 feet on this vein.

Ore running from $18 to $60 per ton is continually being shipped from the gold property, and 24 samples taken from widely different portions of the vein system averaged $26.25 per ton.

FACILITIES—The Company owns 1,760 acres of placer and timber land. Water power of 500 (minimum) horse power. No expensive shaft work necessary. Ore easily treated on Company's property, thus saving freight and smelter charges.

DIVIDENDS—To begin earning and paying large dividends it is only necessary to erect two 50 ton mills, one on each property. To obtain funds for this purpose a limited amount of stock is offered at

Several Burned Out Firms Allowed Use of Civic Buildings

Toronto, April 25.—Addison B. Malloch, printers, were yesterday granted the use of the council chamber in St. Lawrence Hall, and Garside & White, boot manufacturers, St. Andrew's Hall, for business purposes while securing new locations. The matter of rentals will be arranged later. The International Food Company applied for the use of the poultry buildings at the exhibition grounds, but was referred to the park commissioner. The Office Specialty Company secured the old main building, the McClary Manufacturing Company the dog building and one of the stables. H. S. Howland & Sons will occupy the above building and the old bicycle building to-day. The use is granted simply for storage purposes and no manufacturing will be carried on. The lessees have all agreed to vacate on short notice and will all be out not later than Aug. 1st.

SHOW HATE FOR AMERICANS

Russians Throughout Manchuria are Stirred Up Over False Reports

Berlin, April 25.—A correspondent of the Frankfurter Zeitung writing from Harbin, Manchuria, under date of March 16, says: "Great bitterness has been aroused throughout Manchuria against Americans and British because it is believed Americans and British vessels took part in the bombardment of Port Arthur under the Japanese flag. This belief apparently is due to the fact that the Japanese fleet was larger than the Russians anticipated and included unknown types of vessels.

"The feeling is so strong that Americans and British are not safe anywhere in Manchuria. One Rally, an American, and several others, including, Davidson, a Canadian, have disappeared. The authorities are looking for them.

"It is reported that an Englishman was arrested in Port Arthur as a spy and was taken to Mookden and hanged.

"The plying of the so-called flower-boats on the Liao River, mostly under the American flag and carrying American goods, has been prohibited."

FINDS WAR HEAVY BURDEN

Russia Will Probably Raise Money by Short—Term Loans

Paris, April 25.—A dispatch to the Temps from St. Petersburg says the cost of the war up to April 1 in all branches of the service is officially estimated at $468,250,000. The cost by June will reach $100,000,000. The allotment for June is $15,000,000 to the army and $6,000,000 for the navy. The Trans-Siberian railway, this dispatch adds, will show a deficiency of $22,500,000 for the year.

If the war last eighteen months it is estimated that the total cost will be $400,000,000. The government, it is further asserted, could meet all its obligations by having recourse to its gold reserve, but this is considered undesirable, politically and financially. An increase of the duties is also not desired, as it would add to the burden of the people. Therefore if the need arises the government will have recourse to short term loans.

St. Petersburg, April 25.—Russia has made a new issue of $15,000,000 in paper currency against free gold in the state bank. At the ministry of finance it was explained that it was an ordinary issue and in no sense was forced. Under the law paper is issued to double the amount of gold up to $150,000,000 gold, in excess of which paper issued must be covered ruble for ruble. In the state bank there are, in round figures, $400,000,000 in gold, which would permit of an issue of $550,000,000 in paper, but the paper issue at present only amounts to $350,000,000.

ONE GOOD INVESTMENT IS BETTER THAN A LONG LIFE OF LABOR.

THE PYRAMID GOLD & COPPER MINING CO'Y

Incorporated under the laws of Arizona, and operating extensively in the Copper Basin District, Yavapai County, Arizona, owns twelve (12) claims 600 x 1500 feet each; nearly 200 acres This makes one of the largest gold and copper mining properties in the Southwest. The property is all paid for, title perfect, and the company has no debts.

A large amount of development work has been done entirely at the expense of the officers and directors of the company, which proves that the Pyramid property contains an almost inexhaustible quantity of very rich ore. The last eight assays made from ore taken from the various shafts average $31.52 per ton. One shaft is in Sulphide of Copper the entire width which experts believe will assay from $75.00 to $100.00 per ton. There is an immense quantity of this sulphide ore.

This property is four and one-half miles from Kirkland, a station on the Sante Fe, Phoenix and Prescott Railroad and thirty five miles from the Val Verde Smelter. A stamp and concentrating mill, with a capacity of 100 tons of ore per day, is now being erected on this property. The management expects to have this mill completed and running by May 15th, 1904. As mining properties are operated 360 days in a year, you can readily see that the earnings of one 100 ton mill will enable the company to pay good substantial dividends.

It is the intention of the Company to continue increasing their present plant until they have a capacity of 600 tons or more per day, and then build their own smelter.

The Capital Stock of the Pyramid Gold & Copper Mining Company is $1 200,000. Par value of shares $1.00 each, 500,000 shares in the treasury, the proceeds from the sale of Treasury Stock will be used in building various stamp and concentrating mills on the property equip the mines, etc. No salaries will be paid to officers of the company until the property is on a dividend paying basis. Every dollar received from the sale of stock is expended in a judicious manner for equipment and further development of the property.

Only a limited number of shares will be sold at 50 cents. When sufficient funds have been obtained to pay for the mill, now in the course of construction, and the equipment of the mines, the stock will be advanced to $1.00 per share.

The Pyramid property is about 25 miles from Senator W. A. Clark's rich United Verde Mines that pay about $18,000,000 profit annually. We don't claim to have a better property than the United Verde, for to be as good is good enough, and according to the excellent showing made on this property we cannot help but believe that the Pyramid property will prove, as development progresses, to be one of the best in Arizona.

The stock of the Pyramid Gold & Copper Mining Company is recommended as an investment.

FIRST—Because copper has proved itself to be the best of all investments. Bacon Street, Boston, and a large part Fifth Avenue, New York, are lined with palaces built with copper dividends.

SECOND—Because Yavapa County, Arizona—the home of the United Verde—is the richest copper producing county in the world. Already over $430,000,000 have been paid in dividends from mines in this county.

THIRD—Because the Pyramid Company has one of the largest and richest properties in Yavapai County, Arizona.

FOURTH—Because many thousand dollars in cold cash has been spent on the development and equipment of the property so that it is close to the producing, self-sustaining and dividend-paying stage.

FIFTH—Because the company is moderately capitalized, conservately organized and well managed.

SIXTH—Because the stock of the Pyramid Gold & Copper Mining Company is a safe investment. Its property is one of the choicest in Arizona.

SEVENTH—Because the stock at the present price is the cheapest and best investment in the market to-day.

Are you ambitious, and do you want to reach the height of your ambition? If you do you must accumulate money, for money means freedom, comfort and ease.

An investment in the stock of a mining company whose property is developed to such an extent to prove that it contains an almost inexhaustible quantity of rich ore, and the officers and directors of the company are men of good character and standing, who thoroughly understand the mining business, is the safest and most profitable investment in the market to-day. It is much safer, and by far more profitable than Banking. If you desire to make an absolutely safe investment and one that will bring you large returns this is your opportunity. A word to the wise should be sufficient.

It is not a question of how little you can invest, but how much. Take all you can get of it. If you want to get Pyramid Stock at 50 cents per share, send in your order and remittance at once. Make remittances payable to the company. For prospectus and further particulars address, R. J. KIDD, General Agent, Peterborough, Ont.

Not Only Relief, but Lasting Cure

s What You Get From Catarrhozone Which Eradicates Every Trace of Catarrh From the System.

Relief is a good thing, but we soon get tired of it and look for a remedy that will drive the seeds of Catarrh right out of the system. It is only a waste of time to trifle with internal dosing. You must treat Catarrh locally because it is a local disease.

The most sensible treatment is Catarrhozone which really does reach the diseased membranes in a most thorough way. Every case of catarrh can be cured if Catarrhozone is used. It instantaneously penetrates every air cell and air passage of the breathing organs. It completely destroys the catarrh germs and heals all the inflamed surfaces.

Every requirement of an ideal catarrh cure is embraced in Catarrhozone. Other treatments may have failed to even bring relief, but one trial is sufficient to prove merit in Catarrhozone not found in the ordinary snuff or wash that unscrupulous people sometimes recommend for catarrh.

If you are subject to colds, catarrh or throat trouble you will find quick relief and lasting cure in fragrant, healing Catarrhozone. Mrs E. P. Fairbanks, of Durham, was cured of chronic catarrh by this remedy and endorses it in the following letter, which speaks for itself:

"I suffered continually from catarrh which affected my throat. My nostrils were usually inflammed and I was greatly bothered with droppings in the throat which made me sick at my stomach. I had a bad taste in my mouth, and felt a ringing in my ears. I read of Catarrhozone and commenced to use it. In a few days it helped me more than I ever expected. I used it four times daily and it two weeks most of the disagreeable symptoms disappeared. I continued the Catarrhozone treatment for six weeks and was perfectly cured. The catarrh has never returned."

Every complete outfit of Catarrhozone sufficient for two months' use is guaranteed to permanently cure, trial size 25c. Sold by druggists or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co. Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., or Kingston, Ont.

HIS PIPE WAS LOADED

How a Visitor in Town Came Near Blowing His Head Off

While visiting at the home of his son-in-law who lives on Cedar street, town, Mr. Thomas Williams, of Toronto, had an experience that he does not care to repeat. After dinner on Sunday he took out his pipe and proceeded to fill the same with some tobacco he had in his pocket, preparatory to taking a smoke. In the pocket along with the tobacco were several 22 calibre cartridges, and not knowing it, he got one of them mixed up with the tobacco and put it in the pipe. Tom lit his pipe and settled himself for a quiet smoke. After a short time there was an explosion, the shell going one way and the pipe the other, and there was a cloud of smoke that made him think a Japanese gun-boat had struck Peterborough. Tom thought some one had shot at him throughthe window. Beyond a severe scare no damages was done.

It will be some time before Tom blows down the muzzle of an unloaded pipe again.

REPORTED THAT JAPS FLEET BOMBARDED THE TOWN OF NEW CHWANG

News Came from Tien-Tsin and Russians There Discredit It--Vladivostock Squadron Has Disappeared from Gensan

Tien Tsin, April 27.—It is reported upon good authority that the Japanese fleet bombarded the town of New Chwang last night. The Russians here deny that there is any truth in the report.

The Russian squadron which sank the Japanese merchantman Goyo at Wonsan consisted of four cruisers and two torpedo boat destroyers.

Latest reports from Gensan say that the Vladivostock squadron has disappeared.

LEAVE FOR FRONT.

Tokio, April 27.The foreign military observers assigned to Japan's first army in Corea have been ordered to leave for the front next Saturday. The British attaches are Lieut.-Gen. Ian Hamilton, Col. Hume, Capt. Jordine and Capt. Vincent.

THE CZAR IS FATHER OF THE RUSSIAN ARMY

Mingles With Troops and Inspires their Patriotism--Russia's Fighting Force

St. Petersburg, April 27.No living ruler of any nation in the world takes deeper interest in his soldiery, manifests greater anxiety for their welfare and excites feelings of more ardent patriotism among them than Nicholas II., Czar of all the Russians.

The Czar awakens patriotism among his soldiers by continuously moving among them. More than ever before, since the war opened, has he been seen among his people, in this way arousing them to loyalty.

When any large body of troops is starting to the front, the Czar invariably reviews them with much military pomp and splendor, and very frequently accompanies the soldiers to their station to cheer them on their way. The soldiers have the greatest respect for him and appreciate his deep interest in their movements.

The Emperor has placed much reliance on the work of his Cossack troops in the present war, and has gone out of his way more than once to show his regard for this branch of his large army. No patriotic Russian soldier can fail to appreciate the signal favor of being led to action, so to speak, by the ruler of the nation.

GRAND DUKES AT WAR.

Figuring largely in the present war will be the Grand Duke Michael, successor to the throne of Russia, who is prepared at a moment's notice to go to the front, accompanied by his royal suite. He commands the Imperial Lancers and hopes to be able to engage in the present conflict before the close of the war.

Another member of the imperial family who is likely to give a good account of himself in the present war is the Grand Duke Vladimir, general-in-chief of the Russian army, the officers of his staff embracing the flower of the nobility. He is an uncle to the Czar. He was born April 20th, 1874, and married Princess Parleum of Mecklenburg-Schwerin.

Grand Duke Dimitri, the tallest officer in the Russian army, standing six feet seven inches in height, is a cousin of the Czar, and was born in 1860. He is a son of the late Grand Duke Constantine brother of Emperor Alexander II., who was grandfather of the present Czar. He is one of the most popular men in the Russian army, being generally known as a "good fellow." He is now on his way to the front.

The Russian soldier is a man of peculiarly hardy physique, and can dispense with much that men of a more advanced type consider necessaries of life. In the possession of this last most useful quality in a soldier the Russian is immeasureably superior to the Japanese, and, moreover, he is just as good—if not a better—marcher. So far as intelligence and dash are concerned the Japanese is his superior, but not so in stubbornness of purpose or those qualities that—among many others—distinguish a country born soldier from a town bred one, and very much to the advantage of the first.

Coming from a conquering race, and with all the prestige behind it, the Russian is only too likely to prove something more than a match for the very best troops Japan can bring against him, unless it be in very preponderating force—a very unlikely contingency, all things considered. The Japanese soldier is—so far as a contempt for death is concerned—a rare man, and, though many possess soldierly qualities of a very high order indeed, far too many, on the other hand, are lacking the fighting qualities of the Russian soldier.

RUSSIA'S FIGHTING STRENGTH

The Russian empire unquestionably possesses the biggest fighting machine in the world in the shape of its army and navy, but there is no other military force of which the world knows so little.

Even the numerical strength of the army is largely a matter of conjecture. As nearly as can be reckoned, the forces available for carrying on the early stages of a war amounts to nearly 3,100,000. But in case of national emergency this force could be swelled to about 7,500,000 fighting men by the calling out of the territorial reserve and the opolchenie, or militia.

This vast army is more than twice as large as the population of New York city, more than twice as large as the German army, which, when mobilized, is estimated to have a total of 3,036,000 trained men. Under the order of Oct. 24, 1902, the strength of the United States army was fixed at 107,955 men—less than one-seventh of that of the Russian.

But Russia does not depend upon this immense army alone. She has one of the biggest navies in the world, or rather three distinct navies, each with its separate organization and separate base. One is in the Pacific, the second in the Baltic and the third is in the Black Sea. In many respects the Russian army and navy differ materially from the forces of other powers and some of the points of difference are decidedly interesting.

Secrecy is the keynote of the administration of both services. The secrets of both the army and navy are most carefully conceived, and so are many things not usually hidden by governments.

Even cases of individual heroism are similarly concealed, except in time of war. The theory of the service is that every man is equal in all respects to his comrade of the same rank. He is as brave, as efficient, and as loyal. It is considered bad for the service to allow the limelight to fall upon particular men, however, heroically they may have acted. And is considered to be bad for the men, too—in which belief the Russian administration shows a pretty good knowledge of human nature.

A sailor may jump overboard and rescue his captain from death in shark infested waters, or a stoker may dare appalling danger to save the life of a comrade in an engine room accident.In due course, he will be rewarded and promoted, and throughout his career his superior will remember the deed in his favor; but it will never become public. Rewards promotions and distinctions are announced only in war time or in cases of very exceptional merit, and even in those cases no reference whatever is made to the occasion of the reward or special commendation in any published reports or orders.

One branch of the Russian army is totally unlike any force possessed by other civilized powers. It is, of course, the Cossack levy, which numbers 142,000 men. Every able bodied Cossack is liable to service, without limit of age. He becomes liable at 18, and the liability does not cease so long as he is able to ride a horse or carry a gun. But only a proportion of the Cossacks serve at one time. The rest are granted "unlimited leave,—or belong to the reserve.

The stimulus which provokes the energy and fighting qualities of the Russian soldier, inciting to greater patriotism and love of country, is unquestionably traced to the great interest manifested by the ruler of all the Russians at all times for the men who fight his battles.

THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL

THE MAYOR OF TORONTO WANTS PORT HOPE OUTLET

Importance of the Waterway Now Being Realized by the Toronto People

Mayor Urquhart, of Toronto, has given out the following statement of his views on the Trent Valley Canal:

The importance of this question to Toronto and Western Ontario becomes more apparent the more it is studied. The extension of the canal and making its Lake Ontario outlet at Trenton will materially affect the trade of Western Ontario with this district, while Port Hope, or a point near Port Hope, would be what might be termed a neutral point, which would give the Western portion of the Province a fair opportunity of doing business in the large tract of country served by the canal.

This improvement should be dealt with, not as a local work simply for supplying local needs, but as a national work, which it really is, being of importance to the whole country, and not only to the locality served. The making of the Ontario outlet at or near Port Hope will not in any way affect the Eastern trade, but will give to this Western part of the Province a fair chance of doing business in this district.

This district requires agricultural implements, furniture, waggons, carriages, and, in fact, all the articles manufactured in the Western part of the Province, and the opening of the canal to Port Hope will give water competition with the railway for the carrying of this freight. Port Hope is also a "port of call" for the Richelieu and Ontario Company's steamers, and daily communication is thus had with this port. Speaking locally, Port Hope would become the distributing center for the coal required by the manufacturers and business men of Peterborough, Lindsay and other towns in the district, and it would thus tend to build up the district served by the canal.

There should be a complete and thorough examination of the routes made by independent engineers and a report made to the Government thereon.

BOERS GET READY

Arms and Ammunition Being Prepared For Another Transvaal War With Britons

New York, April 27.—In his cable letter from London to The Tribune, Mr. Isaac N. Ford says; The condition of South Africa is far from satisfactory. Protests against the demand of the Crown colony agents to exclusive control of the purchase of supplies for the Transvaal and the Orange River Colonies can easily be met by official compromises, but there are many signs of discontent and dangerous unrest in South Africa. One is the circumstantial evidence of a Boer secret conspiracy in the Lydenburg district, with concealed supplies of arms and ammunition. Another is the widespread disappointment over the continuation of hard times and the prostration of mining interests.

BARONESS DIES IN A CABIN

Husband's Conspiracy Against King Leads Her to Poverty In America

Leadville, Col., April 27.—From life in the royal palaces of Europe to a struggle with poverty and at last death in a humble cabin in Leadville, was the transition of Stephanie, Baroness Gallotti, who was known in Leadville as Mrs. Chas. H. Tanner. She was buried this afternoon, having died last night.

Baroness Gallotti had lived in Leadville since 1879. She was born in 1840 at Milan, and was a descendant of a sister of the duchess of Kent, the mother of Queen Victoria of England. She married Baroff Carlo Di Gallotti of Naples.

In 1885 Baron Gallotti was arrested for conspiracy against the king and sentenced to be shot. His brother, who was minister of war, secured passports for the baron and his wife and they fled from Italy, going to France, thence to London and America. In the summer of 1874, on returning to her apartments one afternoon, the baroness found her husband dead on the floor. In his hand was grasped a royal pardon signed by the king. The joy caused by the news that he would be allowed to return home had caused his death.

The baroness continued to reside in Denver and in 1878 she married Charles H. Tanner and came to Leadville the following year. She spent some time singing in Leadville and later she and her husband came here to reside permanently.

FISCAL CAMPAIGN WILL GO FORWARD

Mr. Chamberlain Has Returned With Renewed Vigor

THE TRIFF COMMISSION

Has Gathered Abundant Evidence of Need of Reform in Fiscal Policy

London, April 27.—Hon. Joseph Chamberlain's friends say that he returned quite reinvigorated. He realizes, however, that the political situation has somewhat changed during his absence. The Government is now fairly secure in Parliament for another year, and at least no early dissolution is contemplated. Consequently there is no need to force the pace in the fiscal movement. The work of educating the public regarding Imperial reciprocity can proceed quietly during the next six months, especially in view of remarkable testimony regarding the present unsatisfactory condition of the British iron and steel, textile, engineering, machinery and other trades which the tariff commission is collecting, and the strong views the British manufacturers are expressing of the beneficial operation of the Canadian, New Zealand and South African preferential tariffs and the desirability of the extension of the preference principle in inter-Imperial trade generally.

St. Johns, Nfld, April 322.—The residents of the French shore are taking alarm over the disputed clause of the new Anglo-French colonial treaty, under which British and French fishermen would be compelled to terminate their operations by October 20th each year and are likely to make protests against it to the Colonial Government.

The matter was further discussed in the Legislature yesterday, when the Government was pressed for information. The Premier, Mr. Bond, said the Ministry was still negotiating with the Imperial Cabinet, and that no announcement would be possible until the negotiations were completed.

Meanwhile, the Premier promised that the Legislature, which it was intended should close next Thursday, would be kept open until the whole matter was finally settled, so that all information received could be presented for its action.

The Colonial Government is determined to enforce the Bait Act, and today despatched the cruiser Fiona to resume the annual fishers patrol opposite St. Pierre.

London, April 26.—There has lately terminated on the northwest boundary of Southern Nigeria a war in which British interests in a large district were once threatened.

Following an attack on a political officers escort, a column under Capt. Hogg, 4th Hussars, has been engaged in punitive work since last November. The powerful secret society, called the Ekamaku, which had not been thoroughly suppressed in 1902, was again giving trouble, and looting and murder were prevalent throughout a large tract of country.

The fighting was of a severe nature and casualties were heavy. The expedition suffered considerable, but the British officers who accompanied it pursued operations with untiring pertinacity, and on Feb. 15 the stronghold of the rebels, Obubuku, was attacked, and after four hours' fighting, during which the force sustained 17 casualties, captured.

"This broke the back of the rebellion and the remainder of the work was soon accomplished. The political officers are now busily re-establishing order, and the Ekamaku Society has received a blow from which it will never recover.

Capt. Hogg's column will now proceed at once to the Kwaja country, to deal with certain chiefs who have been concerned in slave trading.

Montreal, April 25.—It is probable that by an arrangement between the London Chamber of Commerce and the Montreal Board of Trade, English university students will proceed Canadaward during the coming summer the idea being to give these young men, who in after years will do much to mould public opinion, a better idea of the Dominion than is possible by other than personal inspection.

When the delegates to the Congress of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire were in Montreal last year the project was mooted, some of the English delegates being particularly enthusiastic. The idea is that arrangements be made with the steamships, the C. P. R., the G. T. R. and others so that the trip through Canada may be made at fairly reasonable rates, the itinary being somewhat similar to that taken by the Congress delegates last summer.

Mr. Kenric Murray, secretary of the London Board, in his communication to the Montreal Board of Trade upon the subject, is evidently of the opinion that for the first year at least the number should be limited to say fifty, and his expressed opinion that these trips would grow in popularity from year to year.

HAS SMALLPOX IN CASTLE

Duke and Duchess of Roxburghe Flee When Workmen Fall Ill

London, April 27.—There was great alarm at Floors castle this week when one of the workmen installing electric light apparatus developed smallpox. The Duke and Duchess of Roxburghe ordered the place thoroughly disinfected and left immediately for Broxmouth Park, Dunbar, the residence of the Duke's mother.

The stricken workman had been working in the duchess' boudoir only the day before he fell sick.

BRITISH PEOPLE ARE SATISFIED

Feeling is General That the Budget Was Reasonable

THE NEW LICENSING BILL

Government Measure Will Be Fought Vigourously by Teetotalers--Education and Crime

London, April 26.—There is quite an air of cheerfulness now that the budget day has gone, and it is seen that the stupendous national expenditure of $715,000,000 involves nothing worse than an extra penny on the income tax, an extra two pence per pound on tea, and a trifling additional price for cigar and cigarettes. Austen Chamberlain himself goes the length of assuring Englishmen that they had a fit of the blues for a very small reason. It is true that expenditure has grown in forty years by 125 per cent., but the national wealth has grown 150 per cent. The responsibilities of an ever expanding Empire are greatly increased, but how much stronger the British shoulders have grown to bear it all.

This is in justification of Mr. Austen Chamberlain's omission of the Chancellor's usual warning against the alarming growth of expenditure. Unkind political enemies allege that the Chamberlains, father and son, are not forgetful of the fact that an increased expenditure has its uses in making new methods of taxation inevitable.

THE LICENSING BILL.

To the Chinese labor ordinances succeeds the new licensing bill, as the subject of acute political agitation. The Liberal objection to the new Government measure this week submitted to the House of Commons, is that the liquor licenses, which are now subject to yearly renewal, become a vested interest which can be curtailed except to a trifling extent, covered by a compensation fund of five million dollars per annum, which the remaining license-holders are compelled to form, for dispossessed holders. In return for this five millions, which capitalized means two hundred millions, the brewers gain a statutory security for their property which is estimated will add a thousand millions to the capitalized value of their licenses. The Liberal alternative would adopt a time limit, after which the state would cease to concern itself about any compensation to be given. The teetotal-ers intend to fight the bill strenuously.

CRIME AND EDUCATION.

The statistics of crime published this week are accepted as proving that the better the education, the less frequent the lapse from legal virtue, but once a man or woman has been in prison, the chances are that sooner or later they will return there. If only it were possible to eliminate the habitual offender, the British would be the most virtuous nation in the world. Four thousand foreign criminals are in British jails. Directly the Government bill becomes a law, this influence will cease. Women are more incorrigible criminals than men. The repression of crime costs England and Wales thirty millions a [illegible]

PETERBOROUGH THANKED

For Assistance Rendered by the Fire Department

The city council of Toronto has sent the following resolution to the Peterborough council, thanking it for the assistance rendered on the occasion of the recent fire:

"That this council, on behalf of the citizens of Toronto, take this the first available opportunity of placing on record its profound sense of gratefulness and of tendering its sincere thanks to the Municipal Corporation, Fire Department, and Company of Peterborough, for the generous and prompt response to appeals for assistance by the expeditious despatch of firemen and appliances on the occasion of the serious conflagration which destroyed a large portion of the central business district of the city on the 19th and the 20th instant."

CAPACITY DOUBLED

Curtis Bros Have Added 6 Another Brick Machine to Their Fine Plant

Messrs. Curtis Bros., the enterprising brick and tile manufacturers, have added a second brick making machine to their fine plant. The present capacity of the works is two millions of bricks a year, and the firm is now in a position to double this output if necessary. They are determined to keep up with the demand, so that those contemplating building may not be subject to disappointment and lose through lack of material.

Over fifteen hundred cords of wood is consumed in the operation of making two million bricks. This, of course will be doubled hereafter. Messrs. Curtis Bros. employ about forty men. To The Times Mr. Charles Curtis said yesterday that the outlook this year is good. They had sold their entire output last season, and orders were already being booked for a large part of this years output.

THE LATE MRS. RECORD

The Wife of a Former Citizen Passes Away in Constantine

The following report of the death of Mrs. Rice Record, whose husband at one time lived in Ashburnham, and whose father now resides there, appears in a Constantine, Mich., paper;

"Sarah McKee was born at Sumner, Clarion county, Pa., on June 8, 1849. She came to Michigan with her parents when quite young, and settled in Kent county. Later she came to Constantine, which was her home for a number of years. On January 12, 1879, she was united in marriage with Rice Record. They went to Caledonia, Kent county, Mich., which was thereafter her home.

"She was a good woman and practiced the greatest of all virtues — kindness, benevolence and helpfulness. During the year and a half preceding her death she was a great sufferer, but bore all with great fortitude. Her end was peaceful. Those who knew her best loved her most, and her friends were many.

"She left to mourn her loss a devoted husband, a loving daughter, three brothers, and unnumbered friends.

"The funeral services were conducted at the home of her brother, Wm. McKee in Constantine, Wednesday afternoon, the Rev. B. F. Grembole officiating. Interment was in the Constantine cemetery."

RUSSIANS WEAKENED BY LOSS OF SEVERAL VESSELS RECENTLY.

Japs May Land in Rear of Forts--Weakness of Russians Leaves Japanese Ships Free to Cover Landing

St. Petersburg, April 27.—It is expected that the Japanese will attempt to land troops on the Liao Tung peninsula, in the rear of Port Arthur and attack it on both sides. The recent losses to the Russian fleet will leave many of the Japanese ships free to cover a landing of troops.

The Japanese will attempt the same plan of capture as proved successful in the Chinese war. But even in that conflict it took the Mikado's troops 27 days to carry the fortifications. It cannot be expected that they will be more successful in the face of trained Russian troops. No fear is expressed here for the safety of Port Arthur. General Kuropatkin has 300,000 troops at his command and could send an overwhelming force to the relief of Port Arthur. The Japanese may depend on their fleet fire to help them hold the narrow isthmus by which the peninsula is connected to the mainland.

Admiral Alexieff has asked to be relieved. There is general satisfaction over this. Alexieff was the head and front of the war party in Russia and yet permitted the Russians to be caught totally unprepared in the east.

Admiral Skrydloff, who succeeds Makaroff in command of the Port Arthur fleet is quoted as being in favor of offensive operations.

The reports from the Yalu indicate that the Japanese have control of the entire of Corea, and the Russian and Japanese forces are massed along the Yalu. A battle seems imminent.

JAPANESE DID IT.

Wei-Hai-Wei, April 27.—There is no doubt that the destruction of the battleship Petropavlovsk last week in which the brave Admiral Makaroff lost his life, was the beginning of a general campaign on the part of the Japanese for the possession of the Liao-Tung peninsula, of which Port Arthur is the key. Even the Russians have ceased to aver that the blowing up of the Petropavlovsk was due to accidental contact with a Russian mine. The flagship was undoubtedly destroyed by the Japanese. The only open question is in regard to the engine employed by Admiral Togo. According to the official report of the admiral, the Japanese had mined roads the night before, and then drew the [illegible] across the dangerous field. The Russian fleet was outmaneuvered, but late advices show that the damage was not so great as at first reported by the Russians. The Japanese had one more battleship and one more protected cruiser. Whatever the cause, the Russians retreated. It is believed that Makaroff had a plan to draw the Japanese after him, and to lead them through the Russian mine fields. But his ship ran against a Japanese mine and he met the very fate that he had planned for his rival.

The revised reports show that out of the crew of 700 aboard the flagship about seventy-five escaped, including the Grand Duke Cyril, who was so severely injured that it was feared he might lose his legs. Cyril is the son of the Czar's uncle and is in line for the throne.

The Japanese were not satisfied with the destruction of the flagship. They sank one torpedo boat and torpedoed two battleships and an armored cruiser. The battleships are the Pobieda and the Pereyviet, while the disabled cruiser is the Bayan.

All three managed to get into the inner harbor, but it is believed they are practically helpless for offensive purposes.

This leaves the Russian fleet in almost as bad condition as it was immediately after the first torpedo attack on Port Arthur. The Japanese sought this end, for the purpose of carrying on a campaign to the north. A few ships will be left to watch the entrance to Port Arthur, so that no Russian war vessels can come out, and the rest of the fleet will be sent against Vladivostock or will convey an army to land on the Liao Tung peninsula and attack Port Arthur from the rear. The latter is believed to be the plan most likely to be followed. The capture of Port Arthur is the one grand object of Port Arthur is the one grand object of the Japanese in this war as the conflict was practically the result of their being obliged to vacate the place after the Chinese war.

The attempt to take Port Arthur will be the most desperate undertaking in modern warfare, and there will be undoubtedly hard fighting before the Russians will give up.

Although it has been settled that the destruction of the Petropavlovsk involving the death of Makaroff, was accomplished by the Japanese, and was the result of accidental contact with a Russian mine, there is still doubt as to how the Japanese blew up the flagship. Not withstanding Togo's official report about the planting of the mines, there are those who believe that the Japanese have a boat which they have been using since the war broke out. It is known that the Japanese government purchased the plans of a submarine from an American firm two years ago. It is not likely that a government which made such careful preparations as the Japanese have for this war, would neglect so promising an engine as the submarine, especially after buying the plans. It is but natural, if the Japanese have such a boat that they would seek to keep the matter a secret, for its effectiveness is largely enhanced by keeping the enemy in ignorance of its existence.

Of the ten Russian war vessels sunk by the Japanese since the present war began less than two months ago seven were destroyed by torpedoes and only three by the guns of Japanese warships.

By this demonstration of the effectiveness and practicality of the torpedo in modern naval warfare the Japanese have likewise revealed the possibilities of that engine of destruction when employed in the naval operations of the most highly developed nations like Great Britain, United States and Germany.

It is reasonable to assume that under the direction of the higher intelligence of the British, Americans or Germans the havoc wrought by a torpedo warfare waged against the battleships of an enemy would be many times greater that it has been in the present conflict, and it would seem evident that great sea powers must rely more upon the torpedo in the future and less upon tonnage as a basis of naval strength.

THE ASHBURNHAM MEETING

Held Last Night to Oppose the Sugar Co By-law

The public meeting held last night in the Fifth Ward Hall in the interests of the Sugar Company's by-law, was fairly well attended. Mr. J. W. Garvin was the principal speaker and set forth in forcible terms the advantages which the establishment of a sugar factory would be to the town. Mr. Garvin read the letter of Mr. W. H. Moore, which appeared in an evening paper, and replied to the same in a way that completely satisfied those who are in favor of the passage of the by-law.

As a full report will appear in these columns of the public meeting to be held in the Opera House tomorrow evening, dealing with the same matter, it is not necessary to report last night's speeches.

WRESTLING.

Sporting Editor Times:

I notice in a recent issue of the Toronto Star of the 21st an article under the heading "After Wrestling Fakirs," in which Kingston and Peterborough are denounced, and evidently regarded by the writer and author of the article as the meccs of fakirs. Of course "Artie Edmunds" good name is closely allied with the insinuations. Peterborough is a good sporting town and its sports are good sports. When fault has been found with either boxing or wrestling contests held in Peterborough the same was due to the actions of outsiders, brought here in good faith. One of the wrestling fakirs brought here some time ago to wrestle D. Simons, of Montreal, was "Artie Edmunds," of Toronto, the wrestler with a reputation. When the latter came on the mat for the bout he was thickly greased from head to foot. On becoming aware of this, Simons, who had not practiced catching greasy pigs left the stage. The audience expressed their indignation for such tactics on the part of this "hero" in the usual way. Is it any wonder then that he is not favored by Peterborough sports?

The affair in Kingston, referred to in said article, was gotten up by and for a Kingston organization. Mr. E. K. Dolan, of Peterborough, was requested to manage the affair, which he undertook to do. This gentleman has never had a hand in any show held in Peterborough. The pimple Edmunds carries on the upper end of his neck is here because he was not given a hand in the "fake." However, if Edmunds is the good sport and the square man he claims to be (excuse the exaggeration) Mr. Dolan will produce two Peterborough men, one a boxer and the other a wrestler, to box or wrestle (or both) him in private for any sum—$250 to $500—and will deposit $50 as a guarantee of good faith with any standard newspaper in Toronto. These same two men were scheduled to appear in Kingston on the night in question. Now, it is up to you, "Artie" to make your "hot air" speech to the Star reporter.

Boil over with courage of your worth or force it to be cooled off by that of the "raw variety." Edmunds claims that the man who will go on the mat at Kingston are of the "rawest variety." In the next breath he says, "I will go down there and box or wrestle the whole outfit, one after another, and if I cannot beat them all I don't want the money. If he couldn't beat them I don't suppose he would get much money anyway. We know, "Artie" your hobby is men of the "raw variety" in both boxing and wrestling, and your reputation was thus gained. But it is up to you now. The same "raw variety" will cover your cash up to $250, as stated above, and will bet with you that your money goes.

Detroit Specialist Discovers Something Entirely New for the Cure of Men's Diseases in Their Own Homes.

You Pay Only if Cured

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas, from medical colleges and boards, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes; so that there may be no doubt in the mind of any man that he has

DR. S. GOLDBERG,
The Possessor of 14 Diplomas and Certificates Who Wants No Money That He Does Not Earn.

both the method and the ability to do as he says. Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic troubles, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emissions of parts, impotence, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but like wise all the complications, such as rheumatism bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interest of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. TORPEDO-BOATS AND BATTLE-SHIPS

Of the ten Russian war vessels sunk by the Japanese since the present war began less than two months ago seven were destroyed by torpedoes and only three by the guns of Japanese warships.

By this demonstration of the effectiveness and practicality of the torpedo in modern naval warfare the Japanese have likewise revealed the possibilities of that engine of destruction when employed in the naval operations of the most highly developed nations like Great Britain, United States and Germany.

Constructors of ironclads from John Ericsson down have contended that the battleship represented but a stage in naval development and that its supremacy would be but temporary, and in this view they have been well supported by naval strategists. Present indications are that the day of the battleship has begun to wane and that its great bulk, which has been its source of strength, is in reality an element of weakness in an attack by torpedo boats, the swift, darting naval attackers that strike in the dark and always with fatal effect when their blows reach their antagonist.

France is a measure anticipated the developments of torpedo warfare in the Russo-Japanese war and has been adding largely to her torpedo flotilla, but most of the other sea powers, and particularly the United States, have dissipated the greater part of their enormous naval expenditures in reckless rivalry for the most and the largest battleships.

High Class Investment

THE OREGON MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY

Offer to Canadian investors a limited amount of stock of the above company The property owned by the Company consists at the present time of about 500 acres, which are located in the Tarryall District and Park County, Colorado. This whole district has been known for years on account of its rich placer ground, and is now prominently before the public owing to the number of very good properties which have been opened up recently producing, principally, gold, and lately some that are producing Platinum. On the Oregon property there are a number of well known veins of low grade ore that will yield a profit by being treated on the ground of the company. The company have recently opened up a fine vein in the Hawkeye group and this vein shows not only good values but an immense amount of ore which alone would make the property very valuable. Assays from ore, taken from various parts of this property range from a few dollars to $373 per ton in gold. We have very little silver, lead or copper in the district. The company have a shaft 240 feet deep, with a good shaft house thoroughly well equipped with all modern machinery to develop same. They are now driving a tunnel which is in about 700 feet and which will cut the Hawkeye vein about 300 feet deeper than where it is opened at present. There is enough ore exposed on the property of this company to keep them busy for a number of years and the reason for selling stock at the present time is to secure funds to build a mill. The company will probably join with the Almades Company in building this mill. There is water enough to furnish water power and over 100 acres of fine spruce and pine timber. The affairs of the company have always been managed in a business-like economical manner and there are no officers' salaries. The monies received from the sale of stock go direct into the property.

I can heartily recommend this stock as safe, as well as an unusually good investment, because of the immense amount of ore which the company have already opened up. It is not a mere prospect, but the property has been developed by expense of a considerable amount of money and time.

The company is splendidly officered by men of integrity and high standing. The company has not pushed the sale of stock the last year owing to a delay in getting title to the ground from the Government, but now that has been satisfactorily adjusted and work will be pushed to a finish.

The number of exceedingly rich strikes which have been made during the last few weeks in the various camps in the State of Colorado is the best evidence of the prosperity of the mining business. Almost every camp in the state has opened up rich bodies of ore, and Park County is well in the lead in that line.

There are only $25,000 of stock for sale, at $1.00 per share. The company is capitalized at $200,000, and the advantage to the investor of selling the stock at par, is that every share is fully paid up and non-assessable.

RUSSIAN VLADIVOSTOCK SQUADRON IS OFF JAPAN

Appeared at Gensan, Korea, where It Sunk a Japanese Merchant Steamer

Tokioo April 26.—The Russian Vladivostok squadron, after a long period of inactivity, suddenly appeared off Gensan, on the east coast of Corea, this morning and sank the Goyo Maru a Japanese merchant steamer of six hundred tons.

A brief telegram received from Gensan to-day says three Russian cruisers had entered the harbor, and that they were still there when the telegram was sent. Their arrival created consternation.

Port Arthur, April 26.—All work on both the land and sea sides there have been so strengthened in the past two months that the impregnacy of Port Arthur is now regarded as absolutely assured. The garrison has been considerably strengthened and the forts are provided with all necessities for more than a year. Complete confidence prevails with the troops, sailors and inhabitants in the ability of the Russians to defeat any Japanese attack.

Remarkable indifference to the possibility of attack is shown by the people, in fact, by day there is little to indicate that the town is in a state of siege. The band plays on the boulevard, on which parades are held, finely dressed people stroke about, and groups of children play. Restaurants and shops are well patronized by customers all day long. At night, however the city is in profound darkness, which is emphasized by the searchlights flashing across the roadstead.

ENTRANCE IS FREE.

The entrance of the harbor, although studded with mine Japanese wrecks, remain perfectly free.

The foundering of the Petropavlovsk is regarded as a tragic misfortune, without influence on the course of the campaign, or preventing the Russian fleet from still achieving brilliant results.

At each successive bombardment, which experience shows recurs approximately fortnightly, the Japanese are becomes less vigorous. Their ships remain out of range of the batteries, and evidently they do not intend to be drawn into a battle.

MUST KEEP AWAY.

The Chicago Daily News despatch boat, flying the British flag, which was boarded and detained by Russian cruisers off Port Arthur, on Friday last, has been liberated on the condition that she will not again approach these coasts.

THE YALU UNCROSSED.

St. Petersburg, April 26.—Major-General Pflug, in a telegram from Port Arthur, formally denies the reports that the Japanese have crossed the Yalu River.

HOPES FOR GOOD NEWS.

St. Petersburg, April 26.—It is said that the emperor, replying to Viceroy Alexieff's application for leave, has telegraphed his refusal, adding that he hoped the Viceroy would be able to send good news soon.

Paigner, the most celebrated tenor of the Imperial Opera, who is an officer of the Naval Reserves, has been called to the colors.

Tokio April 26.—The Russian Vladivostock squadron has appeared at Gensan, Corea, where it sunk a Japanese merchant steamer.

GERMANS NEED REINFORCEMENTS

SEVERAL THOUSAND NEEDED

Desease and Wounds are Thinning the Glasenap Column—Wireless Telegraphy Outfits

Berlin, April 25.—A cable message from Windhuck, German South-west Africa, dated yesterday, announces the arrival of a transport detachment with 42 ill from the Glasenapp column, which are still occupying Onjata on April 15. There have been five deaths from wounds and illness since the Battle of Okaharui (April 3.)

Further reinforcements of 152 men and officers start for German South-west Africa April 29, with six machine guns.

The Government already has sent to Southwest Africa be equipment for several wireless telegraph stations, and is now considering the question of sending a balloon corps.

The opinion apparently is gaining ground among the military and colonial authorities that further reinforcements, perhaps reaching several thousand men, will be necessary to quell the rebellion and that it is better to send them forthwith than to delay such action any longer.

IS HEIR TO THE SERVIAN THRONE

American Farmer in Minnesota Has This Distinction

London, April 26.—The announcement that the King of Servia would like to abdicate has revived the story of the American heir to the throne, in the person of John Boyn, a Minnesota farmer, whose father, August Boyn, was said to be an heir to the throne of that country, and who, it is claimed, died in that country, many years ago by the hand of an assassin.

The St. James Gazette, in discussing the rumors that King Peter would like to let go because he is disappointed with the people, says the world contains a lot of pretenders to the throne who do not really pretend because they prefer to keep off the dangerous elevation. The most interesting of these pretenders says the writer, is the Minnesota farmer, John Boyn Veahauser, believed to be descended from Milos Obrenovitch, and through him connected with the Servian ruler.

The mother of John Boyn lives in a modest little cottage among the fine evergreens and jackpines near Burn River, a few miles from Princeton, Minn. She is 84 years old, but for one of her age is apparently hale and hearty. Small of stature and with her shrunken form bent with infirmities of age, she still shows that she was in her youth a comely woman for one of her race, and had Dame Fortune made her Queen of Servia she would have graced the throne of that country of social and political volcanoes with as much dignity as many of the happy and unhappy rulers of Europe.

She did not know much about her husband's kingly inheritance, which it has been claimed he went to Servia to see. He told his folks he had a large inheritance awaiting him in Servia, and decided to go over to that country in 1867 to secure the wealth. His wife and children begged him not to leave them, but he promised to return soon with money enough to make him rich.

He had no idea of attempting to regain his royal rights other than a portion of the fortune which was due him. He wrote his wife from Belgrade after his arrival. In a few weeks she received word through the American consul that her husband was dead. Subsequent events proved that he had been assassinated.

Residents of Princeton well remember Boyn. He had a common school education, and was by trade a cabinet-maker. The farm his widow, now occupies was pre-empted by him. The son of old John Boyn, who the widow in the St. James Gazette asserts is more nearly the direct heir to the throne than all other pretenders, lives a short distance from Princeton and near the home of his mother. Though he stoutly maintains his heirship to the throne now held by Peter Karageorgevitch, he is not worrying over the situation.

The grandfather when a mere child was rescued during an invasion of the Turks by being carried by his nurse into a field and hidden, he being the only member of the family to escape. The child was taken to Saxony, where he was brought up and in time married and raised a family. August (John's father) being the only son. It appears that the Turks wiped out the royal family from which the Boyns descended, and John's grandfather preferred to remain in peace in Saxony rather than try sitting on the insecure throne of his native country.

The nurse who rescued the grandfather also carried with her the family Bible and records, and when the child grew up he received the family record, which in time went to August, who kept it inviolate. When he returned to Servia he took the Bible with him, but the book and all records were lost, as they disappeared when he died in Belgrade.

HAS GIVEN OVER $100,000,000

Andrew Carnegie Turns That Remarkable Milestone

IS STILL AS RICH AS EVER

The Details of His Enormous Gifts and Deeds of Charity

Pittsburg, April 26.—Andrew Carnegie has passed the hundred-million-dollar mark in donations.

His announcement of a gift of $5,000,000 as a fund the income of which shall be used to relieve from immediate pecuniary suffering those who perform acts of memorable heroism, constitutes a total giving away of $100,000,000 since he began his money-giving career. The items are as follows:

Carnegie Institute, Pittsburg	$ 7,852,000
Polytechnic School, Pittsburg	2,000,000
Employees' pension fund, Pittsburg	4,000,000
Carnegie National University	10,000,000
Dunfermline endowment	2,500,000
Scotch universities endowment	51,000,000
Libraries in the United States	27,765,000
Libraries in foreign countries	4,651,750
Peace Temple at The Hague	1,500,000
National Engineering Societies	1,500,000
Heroes' fund	5,000,000
Unclassified gifts in U.S.	16,982,370
Unclassified gifts, foreign	1,250,000
Total	$100,001,120

At the same time, he is probably as rich now as he ever was. At the time of the formation of the steel trust, Carnegie's income was estimated at $15,000,000 or more a year, so that less than seven years' income would account for all the money he has given away.

TO CANADIAN INVESTORS

I desire to call the attention of investors to the

of which I am the authorized agent

Investments in mining stocks where they can be purchased cheaply whose property contains merit and whose directors are men of unquestionable honor and integrity, and especially when sufficient work has been done to guarantee a producing mine and the leads have been demonstrated to be permanent, offer the greatest opportunity for large returns from modest investments.

The shrewdest capitalists of England and America are giving more attention to mining properties and putting more money into them than at any time in the past history of the world.

The Smuggler Group consists of five full mineral claims, to-wit:—The Smuggler, Gangue, Black Jack, Star and Bed Rock, located in the Greenhorn District of Eastern Oregon. Furthermore mines are Petrel, Pride of Pendleton, Rosetta and Rockefeller, developing work to the extent of 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifts and crosscuts have been made, exposing hundreds of tons of high grade ore, averaging from $15 to $45 per ton, based on smelter returns, and for the purpose of equipping the mines a limited number of shares of Treasury Stock will be sold at 25 cents per share, the par value of which is $1.00.

HIGH CLASS INVESTMENT

LA ZACUALPA RUBBER PLANTATION COMPANY

Incorporated Under the Laws of the State of California.

La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation is situated in the best location in Mexico for the cultivation of rubber. It has been shown for a great many years as a very choice strip of rubber land and subsequent experience has shown that it is equal to all that has been claimed for it. The affairs of the company are in the hands of men of undoubted integrity and high reputation as successful men of business. To those seeking a safe investment which will secure a good income for life, this proposition offers a favorable opportunity

Shares in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation are not capital stock of a corporation, and carry none of the responsibilities and obligations, or liability to assessment of capital stock; but represent an undivided interest in the plantation itself.

The twelve thousand acres comprising the plantation are divided into twelve thousand shares, each share representing one acre of land, and the holders of shares in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation are the actual owners of one undivided acre of land, for each share held, with a guarantee expressed upon the certificate by La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company, under its official seal, to plant two hundred or more rubber trees per acre for each share sold, and to care for them for a period of five years, and at the expiration of that time to gather the first harvest and deliver the net proceeds thereof to the shareholder.

In other words, La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company sells to each shareholder one undivided acre of land in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation, with two hundred or more rubber trees five years old, and their profits for all time, for each share sold, and agrees to plant so that the first harvest belonging to the shareholder in the case to be gathered from La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation during the sixth year from the date of the certificate.

After the delivery of the first harvest La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company will care for the plantation, and harvest and market the crop for ten per cent. of the net proceeds therefrom. Out of this commission the Company agrees to pay all costs of administration, including maintenance of the home and branch offices.

This plan gives the purchaser of shares an interest of definite acreage, and his proportionate share in the total yield of rubber from the entire plantation forever, making it absolutely certain that the interest of each shareholder will receive the same careful attention forever, making it absolutely certainty, no matter how large or small, for the success of the plantation will be the mutual gain of all.

The foregoing state of facts makes it impossible for any person or persons to combine against or injure the individual interest of the smallest shareholder in the plantation, or to encumber the same, and it can be readily seen that the success of one means the success of all

All persons have some money, but more time. A little money and five years of time, if applied to the cultivation of rubber, will produce large profits.

Full information will be supplied on application to Mr. Roland Kidd, Fiscal Agent for Ontario, or to

ONE OF THE BEST INVESTMENTS EVER OFFERED TO THE PUBLIC OF CANADA.

The Peterborough Brokerage Company will direct and through their agents offer a limited amount of stock of

Consumers' Coal Company
Limited.

Incorporated under the laws of South Dakota, with a capital stock of $300,000 with share a $1each.

The officers of the Company are C. F. Buman, President and Treasurer; George W. Butler Secretary, and C. Burrows, home officer in South Dakota as required by law. Of the $300,000 capitalization, in shares of $1 each, $240,000 worth is issued, the first on all allotment of this was sold at 60c per share the second small allotment at 75c per share and the balance has all been sold at per. 61.

The Consumers Coal Company controls and owns clear of incumbrance, a coal mine in Chemen, Illinois, which is a first-class coal mine on the Toledo, Peoria & Warsaw and the Chicago & Alton R. R. The former line crosses five different railroads running parallel to Chicago. The Mine is on a paying basis and the output is increasing from day to day. We have 321 acres under lease with three distinct veins, or layers of coal which are 4½ feet thick each. The first one at a depth of 187 feet, it is this vein which we are now mining, the second one has a depth of 320 feet and the third at 461 feet. Our main shaft runs down through all three of these veins and a hundred feet below the third, which serves as a sump, makes our shaft's total depth 561 feet. The mine is fully equipped and in good repair and working order. Our machinery engines and everything else is in duplicate so in case of a breakdown we can switch and operate without any loss of time. We have our own blacksmith shop and car shop in which we build our own cars. Our output is now hanging in the neighborhood of 100 tons per day, but I have the promise of the superintendent to increase the output to not less than 200 tons per day within two or three weeks, knowing his arrangements, I know this to be possible.

Although it should not cost more than 50c at the highest to mine coal in Illinois, yet it costs us a trifle over a dollar, owing to the extensive improvements we have made in and at the mine, but as we increase the output the cost per ton of mining will decrease, as our fixed expenses will be no more in mining several hundred tons per day than they are at the present time in mining one hundred tons. Up to the present time we have sold most of our output at the mouth of the shaft to the surrounding farmers and towns people and, therefore, we have no freight or cartage to pay. We receive from $2.25 to $2.60 for Mine Run and $2.75 for Lump. In that way we have made quite a handsome profit and we estimate that our average, or net earnings at the Mine up to the present time is about $140 per day and we hope to soon increase this as we increase output.

We have three yards in Chicago in which we are handling 16 different kinds of coal and we have a very substantial business and have made considerable profit each month out of which we have paid over 50 per cent in dividends last year and accumulated a surplus fund equal to the amount paid in dividends.

The reason we are selling stock at the present time is that our business has grown so extensively that it takes more money to handle the same, besides this, we are buying leases with which to handle our coal in Chicago, which will cost us about $500 each, we predict that this stock will be worth not less than $2 per share before another year is over or by that time our Mine will be producing not less than four or five hundred tons per day. We will appreciate your subscription to any amount you see fit to invest and if possible to interest some of your friendly do so. I remain.

Yours very truly,

Old Hagar's Secret

BY MRS. M. J. HOLMES

Author of "For a Woman's Sake," "Love's Triumph," "Purified by Suffering," "A Grass Widow," "Woman Against Woman," Etc.

"The Lord help me!" ejaculated old Hagar, who, much as she loved Maggie, was beginning to dread her daily visits.

"Why do you want help?" asked Maggie, laughingly. "Are you tired of me, Hagar? Don't you like me any more?"

"Like you, Maggie Miller! like you," repeated old Hagar, and in the tones of her voice there was a world of tenderness and love. "There is nothing on earth I love as I do you. But you worry me to death sometimes."

"Oh, yes, I know," answered Mag, "but I'm not going to tease you awhile. I shall have so much else to do when grandma is gone that I shall forget it. I wish she wasn't so proud," she continued, after a moment. "I wish she'd let Theo and me see a little more of the world than she does. I wonder how she ever expects us to get married, or be anybody, if she keeps us here in the woods like two young savages. Why, as true as you live, Hagar, I have never been anywhere in my life, except to church Sundays, once to Douglas' store, in Worcester, once to Patty Thompson's funeral, and once to a Methodist campmeeting, and I never spoke to more than a dozen men besides the minister and the schoolboys. It's too bad!" and Maggie pouted quite becomingly at the injustice done her by her grandmother in keeping her thus secluded. "Theo don't care," she said. "She is prouder than I am, and does not wish to know the Yankees, as grandma calls the folks in this country; but I'm glad I am a Yankee. I wouldn't live in England for anything."

"Why don't your grandmother take you with her?" said Hagar, who in a measure sympathized with Maggie for being thus isolated.

"She says we are too young to go into society," answered Mag. "It will be time enough two years hence, when I'm eighteen and Theo twenty. Then I believe she intends taking us to London, where we can show off our accomplishments, and practice that wonderful courtesy which Mrs. Jeffrey has taught us. I daresay the Queen will be astonished at our qualifications," and with a merry laugh, as she thought of the appearance she should make at the Court of St. James, Mag leaped on Gritty's back and bounded away, while Hagar looked wistfully after her, saying as she wiped the tears from her eyes. "Heaven bless the girl! She might sit on the throne of England any day, and Victoria wouldn't disgrace herself at all by doing her reverence, even if she be a child of Hagar Warren."

As Maggie had said, Madam Conway was going to England. At first she thought of taking the young ladies with her, but, thinking they were hardly old enough yet to be emancipated from the schoolroom, she decided to leave them under the supervision of Mrs. Jeffrey, whose niece she promised to bring with her on her return from America. Upon her departure she bade Theo and Mag a most affectionate adieu, adding:

"Be good girls while I am away, keep in the house, mind Mrs. Jeffrey, and don't fall in love."

The last injunction came involuntarily from the old lady, to whom the idea of their falling in love was quite as preposterous as to themselves.

"Fall in love!" repeated Maggie, when her tears were dried, and she with Theo was driving slowly home. "What could grandma mean! I wonder who there is for us to love, unless it be John the coachman, or Bill the gardener. I 'most wish we could get in love, though, just to see how 'twould seem, don't you?" she continued.

"Not with anybody here," answered Theo, her nose slightly elevated at the thoughts of people whom she had been educated to despise.

"Why not here as well as elsewhere?" asked Maggie. "I don't see any difference. But grandma needn't be troubled, for such things as men's boots never came near our house. I think it's a shame, though," she continued, "that we don't know anybody, either male or female. Let's go down to Worcester some day and get acquainted. Don't you remember the two handsome young men whom we saw five years ago, in Douglas' store, and how they winked at each other when grandma ran down their goods, and said there were not any darning needles fit to use, this side of the water!"

On most subjects Theo's memory was treacherous, but she remembered perfectly well the two young men, particularly the taller one, who had given her a remnant of blue ribbon, which he said was just the color of her eyes. Still, the idea of going to Worcester did not strike her favorably. "She wished Worcester would come to them," she said, "but she should not dare to go there. They would surely get lost. Grandma would not like it, and Mrs. Jeffrey would not let them go, even if they wished."

"A fig for Mrs. Jeffrey," said Maggie. "I shan't mind her much. I'm going to have a real good time, doing as I please, and if you are wise, you'll have one, too."

"I suppose I shall do what you tell me to—I always do," answered Theo, submissively, and there the conversation ceased.

Arrived at home, they found dinner awaiting them, and Maggie, when seated, suggested to Mrs. Jeffrey that she should give them a vacation of a few weeks, just long enough for them to get rested and visit the neighbors. But this Mrs. Jeffrey refused to do.

"She had her orders to keep them at their books," she said, and "study was healthful;" at the same time she bade them be in the schoolroom on the morrow. There was a wicked look in Maggie's eyes, but her tongue told no tales, and when next morning she went with Theo, demurely to the schoolroom, she seemed surprised at hearing from Mrs. Jeffrey that every book had disappeared from the desk, where they were usually kept, and though the greatly disturbed and astonished lady had sought for them nearly an hour, they were not to be found.

"Maggie has hidden them, I know," said Theo, as she saw the mischievous look on her sister's face.

"Margaret wouldn't do such a thing, I'm sure," answered Mrs. Jeffrey, her voice and manner indicating a little doubt, however, as to the truth of her assertion.

But Maggie had hidden them, and no amount of coaxing could persuade her to bring them back. "You refused me a vacation when I asked for it," she said, "so I'm going to have it perforce," and playfully catching up the little dumpy figure of her governess, she carried her out upon the piazza, and seating her in a large easy-chair, bade her "take snuff and comfort, too, as long as she liked."

Mrs. Jeffrey knew perfectly well that Maggie in reality was mistress of the house, that whatever she did Madam Conway would ultimately sanction, and as a rest was by no means disagreeable, she yielded with a good grace, dividing her time between sleeping, snuffing and dressing, while Theo lounged upon the sofa and devoured some musty old novels, which Maggie, in her rummaging, had discovered.

Meanwhile, Maggie kept her promise of visiting the neighbors, and almost every family had something to say in praise of the merry, light-hearted girl, of whom they had heretofore known but little. Her favorite recreation, however, was riding on horseback, and almost every day she galloped through the woods and over the fields, usually terminating her ride with a call upon old Hagar, whom she still continued to tease.

AWFUL TRAGEDY IN THE WEST

Two Young Farmers Found Dead in Their Shanty

MEN AND STOCK ALL DEAD.

Horses Dead in the Stable and Dog Dead in the Kennel

Mount Forest, April 26.—The news of a very sad occurrence which befall John H. and W. J. Norris, sons James Norris, of Peel township, and cousins of Thomas Norris, Mount Forest, came last week from Regina, Assa., in the vicinity of which place the young men were farmers.

The Winnipeg Telegram gives a report as follows; One of the most ghastly and tragic affairs which the touch of mysterious in it, which has ever occurred in the Northwest Territories, has just been brought to light about 16 miles from here. For some weeks past the surprise of the neighbors has been more or less aroused by the deserted appearance of a farm at the Boyle settlement, belonging to two brothers named Norris. The surprise was not of a curious character and no investigation was made for several days.

At last some one more curious than the rest found a dead dog tied to a chain, having died of starvation. A glance through a window of the house showed a sight, gruesome enough to chill the stoutest heart. Face downwards on the floor, with arms outstretched, one brother was seen, while nearby, lying on a bed, was the other, both beyond question sleeping their last sleep. An examination of the stable showed a picture even more pathetic, perhaps, than that in the house. Stretched on the ground, with protruding eyeballs and ribs sticking through their tight-stretched hides, were the carcases of four horses. The awful agony that they had undergone until death relieved their sufferings was proved by the fact that the boarding had been gnawed and in some places eaten right through by the starving beasts.

This inquest before Coroner Lowe into the cause of the deaths revealed the fact that they were last seen alive about March 16th, and were discovered dead, as already stated, on March 27th. Coroner Lowe and the police visited the scene. They found that the man lying on the bed had died peacefully, but the other had evidently suffered the severest agony. A post mortem discovered that the former had died of pneumonia, and the latter of inflammation of the bowels. The former had died first, and his brother had tended him and finally spread the quilts on the floor for him to lie on. He had evidently been ill for some time. The coroner stated that medical attendance could never have saved him. The brothers were prevented from getting aid, either from sudden illness or the severity of the weather.

The remains were sent east and the double funeral took place in Arthur village last week.

At 75 Cents per Share

This company now owns the well-known Augusta mine and its extension for over 700 feet in addition to other claims approximating a total acreage of 200 acres. This property has produced over $250,000 in gold, silver and lead ores and is a producer to-day. Has shipped ores of an average net value of $40 per ton for first class and $18 per ton for second class, all the past summer and the summer before smelter and mill returns of which are on file in our office.

Has immense bodies of these grades of ore which cannot be exhausted in five years, already opened up and its main working tunnel is nearing completion, cutting the apex of the vein at a depth of 1,000 feet.

This block of shares is offered to enable the Company to connect the above tunnel with its concentrating mill and projected terminus of railroad by tramway, a distance of 11,120 feet, thereby permitting shipments during the entire year.

A production of at least 125 tons daily will be maintained when these improvements are made, and if completed in the early summer, dividends can be paid from ore settlements before this fall.

We offer for a limited time only a SPECIAL BLOCK OF 50,000 SHARES OF THE TREASURY STOCK of these Companies.

We reserve the right to reject subscriptions over and above the 50,000 shares offered. Each subscription to be booked as received.

Tunnel B of the Black Queen Company is now going in at a rate of 175 feet per month, and early spring will see this work vieing with Tunnel A of the Augusta Company in its record of production.

Will cut known proven ore bodies 1,500 feet from Apex, and open sufficient stoping ground to make an output of 100 tons daily.

Has already cut through a cross vein two feet in width of good marketable Galena ore, the point of intersection being 400 feet beneath the surface. We have 900 feet of this vein in length.

We can show you these facts and ask that you ask us to do so.

If your investment becomes profitable you will tell others; therefore it is much to our interest to have you make money on your investment.

Treatment of Tuberculosis

Ottawa, April 25.—Dominion aid towards the establishment in each province of a sanitarium for the treatment of patients suffering from tuberculosis was asked for this morning from the Prime Minister by an influential deputation of the medical profession, who were accompanied by many Senators and Members of Parliament. Hon. W. C. Edwards introduced the deputation and supported its request with cogent argument. Sir Wilfrid, in reply, said that the object they had in view was a most worthy one, and he could not but sympathize with the Christian philanthrophy which animated them. No matter how much he might be disposed to philanthropy he was limited by the restrictions of the British North American Act. Hospitals were one of those things which were to be administered by the Province. He had been unable to meet the views of Lord Minto in regard to a grant for the cottage hospital movement of her ladyship on this ground. Therefore he was afraid, the present application could not be granted. However, he would report the matter to his colleagues and obtain the opinion of the Minister of Justice.

A NEW RIFLE

The Weapon is to Have Ball Bearings in Barrel

Ottawa, April 26.—A ball bearing rifle is one of the latest inventions. It was explained to the Dominion Rifle Association yesterday by the inventor, Capt. O. C. Cullen, Washington D.C. The Captain showed the D.R.A. a model.

Capt. Cullen has been spending the past few days in the city. If Capt. Cullen's claims can be substantiated the innovation, which consists of a ball bearing thread in the barrel of the rifle, will not only mean great things in the small arm line, but should, members of the D.R.A. say, revolutionize modern artillery.

The Captain is most enthusiastic over his invention which came to him, while he was recovering from the effects of the Spanish-American war, through which he served with great distinction.

The model, which he exhibited to the members of the Dominion Rifle Association yesterday, received the unofficial commendation of Lord Dundonald and other high authorities.

It is claimed by the Captain that the cushioned ball bearings, which supplant the "screw" of the ordinary rifle, will reduce friction to a minimum, heighten the velocity of the projectile, and increase the range and penetration to a marvellous extent.

WEDDED IN ROCHESTER

Nuptials of Miss E.J. Babbage, and Mr. W. L. Smyth

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at Rochester, N. Y., on April 21st, when Miss Ettie Jane Babbage became the wife of Mr. William Louis Smyth. The bride was attended by Miss Nellie G. Stottle, Miss Muriel W. Handy and Miss Elma M. Handy. Mr. George H. Smith, of Peterborough, Ont., brother of the groom was groomsman.

The bride wore white silk voile over white silk and carried a shower bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaids were attired in white dotted mull and carried pink roses.

The ceremony was performed in the dining room, where a bank of palms and a white altar had been very artistically arranged.

A sumptuous wedding breakfast was partaken of at nine o'clock and the bride's table was decorated in pink and white.

The happy young couple will be at home after the first of May, at No. 12 Bloss street, Rochester, N. Y.

HIS PIPE WAS LOADED

How a Visitor in Town Came Near Blowing His Head Off

While visiting at the home of his son-in-law who lives on Cedar street, town, Mr. Thomas Williams, of Toronto, had an experience that he does not care to repeat. After dinner on Sunday he took out his pipe and proceeded to fill the same with some tobacco he had in his pocket, preparatory to taking a smoke. In the pocket along with the tobacco were several 22 calibre cartridges, and not knowing it, he got one of them mixed up with the tobacco and put it in the pipe. Tom lit his pipe and settled himself for a quiet smoke. After a short time there was an explosion, the shell going one way and the pipe the other, and there was a cloud of smoke that made him think a Japanese gun-boat had struck Peterborough. Tom thought some one had shot at him through the window. Beyond a severe scare no damages was done.

It will be some time before Tom blows down this muzzle of an unloaded pipe again.

SULLIVAN IS IN BAD SHAPE

Former Champion Pugilist May Lose His Eyesight

Boston, Mass., April 25.—John L. Sullivan has been ordered by his physicians to go to Hot Springs as soon as he is able to sit up. He is still confined to his sister's home and is in danger of losing his eyesight. He believes he contracted the disease in his eyes from germs in a towel used in a New York hotel. Both eyes are badly swollen and inflamed and the former champion cannot see to read. He plans to leave for the Arkansas springs in a week or two.

THE WAR OUTLOOK

The Plans of the Russians in Northern Corea

Tokio, April 26.—Russia's diversion in northern Corea, is regarded by the military council here as a trifling affair vainly aimed at the embarrassment of Japan's general advance; should the invading force grow to any considerable size, or attempt operations of a serious nature the navy and army would co-operate to compel a retreat or inflict disaster on the adventurers. At present the Mikado and his advisers are quite easy on this score of possible action in Corea, and their attention is concentrated on other quarters of the war.

Diplomatists accept the report that when Admiral Skrydloff reaches Port Arthur, Admiral Alexieff will be recalled and the viceroyalty abolished, as evidence of the wisdom of the British Foreign Office in negotiating the Anglo-Japanese treaty. It is pointed out that the treaty gave Great Britain a powerful arm in Japan wherewith to strike at Russian aggression in the far east, while conserving its own blood and treasure. Russia in answer to this move, established the viceroyalty with an unfettered fighting state on the threshold of Japan. Today Russia's viceroyalty is toppling to its fall while Great Britain's ally commands the sea, holds Corea and plans further conquests on the mainland.

NEW YORK STREETS.

HOW SOME OF THE OLD ONES GAINED THEIR NAMES.

Trinity Church Had More to Do With Bestowing Them Than All Other Authorities Combined—The Reason Broadway Killed Hudson Street.

The churchwardens of old Trinity church had more to do with naming the streets in the lower part of old New York than all other authorities combined. To be sure, the quaint burgomasters, before the first Trinity church was built, after hearing the pros and cons of landowners, found names for many streets significant of certain established facts, for streets and byways below Maiden lane on the easterly side of the Heere straat, afterward changed to Great George street, in honor of King George, by the authorities of Trinity. Then our patriots ignored the name and called it Bloomingdale road and then the Broad way, simplified into Broadway.

The present Trinity church, at the head of Wall street, is the third edifice of that name, the two preceding structures erected upon the same ground having been burned, but the first was one of the first churches erected in this city, and Trinity has always been the wealthiest corporation, patronized by the richest and most influential families for ages. The churchwardens of this church had their own way about naming the streets from the church to what is now Twenty-third street, west of Broadway, along the Hudson river front, because they owned that immense property.

In the olden time Queen Anne of England owned what was known as the Queen's farm, which covered the land commencing at St. Paul's church and extending to what is now Twenty-third street, bounded by Broadway on the east and the Hudson river on the west.

Vestry street was so styled by Trinity because the church had a vestry in that street between Hudson and Greenwich streets. Church street was so called because it bounded the west side of St. Paul's churchyard. Rector street was honored by the residence of the rector of Trinity. Barclay and Vesey streets were named after two clergymen of the church.

Trinity's officers determined that the main artery of the city should rue through its land, and, grounded in their belief in their ability to carry out their intention, Hudson street was laid out. St. John's park and many other improvements were offered as inducements to purchasers of land, and St. John's chapel was erected and finished in 1803, one of the handsomest pieces of church architecture in the city. Trinity counted without an expression of the majority of the people and failed in its endeavor.

The arrogance of the church fretted the good people, and more to spite the churchwardens than because Broadway was nearer the center of the city Broadway acquired the preference, and the glory of Hudson street departed, never to return.

It has been remarked that the streets laid out by Trinity on the farm are all perfectly straight, while many in the lower part of the city are wonderfully crooked. The explanation of this lies in the fact that scarcely a small hill existed on the farm, while below there crooked lanes and byways, to say nothing of cow paths, were turned into streets, which ran in devious ways around hills, valleys and swamps. Many streets were named after the owners of property adjacent to or through which the ways were laid.

Moore street was originally the line of the first wharf erected in the city. Colonel Moore was formerly a large owner of the lots when first built upon. John street was named after John Harpending, who resided in Broadway, and John street when first laid out passed through his garden. Cortlandt, Dey and Beekman streets were carried through the property of the men after whom they were named. Ann street was named after Ann Beekman. Vandewater, Roosevelt, Rutgers, Gouverneur, Harrison, Lispenard, Bayard, De Lancey, Rivington and Willett streets were so designated because they passed through the property of people bearing these names.

Hester street was named after one of the Bayard family and Catharine after Catharine Rutgers. Henry street was named after a son of the Rutgers family, and Jacob street bounded the Jacob Leisler estate. Frankfort street was also a boundary of the same estate. Leisler was a native of Frankfurt. James street was named after a member of the De Lancey family, as was also Oliver street. Batavia lane was so called because the Roosevelt estate, through which this street was run, was called New Batavia.

Division street was originally the division line between the De Lancey and Rutgers farms. Leonard street was named after one of the Lispenards, and Orchard street was cut through the orchard of the De Lancey farm. Sheriff street was called after Sheriff Willett, through whose estate it was carried. Mangin and Goerck streets were named after the two city surveyors who laid out the river line.

The first mayor of New York after the Revolution, a true patriot, was James Duane, who was honored by the naming of Duane street after him.

Elm, Orange and Mulberry streets were laid out through public property in the vicinity of the Collect pond and owe their names to the peculiarities they suggest. Cherry street was originally run through "the road by the cherry trees" and named accordingly.

Rogues differ little. Each began as a discontented child.—Chinese Proverb.

—Mr. Henry Moore, Reeve of Dummer, was in town yesterday on business. Mr. Moore is resigning the reeveship in order to become a candidate for the vacancy in the County Council.

A BUSINESS MAN'S LETTER.

Wm. Thomson, Esq., of Orillia, Vice-President Standard Chemical Company of Toronto, Tells of a Visit to the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives.

GREATLY IMPRESSED WITH WORK BEING DONE.

Personally Raises Several Hundred Dollars to Help Lessen the Load of Debt.

There can be little doubt that the National Sanitarium Association is handicapped in its great work for Consumptives in the fact that its two institutions in Muskoka are far away from any large centre of population. Few people have an opportunity to see for themselves the magnificent work that is being done.

These hospitals are away from the public eye. Any, however, who do visit them, are united in their commendation of the splendid appointments of the place, and, best of all, of the real joy and hope that is being brought to many suffering ones.

We are glad to have the opportunity of publishing the following letter from Mr. Wm. Thomson, of Orillia, one of Canada's best known lumbermen, which tells what he has seen himself. It reads:

ORILLIA, Ont., November 2, 1903.

W. J. GAGE, Esq.,
Chairman Executive Committee
National Sanitarium Association,
Toronto, Ont.

My Dear Mr. Gage,—

I have much pleasure in enclosing herewith cheque for One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) from the Tudhope Carriage Company of Orillia, a donation to the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. Please acknowledge this to the Tudhope Carriage Company in the usual way.

I have written to a number of my friends, to try and get them interested in this good work. I hope to be able to send you further donations. I have written my friends a personal letter, something similar to the following:

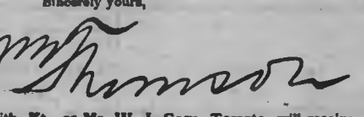
"Last week I paid a visit to the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. I met some of the management there, and promised to try and interest some of my friends in this work.

"I might say there were 49 patients there last week, all poor people, most of them without a dollar in the world, and suffering from the dreadful disease, Consumption. There are many sad stories, and I know I have thought a great deal about the work of the institution ever since my visit there. I do believe it is worthy of assistance, and we who have health and the necessaries of life should encourage this work along.

"I understand the expenses lately have been double the income, and unless the management meet with more encouragement, I am afraid the work will have to be curtailed. I know you have many calls, but I do wish you would give this matter a thought, and if possible, assist. I have written to two or three confidentially, and hope to be able to collect some more for this work. Should you not feel like contributing a donation, remember this request, and your reply is just between you and me, and strictly confidential.

"I might mention, to show that I have confidence in the work, I have already given a donation of $100.00 and two row boats to the Free Hospital this year, and intend to give another $100.00 before the end of the year."

Sincerely yours,



Sir Wm. R. Meredith, Kt., or Mr. W. J. Gage, Toronto, will receive and acknowledge any contributions made.

KAISER STIRS GERMAN NATION

Arouses Tax-Ridden People By Asking For New Palace

Berlin, April 26.—Great dissatisfaction is expressed throughout Germany, especially in Berlin and the other large cities where there is a large radical and socialistic population, with Emperor William's project for building a palace for himself in the Polish city of Posen. At first it was believed that he would pay for it out of his own pocket, but this belief was crushed when the government asked for $250,000 for preliminary work and plans, and then $750,000, and still later $500,000, making in all $1,500,000.

Under no circumstances can the Emperor live in Posen more than six or eight days a year, and for this $1,500,000 is declared too much. The government affects to be convinced that with this palace in Posen the disloyalty of the Poles will gradually vanish, but that notion is held absurd.

It angers the German people to think that $1,500,000 can be easily found for so silly a project when poverty is abroad, the schools are starved and the whole land is groaning under heavy military and navy taxation.

HOME RULE IN IRELAND

Irish Nationalists Are Exceedingly Hopeful of Future

Dublin, April 25.—Congratulations are passing between the leaders of Irish Nationalism over the moral effect of Thursday's national convention and the unanimity of the 3,000 delegates as regards the great questions of public policy. All this is considered very promising. John Redmond states that the convention illustrates the unity of the nation and the capacity of its representatives faithfully to represent that unity. He esteems this condition of the highest importance to the Irish party in the coming contest in the House of Commons, where those opposed to the Irish policy are watching for evidences of Irish dissension. Confidence is expressed that the final triumph of Home Rule does not mean a matter of empty words but a matter of faith based on careful study of the Anglo-Irish political situation. The outlook is specially hopeful since the Nationalist now realize that whatever is to be done in Ireland inside and outside of the House of Commons.

CLAIMS HEART OF CHICAGO

Appleton, Wis., April 25.—A suit to recover property consisting of 160 acres in the heart of Chicago, valued at $25,000,000, will soon be started by Reuben Irish, of Shawano, Wis., acting in his own interest and that of ten other relatives.

The land in question originally belonged to Gideon Irish, an uncle of the plaintiff, who purchased it from the government in 1833. It includes the site of the Montgomery Ward store, the Sherman house and a large section on Michigan avenue. Gideon Irish died in 1843 and his estate was never probated, the property passing into the hands of strangers, who paid the taxes. It is alleged that not one of the present owners can produce a warranty deed.

Reuben Irish graduated from West Point and was a colonel of the One Hundred and Seventh New York infantry during the civil war.

MAKE FINE SERVANTS

Chicago, April 25.—Departure of Japanese men from Chicago for the war has brought out the fact that Japanese servants were becoming very popular here, and there is a grumbling at their loss.

It is said that the Japs made the best of servants, clean, hardworking and capable.

They are paid the highest wages, and only wealthy families employ them. Thirty-five dollars a month is said to be the lowest "salary" that they will accept. Even the "greenhorns" just landed from Asia get a good price on their services, because their extraordinary ability to learn quickly puts them upon a level with their more experienced fellows. They dislike to cook, and cannot be persuaded to do laundry work. But as butler, smoked man, waiter, or, above all, as valet, they stand supreme.

A Gold Mining Co. Stock in a Gold Mine at 10 Cents per Share Par Value $1.00 per Share

THE COSTILLA GOLD MINING COMPANY

190 Acres in a Solid Block and All Patented

A Crosscut Driven 117 feet to the First Big Vein

A drift run on the vein 178 FEET IN ORE, the Gold value or contents running from 2 to 8 ounces, per ton, or from $40 to $160. This ore has not been stoped and will not be main shoot is reached.

The breast of the drift is, only 52 feet, according to engineer's survey, from the first BIG vertical ore shoot, which, at the surface, 550 feet above, shows values of 2 to 7 ounces gold, per ton.

Slabs and feeders of gold ore are coming in freely in the drift.

This is a business proposition. It is the KIND AND QUALITY which makes for great and permanent success. It is worth an investment of 10c. on the dollar, per share, now. It will be worth par with development.

Air Carries Healing Medicine

THAT CURES COLDS, CATARRH AND DISEASES OF THE THROAT LUNGS AND BRONCHIAL TUBES

About the healing power of the air of the pine woods everybody knows, but to supply it in the form of medicine seemed almost beyond realization. After many years of careful study a scientific remedy now known as Catarrhozone has been produced which enables the sufferer to breathe into his lungs all the healing properties of the balsamic pine woods air. This marvellous remedy has cleared out catarrh. It unquestionably cures it permanently.

You cannot fail to be cured by Catarrhozone, because it reaches and destroys the cause of the disease. You simply inhale the antiseptic vapor. It instantly spreads to every part of the breathing organs. The micro-organisms infecting the diseased tissues of your nose, throat and lungs die instantly. There is nothing left to cause inflammation. Any spots that are raw and sore are quickly healed by Catarrhozone and you are soon completely cured.

It is impossible to breathe through a Catarrhozone inhaler without at once feeling better. Your head is cleared of mucous discharge, your nostrils are cleansed of all putrid matter, the phlegm is removed from your throat. Every trace of catarrh is searched out of the system by Catarrhozone, which thoroughly disinfects and purifies every organ of the body.

Catarrhozone is the only natural remedy for catarrh. It cures by cleansing and purifying all diseased tissues, not by deadening the stomach by drugs. It is a clean, simple and satisfactory remedy that is endorsed by the clergy, and universally prescribed by the medical profession because it is scientific and absolutely certain to effect lasting cures.

Don't be misled into accepting a substitute for Catarrhozone, which alone can cure thoroughly. It is so powerfully healing that colds disappear in an hour, coughs in two hours and even chronic catarrh in a comparatively short time. Two months' treatment $1, sample size 25c. At druggists or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

Closing Gymn Exhibition

The closing gymnasium exhibition of the Boys' Department will be given in the hall of the Y.M.C.A. on Thursday evening, April 28th, at 8 p.m. Other years this has been open to the general public, but this year the parents of the boys are being invited only. Special invitations are being sent out.

Sad Bristol's Move

The Biggleswade Chronicle and North Bedfordshire (England) Gazette, in a late issue contains a lengthy account of the death of Mr. T. J. Hooper, a prominent citizen of Biggleswade and an uncle of Mrs. Wm. Maddrum of Peterborough. The deceased was very prominent in the town in which he lived and was widely known and greatly esteemed.

The Late Mrs. W. E. Chamberlain

We exceedingly regret to be obliged to chronicle the demise of Agnes Helen Hare, wife of Mr. W. E. Chamberlain which occurred yesterday morning at the family residence, Douro. The deceased lady was only 37 years of age and leaves a bereaved husband and family, who have the heartfelt sympathy of the community. The funeral will take place from the family residence, lot 2, concession 10, Douro, on to-morrow afternoon and proceed to Little Lake cemetery.

A Heroic Act

On Sunday last Alex. Cameron, a painter while standing on the bridge at Lindsay, saw a boy struggling in the swift current below. He at once threw off his overcoat and plunged into the swift current, and after a terrific battle, in which both were nearly drowned, he succeeded in rescuing the lad, who happened to be a young son of Mr. Henry Bryans, of the Flavelle Milling Company. It was a heroic deed.

Rice Lake Fishing

Mr. Joseph Tolland, fishery inspector, has received a communication to the effect that Rice lake fishing is to be made subject to the general law governing other waters, as regards its opening, which has heretofore been two weeks earlier than other places. Accordingly an order-in-council will be passed that no game fish can be taken there until July 1st. It was formerly contended that the season was very short in Rice lake owing to the growth of weeds preventing or hindering operations about the middle of July. When asked when fishing opened in Rice lake generally, one man today said that some people began just as soon as the ice was gone.

Sturgeon Point Will Boom

Lindsay Post: Already the indications point to the probability that the coming season at Sturgeon Point, our popular summer resort, will be a gay one, and that the population will show a large increase over other years. The following cottages have already been engaged: Prof. W. S. Milner, Toronto, Mr. Flood's; Barrister Jones, Toronto, Mr. Bigelow's large dwelling; Mr. Irwin, of New York, two from Mr. Fremont Crandell; Mr. Geo. A. Little, Mr. Wetherupp's; Mrs. Warner, Mr. Wetherupp's; Rev. J. W. MacMillan, bargain not yet closed. Quite a number of lots have been sold and a number of new cottages will be erected.

A Peterborough Cot

Sheriff Hall, with his usual goodness of heart, has consented to give "An Evening with the Poets," in aid of funds for a cot in the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, to be endowed as an adjunct of the Children's Aid Society of Peterborough. A cot in some hospital where children who are in need of medical attention is very badly needed as an adjunct to the Shelter. There is a little boy who will have to remain in the Shelter for about eight months before he can be operated upon, and if this Peterborough Cot were already in existence he could be sent there for treatment. In this way those in charge of the Shelter would be relieved of a cause of great worry and anxiety. The Shelter was never intended to be used for this purpose, and no doubt the public will be glad to assist in the establishment of a fund for this worthy object, the expense of which will, after all, not be very great, and the benefits will be many. The Y.M.C.A. has kindly offered the use of their hall and the Sheriff who will be assisted by local musical talent, will no doubt provide an evening of enjoyment.

TEMPERANCE MEETING

Public Meeting in the Y.M.C.A. Hall Favors Closing of Bars

A public meeting was held last night in the Y.M.C.A. hall, in the interests of prohibition, when Rev Dr. Abraham, field secretary for the suppression of the liquor traffic, discussed the question at length, and favored a voters' league as an important factor towards the abolition of the bar.

There was a good attendance, and considerable enthusiasm was manifested. At the conclusion of Dr. Abraham's address a general discussion took place by those present.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH REPAIRS

Extensive Repairs to be Made on the Church This Year

The Board of Managers have decided to make some extensive repairs to St. Paul's church this year. The shingles are to be taken off, and an iron cover substituted, besides the whole edifice is to be repainted inside and out. The estimated cost is $1,200, half of which has already been contributed.

It is about nineteen years since the church was repainted and renovated, so that the present action comes none too soon.

—From all sections of the Province come report of serious damage to fruit trees as the result of the severe frosts of the past winter. Many fruit trees in this vicinity have suffered, and the maples in town have not escaped.

FIRE AT MILLBROOK

Thexton's Store House and Lumber Sheds Burned

Special to THE TIMES.

Millbrook, April 27.—At about 9.30 o'clock last night fire was discovered in the storehouse and sheds of Wm. Thexton, lumber merchant, Millbrook. The flames, spread rapidly, consuming all the logs and lumber in the yards and an enormous quantity of shingles, dressed lumber and other material in the storehouse and sheds. The fire made rapid progress, despite the heroic efforts on the part of the voluntary brigade from the village and surrounding country. For a time it was thought that the Grand Trunk station would be devoured, but the better brigade worked furiously and succeeded in preventing the flames from doing any further damage than scorching the building. The origin of the fire is unknown.

The Times was unable to learn the loss sustained by Mr. Thexton, but it is thought to be several thousands as everything was licked up by the flames.

WEDDED AT ST. JOHN'S

Nuptials of Miss Margaret Ida Elliott and Mr. W. G. Howden

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. C. Davidson, and a number of friends were present to witness the ceremony.

Miss Louise Elliott, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, while Mr. Jacks Cocks supported the groom.

The happy couple left on the 9.10 G. T. R. train for the south after the ceremony and on their return will take up their residence in Peterborough.

WEATHER NOTES

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

AT HALF MAST.

Sometimes we are greeted in the morning by flags at half-mast for some prominent official who yesterday was apparently in perfect health. When we inquire the ailment by which he was stricken it is not uncommon to be told "acute indigestion" or "stomach trouble."

It is time people learned that indigestion or any form of "stomach trouble" is not a thing to trifle with. The result may not be fatal, but there can be no condition of diseased stomach which does not carry with it physical loss and weakness.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures indigestion and other forms of disease affecting the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of food.

"Thanks to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery," writes Mr. Charles E. Germain, of Lehighton, Pa. "It is the only medicine that has done me any good. I tried everything I could think of to cure indigestion, and found I was only throwing away money. Then I heard of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and tried a bottle of it, and to my joy found it was doing me good. I used six bottles of it, and am now cured. It is the best medicine on earth."

This grand remedy does its work in a thorough manner; it gives the health that is all health; the strength that is solid, substantial and lasting; not flabby fat, not false stimulus, but genuine, complete, restored vitality and life force.

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach, blood and lungs.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation and its consequences.

JAPANESE FORCE A PASSAGE OF THE YALU--THE RUSSIAN ARMY CUT IN TWO

Heavy Firing Heard Near Tatungkau, on which It is Believed the Japanese Made a Feint in Order to Distract Attention From the Real Point of Passage

Liaoyang, April 28.—Between last night and this morning the Japanese forced a passage of the Yalu, two companies crossing between Tchangdjiu and Siaopu-sikho.

Heavy firing was heard near Tatungkau, on which it is believed the Japanese made a feint in order to distract attention from the real point of passage.

So far no bridge spans the river. It is believed the Russian fire succeeded in destroying the floating parts of the Japanese bridges.

On April 23 the Russians observed that the Japanese were making preparations to cross the Yalu River.

On the night of April 25 two steamers and two torpedo boats were noticed at the mouth of the river. They approached the shore at daylight, and the Japanese commenced to build a pontoon on the left tributary. A second pontoon was being prepared ten miles up the stream.

At 3 o'clock the same afternoon the Japanese occupied the island of Samolindo, to which they carried pontoon boats, etc.

The night passed quietly, the torpedo boats maintaining a careful watch in case the troops ashore should be attacked, and examined the mouth of the river by searchlights.

At 3.40 next morning the Japanese crossed the river near the village of Tchindagou, where, however, the Russian outposts commenced firing upon them. The Russian advance guards had been furnished with a small gun and they succeeded in destroying the pontoon constructed near Wiju. The wrecked pontoon was carried away by the current and further Japanese bridging operations ceased, but the Japanese continued to cross by another pontoon southward of Wiju.

A Japanese column with a battery of artillery approached Turechen at midday, but the Russian skirmishers met them with sharp firing, evidently giving them trouble, as they retired with the battery, which made no attempt to answer the Russian fire.

ADMIT THE VICTORY.

St. Petersburg, April 28—The censors' committee did not to-night give out the despatches received to-day regarding the movements of the Japanese across the Yalu River. It was intimated the Japanese had crossed the river, but this was accompanied by a statement that the success of the enemy should in no sense be regarded as an important victory, the Russians having no intention of vigorously contesting the passage, their plan being to annoy the enemy as much as possible.

It is regarded possible that when the Japanese troops are in sufficient numbers they will march along the Manchurian bank of the Yalu in the direction of Antung, near which lies the road on which the advance can continue to Fenghoangchang, where the first determined stand of the Russians will be made.

No report has been received here, official or otherwise, showing casualties on either side.

A cablegram that came to hand early this morning conveys an announcement by far the most momentous of any that have yet been made during the progress of the land campaign. It is dated from Liaoyang, an important strategic point on the Manchurian Railway, between Mukden and Port Arthur, and one of the main stations for Russian concentration. As to have come from there it must have passed the Russian censor, the probability is that a full disclosure of the events to which it relates has not been made, but that it may easily presage a serious disaster to the Russian arms is an inference not without ground.

The message announces that between the night of the 25th and the morning of the 26th the Japanese forced the passage of the Yalu River, two companies crossing between Tchangdjiu (probably Changju), and Siaoposnikhe. Changju is about fifty miles north of Antung, the treaty port at the mouth of the Yalu, and places the Japanese force much higher up the river than previous advices had represented. As usual they seem to have conducted the operation in a highly skilful manner, and to have accompanied it by a feint at Tatungkau, a port near the mouth of the Yalu, and opened by treaty to Japan shortly before the outbreak of the war. Heavy firing is reported as having been heard near Tatungkau, which must have proceeded from a naval attack the river being too broad at its mouth to permit of an attack in any other manner, and was in all likelihood accompanied or followed by the disembarkation of the Japanese on the Liaotung peninsula.

As the Russian army of occupation was reported to be occupying the line of the Yalu from Antung northward and then covering the Manchurian Railway and Mukden a successful crossing by the Japanese at Changju would cut the enemy's force in two and place the right wing in serious jeopardy. A good road leads from Antung to Liatyang, which is nearly equal distance between Suchwang and Mukden, but with the left wing driven to the north and away from the Liaoyang road the Japanese would have achieved a distinct strategic advantage.

The later telegrams published seem to relate to the false attack made near Tatungkau and Antung. The St. Petersburg despatch practically admits that the Japanese movement was entirely successful, but seeks to minimize it by representing that it was not the intention of the Russian commander seriously to contest the passage. The real truth seems to be that the Japs were in overwhelming strength, and had laid their plans with the full knowledge of the situation and with ample tactical skill. When complete details arrive it will not be surprising if it is learned that this initial action has been as brilliant an operation on land as the Port Arthur attacks by sea, and as that gave the Japs the command of the sea so this has given them the control of the Liaotung peninsula and enables them to affect the isolation of the Russian naval stronghold.

Tokio, April 28.—It is generally conceded by prominent men in official circles of Japan that, even though the country has a huge army well prepared for the field and there are sufficient internal resources to sustain it in full fighting vigor for two years, the grave question is how to take care of soldiers' families while their usual breadwinners are fighting the battles of the nation on Corean or Manchurian soil.

Already the horrors of war are making themselves felt in thousands of households bereft of husbands, fathers and brothers, and within a year 100,000 families will have little or nothing in their larders and weary, sad-eyed mothers will gnaw their hearts out in anxiety lest their children starve.

The Red Cross Society alone of all the many helpful organizations is fairly wealthy, having at the present time a reserve fund of several millions, but when war is once in progress this fund is sure to dwindle rapidly, as it is applied to its legitimate end of taking care of the sick and wounded of both army and navy in the field hospitals and at home, to say nothing of the support it gives the Ladies' Volunteer Nursing Association.

Almost every man, woman and child in the island who possesses a regular income or has a steady livelihood is pledged to give regular sums of money monthly to the various aid and relief societies springing up all over the country, with a view to reducing want and suffering. That these associations will do much to alleviate distress is unquestioned, but the difficulty lies in the fact that in Japan only a very small proportion of the people may be considered wealthy and not even these when measured by American standards, while the millions are poor in the middle classes, and in the lower they—literally live from day to day on the few cents gained in labor and never have any surplus left over.

Vladivostock, April 28.—All is quiet here. Lieutenant General Linevitch is at Harbarovsk. Prices of the necessaries of life continue high and in order to prevent extortion the authorities have fixed a scale of prices. Provisions, however, are sold only in limited quantities to individuals. The weather is warm, but the River Amur is not yet free from ice.

St. Petersburg, April 28.—The Ruski Slavo prints a letter from an official in the French secret service, which reports the presence of numerous Japanese spies in France, all well provided with money. They shadow Russians and watch the shipyards. Especially do they endeavor to ascertain the exact date of the departure of Russia's Baltic fleet and the points at which it will coal en route.

The Novosti states that the Russians should feel gratified at the strategic achievement of the naval squadron, which imposed caution on the Japanese operations and gave Russia time to throw a preponderating military force into Manchuria. The most favorable time, the Novosti continues, for Japanese military operations has passed.

Paris, April 28.—China has taken a definite pro-Japanese stand within the last few days. It is said this may involve serious consequences to the relations between Russia and China. China's action, it is noted, follows the report that Viceroy Alexieff had requested the retirement of the Chinese troops.

It is also reported that the Chinese minister at St. Petersburg will be recalled. Although the later report is denied, there is reason to believe that it has some foundation.

EKI HOIKI

The new Secretary of the Japanese Legation at Washington

NERVE FROM UNCLE SAM.

The United States Coolly Asks Us to Drop Out of Fisheries

Ottawa, April 28.—In addition to the Russian request for an agreement for the cessation of pelagic sealing in the Behring Sea, there has been recently a similar request from Washington. The kick against deep sea sealing is a very old story, and is fostered by the company that already controls the sealing industry in what were designated by the Paris arbitration as American waters. Pelagic or deep sea sealing is the only hunt that the Canadians are permitted to follow, and if this was got out of the way the American control of the situation would be complete.

At the time of the Joint High Commission between Canada and the States, a proposition was submitted by the United States for the total abandonment of pelagic sealing, and if our neighbors had been prepared to concede us a reasonable adjustment of the Alaskan boundary dispute, Canada would likely have met their views in the other regard. Negotiations, in fact, went so far the preparation of a schedule showing the compensation to which the British Columbian fleet in that event would have been entitled. But that is all a thing of the past, and what was unprofitable industry in 1898 pays a good return to-day to those engaged therein. The American complaint against pelagic sealing is that through it seal life is rapidly disappearing from the Behring Sea. This same story, though, was looked into in 1897 by joint commissioners, who reported that "it was not possible during the continuance of the conservative methods in force upon the Pribyloff Islands for the further safeguarding of the protected zone at sea that any pelagic killing would result in the actual extermination of the species."

In view of this fact, and in view of the growing profit of the pelagic sealing industry, there will be a general agreement that the Dominion is quite justified in refusing to surrender undoubted rights.

Ottawa, April 27—The Railway Committee yesterday considered the bill asking ratifications of agreements made by the Canada Southern Railway Company with the Michigan Central Railway, the Lexington and St. Clair Railway and the Sarnia, Chatham and Erie Railway. The application was what Andrew Ingram, of St. Thomas, called a domestic measure of the Canada Southern road.

W. F. McLean, of Toronto, used the bill as a text to demand from the Vanderbilt interest, which controls the Canada Southern, a two-cent passenger rate through Western Ontario, such as the same company already gives to the people of Michigan and New York. Jabez Robinson, of Elgin, and Dr. Sproule, of Grey, supported this proposition, and pointed out that Americans travelling through Canada enjoy cheaper rates than our own people.

Mr. Gilmour, of Middlesex, could not see the fairness of forcing a two-cent passenger rate on one road, when the C. P. R., Grand Trunk and others are allowed to charge three cents.

On the Michigan Central an American boarding a train to Detroit for New York is called upon to pay two cents a mile, when the Canadian boarding at St. Thomas must put up three cents. This was a very wealthy corporations, and when favors were being sought from the Canadian Parliament he had no hesitation in taking stern measures to secure justice for our own people.

Other members of the committee backed up Mr. McLean, and the measure finall stood over till next meeting.

A WORLD-WIDE WAR PREDICTED

John Turner, Anarchist, Says a Great Conflict at Hand

LABOUR AGAINST CAPITAL

Remarkable Speech of the Great Anarchist in Chicago—Advises Toilers of All Nations to Unite in Hard Struggle With Capital

Chicago, April 28.—Sowing seeds of discontent that he would have develop into a general strike of all the workers in the world against the combined forces of capital and government, John Turner, the English anarchist, made his farewell speech at Uhlich's hall yesterday afternoon.

The week previous at the Chicago Federation of Labor meeting Turner revealed the fact that his mission in America was to urge the affiliation of organized workers in this country with the workers of Europe in order that the great army of men in the working class might eventually be able to work as a unit for what they deemed the ideal state of society. In his last Chicago speech Turner declared that a general conflict between labor and capital and be dominating force of society.

FORESEES A GENERAL STRIFE.

"Events are leading up to a general conflict," said Turner. "I am not a doctrinaire anarchist, but a firm believer that a general strike of the workers of the world is inevitable. The history of organization of workingmen shows the sign of the times and the only logical outcome is a general warfare of the classes in which the working people will triumph.

"The greatest strikes of the world have demonstrated the inclination of all workers to join in the conflict and some day conditions will be ripe for a conflict in which all men who work for wages will engage in a struggle for supremacy in the class which dominates society.

"Take the Parrys of the world, the men who are organizing the forces of capital and think they can break up the spirit of organization among the working class. They might as well try to turn back the tide of civilization to primitive days as to attempt to crush the spirit of organization among workingmen, for organization of laboring people is an organic growth, and just in proportion as your Parrys attack unionism the solidarity of the workingmen grows.

THINKS CAPITAL WILL ACT.

"But what does all this organization of employers and workingmen mean? What is it to come to? I cannot see where the workingmen of England will join in a general strike for a few decades, at least, but the conflict in those countries will be brought about with a general lockout. Capital will take the initiative here and in England, but the result will be the same.

"The Anglo-Saxon workingmen are too cold blooded to precipitate the issue themselves, but the Latin people will bring on a general strike. It is coming in France and Spain as sure as fate and the day is not far off.

"It may be that the capitalist of the Anglo-Saxon countries is shrewd enough to delay the conflict a long time, but if he is blind enough to force it, then capital must suffer the consequences."

Turner was asked what the next step in the organization of society would be after labor had overthrown government and capital. The anarchist replied that he had no idea, except that society would conform to just whatever the triumphant working people device.

"All will then depend upon the ideals of the people," he said. "What ever the state of society they will give to the masses the kind of society designed will be established."

Whether it would be a state of socialism or anarchy the speaker did not venture to predict.

Turner left Chicago last evening for Buffalo. He expects to spend a few weeks more in America before returning to England.

WAY FREIGHT FOR THE TRENT CANAL

Will be Large and Much More Profitable, Through Traffic

Port Hope, April 28.—The advantages which will accrue to Toronto and other Lake Ontario ports, if the Trent Valley Canal is completed from Rice Lake by way of the Gegerashu River and this port, are too obvious to be denied by the most partisan of those who are hurrahing for the Trenton route. The Trenton advocates are making "The Great Canadian inland route from the western wheat fields to the sea" their grand-stand argument. Wheat! Wheat! They can see nothing but the golden cereal in the barges on this new canal route—nothing but through freight from Midland to Montreal.

THE WAY FREIGHT.

They forget that with the exception of short canals like the Welland and Sault Ste. Marie the way traffic excels in importance and value the through freight. The Erie Canal was built to facilitate the through traffic from the head of the Great Lakes to the Atlantic seaboard, but it was of such paramount importance in the development of the state that this influence with sufficient to pass a bill calling for the expenditure of $101,000,000 upon its enlargement and deepening, while a proposal to establish a new route via Lake Ontario was coldly shouldered aside, though the cheaper scheme. Upon the Erie Canal the return freight from New York to Buffalo is 1-3 the down tonnage, and Superintendent Boyd reported to the New York State Legislature that the very shipments far outbalanced the through traffic both ways.

By either route for the Trent Canal the return freight through to Midland will be about the same, but for way and package freight and general utility there is absolutely no comparison. With a Port Hope outlet freight rates to the entire district will be materially reduced, for barges will make the trip from Toronto into the heart of that country with all the shipments from Toronto wholesale houses. Western Ontario farm and other machinery, and a hundred and one articles of manufacture which the townspeople and farmers of that neighborhood now get by way of the railroads. In return, these barges will carry hay, potatoes, apples, barley, oats, and, in fact, all farm products for which Toronto furnishes a market, cement, granite sets, mica, peat, iron, building stone, lime, lumber, cordwood, hardwood, to say nothing of the manufactured products of Peterborough and the larger towns. There are six millions of acres of landtributary to that canal, and Toronto should make a strong fight for the market.

OUR COUNTY PARLIAMENT

MET IN SPECIAL SESSION YESTERDAY TO RECEIVE AUDITOR'S REPORT

Expressions of Regret Over the Demise of the Late Ex-Warden Crowe and W. A. Stratton, County Solicitor.

The County Council met in special session yesterday, for the purpose of receiving the report of the auditors and other business. Warden Peck delivered the following address:

Since our last session two, who have for many years taken a prominent place in the affairs of the county, have passed away. Our late colleague, Richard Crowe, died at his residence in Dummer eight days ago. He had been gradually failing in health for a long time, and his death was not unexpected. Although still a young man he had been actively interested in municipal matters in the township and the County Council for many years, and had, I think, been in this council for a longer period than any member now present. He had excellent judgment, and his opinion was always looked for and generally accepted by his colleagues. He was very gentle in his disposition, a quality which endeared him to all with whom he came in contact, and although he vigorously supported any measure he considered right. He never spoke in any harsh manner, either to or about any of his associates. By us who remain he will be much missed, and we feel deep sympathy for those who have lost in him a loving father and brother.

Our late County Solicitor, and Sessional Clerk, William A. Stratton, K.C., has also passed away in the prime of life, after an illness extending over many months, and during which his friends hopefully looked forward to his final recovery. He had held the office of Sessional Clerk for nearly 20 years, and a large part of our records for that period represents his work. He had already, before his illness, attained considerable eminence in his profession, and would no doubt, if he had lived, have reached a very high position in it. He had a tremendous capacity for work, and by conscientious application to the interests of his clients, no doubt promoted the disease which finally carried him away. He had been a warm personal friend of mine, almost all my life, from our school days, and I most deeply regret his loss, and extend my sympathy to his aged mother and his sisters and brothers in their affliction.

The following resolution was then moved and carried unanimously by a standing vote:

Moved by Mr. Moloney, and seconded by Mr. Shaw,—That the members of the Council of the County of Peterborough, at this special session desire to place on record our deep sorrow caused by the lamented death of our late brother member, ex-Warden Richard Crowe, whose demise had made a vacancy in our ranks which it will be hard to fill.

To the members of the bereaved family we extend our heartfelt sympathy in this great trial, which they have been called upon to bear, and to assure them that we feel his loss very keenly. He was one of the most highly respected members of the Council, and that he enjoyed in a large than ordinary degree the confidence of his fellow members is evidenced by the fact that he was in the year 1903 elected unanimously to the office of Warden of the County, which office he filled with entire acceptability and efficiency.

He was a public spirited citizen, and the whole community mourns with the family in the great sorrow which has entered your home. We know that these words of ours can but feebly express the sympathy which we feel, but would like to assure you that in this sorrow you are not alone.

Signed on behalf of the County Council of Peterborough.

Moved by Mr. G. W. Fitzgerald, seconded by Mr. T. M. Hunter, That this County Council of the County of Peterborough, desire at this the first opportunity, to express its deep sympathy with you, and the members of the bereaved family at the great loss which you have sustained in the loss of your son and brother, the late Mr. W. A. Stratton. We, as members of the County Council, feel a personal loss in his death. During the years in which he was associated with this body in the capacity of legal adviser, we learned to respect him for the many estimable qualities of character displayed by him. He always possessed good judgment, and during the years of pleasant association with him the members of this Council came to depend upon his advice, which was always found to be in the best interests of the community.

We deeply sympathize with you in this your great sorrow, which is shared not only by us but by all who came in contact with the late Mr. Stratton, and knew his true worth.

Signed on behalf of the members of the County Council of Peterborough.

On motion of Mr. Shaw, seconded by Mr. Monague, the Warden and Treasurer were authorized to receive on behalf of the Council, the sum of $1,000 towards the construction of Gannon's Narrows Bridge.

The Council adjourned to go into Committee.

The desk at which the late ex-Warden Crowe sat while Councillor, had placed upon it yesterday by his fellow-members, two beautiful memorial bouquets.

Japanese Reverses are Reported at St. Petersburg, Are Not Official

A Special Dispatch Says the Russian Fleet Has Again Appeared at Gensan

St. Petersburg, April 28. — The crossing of the Yalu River by the Japanese forces did not impress the Russians, in view of the reports of the ensuing Japanese reverse. These reports became more persistent at noon and caused an all round rise in prices on the Bourse. But so far there has been no confirmation of them officially.

M. Boubnoff, who has been awarded $12,500 for improvements in submarine boats in an interview says:

"There is less danger in navigating a submarine boat than a torpedo boat; for during a battle the former is safer than other vessels."

A Port Arthur despatch says "The successful trials of the submarine boat here are regarded by the Novi Krai as opening fresh prospects for active operations on the part of the Russian fleet."

Another Port Arthur despatch says "The situation here and in this vicinity to-day is unchanged."

London, April 28—A special despatch from Kobe, Japan, says several vessels, believed to be Russians, were again sighted off Gensan, Corea, today.

GIVE AID TO RUSSIANS

Natives of Northeastern Corea Sell Them Cattle and Supplies

Seoul, April 28.—Advices from the province of Hamg-Yung, in northeastern Corea state that the country folk along the northern border of the province are selling cattle and supplies to the Russians. The province of Hamg-Yung is the former home of Yi Yong Ik, former Corean minister of finance, who, on account of his pro-Russian sympathies, was transported to Japan last February by the Japanese authorities. Several Corean officers suspected of being Russian sides have been arrested.

COST OF CANADA'S CANALS

Enormous Outlay For Water Ways That Are of Most Little Commercial Value

Ottawa, April 28.—For many years the Dominion Government has devoted much labor, and an enormous amount of money to the improvement of the water ways of the country. While these have undoubtedly had their effect in cheapening the cost of transportation it is the opinion of many that the compensation has scarcely justified the cost.

According to the Minister of Railways and Canals the Government has already spent on canals $102,484,845, an amount slightly in excess of the outlay authorized for the improvement of the Erie canal by New York. It is the time-honored policy of Canada to improve its natural water ways and construct artificial ones.

The result has been the development of the ditch at Cornwall seven feet wide and two and a half feet deep into the magnificient artificial water way 150 feet wide, with not less than fourteen feet of water. Since the confederation of Canada in 1867 the canals have been under operation by the Dominion Government. The total expenditure on canal staff and maintenance, repairs and renewals for 1903 was $764,000.

The Cornwall canal, which overcomes the Long Sault rapids, is lighted and operated throughout its entire length by electricity. Arc lamps of 2,000 candle power are placed every 400 feet, making the line as clear by night as by day. All gates are operated by five-horse power electric motors.

Ottawa April 27.—A complaint was ventilated before the Railway Commission yesterday morning against the freight rate charged by the Kingston and Pembroke Railway for carriage of cedar, which it is alleged the company does not want to see taken out of the country. The complainant, Mr. Scobie of Cape Vincent, claimed that the railway wanted the cedar along its route for its own uses, but would not pay as good a price as could be secured by forwarding to the States. The railway admitted that it did not want the cedar taken out of the country, but set up the plea that its rates were no higher than those charged by the Grand Trunk and C. P. R.

The case was adjourned to ascertain whether this allegation is well founded.

The commission next took up an application of the Lindsay, Bobcaygeon and Pontypool Railway for approval of a plan involving the installation of safety appliances at the point where it crosses a Grand Trunk spur in Lindsay.

Ottawa, April 27.—The Great Lakes and Northwest Transportation Company have applied for power to construct canals and improve the navigation between Lake Superior and the Red River at Winnipeg, and thence by Lake Winnipeg and other channels of the Saskatchewan River, and on to the Northwest, to improve the navigation of the Saskatchewan and its branches, to provide a transportation route from the head waters of the Saskatchewan down to Lake Superior, with the right to charge tolls and to do a general manufacturing and merchandising business.

They ask the proposed undertaking to be declared "for the general advantage of Canada," which would give it expropriation and other rights.

The promoters of this enterprise are John Arbuthnot and Douglas D. Cameron of Winnipeg; William Charlin, of St. Catharines; Walter M. McGee, of gPain'field, N.J.; Theodore D. Dale, of Montclair, N.J.; Walter H. Dodd, Chas. D. Purlee and W. W. Jackson of New York; Chas. E. Loomis of Attica; Jas. S. Williams, of Glastonbury, Conn.; Thomas W. Gleason, of Buffalo; Thomas Conlon, of Thorold; and Welland D. Woodruff, of St. Catharines.

THINK RUSSIA WILL WIN

Officers Just Arrived From the East Predict Japanese Defeat

Astoria Ore., April 28.—Officers of the steamship Indrasamba, who have arrived from far eastern points do not share the belief that Japan will defeat Russia in the war now in progress. They say that Russia will soon recover from the first defeats administered by the Japanese, off water and will turn the tables on the Mikado's subjects.

The vessel brings two Japanese millionaires en route to the St. Louis fair. They are sanguine to the outcome of the war, and through an interpreter expressed the conviction that Japan soon would annihilate the Russians on land and sea.

Favors Chinese Labor

London, April 27.—Mr. Chamberlain has written a letter regarding the employment of Chinese in the Transvaal. He says that when he was colonial secretary he laid down the principle that the Imperial Government should offer no objection to the employment of Asiatic labor if it was desired by the great majority of the white inhabitants of the two colonies. He assumes the government is satisfied that this is now the case. Chinese labor would pave the way for a greater number of British workmen.

both the method and the ability to do as he says, Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic troubles, sexual weakness, varicocele, sore manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, exhaustion of youth, impotence, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but like wise all the complications, such as rheumatism ,bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and what you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interest of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and let your case before him. PETERBOROUGH, APRIL 28 1904

THE CZAR'S UNFAITHFUL SERVANTS.

The Czar is getting rid, one by one, of the unfaithful servants who led him to break his repeated promise to evacuate Manchuria: who deceived him to the last as to the firmness of Japan's attitude and the sincerity of Great Britain and the United States in upholding the integrity of China; who plunged him into a war as unready as was Napoleon before Sedan, and have exposed him to a series of humiliating and disastrous defeats. The evil genius of the Russian government, Besobarsoff, whose infamy is best set out by describing him as the Cecil Rhodes of Russia, has been driven from the ministry. Now the feeble and presumptuous viceroy, Alexieff, who muddled the diplomacy and strategy of the East until men whose servant he was unworthy to be laid down their lives to atone for his faults, has been stripped of the power he abused.

What will the Czar do next? A wise and strong autocrat would take the responsibility of the blunders into which he has been led; would admit that he has been deceived by his servants and beguiled into an unjust and unprofitable war; would try his best to correct his past errors of policy by doing now what he would have done three months ago had his eyes been opened to the truth. That is to say, a wise and strong ruler would seek the mediation of a trusted nation and try to make peace on the basis of Japan's original ultimatum. The Czar would have yielded to this had not his evil advisers deceived him as to Japan's sincerity in threatening war, and Russia's state of preparation to meet it. After the losses and humiliations Russia has suffered, she might think herself fortunate to get peace on these terms.

But it is difficult for any nation to withdraw from war once entered upon until it has been fought to a finish. Even after France expelled the imperial family and established the republic, she maintained a hopeless conflict with the Germans until her resources were exhausted. The Czar is far less wise and even less powerful, in spite of his autocracy, than the great and patriotic men who governed France in her mortal extremity after Sedan. Probably he would be unable to stop the war, even if he wished to do so, until the resources of his nation have come to an end with defeat in the field and bankruptcy of his treasury.

Hold over until Wednesday night! The public are again reminded of the meeting to take place this evening in the Opera House for the discussion of the Sugar Company's by-law. This is a matter of the greatest importance to the ratepayers. If we are to have a colossal sugar factory, employing hundreds of people, and distributing many thousands of dollars annually in our midst, it will be necessary to carry the bylaw which is to be voted on on Thursday of next week. Every ratepayer whether he has a vote on this question or not, should attend the meeting.

The Dowager Duchess of Abercorn is the oldest living British peeress. When she was born to the sixth duke of Bedford, by his second wife, Napoleon's retreat from Moscow was still before him, and George III. was King, with eight years more to reign. Thus this venerable lady has lived in five reigns, and through the whole of three, although one was the longest on record. She was married nearly seventy-two years ago and has lived to see a grandchild's grandchild.

ST. LOUIS PROPERTY.

A Really Good Investment—A Chance of a Lifetime

"It is a great proposition, and will surely make a big producing mine," said W. H. Jackson, formerly superintendent of the Colorado mine and at present in charge of development work in the rich Belcher group, of the Greenhorn district, when speaking to a representative of American regarding the St. Louis group, which he has just visited for an examination.

"I really did not think such a meritorious property could be found on that side of the range," said he, continuing and referring to the Minersville section. "I confidently state that the St. Louis will after some development work has been done and a cyanide plant has been installed, pay handsome dividends to its owners. In my examination I found the ledge 40 feet wide, of which vast body, 30 feet is pay ore, the average value thereof being $3.46 a ton, which will allow a good profit after treatment. I found shoots of ore in the big ledge that will run as high as $12 and $14, there is considerable $8 and $10 ore.

"This proposition resembles the great Mercur mine more than any I have seen in Eastern Oregon region. An immeasurable quantity of ore is there, which can be treated at a marvelously low figure. Rapid depth is gained in the tunnel, now over 500 feet long, and with the depth possible a great stoping proposition is opened up."

Mr. Jackson is now conferring with B. L. McLain, the prominent millwright, in the work of getting up plans and specifications for a 300-ton cyanide plant. The plans will soon be completed.

Mr. Jackson states that this ore can be mined and milled at a cost not to exceed $1.50 per ton.—The Blue Mountain American.

Do You Tire Easily?

IF YOU LACK STRENGTH ENERGY AND FORCE, IT'S BECAUSE YOUR BLOOD IS THIN AND WATERY

The Best Tonic is Ferrosone—Read o the Marvel it Performed For Three Sisters in Lawrencetown—It Can Do The Same For You

Speaking for herself and sisters, Miss Dorothea Hoadman writes; "I am anxious to make known the great benefit that I and my sisters derived from Ferrosone. A short time ago I was tired out and depressed, and felt as if some severe illness was hanging over me. I was so nervous that I found it hard to keep up with my work. Noticing that many Canadian women were being built up by Ferrosone I sent for a supply. And took it regularly for a month. So great was the improvement that my sisters also took Ferrosone. Not one of us had a spark of color in our cheeks, but Ferrosone soon made our complexions ruddy. We soon had good appetites, slept better, and were helped a lot by Ferrosone. We still use Ferrosone, because we find it keeps our systems in a strong, healthy condition. It is certainly a wonderful tonic, and a fine remedy for weak women. Ferrosone has been worth its weight in gold in our family."

To take Ferrosone means you get more strength; means a reserve of energy, and protection against weakness and sickness. Ferrosone is a food medicine, that supplies the body with everything needed to build up the brain, blood and nerve tissues. If its health you seek, Ferrosone will bring it quickly. The Olive.

The olive has been applied for various medicinal purposes since old Rameses I. held sway over the dark skinned subjects in northern Africa. In the days of ancient Rome the leaves and bark of the tree were used by the remarkable medical experts of that time to allay and cure violent attacks of intermittent fever, while the resinous gum which exuded from the tree in the hot season was used for many of the ills to which flesh is heir. The oil of the olive itself later was used by the Roman athletes to soothe their heated bodies after indulging in heroic attempts to break the early records for 100 yard dashes and putting the discus or shot. Then the oil of the wild olive was employed as an extraordinary panacea, guaranteed to stop the ravages of all ailments. Last of all, in more modern times the women of our own day use the olive oil in the form of soap to beautify the complexion by softening the pores and nourishing the skin itself.

Creating a Vacancy.

When the republic had been set up in France in 1848, wrote the Baroness Bonde, the first attempts of the enfranchised people to use their new powers resulted in the election of the most miscellaneous assembly that had ever tried to govern a country. A member nominated from Rouen went to Paris and selected his seat. He had hardly taken it when his next neighbor turned and stared at him. The Rouen man, embarrassed, turned up his coat collar, but too late.

"Sir," said his lynx eyed colleague, "I believe I had the honor of sending you to the galleys for murder in 18—, when I was judge. You had strangled the servant of the cure who had brought you up, and robbed the worthy man. Oblige me by resigning immediately."

The next day the Moniteur announced that there was a vacancy for Rouen, but did not tell why.

The Jury's Verdict.

An English coroner had directed the jury in a suicide case to find a verdict of felo de se. "Well, chaps," said the foreman of the jury when they had retired to consider the verdict, "it appears to me that this 'ere chap shot 'imself with a gun after shootin' another chap with a gun, but Dr. Jones, the coroner, who we all know and 'ighly respect, 'e says that this 'ere chap fell in the sea.' Well, it ain't for the likes of us to go arguin' the point with the doctor, for 'e knows more about it than we do. So, I propose we find a verdict of found drowned"—and they did.

Browning's Maid.

Browning had a maid in his service who had a gift for saying quaint things. When the poet was going to pay the last mark of respect to George Henry Lewes, she said she "didn't see the good of catching cold at other people's funerals." And once, when he was away on a holiday and a journalist came to the door to inquire if it was true that the poet was dead, she indignantly answered, "I have not heard so, and I am sure my master is not the kind of a man to do such a thing without letting us know."

India's Varied Cuckoos.

In the matter of cuckoos India can give points to the British isles. The good folk at home see only one species of cuckoo, and that spends less than half its time on the British shores; we in India, on the other hand, can boast of an avifauna in which the subfamily cuculinæ is represented by no fewer than thirty species.

Problem In Millinery.

"Why, oh, why," remarked the observer of events and things, "will a woman smile with delight when she sees a hat in a milliner's window and frown when she sees the same hat on her neighbor's head?"

THE OREGON MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY

Offer to Canadian investors a limited amount of stock of the above company The property owned by the Company consists at the present time of about 500 acres, which are located in the Tarryall District and Park County, Colorado. This whole district has been known for years on account of its rich placer ground, and is now prominently before the public owing to the number of very good properties which have been opened up recently producing, principally, gold, and lately some that are producing Platinum. On the Oregon property there are a number of well known veins of low grade ore that will yield a profit by being located on the ground of the company. The company have recently opened up a fine vein in the Hawkeye group and this vein shows not only good values but an immense amount of ore which alone would make the property very valuable. Assays from ore taken from various parts of this property range from a few dollars to $373 per ton in gold. We have very little silver, lead or copper in the district. The company have a shaft 240 feet deep, with a good shaft house thoroughly well equipped with all modern mach nery to develop same. They are now driving a tunnel which is in about 700 feet and which will cut the Hawkeye vein about 300 feet deeper than where it is opened at present. There is enough ore exposed on the property of this company to keep them busy for a number of years and the reason for selling stock at the present time is to secure funds to build a mill. The company will probably join with the Almaden Company in building this mill. There is water enough to furnish water power and over 100 acres of fine spruce and pine timber. The affairs of the company have always been managed in a business-like economical manner and there are no officers' salaries. The monies received from the sale of stock go direct into the property.

I can heartily recommend this stock as safe, as well as an unusually good investment, because of the immense amount of ore which the company have already opened up. It is not a mere prospect, but the property has been developed by expense of a considerable amount of money and time.

The company is splendidly officered by men of integrity and high standing. The company has not pushed the sale of stock the last year owing to a delay in getting title to the ground from the Government, but now that has been satisfactorily adjusted and work will be pushed to a finish.

The number of exceedingly rich strikes which have been made during the last few weeks in the various camps in the State of Colorado is the best evidence of the prosperity of the mining business. Almost every camp in the state has opened up rich bodies of ore, and Park County is well in the lead in that line.

There are only $25,000 of stock for sale, at $1.00 per share. The company is capitalized at $200,000, and the advantage to the investor of selling the stock at par, is that every share is fully paid up and non-assessable.

REPORTED THAT JAPS FLEET BOMBARDED THE TOWN OF NEW CHWANG

News Came from Tien-Tsin and Russians There Discredit It--Vladivostock Squadron Has Disappeared from Gensan

Tien Tsin, April 27.—It is reported upon good authority that the Japanese fleet bombarded the town of New Chwang last night. The Russians here deny that there is any truth in the report.

The Russian squadron which sank the Japanese merchantman Goyo at Wonsan consisted of four cruisers and two torpedo boat destroyers.

Latest reports from Gensan say that the Vladivostock squadron has disappeared.

LEAVE FOR FRONT.

Tokio, April 27.The foreign military observers assigned to Japan's first army in Corea have been ordered to leave for the front next Saturday. The British attaches are Lieut.-Gen. Ian Hamilton, Col. Hume, Capt Jardine and Capt. Vincent.

THE CZAR IS FATHER OF THE RUSSIAN ARMY

Mingles With Troops and Inspires their Patriotism--Russia's Fighting Force

St. Petersburg, April 27.No living ruler of any nation in the world takes deeper interest in his soldiery, manifests greater anxiety for their welfare and excites feelings of more ardent patriotism among them than Nicholas II., Czar of all the Russians.

The Czar awakens patriotism among his soldiers by continuously moving among them. More than ever before, since the war opened, has he been seen among his people, in this way arousing them to loyalty.

When any large body of troops is starting to the front, the Czar invariably reviews them with much military pomp and splendor, and very frequently accompanies the soldiers to their station to cheer them on their way. The soldiers have the greatest respect for him and appreciate his deep interest in their movements.

The Emperor has placed much reliance on the work of his Cossack troops in the present war, and has gone out of his way more than once to show his regard for this branch of his large army. No patriotic Russian soldier can fail to appreciate the signal favor of being led to action, so to speak, by the ruler of the nation.

GRAND DUKES AT WAR.

Figuring largely in the present war will be the Grand Duke Michael, successor to the throne of Russia, who is prepared at a moment's notice to go to the front, accompanied by his royal suite. He commands the Imperial Lancers and hopes to be able to engage in the present conflict before the close of the war.

Another member of the Imperial family who is likely to give a good account of himself in the present war is the Grand Duke Vladimir, general-in-chief of the Russian army, the officers of his staff embracing the flower of the nobility. He is an uncle to the Czar. He was born April 20th, 1874, and married Princess Parisons of Mechlenburg-Schwerin.

Grand Duke Dimitri, the tallest officer in the Russian army, standing six feet seven inches in height, is a cousin of the Czar, and was born in 1860. He is a son of the late Grand Duke Constantine brother of Emperor Alexander II., who was grandfather of the present Czar. He is one of the most popular men in the Russian army, being generally known as a "good fellow." He is now on his way to the front.

The Russian soldier is a man of peculiarly hardy physique, and can dispense with much that men of a more advanced type consider necessaries of life. In the possession of this last most useful quality in a soldier the Russian is immeasurably superior to the Japanese, and, moreover, he is just as good—if not a better—marcher. So far as intelligence and dash are concerned the Japanese is his superior, but not so in stubbornness of purpose or those qualities that—among many others—distinguish a country born soldier from a town bred one, and very much to the advantage of the first.

Coming from a conquering race, and with all the prestige behind it, the Russian is only too likely to prove something more than a match for the very best troops Japan can bring against him, unless it be in very preponderating force—a very unlikely contingency, all things considered. The Japanese soldier is—so far as a contempt for death is concerned—a rare man, and, though many possess soldierly qualities of a very high order indeed, far too many, on the other hand, are lacking the fighting qualities of the Russian soldier.

RUSSIA'S FIGHTING STRENGTH

The Russian empire unquestionably possesses the biggest fighting machine in the world in the shape of its army and navy, but there is no other military force of which the world knows so little.

Even the numerical strength of the army is largely a matter of conjecture. As nearly as can be reckoned, the force available for carrying on the early stages of a war amounts to nearly 2,100,000. But in case of national emergency this force could be swelled to about 7,500,000 fighting men by the calling out of the territorial reserve and the opolchenie, or militia.

This vast army is more than twice as large as the population of New York city, more than twice as large as the German army, which, when mobilized, is estimated to have a total of 3,036,000 trained men. Under the order of Oct. 24, 1902, the strength of the United States army was fixed at 107,855 men—less than one-seventh of that of the Russian.

But Russia does not depend upon this immense army alone. She has one of the biggest navies in the world, or rather three distinct navies, each with its separate organization and separate base. One is in the Pacific, the second in the Baltic and the third is in the Black Sea. In many respects the Russian army and navy differ materially from the forces of other powers and some of the points of difference are decidedly interesting.

Secrecy is the keynote of the administration of both services. The secrets of both the army and navy are most carefully concealed, and so are many things not usually hidden by governments.

Even cases of individual heroism are similarly concealed, except in time of war. The theory of the service is that every man is equal in all respects to his comrade of the same rank. He is as brave, as efficient, and as loyal. It is considered bad for the service to allow the limelight to fall upon particular men, however, heroically they may have acted. And is considered to be bad for the men, too—in which belief the Russian administration shows a pretty good knowledge of human nature.

A sailor may jump overboard and rescue his captain from death in shark infested waters, or a stoker may dare appalling danger to save the life of a comrade in an engine room accident. In due course, he will be rewarded and promoted, and throughout his career his superior will remember the deed in his favor; but it will never become public. Rewards promotions and distinctions are announced only in war time or in cases of very exceptional merit, and even in these cases no reference whatever is made to the occasion of the reward or special commendation in any published reports or orders.

One branch of the Russian army is totally unlike any force possessed by other civilized powers. It is, of course, the Cossack levy, which numbers 142,000 men. Every able bodied Cossack is liable to service, without limit of age. He becomes liable at 18, and the liability does not cease so long as he is able to ride a horse or carry a gun. But only a proportion of the Cossacks serve at one time. The rest are granted "unlimited leave," or belong to the reserve.

The stimulus which provokes the energy and fighting qualities of the Russian soldier, inciting to greater patriotism and love of country, is unquestionably traced to the great interest manifested by the ruler of all the Russians at all times for the men who fight his battles.

FISCAL CAMPAIGN WILL GO FORWARD

Mr. Chamberlain Has Returned With Renewed Vigor

THE TRIFF COMMISSION

Has Gathered Abundant Evidence of Need of Reform in Fiscal Policy

London, April 27.—Hon. Joseph Chamberlain's friends say that he returned quite reinvigorated. He realizes, however, that the political situation has somewhat changed during his absence. The Government is now fairly secure in Parliament for another year, and at least no early dissolution is contemplated. Consequently there is no need to force the pace in the fiscal movement. The work of educating the public regarding Imperial reciprocity can proceed quietly during the next six months, especially in view of remarkable testimony regarding the present unsatisfactory condition of the British iron and steel, textile, engineering, machinery and other trades which the tariff commission is collecting, and the strong views the British manufacturers are expressing of the beneficial operation of the Canadian, New Zealand and South African preferential tariffs and the desirability of the extension of the preference principle in inter-Imperial trade generally.

TO CANADIAN INVESTORS

I desire to call the attention of investors to the

Smuggler Gold Mining Co.'s Proposition

of which I am the authorized agent

Investments in mining stocks where they can be purchased cheaply whose property contains merit and whose directors are men of unquestionable honor and integrity, and especially when sufficient work has been done to guarantee a producing mine and the leads have been demonstrated to be permanent, offer the greatest opportunity for large returns from modest investments.

The shrewdest capitalists of England and America are giving more attention to mining properties and putting more money into them than at any time in the past history of the world.

The Smuggler Group consists of five full sized claims, to-wit:- The Smuggler, Gangrene, Black Jack, Star and Red Rock, located in the Greenhorn District of Eastern Oregon. Engineers whose reports Prof. Fulder of Pendleton, Boozer and Eichefeller, developing work to the extent of 1,000 feet of tunnellings—drifts and crosscuts have been made, exposing hundreds of tons of high grade ore, averaging from $25 to $45 per ton, based on smelter returns and for the purpose of equipping the mines a limited number of shares of Treasury Stock will be sold at 25 cents per share, the par value of which is $1.00.

HIGH CLASS INVESTMENT

LA ZACUALPA RUBBER PLANTATION COMPANY

Incorporated Under the Laws of the State of California.

La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation is situated in the best location in Mexico for the cultivation of rubber. It has been known for a great many years as a very choice strip of rubber land and our own practical experience has shown that it is equal to all that has been claimed for it. The affairs of the company are in the hands of men of undoubted integrity and high reputation as successful men of business. To those seeking a safe investment which will secure a good income for life, this proposition offers a favorable opportunity

Shares in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation are not capital stock of a corporation, and carry none of the responsibilities and obligations, or liability to assessment of capital stock; but represent an undivided interest in the plantation itself.

The twelve thousand acres comprising the plantation are divided into twelve thousand shares, each share representing one acre of land, and the holders of shares in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation are the actual owners of one undivided acre of land, for each share held, with a guarantee expressed upon the certificate by La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company, under its official seal, to plant two hundred or more rubber trees per acre for each share sold, and to care for same for a period of five years, and at the expiration of that time to gather the first harvest and deliver the net proceeds thereof to the shareholder.

In other words, La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company sells to each shareholder one undivided acre of land in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation, with two hundred or more rubber trees five years old, and their profits for all time, for each share sold, and agrees to plant so that the first harvest belonging to the shareholder in the same to be gathered from La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation during the sixth year from the date of the certificate.

After the delivery of the first harvest La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company will care for the plantation, and harvest and market the crop for ten per cent. of the net proceeds therefrom. Out of this commission the Company agrees to pay all costs of administration, including maintenance of its home and branch offices.

This plan gives the purchaser of shares an interest of definite acreage, and his proportionate share in the total yield of rubber from the entire plantation forever, making it absolutely certain that the interest of each shareholder will receive the same careful attention

The Consumers Coal Company controls and owns clear of incumbrance, a coal mine in Chenoa, Illinois which is a first-class coal mine on the Toledo, Peoria & Warsaw and the Chicago & Alton R. R. The former line crosses five different railroads running parallel to Chicago. The Mine is on a paying basis and the output is increasing from day to day. We have 321 acres under lease with three distinct veins, or layers of coal which are 6½ feet thick each. The first one at a depth of 265 feet, it is this vein which we are now mining, the second one lies a depth of 289 feet and the third at 461 feet. Our main shaft runs down through all three of these veins and a hundred feet below the third, which we reserve as a sump, makes our shaft a total depth 361 feet. The mine is fully equipped and in good repair and working order. Our machinery engines and everything else is in duplicate so in case of a breakdown we can switch and operate without any loss of time. We have our own blacksmith shop and car shop in which we build our own cars. Our output is now hanging in the forks hisehood of 100 tons per day, but I have the promise of the superintendent to increase the output to not less than 200 tons per day within two or three weeks, knowing his arrangements, I know this to be possible.

All coal in Illinois should not cost more than 90c at the highest to mine coal in Illinois, yet it costs us a little over a dollar owing to the extensive improvements we have made in and at the mine, but as we increase the output the cost per ton of mining will decrease as our fixed expenses will be no more in mining several hundred tons per day than they are at the present time in mining one hundred tons. Up to the present time we have sold most of our output at the mouth of the shaft to the surrounding farmers and towns people and, therefore, we have no freight or cartage to pay. We receive from $2 75 to $2 90 for Mine Run and $2 75 for Lump. In that way we have made quite a handsome profit and we estimate that our average, or net earnings at the Mine up to the present time is about $100 per day and we hope to soon increase this as we increase output.

We have three yards in Chicago in which we are handling 16 different kinds of coal and we have a very substantial business and have made considerable profit each month out of which we have paid over 20 per cent in dividends last year and accumulated a surplus fund equal to the amount paid in dividends.

The reason we are selling stock at the present time is that our business has grown so extensively that it takes more money to handle the same, besides this, we are buying teams with which to handle our coal in Chicago, which will cost us about $200 each. We predict that this stock will be worth not less than $3 per share before another year is over as by that time our Mine will be producing not less than four or five hundred tons per day. We will appreciate your subscription to any amount you see fit to invest and if possible to interest some of your friends do so. I remain,

Yours very truly,

Old Hagar's Secret

BY MRS. M. J. HOLMES

Author of "For a Woman's Sake," "Love's Triumph," "Purified by Suffering," "A Grass Widow," "Woman Against Woman," Etc.

desire to know something of her who bore that beautiful name, and who, to the young man, was undoubtedly the one in all the world most dear.

"Rose," he said again, "is it you?" and his eyes, which opened slowly, scanned with an eager, questioning look the face of Maggie, who, open-hearted and impulsive as usual, answered, somewhat sadly: "I am nobody but Maggie Miller. I am not Rose, though I wish I was, if you would like to see her."

The tones of her voice recalled the stranger's wandering mind, and he answered: "Your voice is like Rose's, but I would rather see you, Maggie Miller. I like your fearlessness, so unlike most of your sex. Rose is far more gentle, more feminine than you, and if her very life depended upon it she would never dare leap that gorge."

The young man intended no reproof, but Maggie took his words as such, and for the first time in her life began to think that possibly her manner was not always as womanly as might be. At all events she was not like the gentle Rose, whom she instantly invested with every possible grace and beauty, wishing that she herself was like her, instead of the wild-cap she was. Then, thinking her conduct required some apology, she answered, as none save one as fresh and ingenious as Maggie Miller would have answered: "I don't know any better than to behave as I do. I've always lived in the woods where never been to school a day in my life—never been anywhere except to camp-meeting, and once to Douglas' store in Worcester!"

This was entirely a new phase of character to the man of the world, who laughed aloud, and at the mention of Douglas' store started so quickly that a spasm of pain distorted his features, causing Maggie to ask if he were badly hurt.

"Nothing but a broken leg," he answered; and Maggie, to whose mind broken bones conveyed a world of pain and suffering, replied: "Oh, I am so sorry for you, and it's my fault, too. Will you forgive me!" and her little chubby hands clasped his so pleadingly that, raising himself upon his elbow, so as to obtain a better view of her bright face, he answered: "I'd willingly break a hundred bones for the sake of meeting a girl like you, Maggie Miller."

Maggie was unused to flattery, save as it came from her grandmother, Theo or old Hagar, and now, paying no heed to his remark, she said: "Can you stay here alone while I go for help? Our house is not far away."

"I'd rather you would remain with me," he replied; "but as you cannot do both. I suppose you must go."

"I shan't be gone long," said Maggie, "and I'll send old Hagar to keep you company," So saying, she climbed the bank, and, mounting Gritty, who stood quietly awaiting her, she seized the other horse by the bridle and rode swiftly away, leaving the young man to meditate upon the novel situation in which he had so suddenly been placed.

"Ain't I in a pretty predicament?" said he, as he tried in vain to move his swollen limb, which was broken in two places, but which, being partially benumbed, did not now pain him much. "But it serves me right for, chasing a harum-scarum thing when I ought to have been minding my own business and collecting bills for Douglas & Co. And she says she's been there, too. I wonder who she is, the handsome sprite. I believe I made her more than half jealous talking of my golden-haired Rose; but she is far more beautiful than Rose, more beautiful than any one I ever saw. I wish she's come back again," and shutting his eyes he tried to recall the bright, animated face which had so lately bent anxiously above him. "She tarries long," he said at last, beginning to grow uneasy. "I wonder how far it is, and where the deuce can this old Hagar be of whom she spoke."

"She's here!" answered a shrill voice, and looking up he saw before him the bent form of Hagar Ward for a moment while she told of the accident and begged of Hagar to hasten.

Accordingly, equipped with a blanket and pillow, a brandy bottle and the camphor, old Hagar had come, but when she offered the latter for the young man's acceptance, he pushed it from him saying: "Camphor was his detestation, but he shouldn't object particularly to smelling of the other bottle!"

"No, you don't," said Hagar, who thought him in not quite so deplorable a condition as she had expected to find him. "My creed is never to give young folks brandy except in cases of emergency." So saying, she made him more comfortable by placing a pillow beneath his head, and then, thinking possibly that this, to herself, was "a case of emergency," she withdrew to a little distance, and sitting down upon the gnarled roots of an upturned tree, drank a swallow of the old cognac, while the young man, maimed and disabled, looked wistfully at her!

Not that he cared for the brandy, of which he seldom tasted, but he needed something to relieve the death-like faintness, which occasionally came over him, and which old Hagar, looking only at his mischievous eyes, failed to observe. Only those who knew Henry Warner intimately gave him credit for the many admirable qualities he really possessed, so full was he of fun. It was in his merry eyes, and bout his quizzically-shaped mouth, that the principal difficulty lay; and most persons, seeing him for the first time, fancied that in some way he was making sport of them. This was old Hagar's impression as she sat there in dignified silence, rather enjoying, than otherwise, the occasional groans which came from his white lips. There were intervals, however, when he was comparatively free from pain, and these he improved by questioning her with regard to Maggie, asking who she was and where she lived.

"She is Maggie Miller, and she lives in a house," answered the old woman, rather pettishly.

"Ah, indeed—maggish, eh, pray!"

unmercifully for the secret, and who was glad when at last an incident occurred which for a time drove all thoughts of the secret from Maggie's mind.

CHAPTER VI.

One afternoon toward the middle of April, when Maggie, as usual, was flying through the woods, she paused for a moment beneath the shadow of a sycamore, while Gritty drank from a small running brook. The pony having quenched his thirst, she gathered up her reins for a fresh gallop, when her ear caught the sound of another horse's hoofs, and, looking back, she saw approaching her at a rapid rate a gentleman whom she knew to be a stranger. Not caring to be overtaken, she chirruped to the spirited Gritty, who, bounding over the velvety turf, left the unknown rider far in the rear.

"Who can she be?" thought the young man, admiring the utter fearlessness with which she rode; then, feeling a little piqued as he saw how the distance between them was increasing, he exclaimed: "Be she woman, or be she witch, I'll overtake her," and, whistling to his own fleet animal, he, too, dashed on at a furious rate.

BRITISH PEOPLE ARE SATISFIED

Feeling is General That the Budget Was Reasonable

THE NEW LICENSING BILL

Government Measure Will Be Fought Vigorously by Teetotalers—Education and Crime

London, April 26.—There is quite an air of cheerfulness now that the budget day has gone, and it is seen that the stupendous national expenditure of $715,000,000 involves nothing worse than an extra penny on the income tax, an extra two pence per pound on tea, and a trifling additional price for cigar and cigarettes. Austen Chamberlain himself goes the length of assuring Englishmen that they had a fit of the blues for a very small reason. It is true that expenditure has grown in forty years by 125 per cent., but the national wealth has grown 150 per cent. The responsibilities of an ever expanding Empire are greatly increased, but how much stronger the British shoulders have grown to bear it all.

This is in justification of Mr. Austen Chamberlain's omission of the Chancellor's usual warning against the alarming growth of expenditure. Unkind political enemies allege that the Chamberlains, father and son, are not forgetful of the fact that an increased expenditure has its uses in making new methods of taxation inevitable.

THE LICENSING BILL.

To the Chinese labor ordinances succeeds the new licensing bill, as the subject of acute political agitation. The Liberal objection to the new Government measure this week submitted to the House of Commons, is that the liquor licenses, which are now subject to yearly renewal, become a vested interest which cannot be curtailed except to a trifling extent, covered by a compensation fund of five million dollars per annum, which the remaining license-holders are compelled to form for dispossessed holders. In return for this five millions, which capitalized means two hundred millions, the brewers gain a statutory security for their property which is estimated will add a thousand millions to the capitalized value of their licenses. The Liberal alternative would adopt a time limit, after which the state would cease to concern itself about any compensation to be given. The teetotalers intend to fight the bill strenuously.

CRIME AND EDUCATION.

The statistics of crime published this week are accepted as proving that the better the education, the less frequent the lapse from legal virtue, but once a man or woman has been in prison, the chances are that sooner or later they will return there. If only it were possible to eliminate the habitual offender, the British would be the most virtuous nation in the world. Four thousand foreign criminals are in British jails. Directly the Government bill becomes a law, this influence will cease. Women are more incorrigible criminals than men. The repression of crime costs England and Wales thirty millions a year.

BOERS GET READY

Arms and Ammunition Being Prepared For Another Tussel With Britons

New York, April 27.—In his cable letter from London to The Tribune, Mr. Isaac N. Ford says; The condition of South Africa is far from satisfactory. Protests against the demand of the Crown colony agents for exclusive control of the purchase of supplies for the Transvaal and the Orange River Colonies can easily be met by official compromises, but there are many signs of discontent and dangerous unrest in South Africa. One is the circumstantial evidence of a Boer secret conspiracy in the Lydenburg district, with concealed supplies of arms and ammunition. Another is the widespread disappointment over the continuation of hard times and the prostration of mining interests.

The Augusta Metal Mining Co.
Capitalized at $2,000,000.00.
Par value $1.00. Full Paid and Non-Assessable
At 75 Cents per Share

This company now owns the well-known Augusta mine, and its extension for over 1000 feet in addition to other claims approximating a total acreage of 300 acres. This property has produced over $250,000 in gold, silver and lead ores and is a producer to-day. Has shipped ores of an average net value of $40 per ton for first class and $18 per ton for second class, all the past summer and the summer before smelter and mill returns of which are on file in our office.

Has immense bodies of these grades of ore, which cannot be exhausted in five years. Already opened up and its main working tunnel is nearing completion, cutting the apex of the vein at a depth of 1,000 feet.

This block of shares is offered to enable the Company to connect the above tunnel with its concentrating mill and projected terminus of railroad by tramway, a distance of 11,120 feet, thereby permitting shipments during the entire year.

A production of at least 125 tons daily will be maintained when these improvements are made, and if completed in the early summer, dividends can be paid from ore settlements before this fall.

We offer for a limited time only a SPECIAL BLOCK OF 50,000 SHARES OF THE TREASURY STOCK of these Companies.

We reserve the right to reject subscriptions over and above the 50,000 shares offered. Each subscription to be booked as received.

Investigate to your heart's content, and quickly, then let us hear from you.

The Black Queen Gold Mining Co.
1,500,000 Shares. Par value $1.00. Full Paid and Non-Assessable.
Selling at 75c a Share

Like its sister Company is today giving the best value for the money of any share offered.

This Company owns and controls over 300 acres of good mineral-producing ground, including the well-known Bicuspidor and Yankee Blade, which have produced upward of $175,000.

Tunnel B of the Black Queen Company is now going in at a rate of 175 feet per month, and early spring will see this work vieing with Tunnel A of the Augusta Company in its record of production.

Will cut known proven ore bodies 1100 feet from Apex, and open sufficient stoping ground to make an output of 100 tons daily.

Has already cut through a cross vein two feet in width of good marketable Galena ore, the point of intersection being 400 feet beneath the surface. We have 900 feet of this vein in length.

We can show you these facts and ask that you ask us to do so.

If your investment becomes profitable you will tell others: therefore it is much to our interest to have you make money on your investment.

A British Treasure.

In the jewel house of the Tower of London, the place where the crown and other royal insignia are kept, there is a book bound throughout in gold, even to the wires of the hinges. Its clasp is two rubies set at opposite ends of four golden links. On one side there is a cross of diamonds; on the other the English coat of arms set in diamonds, pearls and rubies.

Aptly Described.

"I have been courting her for five years," said the disconsolate one, "and I am certain that she will refuse me when I propose."

"Ah, that is interesting," said the amateur photographer, "a sort of undeveloped negative."

"You don't object to a contributor dropping into poetry once in awhile, I presume?" said the visitor, with an affable smile.

"Certainly not, sir. Sit down," replied the editor, pushing the waste paper basket toward him.

EVERYBODY READS THE TIMES.

The Home of Luther.

Few thoroughfares have been preserved in Europe which give an adequate idea of the streets of the middle ages. One of the most interesting of these relics is the home of Martin Luther, in Frankfurt-am-Main. It stands on the corner of a narrow street and rises to a height which seems unusual even in these days of tall buildings. Like most of the architecture of its period, the Luther house is half timbered and richly decorated. It is a very roomy place, though somewhat dark and probably badly ventilated. The Luther house, like many of its time, contained floors increasing in size as they rose, thus giving a curiously picturesque but top heavy appearance to the building.

The Expression "So Long."

With reference to the origin of the familiar expression "So long" a correspondent of the London Academy suggests that it is derived from the Norwegian "San Laenge," a common form of farewell, equivalent in meaning to "au revoir" and pronounced like "so long," with the "g" softened. There was a fair number of Norwegians among the settlers in America, to judge by names, and it is quite likely the phrase was picked up from them. It is in general use among the Dutch in South Africa.

The Man in Love.

The ordinary man in love is a sorry sight compared with his mistress. He makes his love conventionally and continually disappoints the woman, who wishes to see new lights gleam in his eyes. He is in poignant fear of discovery; he has a horror of ridicule; his one dread is lest he make a fool of himself. But a woman is a cheap chit indeed if she spends a thought on such nonsense; her abandon is superb.—London Queen.

RUSSIAN WAKENED BY LO OF SEVERAL VSELS RECENTLY.

Japs May Land in Rear of Forts--Weakness of Russians Leaves Japanese Ships Free to Cover Landing

St. Petersburg, April 27.—It is expected that the Japanese will attempt to land troops on the Liao Tung peninsula, in the rear of Port Arthur and attack it on both sides. The recent losses to the Russian fleet will leave many of the Japanese ships free to cover a landing of troops.

The Japanese will attempt the same plan of capture as proved successful in the Chinese war. But even in that conflict it took the Mikado's troops 27 days to carry the fortifications. It cannot be expected that they will be more successful in the face of trained Russian troops. No fear is expressed here for the safety of Port Arthur. General Kuropatkin has 300,000 troops at his command and could send an overwhelming force to the relief of Port Arthur. The Japanese may depend on their fleet fighting to help them hold the narrow isthmus by which the peninsula is connected to the mainland.

Admiral Alexieff has asked to be relieved. There is general satisfaction over this. Alexieff was the head and front of the war party in Russia and yet permitted the Russians to be caught totally unprepared in the east.

Admiral Skrydloff, who succeeds Makaroff in command of the Port Arthur fleet is quoted as being in favor of offensive operations.

The reports from the Yalu indicate that the Japanese have control of the entire of Corea, and the Russian and Japanese forces are massed along the Yalu. A battle seems imminent.

JAPANESE DID IT.

Wei-Hai-Wei, April 27.—There is no doubt that the destruction of the battleship Petropavlovsk last week in which the brave Admiral Makaroff lost his life, was the beginning of a general campaign on the part of the Japanese for the possession of the Liao-Tung peninsula, of which Port Arthur is the key. Even the Russians have ceased to aver that the blowing up of the Petropavlovsk was due to accidental contact with a Russian mine. The flagship was undoubtedly destroyed by the Japanese. The only open question is in regard to the engine employed by Admiral Togo. According to the official report of the admiral, the Japanese had mined roads the night before, and then drew the Russians out over the dangerous fields. The Russian fleet was outnumbered, but late advices show that the diversity was not so great as at first reported by the Russians. The Japanese had one more battleship and one more protected cruiser. Whatever the cause, the Russians retreated. It is believed that Makaroff had a plan to draw the Japanese after him, and to lead them through the Russian mine fields. But his ship ran against a Japanese mine and he met the very fate that he had planned for his rival.

The revised reports show that out of the crew of 700 aboard the flagship about seventy-five escaped, including the Grand Duke Cyril, who was so severely injured that it was feared he might lose his legs. Cyril is the son of the Czar's uncle and is in line for the throne.

The Japanese were not satisfied with the destruction of the flagship. They sunk one torpedo boat and destroyed two battleships and an armored cruiser. The battleships are the Potiedn and the Peresviet, while the disabled cruiser is the Boyan.

All three managed to get into the inner harbor, but it is believed they are practically helpless for offensive purposes.

This leaves the Russian fleet in almost as bad condition as it was immediately after the first torpedo attack on Port Arthur. The Japanese sought this end, for the purpose of carrying on a campaign to the north. A few ships will be left to watch the entrance to Port Arthur, so that no Russian war vessels can come out, and the rest of the fleet will be sent against Vladivostock or will convey an army to land on the Liao-o Tung peninsula and attack Port Arthur from the rear. The latter is believed to be the plan most likely to be followed. The capture of Port Arthur is the one grand object of Port Arthur is the one grand object of the Japanese in this war as the conflict was practically the result of their being obliged to vacate the place after the Chinese war.

The attempt to take Port Arthur will be the most desperate undertaking in modern warfare, and there will be undoubtedly hard fighting before the Russians will give up.

Although it has been settled that the destruction of the Petropavlovsk involving the death of Makaroff, was accomplished by the Japanese, and was the result of accidental contact with a Russian mine, there is still doubt as to how the Japanese blew up the flagship. Not withstanding Togo's official report about the planting of the mines, there are those who believe that the Japanese have a boat which they have been using since the war broke out. It is known that the Japanese government purchased the plans of a submarine from an American firm two years ago. It is not likely that a government which made such careful preparations as the Japanese have for this war, would neglect so promising an engine as the submarine, especially after buying the plans. It is but natural, if the Japanese have such a boat that they would seek to keep the matter a secret, for its effectiveness is largely enhanced by keeping the enemy in ignorance of its existence.

Of the ten Russian war vessels sunk by the Japanese since the present war began less than two months ago seven were destroyed by torpedoes and only three by the guns of Japanese warships.

By this demonstration of the effectiveness and practicality of the torpedo in modern naval warfare the Japanese have likewise revealed the possibilities of that engine of destruction when employed in the naval operations of the most highly developed nations like Great Britain, United States and Germany.

It is reasonable to assume that under the direction of the higher intelligence of the British, Americans or Germans the havoc wrought by a torpedo warfare waged against the battleships of an enemy would be many times greater that it has been in the present conflict, and it would seem evident that great sea powers must rely more upon the torpedo in the future and less upon tonnage as a basis of naval strength.

WRESTLING.

Sporting Editor Times:

I notice in a recent issue of the Toronto Star of the 21st an article under the heading 'After Wrestling Fakirs," in which Kingston and Peterborough are denounced, and evidently regarded by the writer and author of the article as the mecca of fakirs. Of course "Artie Edmunds' good name is closely allied with the institutions. Peterborough is a good sporting town and its sports are good sports. When fault has been found with either boxing or wrestling contests held in Peterborough the same was due to the actions of outsiders, brought here in good faith. One of the wrestling fakirs brought here some time ago to wrestle D. Simons, of Montreal, was "Artie Edmunds," of Toronto, the wrestler with a reputation. When the latter came on the mat for the bout he was thickly greased from head to foot. On becoming aware of this, Simons, who had not practised catching greasy pigs left the stage. The audience expressed their indignation for such tactics on the part of this "hero" in the usual way. Is it any wonder then that he is not favored by Peterborough sports?

The affair in Kingston, referred to in said article, was gotten up by and for a Kingston organization. Mr. E. K. Dolan, of Peterborough, was requested to manage the affair, which he undertook to do. This gentleman has never had a hand in any show held in Peterborough. The pimple Edmunds carries on the upper end of his neck is sore because he was not given a hand in the "fake." However, if Edmunds is the good sport and the square man he claims to be (excuse the exaggeration) Mr. Dolan will produce two Peterborough men, one a boxer and the other a wrestler, to box or wrestle (or both) him in private for any sum—$250 to $500—and will deposit $50 as a guarantee of good faith with any standard newspaper in Toronto. These same two men were scheduled to appear in Kingston on the night in question. Now, it is up to you, "Artie" to make your "hot air" agree to the Star reporter.

Boil over with essence of your worth or force it to be cooled off by that of the "raw variety." Edmunds claims that the men who will go on the mat at Kingston are of the "rawest variety." In the next breath he says, "I will go down there and box or wrestle the whole outfit, one after another, and if I cannot beat them all I don't want the money. If he couldn't beat them I don't suppose he would get much money anyway. We know, "Artie" your hobby is men of the "raw variety" in both boxing and wrestling, and your reputation was thus gained. But it is up to you now. The same "raw variety" will cover your cash up to $500, as stated above, and will bet with you that your money goes.

BARONESS DIES IN A CABIN

Husband's Conspiracy Against King Leads Her to Poverty in America

Leadville, Col., April 27.—From life in the royal palaces of Europe to a struggle with poverty and at last death in a humble cabin in Leadville, was the transition of Stephanie, Baroness Gallotti, who was known in Leadville as Mrs. Chas. H. Tanner. She was buried this afternoon, having died last night.

Baroness Gallotti had lived in Leadville since 1879. She was born in 1840 at Milan, and was a descendant of a sister of the duchess of Kent, the mother of Queen Victoria of England. She married Baron Carlo Di Gallotti of Naples.

In 1865 Baron Gallotti was arrested for conspiracy against the king and sentenced to be shot. His brother, who was minister of war, secured passports for the baron and his wife and they fled from Italy, going to France, thence to London and America. In the summer of 1874, on returning to her apartments one afternoon, the baroness found her husband dead on the floor. In his hand was grasped a royal pardon signed by the king. The joy caused by the news that he would be allowed to return home had caused his death.

The baroness continued to reside in Denver and in 1878 she married Charles H. Tanner and came to Leadville the following year. She spent some time singing in Leadville and later she and her husband came here to reside permanently.

A BUSINESS MAN'S LETTER.

Wm. Thomson, Esq., of Orillia, Vice-President Standard Chemical Company of Toronto, Tells of a Visit to the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives.

GREATLY IMPRESSED WITH WORK BEING DONE.

Personally Raises Several Hundred Dollars to Help Lessen the Load of Debt.

There can be little doubt that the National Sanitarium Association is handicapped in its great work for Consumptives in the fact that its two institutions in Muskoka are far away from any large centre of population. Few people have an opportunity to see for themselves the magnificent work that is being done.

These hospitals are away from the public eye. Any, however, who do visit them, are united in their commendation of the splendid appointments of the place, and, best of all, of the real joy and hope that is being brought to many suffering ones.

We are glad to have the opportunity of publishing the following letter from Mr. Wm. Thomson, of Orillia, one of Canada's best known lumbermen, which tells what he has seen himself. It reads:

ORILLIA, Ont., November 2, 1903.

W. J. GAGE, Esq.,
Chairman Executive Committee
National Sanitarium Association,
Toronto, Ont.

My Dear Mr. Gage,—

I have much pleasure in enclosing herewith cheque for One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) from the Tudhope Carriage Company of Orillia, a donation to the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. Please acknowledge this to the Tudhope Carriage Company in the usual way.

I have written to a number of my friends, to try and get them interested in this good work. I hope to be able to send you further donations. I have written my friends a personal letter, something similar to the following:

"Last week I paid a visit to the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. I met some of the management there, and promised to try and interest some of my friends in this work.

"I might say there were 49 patients there last week, all poor people, most of them without a dollar in the world, and suffering from the dreadful disease, Consumption. There are many sad stories, and I know I have thought a great deal about the work of the institution ever since my visit there. I do believe it is worthy of assistance, and we who have health and the necessaries of life should encourage this work along.

"I understand the expenses lately have been double the income, and unless the management meet with more encouragement, I am afraid the work will have to be curtailed. I know you have many calls, but I do wish you would give this matter a thought, and, if possible, assist. I have written to two or three confidentially, and hope to be able to collect some more for this work. Should you not feel like contributing a donation, remember this request, and your reply is just between you and me, and strictly confidential.

"I might mention, to show that I have confidence in the work, I have already given a donation of $100.00 and two row boats to the Free Hospital this year, and intend to give another $100.00 before the end of the year."

Sincerely yours,

Wm Thomson

Sir Wm. R. Meredith, Kt., or Mr. W. J. Gage, Toronto, will receive and acknowledge any contributions made.

THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL

THE MAYOR OF TORONTO WANTS PORT HOPE OUTLET

Importance of the Waterway Now Being Realized by the Toronto People

Mayor Urquhart, of Toronto, has given out the following statement of his views on the Trent Valley Canal:

The importance of this question to Toronto and Western Ontario becomes more apparent the more it is studied. The extension of the canal and making its Lake Ontario outlet at Trenton will materially affect the trade of Western Ontario with this district, while Port Hope, or a point near Port Hope, would be what might be termed a neutral point, which would give the Western portion of the Province a fair opportunity of doing business in the large tract of country served by the canal.

This improvement should be dealt with, not as a local work simply for supplying local needs, but as a national work, which it really is, being of importance to the whole country, and not only to the locality served. The making of the Ontario outlet at or near Port Hope will not in any way affect the Eastern trade, but will give to the Western part of the Province a fair chance of doing business in the district.

This district requires agricultural implements, furniture, wagons, carriages, and, in fact, all the articles manufactured in the Western part of the Province, and the opening of the canal to Port Hope will give water competition with the railways for the carrying of this freight. Port Hope is also a "port of call" for the Richelieu and Ontario Company's steamers, and daily communication is thus had with this port. Speaking locally, Port Hope would become the distributing center for the coal required by the manufacturers and business men of Peterborough, Lindsay and other towns in the district, and it would thus tend to build up this district served by the canal.

There should be a complete and thorough examination of the routes made by independent engineers and a report made to the Government thereon.

HAS SMALLPOX IN CASTLE

London, April 27.—There was great alarm at Floors castle this week when one of the workmen installing electric light apparatus developed smallpox. The Duke and Duchess of Roxburghe ordered the place thoroughly disinfected and left immediately for Broxmouth Park, Dunbar, the residence of the Duke's mother.

The stricken workman had been working in the duchess' bedroom only the day before he fell sick.

CATARRH

RUINS HEALTH AND BEAUTY CAUSES THE WEAK TO DIE? UNG INVARIABLY LEADS TO CONSUMPTION.

Thousands Annually Cured by Catarrhozone

MR. ARCHIBALD BASS, of New Harbor, writes: "Catarrhozone proved itself a remarkable remedy in my case. I suffered terribly from catarrh in the throat and my nose was so stuffed up every morning I could hardly draw my breath. The mucous dropped back into my stomach, upset my digestion and kept me sick all the time. Catarrhozone relieved in a short time and cured perfectly."

MRS. W. F. BREACH, of Chapman, writes: "I have used a great many catarrh remedies but none of them ever helped like Catarrhozone. It cleared out my nose and throat and stopped a ringing noise in my ears. Catarrhozone is very pleasant and simple to use and many times better than any other catarrh remedy."

MR. LAWRENCE KENNEDY, of New West Annan, says: "For three years I tried doctors but my catarrh grew worse and worse. I got no relief till I used Catarrhozone. It was not very long in curing me so perfectly that the disease has never returned."

MR. JOSEPH De ROCHE, one of the most prominent and highly respected citizens of Loggieville, N.B., says: "I used Catarrhozone for a sore throat, cold in the head and head ache. I always felt relief immediately. It cured the discharge from my nose and restored my sense of smell lost through the effects of catarrh."

Catarrhozone is simple, convenient and pleasant. It is warranted to instantly relieve and permanently cure.

An Operation Necessary

The many friends of Mr. George Stewart, County Treasurer, will regret to learn that he will be obliged to undergo an operation at Nicholls Hospital, which will probably be performed to-day. Mr. Stewart has been, we understand, suffering from a tumor growth in the ear. The operation is not regarded as very serious, although at Mr. Stewart's advanced age it may be somewhat critical. We join in the general wish for his speedy restoration to health.

An Absent Minded Farmer

A story reached The Times yesterday regarding a south township farmer who is greatly troubled with absent-mindedness. On the way home from town, so the story goes, the thought came to him that he had forgotten something. He took out his notebook, went over every item and checked it off. He saw that he had made all the purchases he had intended. But as he drove on he could not put the feeling aside. When he arrived home and drove up to the house, his daughter came to meet him, and with a look of surprise, asked: "Why, where is ma?"

"Mounted" Police Brigade

The town is now to have a corps of "mounted" policemen hereafter—a sort of mobile brigade as it were. The idea doubtless is to overtake, surround and capture the law breaker before he has a chance to escape. The flying column will consist of Constables Adams and Stewart mounted on bicycles, who will, in case of trouble simultaneously attack both front and rear, and keep the enemy engaged until the arrival of the "heavy" reinforcements; consisting of the Chief and P. C. McGinty. The action of our City Fathers in placing the forces on a war footing is commendable. This great family journal would just interject this remark; Keep off the sidewalks.

"Herb" Burrows Dead

Kingston, April 27.—The death occurred on Monday of Robt. Burrows, eldest son of F. Burrows, public school inspector, of Napanee. Deceased was for many years a well known newspaper man in Toronto and later was for a time private secretary for Hon. J. R. Stratton. Two years ago he suffered a collapse. Everything that medical skill could devise was resorted to, but no improvement resulted, and a physical disintegration ensued. He was about 40 years of age. He was married about 15 years ago to Miss Maggie McKay, daughter of Thomas McKay, now of Owen Sound, who survives. There are four brothers Dr. G. Burrows Marlbink; Arthur, in the West, Alfred, Belleville, and Frank, New York—and one sister, Mrs. Semmith, of New Westminster. The funeral takes place on Wednesday in Napanee.

A Popular Insurance Man

"Agency Notes," a paper published in the interests of the Confederation Life Association, has this to say of our esteemed fellow citizen and worthy member of the City Council, Alderman Harry Rush;

Mr. Rush has been with the Association for seventeen years, and during all of that time has faithfully looked after the Association's interests in Peterborough and the surrounding district. He is an Englishman, having been born in the County of Norfolk. He came to Canada in 1859 and entered upon mercantile career, which he successfully followed until the year 1887, when he joined the forces of the Confederation Life.

During the time he has been with the Company Mr. Rush has placed upon the books of the Company a considerable volume of business of the very best class, which business he has carefully looked after. He is an occasional and welcome visitor at Head Office, where his affable and kindly manner has made him very popular.

Mr. Rush is now in charge of the Peterborough District Branch as cashier and agent.

AT THE POLICE COURT

A Woman Sent Up for Six Months by Magistrate Dumble

A sad case came before Magistrate Dumble at the Police Court yesterday, when a woman, who was charged with drunkenness and loitering on the streets and in the public parks, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

Mr. R. F. McWilliams defended the woman, but the evidence was overwhelming. Several witnesses were called who testified as to having seen her in a drunken condition, and several hackmen narrated their experience in trying to secure her lodgings on Sherbrooke street, and also at the corner of Hunter and Aylmer streets, where she and her husband had been staying of late.

Police Magistrate Dumble, in delivering judgment, held that the charge had been proven and that both she and her husband were confirmed drunkards. She had appeared in court several times before, and the promises then made had been broken. Something, the Magistrate remarked, must be done in order to save her from total destruction and a sentence of six months in the Mercer Reformatory was imposed.

The unfortunate woman wept bitterly and bade an affectionate farewell to her husband. The children some time ago were taken to the shelter.

The following team will represent the Old Country Wanderers in their game at Norwood on Saturday.

Goal, Butler; backs, Whitlow, Smailes; half backs, Allen, Hawkins, Straing; forwards, Linney, Greatorix, Lyon, Stiles, Heads, reserves, Haines and Wallace.

The boys will leave on the 11.35 C. P. R. train. All players are requested to be at the station at 11.15.

There will be a practice match at the Driving Park to-night. All members are asked to be on hand at 6.30 sharp. There will be a special meeting of the club on Friday at 8 o'clock at the Crown Hotel. All members are requested to be present.

BASEBALL.

Lindsay Post—"A meeting was held last evening in the Simpson House parlors, of the officers and players of the Lindsay Baseball Club, at which the advisability of remaining in the Midland League was discussed. By the way the schedule runs, all the games are played on Saturday, which would not suit Lindsay, having no Saturday half-holiday, like other towns. Secretary Menzies has written to the clubs asking them to agree to Lindsay having their games played on Thursday or Friday. If Peterborough is willing, but he has not heard from the other towns. If these days are not arranged for, it is likely that Lindsay will drop out of the Midland League, and try and form a league with Uxbridge, Orillia and other clubs."

Sleeplessness

In akin to insanity. Many a woman sits alone this or else lies awake hour by hour, peopling the darkness with the children of her own imagination, each symptom in general of the distress of the delicate womanly organs, and a thousand fears of the vital and nervous forces. This condition cannot be overcome by sleeping powders. The combined condition must be raised before the nerves can be restored to their normal condition.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the womanly diseases which cause nervousness and sleeplessness. It is the best of tonics and invigorants, nourishing the nerves, encouraging the appetite and inducing refreshing sleep.

$500 Reward for Women Who Cannot be Cured.

Proprietors and makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States for any case of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus or Falling of Womb, which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

A lady who was sick for over eight years writes Albert E. Pulley, Esq., of Altamont, Grundy County, Tenn. "She had various diseases and was treated by two physicians and got no relief. At last I read about Dr. Pierce's medicines and we decided to try his 'Favorite Prescription.' I sent to the drug store and got one bottle and the first dose gave some relief. She had not used more than three bottles, before I could see a change for the better. I must say that five eight bottles and what I got from the sixth bottle she was entirely cured."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used with "Favorite Prescription" when a laxative is required.

"Unquestionably The Finest Piano Sold in Canada"

The Magnificent Record of The

HEINTZMAN & CO. PIANO

Made by ye Olde Firme of Heintzman & Co.

in every way warrants this statement. Its masterful supremacy is acknowledged from one end of the Dominion to the other. Its fame is world-wide in the fact that the world's greatest artists who visit Canada invariably make it their choice

ALBERTO JONAS
The Famous Spanish Pianist,

A pianist who reminds one of Rosenthal, "but with more tonal coloring," as a critic has said, must indeed rank high as an artist. Such is Jonas, who in his Canadian triumphs used exclusively a Heintzman & Co. Concert Grand Piano.

RICHARD BURMEISTER
Pupil of Liszt, and the Famed Pianist,

"Your new scale Grand Concert Piano possesses unique musical characteristics that must give it a distinctive place among the great pianos of the world. I shall insist on having a Heintzman & Co. new scale Grand Piano whenever I visit Canada."

ADELA VERNE
Greatest Woman Pianist in the World.

"I am delighted with the Heintzman & Co. Piano, which I am playing upon throughout Madam Albani's tour in Canada. I find the singing quality especially beautiful and the touch wonderfully light and crisp."

SIR ALEXANDER MACKENZIE
Mus. Doc. L.L.D., F.R.A.M., London, England.

In the great musical festival conducted by this king of musicians, and held in the leading cities of Canada during 1903, the Heintzman & Co. Concert Grand Piano was made the exclusive choice of this world-famed artist.

These great artists and many others have been impressed by its touch and tone through the exquisite adjustment of all its details and parts.

Some questions may yet remain unsettled, but the supremacy and superiority of this piano is one of the settled questions.

125,000 JAPANESE ARE ACROSS THE YALU

A JAPANESE TRANSPORT CONVEYING 600 MEN TO COREA SUNK BY RUSSIAN SUBMARINE BOAT AND ALL WERE LOST

Paris, April 29.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Journal reports that a Russian submarine boat has sunk a Japanese transport which was conveying 600 men to Corea, and that all the troops were lost.

Liaoyang, April 28.—The Japanese troops which crossed the Yalu north of Euitjiou (Tchangdjiouf) charged during the night of April 26 and 27 the Russian position near Lizavena, a village on the Manchurian bank of the Yalu. They were repulsed, but their loss is not known. Two gunboats steamed up the river to the support of the Japanese when a Russian field battery at Amisan opened upon them, resulting in a duel which lasted for twenty minutes. The Russian fire was too hot, and the gunboats were forced to turn and steam out of range. The Japanese were facilitated in crossing by their occupation of the Island of Samilanda.

London, April 29.—The Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Irkutsk, Siberia, under yesterday's date says that the Japanese have blown up a portion of the railway at Khailar, but that the resultant damage is insignificant.

A Russian Official Despatch says that after crossing the Yalu river on Tuesday night the Enemy attempted to carry by assault a Russian stronghold near the town of Lozavena, but were repulsed, with unknown loss--A fierce battle expected when the enemy get farther into Manchuria--Russians Still kept guessing by the yellow men.

The Russians are more daring on land than on sea. A Japanese army, estimated at one hundred thousand men, is across the Yalu River, yet if we are to believe the reports that come from Russian headquarters, the Cossacks recently sent out to make trouble on the Japanese line of communications in Corea have swung in right behind the Japanese army on the Yalu and occupied Anju, fifty miles south of the river and on the main road from Seoul to Wiju and Pekin. The Japanese are reported to be panic-stricken and to have hastily retired on the approach of the Cossacks. Were the Islanders less resolute and resourceful soldiers than they are this sudden appearance of the enemy's cavalry in the most unexpected place, as the German Uhlans appeared in France in 1870, would be an unpardonable sign of lack of care in guarding their line of communications. It must be remembered, however, that Japan has been steadily moving the supply base of her army northward, first from Chemulpo to Chinampo and later to Yongampho, which is on the Yalu estuary and far north of Anju. The Russian raiders may destroy considerable quantities of stores moving along the Pekin road, but they are not in sufficient strength to hold the country, and the main Japanese army can replenish its supply trains by sea. That Kouropatkin has mean to plans for a serious movement to occupy Corea in the rear of the Japanese is extremely doubtful. The Times military correspondent places his total strength for offensive warfare at 135,000, of whom not over 80,000 are under his immediate command.

The Japanese seem to be pushing forward. A Russian official despatch says that after crossing the river on Tuesday night they attempted to carry by assault a Russian position near the village of Lozavena, but were repulsed, with unknown loss. Japanese gunboats are operating on the river and two of them had a duel with a Russian field battery, in which the battery apparently had the best of it. The fact remains that by Russian official reports the Japanese now control the Yalu River, and are so firmly planted on the west bank that they are already assuming the offensive. The great engagement expected during the crossing is postponed, and it is now darkly hinted that there will be a terrible reckoning once the "innocent islanders" get a little farther into Manchuria.

BEET SUGAR BY-LAW DISCUSSED AT OPERA HOUSE

Messrs. W. H. Moore and J. W. Garvin Measure Swords on the Question of Guaranteeing the Beet Sugar Company's Bonds

If the attendance at Bradburn's Opera House last night to hear discussed the proposition to guarantee the Beet Sugar Company's bonds can be taken as a criterion of our ratepayers' interest in so important a question, then that interest must be at an exceedingly low ebb. There were under 200 citizens present and the lack of enthusiasm was marked. But two speakers occupied the platform, besides the chairman, although Mr. Dawson Kennedy gave a brief address in favor of the scheme from the floor of the house.

His Worship Mayor C. M. Roger, took the chair, and explained that the meeting was called by request of the Board of Trade, members of which he invited to take a seat on the platform. Mr. W. H. Moore and Mr. J. W. Garvin were the only two to accept this invitation. His Worship then continued that the council had very carefully considered the proposition, and finally adopted a by-law, which gives all the security possible under the circumstances, and it remains for the ratepayers to decide whether they consider that security sufficient or not. This is a matter worth being discussed on its merits for all it is worth.

MR. J. W. GARVIN.

Was the first speaker. He regretted that Mr. Gordon, president of the Wallaceburg Sugar Co. was not present. Something had interfered with his coming, but maybe his presence can be secured for next Tuesday night. Mr. Garvin then went on to give an exhaustive history of the proceedings originally instituted by Mr. T. E. Bradburn for the establishment of a big sugar factory in Peterborough, and continued up to date. Mr. Bradburn was only interested as a citizen, owning considerable property, and naturally having a view to the best interests of Peterborough. In discussing the unfortunate circumstances leading up to the present difficulties of the company, Mr. Garvin said he would not, under any circumstances, offer any of their bonds for sale until the success of the company was placed beyond question. The idea of asking the town to guarantee the company's bonds to the amount of $100,000 came to him, conceiving that as the government had adopted a policy of guaranteeing railway bonds, and Orillia had guaranteed the bonds of a linen factory to the amount of $50,000, such a principle would be a safe one for Peterborough to adopt in this case. If the company gives property valued at $3360,00 as security for the guaranteeing of $100,000, in bonds, surely that should be a safe proposition. Mr. Garvin does not ask a cash bonus, but simply a guaranteeing of $100,000 for three years, and he'll put in another $100,000 in cash. We could not, Mr. Garvin said, get the plant of the Dresden factory for less than $400,000 in bonds and $100,00 cash. We could not buy the bonds of the Wiarton factory for less than $150,000 gold cash, and in order to make that a first class plant it would require an expenditure of $35,000. This shows that the demand for sugar factories to-day is so great that you cannot get a plant similar to that we propose to bring from Holland for less than $300,000. It is because we have an exceptional bargain on this Holland plant that Mr. Gordon was induced to come down here and make his proposition to the town.

The speaker then went on to prove that it is quite possible to secure a sufficient acreage to produce enough beets for the factory, and at a substantial profit to the farmer. If a farmer grows 12 tons to the acre, that will bring him $96 an acre. Deduct $6 for drawing in and this will leave $90 an acre. The cost of cultivating the beets could not possibly cost more than $30, which would leave a net profit of $60. As to getting labor there would be no difficulty in that respect, in support of which Mr. Garvin read a letter from the International Labor Association, saying that they can send the farmers any number of immigrants. This statement was received with hisses, but the speaker explained that these immigrants were undoubtedly from Holland and other European states, accustomed to cultivating sugar beets. In talking of the expenses connected with running the proposed factory, he asserted that it would cost over $150,000 to run the institution. It takes 9,000 tons of lime and 7,500 tons of coal to operate a half-million dollar plant of this kind four months in the year, to say nothing of wages and incidental expenditure. Referring to street talk of salaries already paid, Mr. Garvin said the company had only paid $205 in solicitor's fees, $25 a month for a bookkeeper and $25 a month for an office assistant. His brother had merely received three months' salary in fourteen months, while he himself had not drawn a cent for six months.

Mr. J. L. Hughes here asked how it is that as the farmers are to be so much benefitted by the sugar factory they are not asked to guarantee the company's bonds.

Mr. Garvin replied that they had to act quickly in order to secure the government's bounty of $25,000 a year for three years. There was no time to canvas a whole community of farmers, who will not receive as much benefit from the factory as Peterborough. But the farmers are already helping by selling the beets one dollar cheaper than their original price for two years. Mr. Garvin then concluded by pointing out that Michigan factories were paying 25 30, 40 and even 60 per cent. dividends. While one company had paid for itself out of three years dividends.

MR. W. H. MOORE.

assured Mr. Garvin and his company that he is truly sorry that they are in so bad a condition financially as admitted by Mr. Garvin, who has told us plainly that they are on their last legs and entirely at our mercy. As the town are paying the expenses of the by-law the town should have made an enquiry into the company's affairs, made a careful audit, and ascertained its position financially. He thought the council did wisely in assisting the Canadian General Electric Company and the Cereal Company, both of which institutions have and are proving to be of direct benefit to Peterborough. But surely no one can argue successfully that the town would be wise in aiding any company, unless it is financially strong, and is not in that distressing condition and state of despondency which the Peterborough Sugar Company find themselves in to-day. These are the lines which the town has followed in the past, and should pursue in the future. Taking up the progress the sugar company has made Mr. Moore said there is to-day. Nothing on which to place a lien for material or wages owing; they owe $9,500 yet on the property; of which they have no deed of conveyance; and according to their own statement, they have spent $15,000 on somebody else's land. It is said by Mr. Garvin that we shall have $35,000 against our endorsement of the company's bonds; but the company is in debt to-day, away down deep. No one can tell how much became no statement has been given of what is now owing; for all we know our money may go toward liquidating the debts this company owes to farmers and others. It will cost $170,000 to purchase, dismantle and transport that Holland machinery, and another $20,000 to install it in the Peterborough factory. This makes $190,000 and the only money forthcoming is Mr. Gordon's $100,000, which will be needed to complete the building already begun. Now, continued Mr. Moore, the town's guarantee will be for only $100,000, which, leaving Mr. Gordon's $100,000 for the building, will be the only funds in sight, even providing bonds to that amount are sold to pay for the Holland plant, to cost $190,000 for purchase, dismantling and installing here. Now, I would like to know where that remaining $90,000 is to come from.

Mr. Moore here expressed doubt of the company being able to sell its unguaranteed bonds, and said that a man offered his stock at 5 cents on the dollar and could get no one to take the bargain. He was satisfied that they could neither sell their bonds or get farmers to grow beets. But there, he continued, Mr. Garvin has not the least expectation of being able to operate the factory this year, as evidenced by the wording of his advertisement for beets, which reads as follows:

"Should the factory not be completed in time to slice the beets, the Wallaceburg factory will take them at $4.50 a ton."—Now here's the thing which caught my eye, continued Mr. Moore with humor,—"And pay the farmer direct from Wallaceburg." That certainly will be an improvement on last year.

Mr. Moore then went on to show that the farmers will not touch sugar beets. For one thing they are exceedingly conservative, and consequently slow to change; and it costs more to cultivate sugar beets than it does maggies, turnips, carrots and other roots.

In conclusion Mr. Moore expressed his belief that the town cannot afford to carry the beet sugar by-law. Our debt, he said, is $558,400.07, to which must be added $82,219.17 on local improvements debentures, one-eighth of the whole assessable property. Then it is necessary to have a new Collegiate Institute, which is bound to come, and this means an increased debt of $50,000. A main outfall sewer for Ashburnham must also be provided for at a cost of $15,000; the break in the waterworks dam will cost $9,000, and the dam will then, according to an expert, only last five years, when a new one will have to be constructed, a portion of the water main is to be duplicated at a cost of $15,000, and the town can't say nay; a site for a new drill hall is on the programme, at a cost of from $10,000 to $15,000; and a new fire hall and improvement apparatus must be furnished to keep down our fire rates to a satisfactory figure, which means another $15,000. Altogether our debt will soon reach $800,000; a pretty big figure and greater than that of Toronto, compared with its assessment. Mr. Moore did not think the town could afford in the face of this debt, to guarantee the bonds of the Sugar Company to the tune of $100,000. If things go on like this, he said, we shall soon have to get a guarantee on the back of our bonds, the same as Mr. Garvin wants the town to do for the sugar company. He thought Mr. Garvin had made a miscalculation, and came to the meeting to say, with his hat in his hand, "for God's sake have mercy on a company which has made a miscalculation."

MR. DAWSON KENNEDY

made a brief speech in eulogy of sugar beets, which industry he thinks is destined to be a leading one in this part of the country. The only thing he sees against it in that the farmers have not yet been educated up to the idea of growing sugar beets. An industry which fails at first often turns out to be a very successful one at last. The sugar beet industry of Germany is paying $32,000,000 a year in taxes to the state. For the last thirteen years I have been, he said, intensely interested in the establishment of a beet sugar industry here. The grain growing industry has gone from us it appears that our land is just adapted to the growing of beets, and it will be a calamity if we allow this opportunity to pass.

THE CATTLE TRADE AND ANNEXATION

Liverpool Man Fears the Embargo Men drive Canada Into Uncle Sam's Arms

London, April 28.—Among those attending the Universal Congress of Lawyers in St. Louis in September will be Sir Robert Finlay and Edward Manson, the latter of whom has written much on colonial law. Both will visit Canada before returning to England.

W. P. Poland has written the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce, emphasizing the importance which the Animal and Meat Trade Section attached to pressing upon the Board of Agriculture by all possible means for the removal of the restrictions against the importation of Canadian cattle for store purposes. The section looked upon the action of the Government as one of the possible means by which their Canadian brethren might be thrown into the arms of the United States, where no such restriction was imposed.

At the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce banquet on May 2 to the Canadian visitors Lord Strathcona will be unable to preside, and Sir Hibbert Tupper will be chairman.

BRITAIN LOSING AUSTRALIAN TRADE

Agent-General for New South Wales Says So, and Then Suggests Remedy

London, April 28—Hon. H. Copeland, Agent General for New South Wales, addressing the Australian Chamber of Commerce in London, gave a disquieting picture of Australian trade slipping away from the motherland and going to foreign countries. Australian trade with the United Kingdom in 1891 amounted to £51,952,000, and it has receded by one and a half millions in 1901. In the same period trade with Germany had risen from £2,256,000 to £5,262,000, while the United States from £5,512,000 to £9,-238,000. Trade has increased the greatest where the highest tariffs existed. He thought the loose screw was due to the Imperial Government leaving the commercial ties of Australia themselves. The remedy suggested was a consular staff in each large city, and the establishment at Sydney and Melbourne of an Imperial Government link in the shape of a small branch of the Board of Trade.

ABOUT VETERAN'S LANDS

Some Have Received Theirs—Others Have Not Been So Fortunate

Those veterans of 1866 who gave their papers to the Veterans' Locating and Colonizing Company are happy. They have got their lands located and are receiving their papers. Each receives a beautiful certificate, setting forth the military service which he did, and which will make a valuable heirloom. Some veterans, we understand, who left their locating to this concern know exactly where their lands are, and know it to be as good as any land in this rich Province. Some are close to the new Temiscaming Railway and others close to the route of the Grand Trunk Pacific.

On the other hand, complaints are made that the veterans who gave their papers over to the Army and Navy Veterans' Association officers last summer, in the belief that that body would send out an agent to locate lands, are sadly disappointed. Nothing has been done for them yet. A locating agent was appointed almost a year ago, but he has never been sent. Two months ago it was predicted that it would be May before the ground would be fit to be laid out, and May is at hand, and still nothing has been done. Those who handed over their certificates are very uneasy. They hope that the time for taking up the land will be extended. Some of them even go so far as to say that there will be litigation.

THE BOBCAYGEON RAILWAY

The Work of Track Laying is Now About to Commence

Lindsay Post—Few of our townspeople have any real conception of the beauties of that section of the country traversed by the new road. Starting in south from the town through the township of Ops, the ground is a perfect level plane. The river is bugged at different points on the way. Some twelve miles up, in the vicinity of Hall's landing will be found one of the coolest picnic grounds in the country, right on the shore of Lake Scugog. The facilities for boating and fishing will be unrivalled. Boats can be obtained along the shore at a small rental by the day or hour. There is no question but the place mentioned is destined to become one of Lindsay's pleasant resorts in summer owing to its proximity to the town and ease of access by the new railway.

The first consignment of steel rails reached Burketon on Saturday and more are to follow daily. The track laying will be commenced at once.

Engineer Gourley and assistant, Mr. Lorne Meagher, of town, have been employed during the past two weeks in finishing up levels, staking out culverts, and locating the site for the Nestleton station.

The grading from Burketon to Lindsay is now completed excepting a few day's work at Veal's Cut, which is now being rushed with all possible despatch.

As soon as track laying starts ties will be brought in car lots from outside points and strewn along as required.

The material is already on the ground for the Nestleton station and building operations will start this week.

Fought in the Back Yard

"I'm trying to get my weight," said a young man, who is a prominent street walker. "I'm booked for a fight to-night," and he is now booked to appear in the police court. The pugilist had a few "John Collins" and was evidently looking for trouble. He however, "weighed in" on the market, but the scales were minus the weights. The bout commenced in a barber shop, but the combatants were soon ejected and routed two was pulled off in the bar of a nearby hotel, but the proprietor threw the "raw variety" to the back yard where the battle continued and was fought to a finish. Police Magistrate Dumble will likely give the decision in accordance with the ruling of Chief Rossel.

Worship Down-ed

London, April 27.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Standard says that a battleship under construction on the Neva is reported to have been seriously damaged. No details are given.

JAPANESE PLANS WILL GO ALL TO PIECES

Their Plan of Campaign Will Utterly Fail Says the Russian General--The Czar's Forces are Soon to Strike

New Chwang, April 29.—If official Russian advices from Mukden can be relied on, Gen. Kuropatkin's deployment is so far advanced that it covers the very lines the Japanese purpose to occupy. Should the Japanese succeed in driving the Russians north the Muscovite line of defense will extend from New Chwang to Liao Yang and from Liao Yang to the Yalu river. The Russians say the strategic situation is thoroughly satisfactory and the Czar's generals profess confidence that the Japanese can make no headway by frontal attacks, while the Russians can cope with the widest flanking operations the Mikado's men are likely to undertake.

When these operations begin, say the Muscovites, Kuropatkin's counter-strokes will bring down the Japanese scheme of defence like a house of cards. The continued delay on the part of the enemy is a great surprise to the Russians. They do not appear to think that the Port Arthur fleet stands in the way and they realize that the flat country around New Chwang exposes the place to effective bombardment by ships lying beyond the reach of field artillery.

THE SITUATION IN POLAND.

Warsaw, April 29.—Arrests of anti-Russian Polish agitators in all parts of European Russia, indicate the extent of the revolutionary movement. The fate of the prisoners is uncertain, but the leaders of the social democracy informs a press correspondent that stories of wholesale hangings are false. The working classes and the peasantry are in active alliance. The Social Democracy is the strongest force in politics in Russian Poland, and the Government finds it difficult to subdue the combination of intellectual and industrial elements in the disaffected province.

RUSSIAN FAITH IN A DREAM.

St. Petersburg, April 29.—M. Bouroff, who has been awarded $12,500 for improvements in submarine boats in an interview, says;

"There is less danger in navigating a submarine boat than a torpedo boat, and during a battle the former is safer than any other vessels."

Admiral Verkhovsky has showed the Empress A miraculous image of the Virgin, which the Russians fervently hope is going to turn the tide of battle at Port Arthur. The Admiral told the Empress the story of the Virgin as she appeared in a the image, which accurately depicts vision to a sailor, a veteran of the siege of Sebastopol. Two months before the outbreak of the present war the Virgin came to the sailor in a dream and said;

"Many woes are going to befall Port Arthur until my image is sent there. Then Port Arthur will be victorious."

The sailor went on a pilgrimage to the great monastery of Kieff and told his dream to the 10,000 pilgrims there. Each of them gave fifty kopecks (2 1-2 cents) to have the dream denoted, but the artists who made image refused to receive payment. The ikon was eventually sent to Admiral Verkhovsky as senior admiral. It represents the Virgin bearing an image of Christ, archangels on either side and God the Father above, saying;

"There can be but one flock and one shepherd."

THE CONFERENCE CLOSED

Pastors' and Deacons' Business Meeting at Port Hope

The Pastors' and Deacons' Conference of the Peterborough Association held at Port Hope on Tuesday and Wednesday, has concluded its labors. The following was the programme:

Rev. Mr. Bastow, of the Murray Street Church, delivered a thoughtful devotional exposition on Tuesday afternoon. The evening service was conducted by Rev. A. H. Brace, of the Park Street Church, at which able addresses were delivered by Rev. Mr. Bastow, Rev. Mr. Kelly, Bailliebord, and Mr. George Lee, town.

On Wednesday afternoon Mr. Geo. Lee read a carefully prepared paper on "The Ministry of the Deacon," followed by a thoughtful paper by Rev. A. H. Brace, on "Pastoral Visitation, its Purpose and Method."

The conference was one of the most interesting ever held in this district. The Peterborough delegates returned home yesterday morning.

THE LATE LOUIS GLOVER

Death of a Former Resident of Ashburnham Village

There passed away on Wednesday at his home in Allendale, Otonabee, Mr. Louis Glover, brother of Mr. Peter Glover, of Ashburnham. The deceased was 85 years of age, and had been a sufferer from rheumatism for 15 years.

Mr. Glover was highly esteemed and widely known. Born in Edinburgh, Scotland, he came to Canada 70 years ago, and took up his residence in Peterborough and for some years operated a flour mill in Ashburnham. Subsequently he was associated with the late Mr. Henry Deane in the same business, and afterwards bought over a milling concern in Allendale. The late Louis Glover was twice married, the children surviving by his first marriage being Mrs. L. Dobbin of town; Mrs. Preyth, of Loretto, Manitoba; Mrs. Thompson, at home, and Messrs. Louis and William, of Toronto, and by his second wife, Messrs. Charles, Alexander and George, in the States, and Robert, of Hastings.

The date of the funeral has not yet been announced.

MR. ALF. COX HONORED

Son of Mr. Aaron Cox, of Town, Banqueted in Toronto

The Toronto Star contains the following report of a presentation made to Mr. Alfred Cox, son of Mr. Aaron Cox, town, by the employes of the Central Canada Loan and Savings Company:

"The staff of the Central Canada Loan and Savings Company tendered Mr. Harry Gundy, the Secretary of the Securities Department, and Mr. Alfred Cox, one of their fellow employes, a sumptuous dinner at McConkey's last evening, the Managing Director, Mr. E. R. Wood, presiding in his able way. The occasion was the approaching marriage of Mr. Gundy, and the departure of Mr. Cox to take a position on a ranch in the North-West, with the ultimate end in view of settling on one of his own. The high esteem in which each of these young men is held by their colleagues was evidenced by the happy tenor of the festive board, and by the handsome presents which each received. Mr. Gundy was the recipient of a handsome cabinet of silver, containing 103 pieces, and a leather suit case, with toilet set of silver and ebony, while several members of the staff made him individual presents of useful articles for the state in which he will presently find himself. Mr. Cox who also made happy by a purse of gold and a 32 revolver, with which he hopes to do good service on the western prairies. The loss of Mr. Cox will be keenly felt by his friends both in Toronto and his home in Peterborough, for he is indeed one of the young men which the east can ill spare and in taking up his abode there the west will gain an excellent specimen of Canadian manhood."

Lax Opposition

London, April 28.—Lax opposition enabled the government to escape defeat in the House of Commons Monday night. The breakdown of a private bill debate brought on the income tax resolution before the government majority was secure. Nineteen Liberals and three Irish, ignorant of the state of affairs, voted with the government, and without their support the government would have been in a minority of six. The Liberals are disgusted over the lost chance.

Detroit Specialist Discovers Something Entirely New for the Cure of Men's Diseases in Their Own Homes.

You Pay Only if Cured

He Accepts No Money Unless He Cures Your Method and Full Particulars Sent Free —Write For It This Very Day

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and hospitals, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes; so that there may no doubt in the mind of any man that he is

DR. S. GOLDBERG,
The Possessor of 14 Diplomas and Certificates Who Wants No Money That He Does Not Earn.

both the method and the ability to do as he says, Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic trouble, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation of parts, impotency, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the conditions itself, but like wise all the complications, such as rheumatism bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interest of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as many booklets on the subject, including the one that contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply

Dr. S. Goldberg, 288 Woodward Ave., Room Detroit, Mich., and it will all immediately be sent you free.

This is something entirely new and well worth knowing more about. Write at once.

"ORGANIZATION" AND "MACHINES"

When he has its support and favor the candidate speaks of it most respectfully as "the party organization." When he ceases to enjoy its support he at once begins to designate it as "the machine"—qualifying the epithet with such reprobative adjectives as he finds handy. Yet he invariably proceeds to erect an "organization" of his own, which his opponents in their turn always term his "machine." It is a mere difference in nomenclature. The thing itself is the same.

The thing itself moreover, is a necessity of politics. In other words, the "machine" is politics systemized. If the "machine" be made the instrument for furthering bad policies or for advancing the candidacy of unworthy men it is a bad "machine." If it be used to advance the public and to elect good officers it is a good "machine." But, good or bad, it is a necessity of politics and it will last as long as politics lasts.

This is only another way of saying that organization is necessary to the success of any movement involving numbers of men. To assert that a political party could be successful without a party "machine" would be as absurd as to declare that an army could accomplish anything without organization, discipline and leadership.

RUSSIA PUBLISHED FOR OVER FAITHFUL

Under the date of April 25, 1900, the Peking correspondent of the London Times reported a series of interviews which he had had with students of Oriental politics on Russo-Japanese rivalry. The prospects of war were discussed by all the persons approached, and in the light of recent events the opinions of a Russian who was consulted have a peculiar interest and significance.

This man, who had "watched from near by the movements of Japan for many years past," evinced a great contempt for the Japanese. He expressed himself as follows with regard to their naval program;

Ships are being built more quickly than crews can be trained to man them, and this difficulty will increase the more quickly the ships now building are delivered over by their builders—that is to say that while Russia is weakest the difficulties of Japan in this respect are greatest. Japanese naval officers are insufficiently trained. Ships have been quadrupled in number in four years, and inexperienced men of an immense self-esteem are post captains at 34.

It is this navy of raw recruits and pompous young officers which has conducted one of the most remarkable campaigns in the history of sea fighting, a campaign that upon a fair consideration of the relative strength of the combatants greatly diminishes the glories of our own recent war. But there is more to come from the false prophet, who added;

Japan's only hope is to act now, though no success which she may gain now would permanently affect the irresistible advance of Russia. By and by, when our Siberian Railway is finished, she can do nothing. We can pour our men into Manchuria by thousands. Just now she has command of the sea out here. Within one year Vladivostok and Port Arthur will be joined by rail. This autumn you can go from Port Arthur to Harbin by rail, and Harbin is on the Sungari, a river navigable by steamers from the Amur. Before the end of 1902—perhaps earlier—the railway will be completed right through from St. Petersburg to Port Arthur. Then we need fear nothing.

What Russia may do to retrieve her fortunes no one can say, but if the views of this Russian subject were common to his countrymen, as seems probable, the developments up to this time give striking proof of the danger of despising one's enemies. What he considered the only period that admitted of doubt has been passed when hostilities began. He hit nothing right except when he intimated that Russia would not precipitate the conflict. But though it was her design to gain everything without war she calculated evidently on an overwhelming strength which was sadly wanting when the trial came.

Your Children Are Run Down

They Are Liable to Get Fever or Pneumonia. Keep Your Little Ones Strong and Healthy with Ferrozone

Parents can't afford to neglect the health of their children, for if disease fastens itself on the child of tender years it may be the beginning of a long train of serious sickness. Ferrozone is a remedy that mothers can rely on, and every child will be benefitted by using it. Mrs. Henrietta Laflame of Quebec, writes; "Last year my daughter, aged sixteen, was run down and looked very poorly She was worrying about her exams, and she didn't feel strong enough to study very hard. I got some Ferrozone and it made a wonderful change in active. Ferrozone gave her strength and toned her up splendidly. I am very grateful to Ferrozone and know that children would be much stronger if treated with Ferrozone."

CHILDREN GROW STRONG ON FERROZONE

Mrs. James E. Devine of Frankford, says Ferrozone has no equal for strengthening children, and writes; "When my little daughter was weak and miserable I gave her one Ferrozone tablet at meals. She improved at once, and before taking Ferrozone a week gained in strength, and enjoyed a splendid appetite. I never used any tonic that gave such quick and permanent results as Ferrozone."

Every child can be made stronger by Ferrozone which acts on the blood and strengthens the entire system. Ferrozone is the sort of tonic that builds up strong healthy frames; it gives a child energy and spirit, and drives away weakness. Every mother should give her children Ferrozone, and give up all obnoxious treatments like bitters and cod liver oil, which are hard on a child's stomach. Just one Ferrozone tablet at meals, easy and pleasant to take. Results are sure when you use Ferrozone. Refuse any substitute and insist on having Ferrozone which alone can build up and cure quickly. Price 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50, at all druggists or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

The Dress of Hindoo Women.

There has been no change in Indian women's dress for 4,000 years. All wear the sari, a single piece of stuff a yard and a quarter wide, ten, twenty, thirty yards long. It is arranged on the body, and forms skirt, garment, veil, first plaited with the hand in accordion folds in front, wound round and round, and the richest end, if embroidered or woven with gold, finally brought over the head. It may be of simple cotton cloth; of silk, plain in design, woven with golden threads; solid with embroidery, strung with pearls, or of kincob, the royal cloth of gold. Some cost thousands of rupees. No pin, hook, button or string, the garment is formed on the architecture of the body, and takes its expression and nobility from its perfect harmony with the lines of the human form. And Indian women, whether of high or low class, have jewels everywhere; have sleeping gems and day gems, as we have day and night shirts.—Everybody's.

The Oak.

England won her supremacy on the seas with her ships of British oak, a wood that is renowned for strength and durability. When the Spanish armada set sail for England its commander had express orders from the king of Spain to burn or otherwise destroy every oak in the forest of Dean, then the great source of shipbuilding supplies. But, as blunt old Drake prophesied, Philip's beard was singed instead. Admiral Nelson declared that without "heart of oak" the British navy and empire would soon come to an end.

The oak is beautiful at all seasons. From the time it opens its delicate green buds, close pressed in their resinous overcoat, and emerging flame tipped with bronze or crimson, until they come again an acorn bearing spray is most artistic, and the ruddy hue of the tree in autumn combines well in nature's color scheme.

One Sided Sport.

A London paper tells a story of a certain shortsighted sportsman. He was asked one morning by a fellow sojourner in a small hotel on the shores of Loch Carron what sport he had had. "Just seen a seal," he said. "Shot at it three times and missed it each time." At dinner, an hour later, he sat next to a man with a bandage round his head. "Accident?" he inquired. "Accident!" was the indignant response. "Attempted murder, you mean. I was having a bath about an hour ago when some lunatic fired at me three times from the shore and shot part of my ear off." "Wonder who it could have been!" murmured the sportsman, and then he changed the conversation.

A Story of Storey.

An English paper tells a little anecdote of the distinguished painter Storey in his capacity of teacher of perspective at the Royal academy: On one occasion Mr. Storey accepted an invitation to dine with the wealthy—and Philistine—father of one of his pupils. Over the undeniable port the by no means doting parent inquired how his son was getting on, and, although the kindliest of men, Mr. Storey could not bring himself to say much that was favorable. "Humph!" grunted the man of money. "Well, I hope he will turn out an artist, for I am quite sure he's not fit to be anything else."

Presents in Japan.

The foreigner should beware of making presents to any Japanese girl unless he is bent upon matrimony. To present her with any sort of a gift, even though it be only a posy, will be regarded as a proposal of marriage, and to accept the present, though not a word of love or matrimony be passed, is a sign that she accepts you. Gallant Americans have got into serious trouble and found it necessary to leave the country at night to escape a binding engagement which they thoughtlessly incurred by giving to a maiden some trifle.

To Make a Soldiers Powder.

To make a soldiers powder mix together two drams of rochelle salts and two scruples of bicarbonate of soda; put these into a blue paper and put thirty-five grains of tartaric acid into a white paper. To use put each into different glasses and quarter fill with water, then pour both together and drink at once while in a state of effervescence.

To Make Red Ink.

Red ink is easily made by amateurs who follow this recipe: Get a one ounce bottle and see that it is perfectly clean and dry. Place in it one teaspoonful of aqua ammonia, gum arabic the size of two peas, and add six grains of carmine. Fill up the bottle with clear soft water, and after standing a little while it will be fit for use.

An Obstinate Family.

Cholmondley—I thought you intended to marry Miss Wealthington? Delmondley—I thought so, too; but her family objected. Cholmondley—What did Miss Wealthington say? Delmondley—Oh, she's one of the family, you know.

Things He Knew.

His Wife—Why don't you go to the doctor and find out just what you ought to eat and what you ought to avoid? Dyspeptic—Oh, I know all that now! I ought to eat everything I don't like and avoid everything I do.

Just the Reverse.

Stranger (to highlander in full uniform)—Sandy, are you cold with the kilt? Sandy—Na, man, but I'm nigh kilt wi' the cauld.

Mind is the beginning of civilization, but the ends and fruitage thereof are of the heart.

INGENIOUS BURGLAR.

HOW HE MADE HIS ESCAPE FROM A FRENCH JAIL.

Made Impression of Lock with Bread Crumbs, Then Made Mold and Cast Key Out of a Tin Cup and Calmly Walked Out.

Extraordinary ingenuity was shown by a burglar named Vandenwegaete, who recently escaped from the underground condemned cell in Lille jail, in the north of France, where he had been confined on account of his notorious cunning and his open boast that he would find a way out before long.

The cell is furnished with a single massive door opening on to a corridor, at the end of which is another door provided with a "safety lock." Recently the prisoner was locked up for the night. On the next morning his cell was empty. The bird had flown and two false keys made of tin found outside the door of the corridor told their own tale.

A search in the cell has enabled the prison officials to piece together the history of this daring deed. With part of the bread supplied to him Vandenwegaete took the impression of the lock of his cell. With some more bread he made a mold, in which he cast a key out of a tin cup, the metal being melted on his stove.

The same night he opened his door took a bread-crumb impression of the corridor lock, made another key, and soon found himself outside the corridor. From a cupboard he abstracted a sheet and a broom handle, which he tied together, and made his way into the prison yard, which is surrounded by a wall topped with broken glass.

Fixing the broom handle between two bottle ends he threw the knotted sheet over the wall and slid down to the street. His next move was to break into a house and exchange his prison costume for ordinary attire. For the present, says the Matin, all trace of this resourceful criminal has been lost.

CUT PRICE OF NEWSPAPERS.

London Daily Chronicle and Daily News Come Down to One Cent. Mond's Sheet a Failure.

With a change of editorship the London Daily Chronicle has definitely decided shortly to make a marked change in its appearance and price. It will still be kept the same size, from ten to 12 pages daily, but the price will be reduced from a penny (two cents) to a halfpenny (one cent). Following the example of the other halfpenny papers the magazine page will be introduced and also a serial story. It is expected the improvements will involve a capital of about a quarter of a million dollars.

Following the Daily Chronicle's announcement of a reduction in price, the Daily News will steal a march on its rival, for the liberal support by coming out as a halfpenny paper.

W. T. Stead's experiment, the Daily Paper, has proved a costly failure, and came to an untimely end. The thirty-second number was the last. Mr. Stead has had to admit his failure. Fate was against him, and he was unable to stand the strain. Two days after the paper started he had personally to give up, as the excitement was too great for him, and he was prostrated by a severe nervous collapse. The doctors feared he would lose his memory entirely and ordered him to take a complete rest, so he started to South Africa.

BATTLE WITH FIERCE WOLVES

Turtle River Man Has Awful Experience While Crossing Arm of Lake Manitoba.

Alexander Morrissey, of Turtle river, near Dauphin, B. C., had a thrilling experience with a pack of wolves while crossing an arm of Lake Manitoba. When a considerable distance from shore he was surrounded and attacked by 12 or 15 ferocious animals, and he says he possesses no language capable of describing the battle.

Morrissey had with him two hounds and an ax, and had it not been for these, he says, there is no doubt at all he would have been torn to pieces by the wolves. The hounds fought hard, and one of them was killed in the encounter. Morrissey claims to have done great execution with the ax, and more than one wolf bit the ice, while others were badly wounded.

The track on the snow from where the attack commenced to the shore is described by Morrissey as a trail of blood. When the exhausted man reached land he sought the protection of a friendly tree, and remained there until the wolves departed.

Progress of the Japs.

It is sometimes said of the Japanese that they are imitative, but not inventive. It is a fact, however, says the Chicago Chronicle, that they have taken out patents in every patent office in the world, and that they invented and manufactured the rifle now in use in their army. Senator Beveridge says they have made greater progress in medicine in the last ten years than any other people on the globe and that their quarantine system is the best in the world.

Suggestion for a New Game.

Walking on all fours is said to be a cure for appendicitis. Why not have parties, suggests the Chicago Record-Herald, where the guests may cure appendicitis in this way and at the same time compete for prizes, the one who can go it on all fours longest and most gracefully taking the honors?

High Class Investment

THE OREGON MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY

Offer to Canadian investors a limited amount of stock of the above company The property owned by the Company consists at the present time of about 500 acres, which are located in the Tarryall District and Park County, Colorado. This whole district has been known for years on account of its rich places ground, and is now prominently before the public owing to the number of very good properties which have been opened up recently producing, principally, gold, and lately some that are producing Platinum. On the Oregon property there are a number of well known veins of low grade ore that will yield a profit by being treated on the ground of the company. The company have recently opened up a fine vein in the Hawkeye group and this vein shows not only good values but an immense amount of ore which alone would make the property very valuable. Assays from ore taken from various parts of this property range from a few dollars to $373 per ton in gold. We have very little silver, lead or copper in the district. The company have a shaft 240 feet deep, with a good shaft house thoroughly well equipped with all modern machinery to develop same. They are now driving a tunnel which is in about 700 feet and which will cut the Hawkeye vein about 300 feet deeper than where it is opened at present. There is enough ore exposed on the property of this company to keep them busy for a number of years and the reason for selling stock at the present time is to secure funds to build a mill. The company will probably join with the Alamades Company in building this mill. There is water enough to furnish water power and over 100 acres of fine spruce and pine timber. The affairs of the company have always been managed in a business-like economical manner and there are no officers' salaries. The monies received from the sale of stock go direct into the property.

I can heartily recommend this stock as safe, as well as an unusually good investment, because of the immense amount of ore which the company have already opened up. It is not a mere prospect, but the property has been developed by expense of a considerable amount of money and time.

The company is splendidly officered by men of integrity and high standing. The company has not pushed the sale of stock the last year owing to a delay in getting title to the ground from the Government, but now that has been satisfactorily adjusted and work will be pushed to a finish.

The number of exceedingly rich strikes which have been made during the last few weeks in the various camps in the State of Colorado is the best evidence of the prosperity of the mining business. Almost every camp in the state has opened up rich bodies of ore, and Park County is well in the lead in that line.

There are only $25,000 of stock for sale, at $1.00 per share. The company is capitalized at $200,000, and the advantage to the investor of selling the stock at par, is that every share is fully paid up and non-assessable.

BY MRS. M. J. HOLMES

Author of "For a Woman's Sake," "Love's Triumph," "Purified by Suffering," "A Grass Widow," "Woman Against Woman," Etc.

"Trying to catch me, are you?" thought Maggie. "I'd laugh to see you do it," and entering at once into the spirit of the race, she rode on for a time with headlong speed. Then, by way of tantalizing her pursuer, she paused for a moment until he had almost reached her, when, at a peculiar whistle, Gritty sprang forward, while Maggie's mocking laugh was borne back to the discomfited young man, whose interest in the daring girl increased each moment. It was a long, long chase she led him, over hills, across the plains, and through the grassy valley, until she stopped at last within a hundred yards of the deep, narrow gorge, through which the millstream ran.

"I have you now," thought the stranger, who knew by the dull, roaring sound of the water that a chasm lay between him and the opposite bank.

But Maggie had not yet half displayed her daring feats of horsemanship, and when he came so near that his waving brown locks and handsome dark eyes were plainly discernible she said to herself: "He rides tolerably well. I'll see how good he is at a leap," and, setting herself more firmly in the saddle, she patted Gritty upon the neck. The well-trained animal understood the signal, and rearing high in the air was fast nearing the bank, when the young man, suspecting her design, shrieked out: "Stop, lady, stop! It's madness to attempt it!"

"Follow me if you can!" was Maggie's defiant answer, and the next moment she hung in midair over the dark abyss.

Involuntarily the young man closed his eyes, while his ear listened anxiously for the cry which would come next. But Maggie knew full well what she was doing. She had leaped that narrow gorge often, and now, when the stranger's eyes unclosed, she stood upon the opposite bank, caressing the noble animal which had borne her safely there.

"It shall never be said that Henry Warner was beaten by a schoolgirl," muttered the stranger. "If she can clear that, I can, bad rider as I am!" and burying his spurs deep in the sides of his horse, he pressed on, while Maggie held her breath in fear, for she knew that without practice no one could do what she had done.

There was a partially downward plunge—a fierce struggle on the shelving bank where the animal had struck a few feet from the top—then the steed stood panting on terra firma, while a piercing shriek broke the deep silence of the wood, and Maggie's cheeks blanched to a marble hue. The rider, either from dizziness or fear, had fallen at the moment the horse first struck the bank, and from the ravine below there came no sound to tell if yet he lived.

"He's dead—he's dead!" cried Maggie. "'Twas my foolishness which killed him," and springing from Gritty's back she gathered up her long riding skirt and glided swiftly down the bank until she came to a wide projecting rock, where the stranger lay, motionless and still, his white face upturned to the sunlight, which came stealing down through the overhanging boughs. In an instant she was at his side, and his head was resting on her lap, while her trembling fingers parted back from his pale brow the damp mass of curling hair.

"The fall alone would not kill him," she said, as her eye measured the distance, and then she looked anxiously round for water with which to bathe his face.

But water there was none, save in the stream below, whose murmuring flow fell mockingly on her ears, for it seemed to say she could not reach it. But Maggie Miller was equal to any emergency, and venturing out to the very edge of the rock she poised herself on one foot and looked down the dizzy height, to see if it were possible to descend.

"I can try at least," she said, and glancing at the pale face of the stranger, unhesitatingly resolved to attempt it.

The descent was less difficult than she had anticipated, and in an incredibly short space of time she was dipping her tasteful velvet cap in the brook, whose sparkling foam had never before been disturbed by the touch of a hand as soft and fair as hers. To ascend was not so easy a matter, but, chamois-like, Maggie's feet trod safely the dangerous path, and she soon knelt by the unconscious man, bathing his forehead in the clear, cold water, until he showed signs of returning life. His lips moved slowly at last, as if he would speak, and Maggie, bending low to catch the faintest sound, heard him utter the name of "Rose." In Maggie's bosom there was no feeling for the stranger, save that of pity, and yet that one word, "Rose," thrilled her with a strange, undefinable emotion, awakening at once a yearning desire to know something of her who bore that beautiful name, and who, to the young man, was undoubtedly the one in all the world most dear.

"Rose," he said again, "is it you?" and his eyes, which opened slowly, scanned with an eager, questioning look the face of Maggie, who, open-hearted and impulsive as usual, answered, somewhat sadly: "I am nobody but Maggie Miller. I am not Rose, though I wish I was, if you would like to see her."

The tones of her voice recalled the stranger's wandering mind, and he answered: "Your voice is like Rose's, but I would rather see you, Maggie Miller. I like your fearlessness, so unlike most of your sex. Rose is far more gentle, more feminine than you, and if her very life depended upon it she would never dare leap that gorge."

The young man intended no reproof, but Maggie took his words as such, and for the first time in her life began to think that possibly her manner was not always as womanly as might be. At all events she was not like the gentle Rose, whom she instantly invested with every possible grace and beauty, wishing that she herself was like her, instead of the wild-cap she was. Then, thinking her conduct required some apology, she answered, as none save one as fresh and ingenious as Maggie Miller would have answered: "I don't know any better than to behave as I do. I've always lived in the woods—have never been to school a day in my life—never been anywhere except to camp-meeting, and once to Douglas' store in Worcester!"

This was entirely a new phase of character to the man of the world, who laughed aloud, and at the mention of Douglas' store started so quickly that a spasm of pain distorted his features, causing Maggie to ask if he were badly hurt.

"Nothing but a broken leg," he answered; and Maggie, to whose mind broken bones conveyed a world of pain and suffering, replied: "Oh, I am so sorry for you, and it's my fault, too. Will you forgive me!" and her little chubby hands clasped his so pleadingly that, raising himself upon his elbow, so as to obtain a better view of her bright face, he answered: "I'd willingly break a hundred bones for the sake of meeting a girl like you, Maggie Miller."

Maggie was unused to flattery, save as it came from her grandmother, Theo or old Hagar, and now, paying no heed to his remark, she said: "Can you stay here alone while I go for help? Our house is not far away."

WAY FREIGHT FOR THE TRENT CANAL

Will be Large and Much More Profitable Through Traffic

Port Hope, April 26.—The advantages which will accrue to Toronto and other Lake Ontario ports, if the Trent Valley Canal is completed from Rice Lake by way of the Generaska River and this port, are too obvious to be denied by the most partisan of those who are hurrahing for the Trenton route. The Trenton advocates are making "The Great Canadian inland route from the western wheat fields to the sea" their grand-stand argument. Wheat! Wheat! They can see nothing but the golden cereal in the barges on this new canal route—nothing but through freight from Midland to Montreal.

THE WAY FREIGHT.

They forget that with the exception of short canals like the Welland and Sault Ste. Marie the way traffic excels in importance and value the through freight. The Erie Canal was built to facilitate the through traffic from the head of the Great Lakes to the Atlantic seaboard, but it was of such paramount importance in the development of the state that this influence was sufficient to pass a bill calling for the expenditure of $101,000,000 upon its enlargement and deepening, while a proposal to establish a new route via Lake Ontario was coldly shouldered aside, though the cheaper scheme. Upon the Erie Canal the return freight from New York to Buffalo is 1-3 the down tonnage, and Superintendent Boyd reported to the New York State Legislature that the very shipments far outbalanced the through traffic both ways.

By either route for the Trent Canal the return freight through to Midland will be about the same, but for way and package freight and general utility there is absolutely no comparison. With a Port Hope outlet freight rates to the entire district will be materially reduced, for barges will make the trip from Toronto into the heart of that country with all the shipments from Toronto wholesale houses. Western Ontario farm and other machinery, and a hundred and one articles of manufacture which the townspeople and farmers of that neighborhood now get by way of the railroads. In return, these barges will carry hay, potatoes, apples, barley, oats, and, in fact, all farm products for which Toronto furnishes a market, cement, granite sets, mica, peat, iron, building stone, lime, lumber, cordwood, hardwood, to say nothing of the manufactured products of Peterborough and the larger towns. There are six millions of acres of landtributary to that canal, and Toronto should make a strong fight for the market.

A great composer.

"It was a mistake to ask that man if he thought America would ever produce a great composer. I am afraid you hurt his feelings."

"I don't see why," responded the musical young woman.

"He is the inventor of a soothing syrup."

Sheer Waste.

Wife—John, is there any poison in the house? Husband—Yes. But why do you ask? Wife—I want to sprinkle some on this piece of angel cake and put it where the mice will get it. Wouldn't that kill them? Husband—Sure; but it isn't necessary to waste the poison.

Wanted Details.

"It was like this," said the private citizen. "Just as the three burglars crawled in at the kitchen window the clock struck 1, and"—

"Excuse me," said the great detective, "but which one of the three did the clock strike?"

Impartial.

"Mr. Singleton prides himself on being strictly impartial."

"Yes," answered the unamiable man; "I once went shooting with him. He didn't seem to care whether he hit the rabbit, the dog or one of his friends."—London Tit-Bits.

At 75 Cents per Share

This company now owns the well-known Augusta mine and its extension for over 1000 feet in addition to other claims approximating a total acreage of 300 acres. This property has produced over $250,000 in gold, silver and lead ores and is a producer to-day. Has shipped ores of an average net value of $40 per ton for first class and $15 per ton for second class, all the past summer and the summer before smelter and mill returns of which are on file in our office.

Has immense bodies of these grades of ore which cannot be exhausted in five years already opened up and its main working tunnel is nearing completion, cutting the apex of the vein at a depth of 1,000 feet.

This block of shares is offered to enable the Company to connect the above tunnel with its concentrating mill and projected terminus of railroad by tramway, a distance of 11,120 feet, thereby permitting shipments during the entire year.

A production of at least 125 tons daily will be maintained when these improvements are made, and if completed in the early summer, dividends can be paid from ore settlements before this fall.

We offer for a limited time only a SPECIAL BLOCK OF 50,000 SHARES OF THE TREASURY STOCK of these Companies.

We reserve the right to reject subscriptions over and above the 50,000 shares offered. Each subscription to be booked as received.

Tunnel B of the Black Queen Company is now going in at a rate of 196 feet per month, and early spring will see this work vieing with Tunnel A of the Augusta Company in its record of production.

Will cut known proven ore bodies 1100 feet from Apex, and open sufficient stoping ground to make an output of 100 tons daily.

Has already cut through a cross vein two feet in width of good marketable Galena ore, the point of intersection being 400 feet beneath the surface. We have 900 feet of this vein in length.

We can show you these facts and ask that you ask us to do so.

If your investment becomes profitable you will tell others; therefore it is much to our interest to have you make money on your investment.

ONE OF THE BEST INVESTMENTS EVER OFFERED TO THE PUBLIC OF CANADA.

The Peterborough Brokerage Company will direct and through their agents offer a limited amount of stock of

Consumers' Coal Company
Limited.

Incorporated under the laws of South Dakota, with a capital stock of $300,000 with share a Stock.

The officers of the Company are C. F. Bumann, President and Treasurer; George W. Butler Secretary, and of C. Burrows, home officer in South Dakota as required by law. Of the $300,000 capitalization, in shares of $1 each, $116,000 worth is issued, the first as all allotment of this was sold at 10c per share the second small allotment at 75c per share and the balance has all been sold as par, $1.

The Consumers' Coal Company controls and owns clear of incumbrance, a coal mine in Chesco, Illinois, which is a first-class coal mine on the Toledo, Peoria & Warsaw and the Chicago & Alton R. R. The former line crosses five different railroads running parallel to Chicago. The Mine is on a payingbasis and the output is increasing from day to day. We have 320 acres under said with three distinct veins, or layers of coal which are 4½ feet thick each. The first one at a depth of 287 feet, it is this vein which we are now mining, the second one has a depth of 330 feet and the third at 663 feet. Our main shaft runs down through all three of these veins and a hundred feet below the third, which carries a pump, makes our shaft a total depth 851 feet. The mine is fully equipped and in good repair and working order. Our machinery engines and everything else is in duplicate so in case of a breakdown we can switch and operate without any loss of time. We have our own blacksmith shop and car shop in which we build our own cars. Our output is now hanging in the neighborhood of 100 tons per day, but I have the promise of the superintendant to increase the output to not less than 300 tons per day within two or three weeks, knowing his arrangements, I know this to be possible.

Although it should not cost more than 75c at the highest to mine coal in Illinois, yet it costs us a trifle over a dollar owing to the extensive improvements we have made in and at the mine, but as we increase the output the cost per ton of mining will decrease, as our fixed expense will be no more in mining several hundred tons per day than they are at the present time in mining one hundred tons. Up to the present time we have sold most of our output at the mouth of the shaft to the surrounding farmers and townspeople and, therefore, we have no freight or cartage to pay. We receive from $2.75 to $3.50 for Mine Run and $2.75 for Lump. In that way we have made quite a handsome profit and we estimate that our average, or net earnings at the Mine up to the present time is about $700 per day and we hope to soon increase this as we increase output.

We have three yards in Chicago in which we are handling 16 different kinds of coal and we have a very substantial business and have made considerable profit each month out of which we have paid over 20 per cent in dividends last year and accumulated a surplus fund equal to the amount paid in dividends.

The reason we are selling stock at the present time is that our business has grown so extensively that it takes more money to handle the same, besides this, we are buying teams with which to handle our coal in Chicago which will cost us about $200 each. we predict that this stock will be worth not less than $3 per share before another year is over as by that time our Mine will be producing not less than four or five hundred tons per day. We will appreciate your subscription to any amount you see fit to invest and if possible to interest some of your friends do so. I remain,

Yours very truly,

Japanese Reverses are Reported at St. Petersburg, Are Not Official

A Special Dispatch Says the Russian Fleet Has Again Appeared at Gensan

St. Petersburg, April 28. — The crossing of the Yalu River by the Japanese forces did not impress the Russians, in view of the reports of the ensuing Japanese reverse. These reports became more persistent at noon and caused an all round rise in prices on the Bourse. But so far there has been no confirmation of them officially.

M. Boubnoff, who has been awarded $12,500 for improvements in submarine boats, in an interview says:

"There is less danger in navigating a submarine boat than a torpedo boat and during a battle the former is safer than other vessels."

A Port Arthur despatch says "The successful trials of the submarine boat here are regarded by the Novi Krai as opening fresh prospects for active operations on the part of the Russian fleet."

Another Port Arthur despatch says "The situation here and in this vicinity to-day is unchanged."

London, April 28—A special despatch from Kobe, Japan, says several vessels, believed to be Russians, were again sighted off Gensan, Corea, today.

A WORLD-WIDE WAR PREDICTED

John Turner, Anarchist, Says a Great Conflict at Hand

LABOUR AGAINST CAPITAL

Remarkable Speech of the Great Anarchist in Chicago—Advises Toilers of All Nations to Unite in Hard Struggle With Capital

Chicago, April 28.—Sowing seeds of discontent that he would have develop into a general strike of all the workers in the world against the combined forces of capital and government, John Turner, the English anarchist, made his farewell speech at Uhlich's hall yesterday afternoon.

The week previous at the Chicago Federation of Labor meeting Turner revealed the fact that his mission in America was to urge the affiliation of organized workers in this country with the workers of Europe in order that the great army of men in the working class might eventually be able to work as a unit for what they deemed the ideal state of society. In his last Chicago speech Turner declared that a general conflict between labor and capital and he dominating force of society.

FORESEES A GENERAL STRIFE.

"Events are leading up to a general conflict," said Turner. "I am not a doctrinaire anarchist, but a firm believer that a general strike of the workers of the world is inevitable. The history of organization of workingmen shows the sign of the times and the only logical outcome is a general warfare of the classes in which the working people will triumph.

"The greatest strikes of the world have demonstrated the inclination of all workers to join in the conflict and some day conditions will be ripe for a conflict in which all men who work for wages will engage in a struggle for supremacy in the class which dominates society.

"Take the Parrys of the world, the men who are organizing the forces of capital and think they can break up the spirit of organization among the working class. They might as well try to turn back the tide of civilization to primitive days as to attempt to crush the spirit of organization among workingmen, for organization of laboring people is an organic growth, and just in proportion as your Parrys attack unionism the solidarity of the workingmen grows.

THINKS CAPITAL WILL ACT.

"But what does all this organization of employers and workingmen mean? What is it to come to? I cannot see where the workingmen of England will join in a general strike for a few decades, at least, but the conflict in those countries will be brought about with a general lockout. Capital will take the initiative here and in England, but the result will be the same.

"The Anglo-Saxon workingmen are too cold blooded to precipitate the issue themselves, but the Latin people will bring on a general strike. It is coming in France and Spain as sure as fate and the day is not far off.

"It may be that the capitalist of the Anglo-Saxon countries is shrewd enough to delay the conflict a long time, but if he is blind enough to force it, then capital must suffer the consequences."

Turner was asked what the next step in the organization of society would be after labor had overthrown government and capital. The anarchist replied that he had no idea, except that society would conform to just whatever the triumphant working people desire.

"All will then depend upon the ideals of the people," he said. "What ever the state of society they will give to the masses the kind of society desired will be established."

Whether it would be a state of socialism or anarchy the speaker did not venture to predict.

Turner left Chicago last evening for Buffalo. He expects to spend a few weeks more in America before returning to England.

COST OF CANADA'S CANALS

Enormous Outlay For Water Ways That Are of But Little Commercial Value

Ottawa, April 28.—For many years the Dominion Government has devoted much labor and an enormous amount of money to the improvement of the water ways of the country. While these have undoubtedly had their effect in cheapening the cost of transportation it is the opinion of many that the compensation has scarcely justified the cost.

According to the Minister of Railways and Canals the Government has already spent on canals $102,484,545, an amount slightly in excess of the outlay authorized for the improvement of the Erie canal by New York. It is the time-honored policy of Canada to improve its natural water ways and construct artificial ones.

The result has been the development of the ditch at Cornwall seven feet wide and two and a half feet deep into the magnificent artificial water way 150 feet wide, with not less than fourteen feet of water. Since the confederation of Canada in 1867 the canals have been under operation by the Dominion Government. The total expenditure on canal staff and maintenance, repairs and renewals for 1902 was $964,080.

The Cornwall canal, which overcomes the Long Sault rapids, is lighted and operated throughout its entire length by electricity. Arc lamps of 2,000 candle power are placed every 400 feet, making the line as clear by night as by day. All gates are operated by five-horse power electric motors.

Ottawa April 27.—A complaint was ventilated before the Railway Commission yesterday morning against the freight rate charged by the Kingston and Pembroke Railway for carriage of cedar, which it is alleged the company does not want to see taken out of the country. The complainant, Mr. Scoble of Cape Vincent, claimed that the railway wanted the cedar along its route for its own uses, but would not pay as good a price as could be secured by forwarding to the States. The railway admitted that it did not want the cedar taken out of the country, but set up the plea that its rates were no higher than those charged by the Grand Trunk and C. P. R.

The case was adjourned to ascertain whether this allegation is well founded.

The commission next took up an application of the Lindsay, Bobcaygeon and Pontypool Railway for approval of a plan involving the installation of safety appliances at the point where it crosses a Grand Trunk spur in Lindsay.

Ottawa, April 27.—The Great Lakes and Northwest Transportation Company have applied for power to construct canals and improve the navigation between Lake Superior and the Red River at Winnipeg, and thence by Lake Winnipeg and other channels of the Saskatchewan River, and on to the Northwest, to improve the navigation of the Saskatchewan and its branches, to provide a transportation route from the head waters of the Saskatchewan down to Lake Superior, with the right to charge tolls and to do a general manufacturing and merchandising business.

They ask the proposed undertaking to be declared "for the general advantage of Canada," which would give it expropriation and other rights.

The promoters of this enterprise are John Arbuthnot and Douglas D. Cameron, of Winnipeg; William Chaplin, of St. Catharines; Walter M. McGee, of Painfield, N.J.; Theodore D. Dale, of Montclair, N.J.; Walter H. Dodd, Chas. D. Pullen and W. W. Jackson, of New York; Chas. E. Loomis, of Attica; Jas. S. Williams, of Glastonbury, Conn.; Thomas W. Gleason, of Buffalo; Thomas Conlon, of Thorold; and Welland D. Woodruff, of St. Catharines.

TO CANADIAN INVESTORS

I desire to call the attention of investors to the

Smuggler Gold Mining Co.'s Proposition

of which I am the authorized agent

Investments in mining stocks where they can be purchased cheaply whose property contains merit and whose directors are men of unquestionable honor and integrity, and especially when sufficient work has been done to guarantee a producing mine and the leads have been demonstrated to be permanent, offer the greatest opportunity for large returns from modest investments.

The shrewdest capitalists of England and America are giving more attention to mining properties and putting more money into them than at any time in the past history of the world.

The Smuggler Group consists of five full claims, to-wit:- The Smuggler, Gaspra, Black Jack, Star and Red Rock, located in the Greenhorn District of Eastern Oregon. Surrounding mines are Potosi, Pride of Pendleton, Bonanza and Rockefeller, developing work to the extent of 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifts and crosscuts have been made, exposing hundreds of tons of high grade ore, averaging from $25 to $45 per ton, based on smelter returns and for the purpose of equipping the mines a limited number of shares of Treasury Stock will be sold at 25 cents per share, the par value of which is $1.00.

HIGH CLASS INVESTMENT

LA ZACUALPA RUBBER PLANTATION COMPANY

Incorporated Under the Laws of the State of California.

La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation is situated in the best location in Mexico for the cultivation of rubber. It has been known for a great many years as a very choice strip of rubber land and subsequent experience has shown that it is equal to all that has been claimed for it. The affairs of the company are in the hands of men of undoubted integrity and high reputation as successful men of business. To those seeking a safe investment which will secure a good income for life, this proposition offers a favorable opportunity

Shares in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation are not capital stock of a corporation, and carry none of the responsibilities and obligations, or liability to assessment of capital stock; but represent an undivided interest in the plantation itself.

The twelve thousand acres comprising the plantation are divided into twelve thousand shares, each share representing one acre of land, and the holders of shares in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation are the actual owners of one undivided acre of land, for each share held, with a guarantee expressed upon the certificate by La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company, under its official seal, to plant two hundred or more rubber trees per acre for each share sold, and to care for same for a period of five years, and at the expiration of that time to gather the first harvest and deliver the net proceeds thereof to the shareholder.

In other words, La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company sells to each shareholder one undivided acre of land in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation, with two hundred or more rubber trees five years old, and their profits for all time, for each share sold, and agrees to plant so that the first harvest belonging to the shareholder is the one to be gathered from La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation during the sixth year from the date of the certificate.

After the delivery of the first harvest La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company will care for the plantation, and harvest and market the crop for ten per cent. of the net proceeds therefrom. Out of this commission the Company agrees to pay all costs of administration, including maintenance of its home and branch offices.

This plan gives the purchaser of shares an interest of definite acreage, and his proportionate share in the total yield of rubber from the entire plantation forever, making it absolutely certain that the interest of each shareholder will receive the same careful attention

Full particulars in every detail will be given to all to whom such a proposition may appeal, but please do not ask for them unless you really are interested, because you waste your own time and ours also.

Capital $1,000,000, 500,000 Shares in Treasury

Property includes two great mining estates—one gold, the other copper—both containing wide, deep, proven veins of high and low grade ore.

Development work has been systematically carried on, with results that more than justify every claim made by the company, and unquestionably proves the destiny of the property to equal that of the greatest successful mining companies of the world.

Above Statement Can be Easily Verified

The following two facts alone will give anyone familiar with mining a rough idea of the great value of the property.

The Copper King Group contains one vein 700 feet wide, 8 feet of which brings from $10 to $100 per ton, and the Company owns 9,000 feet on this vein.

Ore running from $18 to $50 per ton is continually being shipped from the gold property, and 24 samples taken from widely different portions of the vein system averaged $36.25 per ton.

FACILITIES—The Company owns 1,720 acres of placer and timber land. Water power of 500 (minimum) horse power. No expensive shaft work necessary. Ore easily treated on Company's property, thus saving freight and smelter charges.

DIVIDENDS—To begin earning and paying large dividends it is only necessary to erect two 50-ton mills, one on each property. To obtain funds for this purpose a limited amount of stock is offered at

THINK RUSSIA WILL WIN

Officers Just Arrived From the East Predict Japans Defeat

Astoria Ore., April 28.—Officers of the steamship Indrasamha, who have arrived from far eastern points do not share the belief that Japan will defeat Russia in the war now in progress. They say that Russia will soon recover from the first defeats administered by the Japanese on water and will turn the tables on the Mikado's subjects.

The vessel brings two Japanese millionaires en route to the St. Louis fair. They are sanguine to the outcome of the war, and through an interpreter expressed the conviction that Japan soon would annihilate the Russians on land and sea.

—Now that the street watering contracts have been let for this season, the street authorities should see to it that the work is properly done. Last year there was many complaints heard regarding the way the work was done. We hope this year that things will be different

EVERYBODY READS THE TIMES.

JAPS FORCE THE YALU

THE RUSSIAN ARMY CUT IN TWO —HEAVY FIRING HEARD NEAR TATUNGKAU.

Liaoyang, April 28.—Between last night and this morning the Japanese forced a passage of the Yalu, two companies crossing between Tchangdjiu and Siaoyousikhe.

Heavy firing was heard near Tatungkau, on which it is believed the Japanese made a feint in order to distract attention from the real point of passage.

So far no bridge spans the river. It is believed the Russian fire succeeded in destroying the floating parts of the Japanese bridges.

On April 23 the Russians observed that the Japanese were making preparations to cross the Yalu River.

On the night of April 25 two steamers and two torpedo boats were noticed at the mouth of the river. They approached the shore at daylight, and the Japanese commenced to build a pontoon on the left tributary. A second pontoon was being prepared ten miles up the stream.

At 3 o'clock the same afternoon the Japanese occupied the Island of Samolindo, to which they carried pontoon boats, etc.

The night passed quietly, the torpedo boats maintaining a careful watch in case the troops ashore should be attacked, and examined the mouth of the river by searchlights.

At 3.40 next morning the Japanese crossed the river near the village of Tchindingou, where, however, the Russian outposts commenced firing upon them. The Russian advance guards had been furnished with a small gun and they succeeded in destroying the pontoon constructed near Wiju. The wrecked pontoon was carried away by the current and further Japanese bridging operations ceased, but the Japanese continued to cross by another pontoon southward of Wiju.

A Japanese column with a battery of artillery approached Turnchen at midday, but the Russian skirmishers met them with sharp firing, evidently giving them trouble, as they retired with the battery, which made no attempt to answer the Russian fire.

ADMIT THE VICTORY.

St. Petersburg, April 28—The censors committee did not to-night give out the despatches received to-day regarding the movements of the Japanese across the Yalu River. It was intimated the Japanese had crossed the river, but this was accompanied by a statement that the success of the enemy should in no sense be regarded as an important victory, the Russians having no intention of vigorously contesting the passage, their plan being to annoy the enemy as much as possible.

It is regarded possible that when the Japanese troops are in sufficient numbers they will march along the Manchurian bank of the Yalu in the direction of Antung, near which lies the road on which the advance can continue to Fenghoangchang, where the first determined stand of the Russians will be made.

No report has been received here, official or otherwise, showing casualties on either side.

A cablegram that came to hand early this morning conveys an announcement by far the most momentous of any that have yet been made during the progress of the land campaign. It is dated from Liaoyang, an important strategic point on the Manchurian Railway, between Mukden and Port Arthur, and one of the main stations for Russian concentration. As to have come from there it must have passed the Russian censor, the probability is that a full disclosure of the events to which it relates has not been made, but that it may easily presage a serious disaster to the Russian arms is an inference not without ground.

The message announces that between the night of the 25th and the morning of the 26th the Japanese forced the passage of the Yalu River, two companies crossing between Tchangdjiu (probably Changju), and Siaoyousikhe. Changju is about fifty miles north of Antung, the treaty port at the mouth of the Yalu, and places the Japanese force much higher up the river than previous advices had represented. As usual they seem to have conducted the operation in a highly skilful manner, and to have accompanied it by a feint at Tatungkau, a port near the mouth of the Yalu, and opened by treaty to Japan shortly before the outbreak of the war. Heavy firing is reported as having been heard near Tatungkau, which must have proceeded from a naval attack the river being too broad at its mouth to permit of an attack in any other manner, and was in all likelihood accompanied or followed by the disembarkation of the Japanese on the Liaotung peninsula.

As the Russian army of occupation was reported to be occupying the line of the Yalu from Antung northward and thus covering the Manchurian Railway and Mukden a successful crossing by the Japanese at Changju would cut the enemy's force in two and place the right wing in serious jeopardy. A good road leads from Antung to Liaoyang, which is nearly equal distance between Suchwang and Mukden, but with the left wing driven to the north and away from the Liaoyang road the Japanese would have achieved a distinct strategic advantage.

The later telegrams published seem to relate to the false attack made near Tatungkau and Antung. The St. Petersburg despatch practically admits that the Japanese movement was entirely successful, but seeks to minimise it by representing that it was not the intention of the Russian commander seriously to contest the passage. The real truth seems to be that the Japs were in overwhelming strength, and had laid their plans with the full knowledge of the situation and with simple tactical skill. When complete details arrive it will not be surprising if it is learned that this initial action has been as brilliant an opening on land as the Port Arthur attack was by sea, and as that gave the Japs the command of the sea so this has given them the control of the Liaotung peninsula and enables them to affect the isolation of the Russian naval stronghold.

Tokio, April 28.—It is generally conceded by prominent men in official circles of Japan that, even though the country has a huge army well prepared for the field and there are sufficient internal resources to sustain it in full fighting vigor for two years, the grave question is how to take care of soldiers' families while their usual breadwinners are fighting the battles of the nation on Corean or Manchurian soil.

Already the horrors of war are making themselves felt in thousands of households bereft of husbands, fathers and brothers, and within a year 100,000 families will have little or nothing in their larders and weary, sad-eyed mothers will gnaw their hearts out in anxiety lest their children starve.

The Red Cross Society alone of all the many helpful organizations is fairly wealthy, having at the present time a reserve fund of several millions, but when war is once in progress this fund is sure to dwindle rapidly, as it is applied to its legitimate end of taking care of the sick and wounded of both army and navy in the field hospitals and at home, to say nothing of the support it gives the Ladies' Volunteer Nursing Association.

Almost every man, woman and child in the island who possesses a regular income or has a steady livelihood is pledged to give regular sums of money monthly to the various aid and relief societies springing up all over the country, with a view to relieving want and suffering. That these associations will do much to alleviate distress is unquestioned, but the difficulty lies in the fact that in Japan only a very small proportion of the people may be considered wealthy and not even these would be measured by American standards, while the millions are poor in the middle classes, and in the lower they literally live from day to day on the new cents gained in labor and never have any surplus left over.

Vladivostock, April 28.—All is quiet here. Lieutenant General Linevitch is at Harbarovsk. Prices of the necessaries of life continue high and in order to prevent extortion the authorities have fixed a scale of prices. Provisions, however, are sold only in limited quantities to individuals. The weather is warm, but the River Amur is not yet free from ice.

St. Petersburg, April 28.—The Russ Slavo prints a letter from an official in the French secret service, which reports the presence of numerous Japanese spies in France, all well provided with money. They shadow Russians and watch the shipyards. Especially do they endeavor to ascertain the exact date of the departure of Russia's Baltic fleet and the points at which it will coal en route.

The Novosti states that the Russians should feel gratified at the strategic achievement of the naval squadron, which imposed caution on the Japanese operations and gave Russia time to throw a preponderating military force into Manchuria. The most favorable time, the Novosti continues, for Japanese military operations has passed.

Paris, April 28.—China has taken a definite pro-Japanese stand within the last few days. It is said this may involve serious consequences to the relations between Russia and China. China's action, it is noted, follows the report that Viceroy Alexieff had requested the retirement of the Chinese troops.

It is also reported that the Chinese minister at St. Petersburg will be recalled. Although the later report is denied, there is reason to believe that it has some foundation.

AN INGENIOUS MOTHER.

How a Washington Parent Saved Her Debutante Daughter from a Floral Burden.

Fashion has decreed that the debutante make her first bow before the social world bearing a bouquet which frequently is of such enormous proportions that it may be justly dubbed a floral burden.

Of course, the gown of the sweet young thing at her first appearance is the perfection of simplicity, and she is sans jewels, sans gewgaws of every description. An armful of flowers is her only adornment, which now amounts to a corpus, for her arms soon ache in carrying it, and besides she is in momentary danger of tripping on the long ribbon streamers holding together the flowers, and thereby making a most undignified debut. So, in view of preventing such a catastrophe, and adding grace and beauty to the entire occasion a clever Washington mother solved the problem of how to dispose of the debutante's bouquets when she presented her daughter to society one day recently.

Instead of the pretty girl being laden down with the proverbial from three to ten-pound bouquet, and in order to escape the anxiety of selecting whose flowers to carry, the mother had a screen made, upon which the bouquets were artistically hung, making, as they did, an enchanting background, in front of which hostess and daughter received their guests. The screen was made of wire, it being about six feet high and 3½ feet in width and was entirely covered with smilax and tips of Florida palm leaves edged in all around. Wire rings served as holders for the flowers, while the ribbon bows hid these rings and added to the bright mass of color. The effect was exceedingly pretty, and at a distance suggested a bit of gorgeous brocade upon which great bunches of flowers were wrought. The idea was unique and altogether sensible and will, no doubt, have many followers.

—Mr. L. Thornton has returned from Queen's, Kingston, and will spend the vacation in Peterborough.

A BUSINESS MAN'S LETTER.

Wm. Thomson, Esq., of Orillia, Vice-President Standard Chemical Company of Toronto, Tells of a Visit to the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives.

GREATLY IMPRESSED WITH WORK BEING DONE.

Personally Raises Several Hundred Dollars to Help Lessen the Load of Debt.

There can be little doubt that the National Sanitarium Association is handicapped in its great work for Consumptives in the fact that its two institutions in Muskoka are far away from any large centre of population. Few people have an opportunity to see for themselves the magnificent work that is being done.

These hospitals are away from the public eye. Any, however, who do visit them, are united in their commendation of the splendid appointments of the place, and, best of all, of the real joy and hope that is being brought to many suffering ones.

We are glad to have the opportunity of publishing the following letter from Mr. Wm. Thomson, of Orillia, one of Canada's best known lumbermen, which tells what he has seen himself. It reads:

ORILLIA, Ont., November 2, 1903.

W. J. GAGE, Esq.,
Chairman Executive Committee
National Sanitarium Association,
Toronto, Ont.

My Dear Mr. Gage,—

I have much pleasure in enclosing herewith cheque for One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) from the Tudhope Carriage Company of Orillia, a donation to the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. Please acknowledge this to the Tudhope Carriage Company in the usual way.

I have written to a number of my friends, to try and get them interested in this good work. I hope to be able to send you further donations. I have written my friends a personal letter, something similar to the following:

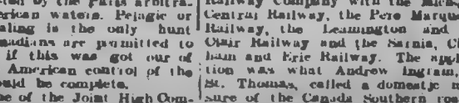
"Last week I paid a visit to the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. I met some of the management there, and promised to try and interest some of my friends in this work.

"I might say there were 40 patients there last week, all poor people, most of them without a dollar in the world, and suffering from the dreadful disease, Consumption. There are many sad stories, and I know I have thought a great deal about the work of the institution ever since my visit there. I do believe it is worthy of assistance, and we who have health and the necessaries of life should encourage this work along.

"I understand the expenses lately have been double the income, and unless the management meet with more encouragement, I am afraid the work will have to be curtailed. I know you have many calls, but I do wish you would give this matter a thought, and, if possible, assist. I have written to two or three confidentially, and hope to be able to collect some more for this work. Should you not feel like contributing a donation, remember this request, and your reply is just between you and me, and strictly confidential.

"I might mention, to show that I have confidence in the work, I have already given a donation of $100.00 and two row boats to the Free Hospital this year, and intend to give another $100.00 before the end of the year."

Sincerely yours,



Sir Wm. R. Meredith, Kt., or Mr. W. J. Gage, Toronto, will receive and acknowledge any contributions made.

NERVE FROM UNCLE SAM.

The United States Coolly Asks Us to Drop Out of Fisheries

Ottawa, April 28.—In addition to the Russian request for an agreement for the cessation of pelagic sealing in the Behring Sea, there has been recently a similar request from Washington. The kick against deep sea sealing is a very old story, and is fostered by the company that already controls the sealing industry in what were designated by the Paris arbitration as American waters. Pelagic or deep sea sealing is the only hunt that the Canadians are permitted to follow, and if this was got out of the way the American control of the situation would be complete.

At the time of the Joint High Commission between Canada and the States, a proposition was submitted by the United States for the total abandonment of pelagic sealing, and if our neighbors had been prepared to concede us a reasonable adjustment of the Alaskan boundary dispute, Canada would likely have met their views in the other regard. Negotiations, in fact, went so far the preparation of a schedule showing the compensation to which the British Columbian fleet in that event would have been entitled. But that is all a thing of the past, and what was unprofitable industry in 1898 nets a good return to-day to those engaged therein. The American complaint against pelagic sealing is that through it seal life is rapidly disappearing from the Behring Sea. This same story, though was looked into in 1897 by joint commissioners, who reported that "it was not possible during the continuance of the conservative methods in force upon the Pribyloff Islands for the further safeguarding of the protected zone at sea that any pelagic killing would result in the actual extermination of the species."

In view of this fact, and in view of the growing profit of the pelagic sealing industry, there will be a general agreement that the Dominion is quite justified in pressing to surrender, undoubted rights.

Ottawa, April 27—The Railway Committee yesterday considered the bill asking ratifications of agreements made by the Canada Southern Railway Company with the Michigan Central Railway, the Pere Marquette Railway, the Leamington and St. Clair Railway and the Sarnia, Chatham and Erie Railway. The application was what Andrew Ingram, of St. Thomas, called a domestic measure of the Canada Southern road.

W. F. McLean, of Toronto, used the bill as a text to demand from the Vanderbilt interest, which controls the Canada Southern, a two-cent passenger rate through Western Ontario, such as the same company already gives to the people of Michigan and New York. John Robinson, of Elgin, and Dr. Sproule, of Grey, supported this proposition, and pointed out that Americans travelling through Canada enjoy cheaper rates than our own people.

Mr. Gilmour, of Middlesex, could not see the fairness of forcing a two-cent passenger rate on one road, when the C. P. R., Grand Trunk and others are allowed to charge three cents.

On the Michigan Central an American boarding a train to Detroit for New York is called upon to pay two cents a mile, when the Canadian boarding at St. Thomas must put up three cents. This was a very wealthy corporations, and when favors were being sought from the Canadian Parliament he had no hesitation in taking stern measures to secure justice for our own people.

Other members of the committee backed up Mr. McLean, and the measure finall stood over till next meeting.

Favors Chinese Labor

London, April 27.—Mr. Chamberlain has written a letter regarding the employment of Chinese in the Transvaal. He says that when he was colonial secretary he laid down the principle that the Imperial Government should offer no objection to the employment of Asiatic labor if it was desired by the great majority of the white inhabitants of the two colonies. He assumes the government is satisfied that this is now the case. Chinese labor would give the way for a greater number of British workmen.

An Absent Minded Farmer

A story reached The Times yesterday regarding a Smith township farmer who is greatly troubled with absent-mindedness. On the way home from town, so the story goes, the thought came to him that he had forgotten something. He took out his notebook, went over every item and checked it off. He saw that he had made all the purchases he had intended. But as he drove on he could not get the feeling aside. When he arrived home and drove up to the house, his daughter came to meet him, and with a look of surprise, asked; "Why, where is ma?"

Catarrh Cannot be Cured by Dosing

IT IS A LOCAL DISEASE AND IF CURED MUST BE LOCALLY TREATED.

Seven people out of ten suffer from catarrh. There is no lack of medicines, and if dosing would cure, very few cases of catarrh would be found.

You probably have it yourself. How much benefit have you obtained so far from medicine-taking? A little relief is all that you have derived. You have spent lots of money and yet the catarrh is growing worse all the time.

Has it ever occurred to you how desirable and how successful a treatment would be that you could breathe to where the disease existed. Perhaps you have thought about this form of cure but you have been unable to find a remedy that could be pleasantly and safely used.

Try Catarrhozone, it can be broken up by the air and carried in atomic drops to every part of the breathing organisms. It touches the catarrh with healing, that is why it cures.

This healing, balsamic, vegetable substance is so volatile that the air greedily takes up from the inhaler, so antiseptic that it instantly destroys the microbes which produce disease of the breathing organs, and so soothing that it relieves congestion subdues inflammation, and stops mucous discharge.

Plainly Catarrhozone is an ideal remedy for diseases of the throat, lungs and nasal passages. If you have catarrh, bronchitis or asthma, all are equally curable by Catarrhozone. You have been told why this is so. These diseases are all modifications of an inflammatory condition of the lining membrane of the throat and nasal passages.

Now, bear in mind, you breathe Catarrhozone. Do you not think this is a rational treatment—a certain way of reaching the diseased surfaces which lie so far in the cavity of the body or in the head that they can be reached in no other way.

You cannot possibly fail to obtain quick cure from any of these maladies if you use Catarrhozone.

All dealers in medicine sell Catarrhozone. Trial, 25c, complete outfit, $1.00, which will last two months and is guaranteed to cure permanently. Sent postpaid to any address by N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

A Successful Agent

Lindsay Post: Mr. Thos. J. Perdue, who has charge of the Sylvester Co.'s business at Peterborough, was in town this week and was a welcome visitor. Mr. Perdue, who is one of the youngest machine men on the road, and has made rapid strides in the business, has placed the Sylvester Co.'s goods on a plane equal to anything offered to the public in this locality. The amount of orders booked by him last season compared favorably with anything attempted by the position, and the outlook for the coming season is most promising. As a side line he booked more orders for the White engines and separator last season than any other agent in Eastern Ontario.

A Pistol Duel

Knoxville Tenn. April 2?.—A pistol duel caused a negro congregation to disperse in a hurry today near Bean's station. George Whitsides and Arizona Goins has trouble about a woman and both drew pistols and began firing. Goins fell dead with a bullet through his heart, and his brother Jim Goins, was mortally wounded. Whitsides was shot through one arm, while another bullet, which would likewise have killed him, smashed a whisky flask which he had in an inside coat pocket. The shooting nearly caused a riot and Whitsides had no trouble in escaping to the woods.

At Preston Springs

A letter received yesterday from Mr. Wm. Snowden, who is vacating at Preston Springs, in company with Mr. R. B. McKee, states that the genial proprietor of the Snowden House is accumulating avoirdupois. In his letter, which is written to a friend here, he shows some anxiety regarding the duties pertaining to the office of inspector of fisheries in the creek, which, of course, are not being performed in his absence, although it is understood that Mr. Tooley, in the meantime, is to have an eye on these waters. Mr. Snowden says that Mr. McKee is also improving in health, and is becoming as frisky as a young colt. Their many friends here will be pleased to learn that their sojourn at this health resort is so greatly benefitting them.

NEW COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE

HIGH SCHOOL INSPECTOR HODGINS SAYS A NEW BUILDING IS NEEDED

Mr. Hodgins, Provincial Inspector of High Schools, while here this week, spoke of the necessity that existed for a new Collegiate Institute building. He says that our building is amongst the poorest in the Province. For fifteen years the teachers have been working at a disadvantage, and the pupils at a greater disadvantage. We believe, as a matter of economy, it would pay to be in the best class. The Institutes of the Province are graded from 1 to 4, and ours is in the lower grade as to equipment. This means that instead of securing a yearly Government grant of perhaps $1500 to $3000, we receive only from $700 to $1000. The proposed building is to cost $50,000. This is a comparatively small matter to each individual ratepayer, being on an average about 7½ cents per year to each. The working man would only be taxed about half this sum. Surely, then, no one who has the interest of the town at heart will fail to record their vote for the By-law on Tuesday next.

OUTING FOR MAY

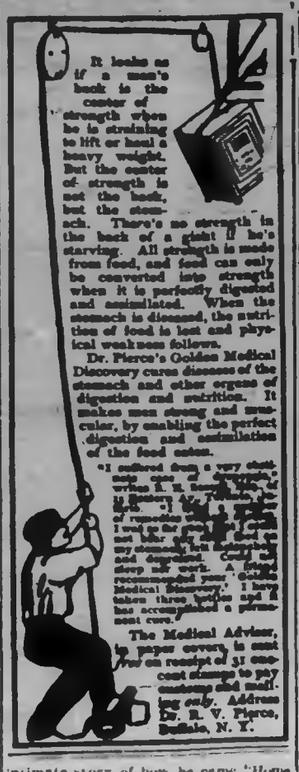
In the Spring the young man's fancy and, indeed, the fancy of most of us, turns to the coming of the Circus. As Charles Belmont Davis, Richard Harding's talented brother, says in May Outing, "The day we celebrate is the day we go to the circus." The graphic human article in which Mr Davis tells about the day he went, is one of the timely features of the attractive Spring number of Outing. Mr. Davis is proving conclusively that Brother Richard does not monopolize the Davis literary talent.

The pictorial feature of this strikingly beautiful number is a series of sixteen full page photographs of "The Burden Bearers of the World." These are only a few, however, of the many beautiful illustrations in the magazine. The first article, "A Pariah of the Skyline," is accompanied by many striking pictures of coyote hunts in the West. The article, by the way, is a spirited description of a buoyant, outdoor, recreation.

"Why Women are, or are not, good Chauffeuses" is the suggestive title of an interesting, modern application of the old problem of a woman's mind. Of peculiar interest to women is "The French Renaissance in Athletics, by Lamar Middleton, illustrated by photographs of Parisiennes enjoying the exhilarating exercise of cross country runs and obstacle races. "Lady April and the Rag Doll," by Zona Gale, is the fiction success of the number, although Stewart Edward White's "The Silent Places" is still holding the intense interest of hundreds of readers. More interesting than any fiction is Robert Dunn's intimate story of how he came "Home by Ice and by Swimming from Mt. McKinley."

The whole magazine is redolent of the Spring, the real outdoor awakening. An instance of this is the space devoted to fishing and fishers. William C. Harris, the Daddy of the craft, tells where to spend these May days "Among the Trout," and Edwyn Sandys and James S. Compton wax reminiscent and prophetic under such suggestive captions as "Some Old-time Fishing" and "Trout Visions of a Vandal."

John Burroughs contributes his second batch of interesting nature notes to his regular editorial department. His brother naturalist, Herbert K. Job has some more photographs of the rare birds he saw "On Lonely Bird Key." It is singularly appropriate that the magazine containing these beautiful camera products should publish an article on "The Story of the Camera," graphically describing the processes with make these possible. "A Season with the Road Coach," by Reginald W. Rives, is a leaf from the note-book of an authority on fashionable coaching. The usual departments covering the entire outdoor field, a little verse and some minor fiction complete the number. As always, Outing is typographically one of the most attractive publications of the month.



It looks as if a man's back is the center of strength when he is straining to lift or haul a heavy weight. But the center of strength is not the back, but the stomach. There's no strength in the back of a giant if he's starving. All strength is made from food, and food can only be converted into strength when it is perfectly digested and assimilated. When the stomach is diseased, the nutrition of food is lost and physical weakness follows.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It makes men strong and muscular, by enabling the perfect digestion and assimilation of the food eaten.

"I suffered from a very obstinate case of dyspepsia," writes L. H. Smith, Esq., of Hanover, Wyandotte Co., Kansas. "For years I was a sufferer from the worst form of indigestion. I would get the greatest relief from one bottle of your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' but would not continue its use. A single bottle would always relieve me. I would sleep like a top. A friend recommended your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I have taken three bottles and it has accomplished a permanent cure."

The Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE RUSSIANS ARE STILL UNPREPARED

Although About 300,000 Are in the Neighborhood of Corea--All Quiet in the Vicinty of Pt. Arthur

St. Petersburg, April 30.—Speaking seriously to intelligent friends, members of the general staff place the total number of troops at General Kuropatkin's command at about 300,000. Even this statement is regarded as excessive, while the half-million figure is intended for foreign, and especially Japanese, consumption, although the few Russian soldiers imagine that the enemy can be greatly misled in this respect.

This 300,000 is said to comprise all the forces in Port Arthur and Vladivostock, on the banks of the Yalu, in New Chwang, Liao Yang, Mukden and Harbin, on the Amur River, and at Chita, in Trans-Baikalia, and at Irkutsk, on the west side of Lake Baikal. The army availble for active operations is in the neighborhood of 200,000, including the local Amur and Siberian Cossacks and Light Artillery recently equipped with modern arms. The importance of such a force would be great if it were not by force of circumstances partly occupied in watching the Trans-Siberian Railway.

Military experts say that the coast of Corea Bay and of the Liao-Tung Gulf probably can not be defended successfully. The right wing of the Russian army will be based on Mukden and the left on Kirin, should the Japanese force Gen. Kuropatkin to retire from his position at New Chwang, Lia Yang and Feng Wang Chang.

ALL QUIET AT PORT ARTHUR.

Che Foo, April 30.—After a cruise which covered the whole coast line from Port Arthur to Kinchow Bay, a press correspondent has, on the despatch boat Fawn, returned to this port. By minute inspection of the likely landing places, it was ascertained that no Japanese forces had been landed on that stretch of territory. No sign of the Japanese fleet was seen, and no transports were met throughout the cruise. The captains of Chinese junks and fishermen wherever met, reported that no Japanese naval operations were being conducted off Port Arthur.

STILL UNPREPARED.

Berlin, April 30.—Colonel Von Gaedke, war correspondent of the Berliner Tageblatt, writing from Harbin, Manchuria, under date of April 4, says he found the Russians much more unprepared for war than he anticipated. High officers assured him that the garrison of Port Arthur amounted to only 8,000 combatants, when the first attack occurred. The troops south of Mukden ready for action numbered only 20,000 to 25,000. Colonel Von Gaedke asserts that the total strength of the Russians in Manchuria at that time was hardly above 90,000 men exclusive of 23,000 railroad guards. The Russians expected a speedy advance of the Japanese after the outbreak of war and rather lost their heads. Much censure the colonel adds, was heard in army circles of the mismanagement of the defence of Port Arthur.

St. Petersburg, April 30—Official details of the recent exploit of the Vladivostock squadron show that 200 men went down with the Japanese transport. The smallness of the number is due to the fact that the steamer was heavily laden with coal and other supplies.

The satisfaction of the people of St. Petersburg at the exploits of the Vladivostock squadron is tempered with admiration for the bravery of the Japanese soldiers who were on board the Kipshiu Maru, and who preferred to drown rather than surrender. The admiral admits that the men acted heroically, but holds that Admiral Yessen had no other alternative but to sink the transport, as he could not spare a prize crew or hamper his swift squadron with a slower steamer. The Czar is said to be very indignant at the conduct of the admiral, and wants to relieve him of his command and court-martial him.

USING WIRELESS.

The Admiralty believe Admiral Yessen is in communication with Vladivostock by wireless telegraphy, and is not likely to be surprised by the Japanese squadron sent to prevent his return. Tokio thinks the squadron slipped by the Jap fleet in a fog.

RUSSIAN SPIRIT REVIVED.

The operations of the Vladivostock squadron have revived the spirits of the people of St. Petersburg, who have been downcast since the destruction of the Petropavlovsk, and the consequent confinement of the remnant of the Port Arthur fleet to the harbor. The fact that the navy is doing something of an offensive character appeals to the popular mind, which has been unable to appreciate the reason for the inactivity of the fine ships of the Vladivostock squadron. It is generally recognized that Rear-Admiral Yessen cannot do more than frighten the Japanese and compel them to exercise greater care in their military movements, as the sinking of a few transports, or even cruisers can have no permanent effect on the result of the war. Moreover, he is bound by his instructions not to risk his ships unduly, the intention being to keep them safe for an attack with the Baltic fleet when it arrives in the Pacific.

St. Petersburg, April 30—The Official Messenger publishes the following circular letter, issued by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs to the Russian representatives with foreign powers.

"The foreign press have recently been persistently circulating reports concerning intentions on the part of some of the European governments to undertake a friendly intervention with a view to a speedy termination of the conflict between Russia and Japan. Telegrams have even been received, announcing that proposals of such a nature have already been made to the Imperial Government. You are empowered to deny this statement m— categorically. Russia did not wish war, and everything within the limits of possibility was done by her to solve the complications which had arisen in the Far East in a peaceful manner; but after the treacherous surprise on the part of the Japanese, which forced Russia to take up arms, obviously no friendly meditation can have any success.

"Similarly, the Imperial Government will not admit the intervention of any power whatsoever in the direct negotiations which will occur between Russia and Japan after the termination of hostile operations in order to determine the conditions of peace."

JAP CREW ESCAPE.

Seoul, April 30—Further details of the sinking of the Goyo have reached here. The Russian vessels entered the harbor of Gensan at 11 o'clock The crew of the Goyo were ordered ashore, but it is not known that they went, and whether they wished to or not has not been reported.

THE SQUADRON'S OBJECT.

St. Petersburg, April 30.—The Emperor has received a despatch from the commander of the Vladivostock squadron, confirming the reports of the sinking of a Japanese transport of 600 tons at Wonsan (Gensan). The object of the squadron's cruise is to destroy all transports traversing the Sea of Japan, show the Russian flag in Corean waters and impress the population advantageously, and also to compel the Japanese to guard all their transport expeditions.

JAP CRUISERS IN PURSUIT.

Chicago, April 30—A special cable to the Daily News from Kobe says. "Under full steam a strong squadron of Japanese armored cruisers were observed this morning making its way northward in the Japan Sea. It is believed that the vessels are on their way to attempt to cut off the Russian squadron that appeared at Wonsan, on the east coast of Corea Monday. It is feared, however, that the Czar's cruisers are superior in speed to those of the Mikado they may escape in safety to the shelter of Vladivostock.

"It is also stated that the Japanese have succeeded in luring the Russians from the protection of the Vladivostock guns, and that there is another Japanese squadron between them and their retreat, but these are mere rumors."

TOGO WAITING FOR THEM.

London, April 30—The opinion that Vice-Admiral Togo is waiting for the Vladivostock squadron is confirmed by the Daily Telegraph's Tokio correspondent, who says that the Japanese are taking steps to cut off the retreat of the Vladivostock warships.

CZAR MAY GO TO SEAT OF WAR.

New York, April 30—The Herald correspondent in St. Petersburg says he has excellent authority for the statement that the Emperor will go to the seat of war some time in August, the exact date depending upon a happy family event which is expected to take place about that time, and which is the subject of engrossing interest in court circles.

SUBMARINES AT PORT ARTHUR

Port Arthur, April 30—The experiments with submarine boats here have been attended with brilliant success.

All is quiet in the region of the fortress.

HAVE TO WAIT FOR THE TIDE.

St. Petersburg, April 30—A letter dated March 29, written by Colonel Agapieff (a member of the staff of Vice-Admiral Makaroff, who was lost in the Petropavlovsk disaster, on April 13), throws considerable light on the conditions prevailing at Port Arthur. He said: "Our squadron suffers from the great disadvantage of not being able to go out of the harbor except at high tide, which is especially awkward if it is high water before dawn. The enemy has not failed to profit thereby, coming up with impunity on the ebb tide and attacking the whole morning, if the squadron was inside. I mentioned this to Makaroff, thinking he would not take notice of it, but the next time it was high water before daylight he ordered the squadron out the previous afternoon, by which he spoiled the Japanese game, and also avoided the danger of collision in going out of the narrow entrance after dark."

STRANGE STORY FROM CRONSTAD

Cronstadt, April 30—A sensational story is afloat here of an attempt to destroy the battleship Alexander III. According to the reports a sailor saw a stranger, wearing the uniform of an officer, going down into the engine room of the battleship, followed him and saw the stranger attaching something connected with wire to the dynamos. After the stranger left the sailor examined the attachment and found it to be a bomb. The sailor at once cut the wires, ran up on deck to tell what had happened, and found that the stranger had hanged himself.

The crew of the Alexander III. it is added were instructed not to speak of the occurrence, and it is said that the stranger was a madman, or a member of some revolutionary organization, to whose lot it had fallen to blow up the Alexander III.

WAS A DESPATCH BOAT.

Nagasaki, Japan, April 30.—The Japanese steamer Kinshiu Maru which was seen by the Russians near Gensan (resulting in the drowning of 200 Japanese troops who had refused to surrender), was attached to the fleet as a despatch boat.

STREET SCENE IN KOREA

TIME TO MAKE OUT CLEAN SLATE

Japan Must Settle Corean Question No

LETTER FROM, MARQUIS ITO

Russian Supremacy Would Means Destruction of Japanese Commercial Rights

Tokio, April 28.—The visit of the Corean special Ambassador is attracting little attention here. He has had an audience and breakfast with the Emperor, and has given a rection and dinner to prominent Japanese and foreigners.

The Marquis Ito, in a letter just published, states that Russian supremacy in Corea would mean not only a constant menace to Japan's national existence, but also the wholesale destruction of her vested commercial and industria lrights. Russian policy in the Far East is gradually to monopolize the resources of the countries she dominates. In fighting for her own interests Japan is contending for the principle of open competition and new markets.

The Korumin, commenting on the administration of Corea, says: "It is no longer a matter of discussion, but for action. Now is Japan's opportunity to carry out its purposes regarding Corea. Russia, who alone contested Japan's rights, has been driven from Corean soil, and Japan has the practical command of the sea, and her forces occupy an advantageous position for further advantageous coalition for further advances by land. The Coreans are turning to Japan for direction, and it would be folly to postpone the Corean question until the Manchurian question had been also settled. The former is vital to Japan, who has the recognized right to conserve the fruits of victory. The demands made of Russia were, respecting Corea, Japan's minimum. They were made in a spirit of concession, and she might have reasonably demanded more. Now is the time to make out a clean slate. Japan's chief reason for going to war was to secure a position in Corea, and bring Corea under her protection. Corea is now practically in the occupation of the Japanese armies. If the problem of administration is neglected the real object of the war may be lost."

CREW SENT ASHORE.

St. Petersburg April 28—The Emperor has received a telegram from Viceroy Alexieff as follows:

"Rear Admiral Yessen, who is at sea with cruisers and torpedo boats, despatched the latter to Gensan, Corea. The torpedo boats blew up a Japanese merchantman in the roadstead. The crew was sent ashore. The torpedo boats returned the same day to the squadron."

THE BALTIC FLEET.

St. Petersburg, April 30—Vice-Admiral Skrydloff, recently appointed commander of the Russian naval force in the Far East, to-day visited the barracks of the naval guard. Addressing the latter he made his first public reference to the going out of the Baltic fleet, saying: "Twenty-eight years ago I went with your predecessors to fight for the Emperor's country against the Turks. It is now the Monarch's wish that I should lead you again, as Commander-in-Chief of the fleet which you are going to join on board the battleship Alexander III."

DIED IN TORONTO

Demise of Miss Lizzie Sanderson, Formerly of Town

We regret to chronicle the death Miss Lizzie Sanderson, which took place in Toronto on Thursday, of pneumonia. Deceased was a daughter of the late Rev. John Sanderson, and lived for many year in Peterborough, leaving town about ten years ago. A brother, Mr. R. J. Sanderson, of town, and two sisters Miss M— of Buffalo, and Miss Millie, of Toronto, are the surviving members of the family. The deceased had a large circle of friends in Peterborough, who will regret the sad intelligence of her death.

HOME COMPANIES WILL RAISE RATES

Toronto Fire Losses Wiped out two Years' Gains

CONFLAGRATION PREMIUM

Of One Per Cent. is Likely to be Charged on Canadian Cities

London, April 29.—It is understood that the English fire insurance companies are contemplating, in consequence of the Toronto f—, the putting of Montreal and other Canadian cities on conflagration rates. They express profound disgust at the Canadian fire risks declaring that high as the rates of premiums are, namely 11-2 per cent per annum, compared with three-sixteenths per cent, in Great Britain, they are not high enough. The present high rates are due to the fact that there are so many wooden buildings, as in the case of the Ottawa fire. But the Toronto case shows that fire is equally devastating in well-built business quarters. The Toronto fire, with net losses of $2,500,000 to the British companies, wholly sweeps away the profits of the past two years.

AN EXPERT OPINION.

A writer in the Canadian Gazette who can speak authoritatively on the opinions of the English companies, says: "It is clear, after the Toronto blaze, that the best built towns are exposed to the gravest risks. These risks must be taken account of, if substantial insurance companies are to stake their vast resources in Dominion insurances. There is no use in them doing so unless the business is conducted by the soundest companies. If Canada wants the services of the really sound offices she must pay for them. British, American and Canadian companies in this matter are on the same footing, as they must organize the business on paying lines or retire.

CONFLAGRATION RATES.

It is probable that the fire insurance companies doing business in Canada will agree to charge a conflagration premium of one per cent. on Canadian cities, and add the rates for buildings and goods to this charge. The effect will be to make a large increase in the premium charges, throughout the Dominion, but unless Canadian local authorities have some convincing alternative to offer in the convincing alternative to offer in the way of more efficient precautions against conflagrations, the premiums will inevitably advance in accordance with proved risks."

OUR MILITARY POWER

Canada Needs an Efficient Army is Now Proclaimed

Halifax, N. S., April 29.—At the banquet held last evening by the St. George's Society Major-General Sir Charles Parsons was one of the guests of honor. When he arose to respond to the toast of the army and navy he was enthusiastically applauded. He said that the British army, during the past few years, has made great progress, and the lessons learned during the Boer war had worked improvement, and Britain's army today was more efficient than ever before. Canada's greatest danger would be from an attack by land forces, and to meet this contingency The General was glad to know that it was absolutely necessary to have efficiently equipped bodies of men, the feeling in Canada tended strongly towards the organization of rifle associations. Too much attention was seemingly paid to export, or individual, firing. It would be preferable to have a lot of men with collective excellence at firing, than individual accuracy in prize or target shooting. The General favored regular visits of the Canadian militia to Aldershot, and great military centers. The interchange of ideas would be valuable to the British army, and the colonial forces. Preparation for war was best attained by having efficient fighting forces, for the men so trained are really paying premium on the defences of their country. The power of diplomacy is passing away, and we have practically nothing now to depend upon but our fighting men.

GREAT EXODUS OF COTTON SPINNERS

Gigantic Emigration Movement has Begun in Great Britain

MANY COMING TO CANADA

To Take up Farming in the Northwest--Others go to United States

London, April 30.—Owing to the short time now being worked in the English cotton industry and the consequent hard times, a great emigration movement is just commencing of cotton workers to Canada and the United States, the dimensions of which have never been equalled since the disastrous effects of the American civil war. Many of these emigrants are seeking fresh work in the cotton mills of the United States on account of the higher wages and shorter hours prevailing there; but a large proportion I learn on the authority of one of the largest firms of cottonspinners in Lancashire are abandoning the cotton business to take up farming in Western Canada.

The extent of the movement can be judged from the fact that the Allan liner Bavarian leaves Liverpool today with 1,500 passengers for Canada, nearly all of whom are British while the Dominion liner Southwark leaves Liverpool also today with 900 more. Another Allan liner leaves Liverpool on Saturday with a further 500.

A FEW SUBSTANTIAL REASONS

To the Editor of the Times.

Sir,—I wish to present, as briefly as possible, a few specific reasons why a Collegiate Institute building should be erected in Peterborough at the present time, and I shall mention only such reasons as I think can be appreciated by all.

The Collegiate Institute has no building, but is occupying quarters rented from the Public Schools. These quarters are now required for the Public Schools, and a new building of some kind is absolutely necessary.

Although the building now occupied would make a satisfactory Public School it is far below the standard required by the education department for a Collegiate Institute. The High School Inspectors invariably report against it, and it is not unlikely that before long the Minister of Education will reduce the Institute to the grade of a High School if better accommodation is not furnished. This reduction would greatly reduce the annual government grant.

Some of the defects of the present building for a Collegiate Institute are:

1. It contains no assembly hall in which the students may be called together for general lectures, literary meetings, etc. The want of this hall makes it impossible to carry on a literary society in connection with the school, and such a society is a very important factor in High School work.

2. The laboratories are inconvenient and altogether inadequate impairing to a serious degree the instruction in science.

3. No suitable waiting rooms are provided for students, particularly for those who coming from some distance, find it necessary to remain at the school during the noon hour.

4. The gymnasium is too small, is badly ventilated, and is otherwise unsuited for the work to be done in it.

5. The grounds are, for the Institute, worse than the building. The girls of the Institute have absolutely no place on which to set foot outside the building except their small platform and the street. As the grounds at the back are occupied by the boys of the Public School the boys of the Institute have practically no play ground and cannot organize any games. This utter want of play grounds causes the students to spend most of the intermission time inside instead of in the fresh air.

If a Collegiate Institute is erected the school boys will then be able, because of having ample room, to unite with the county for High School purposes, admitting the county students on the same terms as those from the town. In this case the county will be required to pay its share of the yearly cost of maintenance. This share will be more than the additional yearly expenditure due to the larger attendance.

A considerable portion of the yearly government grant to Collegiate Institutes depends upon the building furnished. Of this portion Peterborough at present receives almost nothing.

If the proposed building is erected the Board of Education will have at their disposal accommodation for manual training and domestic science. These are branches for the teaching of which it is very desirable to provide, and the government is prepared to encourage this work by very liberal money grants.

PARTICULARLY SAD DEATH

Mrs. James Graystock, of Dummer Passes Away Suddenly

The many friends in town and country will exceedingly regret the demise of Mrs. James Graystock, of Dummer. The particulars of the and occurrence are not to hand, but from the meagre intelligence received it appears the deceased lady passed away suddenly.

Mrs. Graystock had only been married a couple of years, and was a young woman. She was a daughter of Mr. James Little, of North Dummer, and occupied the old A. R. Kidd homestead, about two miles from Warsaw. She was beloved by all who knew her, and her demise will be greatly deplored.

SALVATION ARMY SELF-DENIAL

Self Denial Week of the Army to Begin on Monday Next

The now wellknown Self Denial week of the Salvation Army will be observed from May 1st to 7th. Unusual activity has taken possession of the army's energetic members in anticipation of this great event. The army's beneficent operations are supported purely by the free will offerings of the people. The needs of its vast missionary labors among the heathen abroad, and the downfallen at home are met chiefly through the agency of self denial. The army is doing splendid work in its Industrial Homes, Rescue and Maternity Homes, Men's and Women's Shelters, established in different centres in this country. While the world over the army has about 500 similar refuges for the fallen and destitute, Major Archibald, the Prison Gate Secretary for the Dominion of Canada, will conduct services at the S. A. Barracks to-morrow at 11 a.m., 3 and 7 p.m. At the afternoon service the Major will give an address on the prison work of the army. All are heartily invited.

THE CANADIAN NORTHERN

Will Build 600 Miles of New Lines this Summer

Winnipeg, April 30.—President W. Mackenzie, of the Canadian Northern, who is here, says the construction work on the road this year includes the completion, or as much of it as possible, of the line to Edmonton and the line to Prince Albert; also lines from Carberry to Brandon, Arigona to Carberry, the Greenway and Ridgeville branches, the line from Winnipeg to Oak Point, Manitoba, and the Clan William extension. They probably will grade from both the east and the west end of the Edmonton line and will make an effort to reach Edmonton by next winter. The new mileage, which will be added to the system this year, will aggregate almost 600 miles.

Russia Will Pay

Ottawa April 27.—The practical outcome of the recent negotiations between the Canadian commissioners, Mr. Little, and the Russian representatives over the seizure by the czar's cruisers of several sCnadian sealing vessels over twelve years ago has been that Russia has consented to admit the claims for damages on account of the seizure of two of the vessels, the Carmolite and the Vancouver Belle, but refuses to recognize any of the other claims.

Watches Stepmother

Binghampton, N.Y., April 28.—Coroner White, of Delaware County today began an inquest at Sidney, into the death of seventeen-year-old Florence Mackintosh, who died at Sidney on April 11, her death being ascribed to stomach trouble. A provisional warrant for use in case the woman tries to leave town has been issued for the girl's stepmother, Mrs. Henrietta Dewitt, who is now suspected of poisoning the girl to obtain $2000 insurance on the girl's life. Against the protests of Mrs. Dewitt an autopsy was performed which revealed the fact that the girl died as the result of some irritant poison, believed to be arsenic.

THE RUSSIAN FLEET IS REPORTED SAFE IN PORT

Vladivostok Sends Despatch That the Squadron Has Returned in Safety

Shanghai, April 30.—It is reported here that the Russians have suffered a disastrous repulse after two days' fighting on the Yalu River. The Japanese forces crossed the river, and the Russians retreated.

A NEW JAP GAME.

St. Petersburg, April 30.—Viceroy Alexieff telegraphs under today's date that Japanese ships were sighted six miles off Port Arthur last night, and that this morning ten Japanese cruisers and six torpedo boats were seen in an adjacent bay.

Vladivostock, April 30.—The squadron commanded by Rear Admiral Yessen has returned here from its recent operations off the Corean coast.

TO ARM 72,000 CHINKS.

Pekin, April 30.—It is asserted on the best authority that the Russians are about to enforce martial law west of the Liao River. The government is worried, and the Dowager Empress has ordered the provincial governors to abandon her birthday celebration, and to use the money collected for that purpose to equip twenty-two thousand troops immediately.

A REMARKABLE TRIO

Triplets Living in Hillsdale, N. B., Just Age of Eighty

Moncton, N.B., April 30.—Hillsdale, in the parish of Upham, Kings County, is not a place of much importance, but it boasts something which few places can, triplets 80 years of age, living in the same place all their lives, and enjoying good health. On the 7th of April, 1824, three children were born to the late William DeBow and wife. They were named Richard, James and Deborah. Richard married Elizabeth Taber, and to them was born one child. James never married. Deborah married Henry McDonald, and their children and grandchildren are legion. On the occasion of their 80th birthday this month, a large number of the friends waited upon them and presented them with a handsome purse of money. It was certainly a unique birthday celebration, the like of which, perhaps, cannot be duplicated in the Dominion. The aged triplets are all in the best of health, physically and mentally, and appear good for twenty years more.

DEAD AT HIS POST

The Engineer Died With His Hand on Lever

New York, April 29. — Engineer Charles Kelly, of the ferryboat America, died in the engine room of the America with his hand on the reversing lever, while the boat rammed into the guard pier last evening, on the Williamsburg side of the river, throwing two hundred passengers into a panic. Six were injured by flying splinters and broken glass. Kelly was stricken with apoplexy as the America was entering the slip, and when Pilot Chas. A. Smith gave the signal to reverse the engine Kelly, grasped the lever in his hand, but died before he could move it. The America was approaching the pier under full headway, and Pilot Smith rang frantically, but got no response. Then the boat crashed into the bulkhead, tearing away three feet from her port bow. The crew and passengers rushed to the deck, many struggling for life preservers. The pilot signalled again as the boat bounded back, and then crashed ahead into the dock on her starboard side. Ten feet of the men's cabin was torn away in the smash. The fireman, who was in the lower hole finally stopped the boat.

SERVANTS FOR ENGLAND

Salvation Army Proposes to Relieve the Stringency

The Immigration Department of the Army Has Big Problem on Its Hands

Major Thos. Howell, secretary of the Immigration and Transportation Department of the Salvation Army, Toronto, states that the army was now prepared to do something to relieve the stringency in the domestic help market. In connection with the Immigration Department, which is working in connection with the Federal and Provincial Governments, the Army will accept deposits sufficient to pay the fare of domestic servants from England. The English branch of the Army will not allow any servants to come out unless they have the highest references, and each one who comes up to the required standard will be required to make a contract for a year with the lady who makes the deposit for her transportation.

Major Howell says he is ready now to accept deposits from housewives, and he feels certain that any servants brought out by this means will be most particular in their selection.

So far the general immigration policy of the Army has been most successful. Already this season 150 have arrived, and within the last three weeks have been placed in good employment. The immigrants are not all members of the Army, but they are all known to Army officers in England, and are guaranteed to be reliable and desirable settlers. The married men are kept in Ontario as far as possible, and the single men sent to the Northwest. They are now on file in the Army Immigration Bureau more applications for help than can be filled, although the English officers have reported already over 2,000 bookings. It is not at all unlikely that as many more will be brought to Canada during the coming season.

Arrangements are made for an officer of the Salvation Army to meet all immigrants on their arrival in Canada, and to see that they are put on the right trains and supplied with whatever they may need. Another batch of fifty is expected this week, and 200 more left Liverpool yesterday for Quebec.

DR. S. GOLDBERG,
The Possessor of 14 Diplomas and Certificates Who Wants No Money That He Does Not Earn.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interest of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as many booklets on the subject, including the one that contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him carefully

AN URGENT NEED

To the Editor of The Times:

Sir,—It must be apparent to many, if not all, that Peterborough is sorely in need of a hall suitable in size and equipment for the holding of lectures debates and recitals. At the present time, in order to secure accommodation for these, it is generally necessary to go to one of the Churches or Sunday school rooms, or some other equally unfit place. The Y.M.C.A. building has, it is true, an assembly hall, but it is very small and ill adapted to the needs of public gatherings. We all recognize that churches should be used solely and exclusively for religious purposes. Nor does the proposed erection of an Academy of Music remove the difficulty, for it will be too large and expensive for most lectures and local entertainments. What we require is a hall capable of holding five or six hundred people, arranged and equipped for lecture and concert purposes. I am creditably informed that the plans of the proposed new Collegiate Institute provides for just such a hall. If the vote of May 5 is favorable, a central site will undoubtedly be chosen, and an urgent need of our town will be satisfied. There is a growing taste in Peterborough for literary functions. It is a pity that this growth should be hampered and discouraged by the lack, of a hall in which our citizens could meet and listen in comfort to addresses by scholars and eminent public men. I believe I am quite justified by observation in saying that Peterborough would be no whit behind other places in literary tastes and pursuits, if these were encouraged by the means I have suggested.

Moreover, the students of our Collegiate Institute are under a great disadvantage in having no assembly hall whatever in their present building. A few years ago, it did possess a small hall capable of holding most of the pupils, and it was put to a good uses, lectures being held regularly by the staff and others, and literary meetings by the students. But it was found necessary to turn this hall into class-rooms, so that at present there is no room in the building in which more than one class can meet. As a result, there is no literary society at present in connection with the school. This is a very serious defect and should be remedied. A very important branch of education is of necessity being neglected. High school students should be enabled to meet together in a body to listen to, and to take part in, debates, addresses, recitals and musical numbers, arranged for by their literary society officers, with the assistance and under the supervision of the teachers. The Collegiate Institute should be a literary centre, and the medium through which the excellent work done by the Fortnightly Club under disadvantages could be carried on. At present the students are not in a position to invite their parents and friends to meet them in a body even once a year in a social way. With a new building such as is proposed, the influence of our highest educational institution might be considerably widened, its value more generally known and appreciated, and a stronger esprit de corps developed in the pupils. By all means let us have a new Collegiate Institute and assembly-hall.

Respectfully,
FABRE.

Human Body Has Its Equinoxial Storms.

In Its March From the Cradle to the Grave, the Body Has Its Periods o Change Which are Associated with Alarming Disturbances.

There are two great periods in men's lives. About forty-five every man realizes that some new pulsation like arises, and at this time is happily passed, about sixty the health barometer takes another dip and storms of great import cloud the horizon of life.

These storms must be met, and wise people will fortify the resisting power of the body by Ferrozone, which builds up bodily strength, renews the blood, strengthens the heart and vital organs. New tissues are formed by Ferrozone, which enables the body to resist disease and prevent the organic changes so likely to supervene at this critical time.

No matter what the age or sex of the individual, as a nerve builder, a brain strengthener, and general body invigorator, Ferrozone is the best medicine. It pushes back the feeling and appearance of old age, and puts the elasticity and vim of youth into systems that ordinary remedies fail to rebuild. This is not mere theory, but a claim that is reinforced by overwhelming evidence of the honest merit of Ferrozone.

Unlike oily emulsions, and alcoholic bitters which are no longer prescribed by intelligent physicians, Ferrozone contains the latest and best strengthening elements in tablet form. Its quality therefore is uniform, its dose is small, just one tablet at meal time. You can't fail to be greatly benefited by Ferrozone, which is sold at druggists, price 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50. Insist on having only Ferrozone. Refuse all substitutes. By mail from N. C. Polson, Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

Gladstone and Bismarck.

At a dinner given in London in 1861 by Baron Brunnow to the Grand Duke of Saxe-Weimar Herr von Bismarck, who was one of the guests, had a long conversation with Mr. Disraeli, then leader of the opposition. He then said that he should shortly be obliged to undertake the direction of the Prussian government; that his first duty would be to reorganize the army; that he would then take the first best pretext to declare war against Austria, to dissolve the Germanic diet, to overpower the middle and smaller states and to give a national unity to Germany under the leadership of Prussia.

"I am come here," he said, "to say this to the queen's ministers." Mr. Disraeli's remark on this extraordinary programme, which was later literally fulfilled, was: "Take care of that man. He means what he says."—"Reminiscences of Lord Augustus Loftus."

The Names of Tea.

We talk glibly about Pekoe, Bohea, etc., but few people have any idea of what these names signify.

"Pekoe" in the dialect of Canton means "white hair," for the tea which bears this name is made from the youngest of leaves, so young that the white down is still on them.

"Soochong" in the same dialect is a quite unpoetic name; it merely signifies "small kind."

"Flourishing spring" is the meaning of "Hyson."

"Congo" signifies "labor." Much trouble and toil are expended in its preparation at Amoy, and these are commemorated in its name.

"Bohea" is called after a range of hills.

Be What You Are.

Associate reverently and as much as you can with your loftiest thoughts. Man's noblest gift to man is his sincerity, for it embraces his integrity also. The finest uses of things are the accidental. Routine is a ground to stand on, a wall to retreat to. Be resolutely and faithfully what you are, be humbly what you aspire to be. Disappointment will make us conversant with the noblest part of our nature. We render men the best assistance by letting them see how rare a thing it is to need any assistance.

Weeds.

A weed is a plant that grows in abundance out of desired limits. Any plant may become a weed by escaping from cultivation. Many plants that with us are highly esteemed in other countries grow as weeds, while, on the other hand, our weeds are in other countries sometimes highly prized. The correct use of the word depends altogether on circumstances.

A Waste.

"The train I was on this morning," said little Elsie's papa, "struck a poor cow and cut her head right off."

"My gracious!" exclaimed the little girl. "I suppose the milk poured right out all over the ground."

To endeavor to work upon the vulgar with fine sense is like attempting to hew blocks with a razor.

THE OREGON MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY

Offer to Canadian investors a limited amount of stock of the above company. The property owned by the Company consists at the present time of about 500 acres, which are located in the Tarryall District and Park County, Colorado. This whole district has been known for years on account of its rich placer ground, and is now prominently before the public owing to the number of very good properties which have been opened up recently producing, principally, gold, and lately, some that are producing Platinum. On the Oregon property there are a number of well known veins of low grade ore that will yield a profit by being treated on the ground of the company. The company have recently opened up a fine vein in the Hawkeye group and this vein shows not only good values but an immense amount of ore which alone would make the property very valuable. Assays from ore taken from various parts of this property range from a few dollars to $373 per ton in gold. We have very little silver, lead or copper in the district. The company have a shaft 240 feet deep, with a good shaft house thoroughly well equipped with all modern machinery to develop same. They are now driving a tunnel which is in about 700 feet and which will cut the Hawkeye vein about 300 feet deeper than where it is opened at present. There is enough ore exposed on the property of this company to keep them busy for a number of years and the reason for selling stock at the present time is to secure funds to build a mill. The company will probably join with the Almaden Company in building this mill. There is water enough to furnish water power and over 100 acres of fine spruce and pine timber. The affairs of the company have always been managed in a business-like economical manner and there are no officers' salaries. The monies received from the sale of stock go direct into the property.

I can heartily recommend this stock as safe, as well as an unusually good investment, because of the immense amount of ore which the company have already opened up. It is not a mere prospect, but the property has been developed by expense of a considerable amount of money and time.

The company is splendidly officered by men of integrity and high standing. The company has not pushed the sale of stock the last year owing to a delay in getting title to the ground from the Government, but now that has been satisfactorily adjusted and work will be pushed to a finish.

The number of exceedingly rich strikes which have been made during the last few weeks in the various camps in the State of Colorado is the best evidence of the prosperity of the mining business. Almost every camp in the state has opened up rich bodies of ore, and Park County is well in the lead in that line.

There are only $25,000 of stock for sale, at $1.00 per share. The company is capitalized at $200,000, and the advantage to the investor of selling the stock at par, is that every share is fully paid up and non-assessable.

BEET SUGAR BY-LAW DISCUSSED AT OPERA HOUSE

Messrs. W. H. Moore and J. W. Garvin Measure Swords on the Question of Guaranteeing the Beet Sugar Company's Bonds

If the attendance at Bradburn's opera house Thursday night to hear discussed the proposition to guarantee the Beet Sugar Company's bonds can be taken as a criterion of our ratepayers' interest in so important a question, then that interest must be at an exceedingly low ebb. There were under 200 citizens present and the lack of enthusiasm was marked. But two speakers occupied the platform, besides the chairman, although Mr. Dawson Kennedy gave a brief address in favor of the scheme from the floor of the house.

His Worship Mayor G. M. Roger, took the chair, and explained that the meeting was called by request of the Board of Trade, members of which he invited to take a seat on the platform. Mr. W. H. Moore and Mr. J. W. Garvin were the only two to accept this invitation. His Worship then continued that the council had very carefully considered the proposition, and finally adopted a by-law, which gives all the security possible under the circumstances, and it remains for the ratepayers to decide whether they consider that security sufficient or not. This is a matter worth being discussed on its merits for all it is worth.

MR. J. W. GARVIN.

Was the first speaker. He regretted that Mr. Gordon, president of the Wallaceburg Sugar Co. was not present. Something had interfered with his coming, but maybe his presence can be secured for next Tuesday night. Mr. Garvin then went on to give an exhaustive history of the proceedings originally instituted by Mr. T. E. Bradburn for the establishment of a big sugar factory in Peterborough, and continued up to date. Mr. Bradburn was only interested as a citizen, owning considerable property, and naturally having a view to the best interests of Peterborough. In discussing the unfortunate circumstances leading up to the present difficulties of the company, Mr. Garvin said he would not, under any circumstances, offer any of their bonds for sale until the success of the company was placed beyond question. The idea of asking the town to guarantee the company's bonds to the amount of $100,000 came to him, conceiving that as the government had adopted a policy of guaranteeing railway bonds, and Ontario had guaranteed the bonds of a linen factory to the amount of $50,000, such a principle would be a safe one for Peterborough to adopt in this case. If the company gives property valued at $3350.00 as security for the guaranteeing of $100,000, in bonds, surely that should be a safe proposition. Mr. Garvin does not ask a cash bonus, but simply a guaranteeing of $100,000 for three years and he'll put in another $100,000 in cash. We could not, Mr. Garvin said, get the plant of the Dresden factory for less than $400,000 in bonds and $100,00 cash. We could not buy the bonds of the Wiarton factory for less than $150,000 solid cash, and in order to make that a first class plant it would require an expenditure of $35,000. This shows that the demand for sugar factories to-day is so great that you cannot get a plant similar to that we propose to bring from Holland for less than $300,000. It is because we have an exceptional bargain on this Holland plant that Mr. Gordon was induced to come down here and make his proposition to the town.

The speaker then went on to prove that it is quite possible to secure a sufficient acreage to produce enough beets for the factory, and at a substantial profit to the farmer. If a farmer grows 12 tons to the acre, that will bring him $66 an acre. Deduct $6 for drawing in and this will leave $60 an acre. The cost of cultivating the beets could not possibly cost more than $30, which would leave a net profit of $30. As to getting labor there would be no difficulty in that respect, in support of which Mr. Garvin read a letter from the International Labor Association, saying that they can send the farmers any number of immigrants. This statement was received with hisses, but the speaker explained that these immigrants were undoubtedly from Holland and other European states, accustomed to cultivating sugar beets. In talking of the expenses connected with running the proposed factory, he asserted that it would cost over $150,000 to run the institution. It takes 3,000 tons of lime and 7,500 tons of coal to operate a half-million dollar plant of this kind four months in the year, to say nothing of wages and incidental expenditure. Referring to street talk of salaries already paid, Mr. Garvin said the company had only paid $205 in solicitor's fees, $25 a month for a bookkeeper and $25 a month for an office assistant. His brother had merely received three months' salary in fourteen months, while he himself had not drawn a cent for six months.

Mr. J. L. Hughes here asked how it is that as the farmers are to be so much benefitted by the sugar factory they are not asked to guarantee the company's bonds.

Mr. Garvin replied that they had to act quickly in order to secure the government's bounty of $25,000 a year for three years. There was no time to canvas a whole community of farmers, who will not receive as much benefit from the factory as Peterborough. But the farmers are already helping by selling the beets one dollar cheaper than their original price for two years. Mr. Garvin then concluded by pointing out that Michigan factories were paying 25 30, 40 and even 60 per cent. dividends. While one company had paid for itself out of three years dividends.

MR. W. H. MOORE.

assured Mr. Garvin and his company that he is truly sorry that they are in so bad a condition financially as admitted by Mr. Garvin, who has told us plainly that they are on their last legs and entirely at our mercy. As the town are paying the expenses of the by-law the town should have made an enquiry into the company's affairs, made a careful audit, and ascertained its position financially. He thought the council did wisely in assisting the Canadian General Electric Company and the Cereal Company, both of which institutions have and are proving to be of direct benefit to Peterborough. But surely no one can argue successfully that the town would be wise in aiding any company, unless it is financially strong, and is not in that distressing condition and state of despondency which the Peterborough Sugar Company find themselves in to-day. These are the lines which the town has followed in the past, and should pursue in the future. Taking up the progress the sugar company has made Mr. Moore said there is to-day. Nothing on which to place a lien for material or wages owing; they owe $9,500 yet on the property; of which they have no deed of conveyance; and according to their own statement, they have spent $15,000 on somebody else's land. It is said by Mr. Garvin that we shall have $35,000 against our endorsement of the company's bonds; but the company is in debt to-day, away down deep. No one can tell how much because no statement has been given of what is now owing; for all we know our money may go toward liquidating the debts this company owes to farmers and others. It will cost $170,000 to purchase, dismantle and transport that Holland machinery, and another $20,000 to install it in the Peterborough factory. This makes $190,000 and the only money forthcoming is Mr. Gordon's $100,000, which will be needed to complete the building already begun. Now, continued Mr. Moore, the town's guarantee will be for only $100,000, which, leaving Mr. Gordon's $100,000 for the building, will be the only funds in sight, even providing bonds to that amount are sold to pay for the Holland plant, to cost $190,000 for purchase, dismantling and installing here. Now, "I would like to know where that remaining $90,000 is to come from.

Mr. Moore here expressed doubt of the company being able to sell its unguaranteed bonds, and said that a man offered his stock at 5 cents on the dollar and could get no one to take the bargain. He was satisfied that they could neither sell their bonds or get farmers to grow beets. But there, he continued, Mr. Garvin has not the least expectation of being able to operate the factory this year, as evidenced by the wording of his advertisement for beets, which reads as follows:

"Should the factory not be completed in time to slice the beets, the Wallaceburg factory will take them at $4.50 a ton."—Now here's the thing which caught my eye, continued Mr. Moore with humor,—"And pay the farmer direct from Wallaceburg." That certainly will be an improvement on last year.

Mr. Moore then went on to show that the farmers will not touch sugar beets. For one thing they are exceedingly conservative, and consequently slow to change; and it costs more to cultivate sugar beets than it does mangles, turnips, carrots and other roots.

In conclusion Mr. Moore expressed his belief that the town cannot afford to carry the beet sugar by-law. Our debt, he said, is $558,400.07, to which must be added $82,219.17 on local improvements debentures, one-eighth of the whole assessable property. Then it is necessary to have a new Collegiate Institute, which is bound to come, and this means an increased debt of $50,000. A main outfall sewer for Ashburnham must also be provided for at a cost of $15,000; the break in the waterworks dam will cost $3,000, and the dam will then, according to an expert, only last five years, when a new one will have to be constructed, a portion of the water mains is to be duplicated at a cost of $15,000, and the town can't say nay; a site for a new drill hall is on the programme, at a cost of from $10,000 to $15,000; and a new fire hall and improvement apparatus must be furnished to keep down our fire rates to a satisfactory figure, which means another $15,000. Altogether our debt will soon reach $800,000; a pretty big figure and greater than that of Toronto, compared with its assessment. Mr. Moore did not think the town could afford, in the face of this debt, to guarantee the bonds of the Sugar Company to the tune of $100,000. If things go on like this, he said, we shall soon have to get a guarantee on the back of our bonds, the same as Mr. Garvin wants the town to do for the sugar company. He thought Mr. Garvin had made a miscalculation, and came to the meeting to say, with his hat in his hand, "for God's sake have mercy on a company which has made a miscalculation."

made a brief speech in eulogy of sugar beets, which industry he thinks is destined to be a leading one in this part of the country. The only thing he sees against it is that the farmers have not yet been educated up to the idea of growing sugar beets. An industry which fails at first often turns out to be a very successful one at last. The sugar beet industry of Germany is paying $32,000,000 a year in taxes to the state. For the last thirteen years I have been, he said, intensely interested in the establishment of a beet sugar industry here. The grain growing industry has gone from us, it appears that our land is just adapted to the growing of beets, and it will be a calamity if we allow this opportunity to pass.

Knoxville Tenn., April 29.—A jealous duel caused a negro congregation to disperse in a hurry today near Ison's station. George Whitesides and Arizona Goins has trouble about a woman and both drew pistols and began firing. Goins fell dead with a bullet through his heart, and his brother Jim Goins, was mortally wounded. Whitesides was shot through one arm, while another bullet, which would likewise have killed him, smashed a whisky flask which he had in an inside coat pocket. The shooting nearly caused a riot and Whitesides had no trouble in escaping to the woods.

TO CANADIAN INVESTORS

I desire to call the attention of investors to the

Smuggler Gold Mining Co.'s Proposition

of which I am the authorized agent

Investments in mining stocks where they can be purchased cheaply whose property contains merit and whose directors are men of unquestionable honor and integrity, and especially when sufficient work has been done to guarantee a producing mine and the leads have been demonstrated to be permanent, offer the greatest opportunity for large returns from modern investments.

The shrewdest capitalists of England and America are giving more attention to mining properties and putting more money into them than at any time in the past history of the world.

The Smuggler Group consists of five full staked claims, to-wit:- The Smuggler, Gangen, Black Jack, Peter and Red Rock, located in the Greenhorn District of Eastern Oregon. Surrounding mines are Petrel, Pride of Pendleton, Bonanza and Rockefeller, developing work, to the extent of 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifts and crosscuts have been made, exposing hundreds of tons of high grade ore, averaging from $25 to $45 per ton, based on smelter returns and for the purpose of equipping the mines a limited number of shares of Treasury Stock will be sold at 25 cents per share, the par value of which is $1.00.

HIGH CLASS INVESTMENT

LA ZACUALPA RUBBER PLANTATION COMPANY

Incorporated Under the Laws of the State of California.

La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation is situated in the best location in Mexico for the cultivation of rubber. It has been shown for a great many years as a very choice strip of rubber land and subsequent experience has shown that it is equal to all that has been claimed for it. The affairs of the company are in the hands of men of undoubted integrity and high reputation as successful men of business. To those seeking a safe investment which will secure a good income for life, this proposition offers a favorable opportunity

Shares in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation are not capital stock of a corporation, and carry none of the responsibilities and obligations, or liability to assessment of capital stock; but represent an undivided interest in the plantation itself.

The twelve thousand acres comprising the plantation are divided into twelve thousand shares, each share representing one acre of land, and the holders of shares in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation are the actual owners of one undivided acre of land, for each share held, with a guarantee expressed upon the certificate by La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company, under its official seal, to plant two hundred or more rubber trees per acre for each share sold, and to care for same for a period of five years, and at the expiration of that time to gather the first harvest and deliver the net proceeds thereof to the shareholder.

In other words, La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company sells to each shareholder one undivided acre of land in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation, with two hundred or more rubber trees five years old, and their profits for all time, for each share sold, and agrees to plant so that the first harvest belonging to the shareholder is the one to be gathered from La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation during the sixth year from the date of the certificate.

After the delivery of the first harvest La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company will care for the plantation, and harvest and market the crop for ten per cent. of the net proceeds therefrom. Out of this commission the Company agrees to pay all costs of administration, including maintenance of its home and branch offices.

This plan gives the purchaser of shares an interest of definite acreage, and his proportionate share in the total yield of rubber from the entire plantation forever, making it absolutely certain that the interest of each shareholder will receive the same care and attention forever, making it absolutely certain that no matter how large or small, for the success of the plantation will be the mutual gain of all.

The foregoing state of facts makes it impossible for any person or persons to combine against or injure the individual interest of the smallest shareholder in the plantation, or to encumber the same, and it can be readily seen that the success of one means the success of all

All persons have some money, but more time. A little money and five years of time, if applied to the cultivation of rubber, will produce large profits.

Full information will be supplied on application to Mr. Roland Kidd, Fiscal Agent for Ontario, or to

ONE OF THE BEST INVESTMENTS EVER OFFERED TO THE PUBLIC OF CANADA.

The Peterborough Brokerage Company will direct and through their agents offer a limited amount of stock of

Consumers' Coal Company
Limited.

Incorporated under the laws of South Dakota, with a capital stock of $250,000 with -hare a $1each.

The officers of the Company are C. F. Bumann, President and Treasurer; George W. Fuller Secretary, and C. J. Burrows, home officer in South Dakota as required by law. Of the $250,000 capitalization, in shares of $1 each, $210,000 worth is issued, the first small allotment of this was sold at 60c per share the second small allotment at 75c per share and the balance has all been sold at par, $1.

The Consumers' Coal Company controls and owns a coal mine at Peoria, a coal mine in Chenoa, Illinois which is a first-class coal mine on the Toledo, Peoria & Western and the Chicago & Alton R. R. The former Mine is over five different railroads running parallel to Chicago. The Mine is on a paying basis and the output is increasing from day to day. We have 321 acres underlaid with three distinct veins, or layers of coal which are 4½ feet thick each. The first one at a depth of 280 feet, it is this vein which we are now mining, the second one has a depth of 320 feet and the third at 463 feet. Our main shaft runs down through all three of these veins and a hundred feet below the third, which is reverse sump, makes our shafts total depth 583 feet. The mine is fully equipped and in good repair and working order. Our machinery engines and everything else is in duplicate so in case of a breakdown we can switch and operate without any loss of time. We have our own blacksmith shop and car shop in which we build our own cars. Our output is now hanging in the neighborhood of 1500 tons per day, but I have the promise of the superintendent to increase the output to not less than 2000 tons per day within two or three weeks, knowing his ambitions and throw this to be possible.

Although it should not cost more than 50c at the highest to mine coal in Illinois, yet it costs us a little over a dollar owing to the extensive improvements we have made in and at the mine, but as we increase the output the cost per ton of mining will decrease, as our fixed expense will be no more in mining several hundred tons per day than they are at the present time in mining one hundred tons. Up to the present time we have sold most of our output at the mouth of the shaft to the surrounding farmers and town people and, therefore, we have no freight or cartage to pay. We receive from $2 75 to $2 90 for Mine Run and $2 75 for Lump. In that way we have made quite a handsome profit and we estimate that our average, or net earnings at the Mine up to the present time is about $600 per day and we hope to soon increase this as we increase output.

We have three yards in Chicago in which we are handling 16 different kinds of coal and we have a very substantial business and have made considerable profit each month out of which we have paid over 20 per cent in dividends last year and accumulated a surplus fund equal to the amount paid in dividends.

The reason we are selling stock at the present time is that our business has grown so extensively that it takes more money to handle the same, besides this, we are buying teams with which to handle our coal in Chicago which will cost us about $600 each, we predict that this stock will be worth not less than $3 per share before another year is over as by that time our Mine will be producing not less than four or five hundred tons per day. We will appreciate your subscription to any amount you see fit to invest and if possible to interest some of your friendly do so. I remain,

Yours very truly,

BY MRS. M. J. HOLMES

Author of "For a Woman's Sake," "Love's Triumph," "Purified by Suffering," "A Grass Widow," "Woman Against Woman," Etc.

"I'd rather you would remain with me," he replied; "but as you cannot do both, I suppose you must go."

"I shan't be gone long," said Maggie, "and I'll send old Hagar to keep you company." So saying, she climbed the bank, and, mounting Gritty, who stood quietly awaiting her, she seized the other horse by the bridle and rode swiftly away, leaving the young man to meditate upon the novel situation in which he had so suddenly been placed.

"Ain't I in a pretty predicament?" said he, as he tried in vain to move his swollen limb, which was broken in two places, but which, being partially benumbed, did not now pain him much. "But it serves me right for chasing a harum-scarum thing when I ought to have been minding my own business and collecting bills for Douglas & Co. And she says she's been there, too. I wonder who she is, the handsome sprite. I believe I made her more than half jealous talking of my golden-haired Rose; but she is far more beautiful than Rose, more beautiful than any one I ever saw. I wish she's come back again," and shutting his eyes he tried to recall the bright, animated face which had so lately been anxiously above him. "She tarries long," he said at last, beginning to grow uneasy. "I wonder how far it is, and where the deuce can this old Hagar be of whom she spoke."

"She's here!" answered a shrill voice, and looking up he saw before him the bent form of Hagar Ward for a moment while she told of the accident and begged of Hagar to hasten.

Accordingly, equipped with a blanket and pillow, a brandy bottle and the camphor, old Hagar had come, but when she offered the latter for the young man's acceptance, he pushed it from him saying: "Camphor was his detestation, but he shouldn't object particularly to smelling of the other bottle!"

"No, you don't," said Hagar, who thought him in not quite so deplorable a condition as she had expected to find him. "My creed is never to give young folks brandy except in cases of emergency." So saying, she made him more comfortable by placing a pillow beneath his head, and then, thinking possibly that this, to herself, was "a case of emergency," she withdrew to a little distance, and sitting down upon the gnarled roots of an upturned tree, drank a swallow of the old cognac, while the young man, maimed and disabled, looked wistfully at her!

Not that he cared for the brandy, of which he seldom tasted, but he needed something to relieve the death-like faintness, which occasionally came over him, and which old Hagar, looking only at his mischievous eyes, failed to observe. Only those who knew Henry Warner intimately gave him credit for the many admirable qualities he really possessed, so full was he of fun. It was in his merry eyes, and bout his quizzically-shaped mouth, that the principal difficulty lay; and most persons, seeing him for the first time, fancied that in some way he was making sport of them. This was old Hagar's impression as she sat there in dignified silence, rather enjoying, than otherwise, the occasional groans which came from his white lips. There were intervals, however, when he was comparatively free from pain, and these he improved by questioning her with regard to Maggie, asking who she was and where she lived.

"She is Maggie Miller, and she lives in a house" answered the old woman, rather petulshly.

"Ah, indeed—snappish, are you!" said the young man, attempting to turn himself a little, the better to see his companion: "Confound that leg!" he continued, as a fierce twinge gave him warning not to try many experiments. "I know her name is Maggie Miller, and I supposed she lived in a house. But who is she, anyway, and what is she?"

"If you mean is she anybody, I can answer that question quick," returned Hagar. She calls Madam Conway her grandmother, and Madam Conway came from one of the best families in England—that's who she is. And as to what she is—she's the finest, handsomest, smartest girl in America; and as long as old Hagar Warren lives, no city chap with strapped down pantaloons and sneering mouth is going to fool with her, either!"

"Confound my mouth! It's always getting me into trouble," thought the stranger, trying in vain to smooth down the corners of the offending organ, which in spite of him, would curve with what Hagar called a sneer, and from which there finally broke a merry laugh, sadly at variance with the suffering expression of his face.

"Your leg must hurt you mightily, the way you go on," muttered Hagar, and the young man answered: "It does almost murder me, but when a laugh is in a fellow he can't help letting it out, can he? But where the plague can that witch of a —I beg your pardon, Mrs. Hagar," he added, hastily, as he saw the frown settling on the old woman's face. "I mean to say where can Miss Miller be? I shall faint, away unless she comes soon, or you give me a taste of the brandy!"

This time there was something in the tone of his voice which prompted Hagar to draw near, and she was about to offer him the brandy when Maggie appeared, together with three men, bearing a litter or small cot-bed. The sight of her produced a much better effect upon him than Hagar's brandy would have done, and motioning the old woman aside, he declared himself ready to be removed.

"Now, John, do pray be careful and not hurt him much," cried Maggie, as she saw how pale and faint he was, while even Hagar forgot the curled lip, which the young man bit until the blood started through, so intense was his agony when they lifted him upon the litter. "The camphor, Hagar, the camphor," said Maggie, and the stranger did not push it aside when her name poured it on his head, but the laughing eyes, now dim with pain, smiled gratefully upon her, and the quivering lips once murmured as she walked beside him: "Heaven bless you, Maggie Miller!"

Arrived at Hagar's cottage, the old woman suggested that he be carried in there, saying, as she met Maggie's questioning glance: "I can take care of him better than any one else."

The pain by this time was intolerable, and, scarcely knowing what he said, the stranger whispered: "Yes, yes, leave me here."

For a moment the bearers paused, while Maggie, bending over the wounded man, said softly: "Can't you bear it a little longer, until our house is reached? You'll be more comfortable there. Grandma has gone to England, and I'll take care of you myself!"

This last was perfectly in accordance with Maggie's frank, impulsive character, and it had the desired effect. Henry Warner would have borne almost death itself for the sake of being nursed by the young girl beside him, and he signified his willingness to proceed, while at the same time his hand involuntarily grasped that of Maggie, as if in the touch of her snowy fingers there were a mesmeric power to soothe his pain. In the meantime a hurried consultation had been held between Mag, Jeffrey and Theo as to the room suitable for the stranger to be placed in.

In the Spring the young man's fancy and, indeed, the fancy of most of us, turns to the coming of the Circus. As Charles Belmont Davis, Richard Harding's talented brother, says in May Outing, "The day we celebrate is the day we go to the circus." The graphic human article in which Mr Davis tells about the day he went, is one of the timely features of the attractive Spring number of Outing. Mr. Davis is proving conclusively that Brother Richard does not monopolize the Davis literary talent.

The pictorial feature of this strikingly beautiful number is a series of sixteen full page photographs of "The Burden Bearers of the World." These are only a few, however, of the many beautiful illustrations in the magazine. The first article, "A Pariah of the Skyline," is accompanied by many striking pictures of coyote hunts in the West. The article, by the way, is a spirited description of a buoyant, outdoor, recreation.

"Why Women are, or are not, good Chauffeuses" is the suggestive title of an interesting, modern application of the old problem of a woman's mind. Of peculiar interest to women is "The French Renaissance in Athletics, by Lamar Middleton, illustrated by photographs of Parisiennes enjoying the exhilarating exercise of cross country runs and obstacle races. "Lady Agril and the Rag Doll," by Zona Gale, is the fiction success of the number, although Stewart Edward White's "The Silent Places" is still holding the intense interest of hundreds of readers. More interesting than any fiction is Robert Dunn's intimate story of how he came "Home by Ice and by Swimming from Mt. McKinley."

The whole magazine is redolent of the Spring, the real outdoor awakening. An instance of this is the space devoted to fishing and fishers. William O. Harris, the Daddy of the craft, tells where to spend these May days "Among the Trout," and Edwyn Sandys and James S. Compton wax reminiscent and prophetic under such suggestive captions as "Some Old-time Fishing" and "Trout Visions of a Vandal."

John Burroughs contributes his second batch of interesting nature notes to his regular editorial department. His brother naturalist, Herbert K. Job has some more photographs of the rare birds he saw "On Lonely Bird Key." It is singularly appropriate that the magazine containing these beautiful camera products should publish an article on "The Story of the Camera," graphically describing the processes with make these possible. "A Season with the Road Coach," by Reginald W. Rives, is a leaf from the note-book of an authority on fashionable coaching. The usual departments covering the entire outdoor field, a little verse and some minor fiction completes the number. As always, Outing is typographically one of the most attractive publications of the month.

THE CATTLE TRADE AND ANNEXATION

Liverpool Man fears the Embargo Men drive Canada Into Uncle Sam's Arms

London, April 28.—Among those attending the Universal Congress of Lawyers in St. Louis in September will be Sir Robert Finlay and Edward Manson, the latter of whom has written much on colonial law. Both will visit Canada before returning to England.

W. P. Polnads has written the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce, emphasizing the importance which the Animal and Meat Trade Section attached to pressing upon the Board of Agriculture by all possible means for the removal of the restrictions against the importation of Canadian cattle for store purposes. The section looked upon the action of the Government as one of the possible means by which their Canadian brethren might be thrown into the arms of the United States, where no such restriction was imposed.

At the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce banquet on May 2 to the Canadian visitors Lord Strathcona will be unable to preside, and Sir Hibbert Tupper will be chairman.

This company now owns the well-known Augusta mine and its extension for over two feet in addition to other claims approximating a total acreage of 240 acres. This property has produced over $250,000 in gold, silver and lead ores and is a producer to-day. Has shipped ores of an average net value of $40 per ton for first class and $18 per ton for second class, all the past summer and the summer before smelter and mill returns of which are on file in our office.

Has immense bodies of these grades of ore which cannot be exhausted in five years already opened up and its main working tunnel is nearing completion, cutting the apex of the vein at a depth of 1,000 feet.

This block of shares is offered to enable the Company to connect the above tunnel with its concentrating mill and projected terminus of railroad by tramway, a distance of 11,120 feet, thereby permitting shipments during the entire year.

A production of at least 125 tons daily will be maintained when these improvements are made, and if completed in the early summer, dividends can be paid from ore settlements before this fall.

We offer for a limited time only a SPECIAL BLOCK OF 50,000 SHARES OF THE TREASURY STOCK of these Companies.

We reserve the right to reject subscriptions over and above the 50,000 shares offered. Each subscription to be booked as received.

This Company owns and controls over 300 acres of good mineral-producing ground, including the well-known Excelsior and Yankee Blade, which have produced upward of $175,000.

Tunnel B of the Black Queen Company is now going in at a rate of 175 feet per month, and early spring will see this work vieing with Tunnel A of the Augusta Company in its record of production.

Will cut known proven ore bodies 1100 feet from Apex, and open sufficient stoping ground to make an output of 100 tons daily.

Has already cut through a cross vein two feet in width of good marketable Galena ore, the point of intersection being 600 feet beneath the surface. We have 900 feet of this vein in length.

We can show you these facts and ask that you ask us to do so.

If your investment becomes profitable you will tell others; therefore it is much to our interest to have you make money on your investment.

BRITAIN LOSING AUSTRALIAN TRADE

Agent-General for New South Wales Says So and Then Suggests Remedy

London, April 28—Hon. H. Copeland, Agent General for New South Wales, addressing the Australian Chamber of Commerce in London, gave a disquieting picture of Australian trade slipping away from the motherland and going to foreign countries. Australian trade with the United Kingdom in 1891 amounted to £51,952,000, and it has receded by one and a half millions in 1901. In the same period trade with Germany had risen from £2,256,000 to £5,352,000, with the United States from £5,312,000 to £9,228,000. Trade has increased the greatest where the highest tariffs existed. He thought the loose screw was due to the Imperial Government leaving the commercial ties of Australia themselves. The remedy suggested was a consular staff in each large city, and the establishment at Sydney and Melbourne of an Imperial Government link in the shape of a small branch of the Board of Trade.

HEADDRESS PARTY NOW.

Wigs and Beribboned Hats Make Gay a Recent Swell London Reception.

The feature of a recent week was the amusing and picturesque headdress party given by Mr and Lady Feodorovna Sturb, the sine qua non of which was that all the guests had to wear fancy headgear, an exception being made only in the case of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught.

Undoubtedly the most becoming and most effective costume was that worn by the hostess herself. With a beautifully made white muslin dress and a blue sash she wore a high hat of white muslin and lace, trimmed with an edging of lace around the brim. Her hair was beautifully coiffured and powdered gray. Mrs. George Cornwallis-West caused amusement when she arrived. She had donned a blonde wig, like that worn by Marguerite, with long plaits, which completely changed her appearance. Her husband was disguised under a coal-black wig and mustache.

Mrs. George Keppel's headdress was novel. It was a wig of the Louis XVI. period, made in the palest green blue, with one long curl falling down the neck. In this novel wig was fastened a large blue and silver bat with electric eyes. Her dress was of white satin, trimmed with white lilies, cherries and lace.

Mrs. John Mendies wore an enormous white mob cap, trimmed with a great bow of cherry-colored ribbons. Mme. Van Andre looked handsome, but one missed her beautiful hair under a fair wig of the period when hair was dressed high with great combs at the back. Mrs. Newhouse's headdress also was of this period.

FINDS HER LOVER IN JAIL.

End of Romance of a Chicago Girl Which Had Its Inception in a Matrimonial Advertisement.

After a correspondence that had lasted several months, and which was begun in answer to a matrimonial advertisement, Hattie Peffel recently arrived at Binghamton, N. Y., to find that the man she expected to marry was a prisoner in the Broome county jail. Brought to trial on a charge of forgery, he pleaded guilty, and Miss Peffel, broken-hearted, returned to Chicago.

James C. Rankin, alias Norman Kirk, last December put an advertisement for a wife in a matrimonial paper. Miss Peffel answered it. The correspondence led to the interchange of photographs and it was arranged that they should marry. Then Rankin was arrested, but he continued to write, directing his letters from 50 Collier street, which is the jail number. She had no suspicion of the true state of affairs, and recently sent Rankin $30 in response to a request. The money was intercepted by the jail authorities and turned over to the dupe when she arrived.

"I get down on my knees every night," wrote Miss Peffel in one of her letters, "and pray that you'll be true to me. If anything should come between us I think I should die."

Though much broken up by the revelation that he is a criminal, Miss Peffel was still willing to marry Rankin, who is good looking and a smooth conversationalist. His sentence in prison made that impossible. Miss Peffel is an attractive, well-dressed woman.

Warship Damaged

London, April 27.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Standard says that a battleship under construction on the Neva is reported to have been seriously damaged. No details are given.

JAPANESE PLANS WILL GO ALL TO PIECES

Their Plan of Campaign Will Utterly Fail Says the Russian General--The Czar's Forces are Soon to Strike

New Chwang, April 29.—If official Russian advices from Mukden can be relied on, Gen. Kuropatkin's deployment is so far advanced that it covers the very lines the Japanese purpose to occupy. Should the Japanese succeed in driving the Russians north the Muscovite line of defense will extend from New Chwang to Liao Yang and from Liao Yang to the Yalu river. The Russians say the strategic situation is thoroughly satisfactory and the Czar's generals profess confidence that the Japanese can make no headway by frontal attacks, while the Russians can cope with the widely flanking operations the Mikado's men are likely to undertake.

When these operations begin, say the Muscovites, Kuropatkin's counter-strokes will bring down the Japanese scheme of defence like a house of cards. The continued delay on the part of the enemy is a great surprise to the Russians. They do not appear to think that the Port Arthur fleet stands in the way and they realize that the flat country around New Chwang exposes the place to effective bombardment by ships lying beyond the reach of field artillery.

THE SITUATION IN POLAND.

Warsaw, April 29.—Arrests of anti-Russian Polish agitators in all parts of European Russia, indicate the extent of the revolutionary movement. The fate of the prisoners is uncertain, but the leaders of the social democracy informs a press correspondent that stories of wholesale hangings are false. The working classes and the peasantry are in active alliance. The Social Democracy is the strongest force in politics in Russian Poland, and the Government finds it difficult to subdue the combination of intellectual and industrial elements in the disaffected province.

RUSSIAN FAITH IN A DREAM.

St. Petersburg, April 29—M. Bourgolf, who has been awarded $12,500 for improvements in submarine boats in an interview, says:

"There is less danger in navigating a submarine boat than a torpedo boat, and during a battle the former is safer than any other vessels."

Admiral Verkhovsky has showed the Empress a miraculous image of the Virgin, which the Russians fervently hope is going to turn the tide of battle at Port Arthur. The Admiral told the Empress the story of the Virgin as she appeared in a the image, which accurately depicts vision to a sailor, a veteran of the siege of Sebastopol. Two months before the outbreak of the present war the Virgin came to the sailor in a dream and said;

"Many woes are going to befall Port Arthur until my image is sent there. Then Port Arthur will be victorious."

The sailor went on a pilgrimage to the great monastery of Kieff and told his dream to the 10,000 pilgrims there. Each of them gave five kopecks ($ 1-2 cents) to have the dream depicted, but the artists who made image refused to receive payment. The ikon was eventually sent to Admiral Verkhovsky as senior admiral. It represents the Virgin bearing an image of Christ, archangels on either side and God the Father above, saying;

"There can be but one flock and one shepherd."

A BUSINESS MAN'S LETTER.

Wm. Thomson, Esq., of Orillia, Vice-President Standard Chemical Company of Toronto, Tells of a Visit to the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives.

GREATLY IMPRESSED WITH WORK BEING DONE.

Personally Raises Several Hundred Dollars to Help Lessen the Load of Debt.

There can be little doubt that the National Sanitarium Association is handicapped in its great work for Consumptives in the fact that its two institutions in Muskoka are far away from any large centre of population. Few people have an opportunity to see for themselves the magnificent work that is being done.

These hospitals are away from the public eye. Any, however, who do visit them, are united in their commendation of the splendid appointments of the place, and, best of all, of the real joy and hope that is being brought to many suffering ones.

We are glad to have the opportunity of publishing the following letter from Mr. Wm. Thomson, of Orillia, one of Canada's best known lumbermen, which tells what he has seen himself. It reads:

ORILLIA, Ont., November 2, 1903.

W. J. GAGE, Esq.,
Chairman Executive Committee
National Sanitarium Association,
Toronto, Ont.

My Dear Mr. Gage,—

I have much pleasure in enclosing herewith cheque for One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) from the Tudhope Carriage Company of Orillia, a donation to the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. Please acknowledge this to the Tudhope Carriage Company in the usual way.

I have written to a number of my friends, to try and get them interested in this good work. I hope to be able to send you further donations. I have written my friends a personal letter, something similar to the following:

"Last week I paid a visit to the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. I met some of the management there, and promised to try and interest some of my friends in this work.

"I might say there were 40 patients there last week, all poor people, most of them without a dollar in the world, and suffering from the dreadful disease, Consumption. There are many sad stories, and I know I have thought a great deal about the work of the institution ever since my visit there. I do believe it is worthy of assistance, and we who have health and the necessaries of life should encourage this work along.

"I understand the expenses lately have been double the income, and unless the management meet with more encouragement, I am afraid the work will have to be curtailed. I know you have many calls, but I do wish you would give this matter a thought, and, if possible, assist. I have written to two or three confidentially, and hope to be able to collect some more for this work. Should you not feel like contributing a donation, remember this request, and your reply is just between you and me, and strictly confidential.

"I might mention, to show that I have confidence in the work, I have already given a donation of $100.00 and two row boats to the Free Hospital this year, and intend to give another $100.00 before the end of the year."

Sincerely yours,

Wm Thomson

Sir Wm. R. Meredith, Kt., or Mr. W. J. Gage, Toronto, will receive and acknowledge any contributions made.

ABOUT VETERAN'S LANDS

Some Have Received Theirs—Others Have Not Been So Fortunate

Those veterans of 1866 who gave their papers to the Veterans' Locating and Colonizing Company are happy. They have got their lands located and are receiving their papers. Each receives a beautiful certificate, setting forth the military service which he did, and which will make a valuable heirloom. Some veterans, we understand, who left their locating to this concern know exactly where their lands are, and know it to be as good as any land in this rich Province. Some are close to the new Temiscaming Railway and others close to the route of the Grand Trunk Pacific.

On the other hand, complaints are made that the veterans who gave their papers over to the Army and Navy Veterans' Association officers last summer, in the belief that that body would send out an agent to locate lands, are sadly disappointed. Nothing has been done for them yet. A locating agent was appointed almost a year ago, but he has never been sent. Two months ago it was predicted that it would be May before the ground would be fit to be laid out, and May is at hand, and still nothing has been done. Those who handed over their certificates are very uneasy. They hope that the time for taking up the land will be extended. Some of them even go so far as to say that there will be litigation.

OPERA PUPILS APE DIANA.

Fair French Singers in Gay Attire Go on Hunting Expedition, But Secure No Game.

To instill a touch of realism into his pupils at the Paris conservatory, Mr. Isuardon, who is training incipient operatic stars, recently took 32 of them on a hunting expedition. Their destination was Rosarts-le-Roi, and when they boarded the train the fair huntresses created tremendous excitement.

Anxious to make the stage setting of their adventure complete they had adopted a regalia as picturesque as it was impractical.

All the way out they sang songs of the chase. When they arrived they struck attitudes with their guns, and tramped along in true Nimrod fashion. What they lacked in knowledge they made up in enthusiasm.

One pretty young woman went about all day with a wooden gun slung over her shoulder and a little wooden bow-wow (on wheels) following her about at the end of a string.

The rabbits did not seem to take the hunting party seriously, and scurried over their feet with an utter absence of consciousness that would have discouraged a veteran. No big game was brought down.

All stock fully paid and non-assessable. No personal liability to stockholders.

CAPITAL $1,500,000

IN TREASURY, 856,000 SHARES

Par value of shares $1.00 each.

The attention of all mining men is attracted to Tonapah and vicinity. The great finds which have been discovered on Lone Mountain, only a few miles distant, are to the investor still more attractive. Here we have value from the start. The Tonapah Crown Mining Company's ledges are plainly in sight for a distance of over 3000 feet.

We are bounded by such properties as the "Tamblyn," which ore assays from $950 to $1500 to the ton; Lynch & Oneabra's "Alpine," which is producing $30,000 per month; the "Lone Star" group and the "Princess Maud."

You Should Invest With Us

BECAUSE—The majority of the stock is in the treasury, 856,000 shares.

BECAUSE—The Company is managed by successful business men. They are Cyrus Wheeler, W. H. Routz, F. F. Hoard, F. A. King and C. A. Meaning, all of Los Angeles.

BECAUSE — No preferred stock; therefore every one is on an equal footing.

BECAUSE—We are selling our stock at a low rate now so we can put a large force of men to work and make shipments of ore just as soon as the railroad, now building, shall have been completed.

Thirty miles of this railroad is already graded and the road will be in operation by May 15.

A Crosscut Driven 117 feet to the First Big Vein

A drift run on the vein 178 FEET IN ORE, the Gold value or contents running from 2 to 8 ounces, per ton, or from $40 to $160. This ore has not been stoped and will not be until main shoot is reached.

The breast of the drift is, only 52 feet, according to engineer's survey, from the first BIG vertical ore shoot, which, at the surface, 550 feet above, shows values of 2 to 7 ounces gold, per ton.

Slabs and feeders of gold ore are coming in freely in the drift.

This is a business proposition. It is the KIND AND QUALITY which makes for great and permanent success. It is worth an investment of 10c. on the dollar, per share, now. It will be worth par with development.

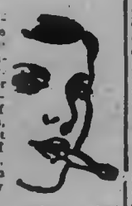
CATARRH

Don't Drug the Stomach — Breathe Nature's Remedy, Catarrhozone — Both Pleasant and Easy to Use. A Guarantee of Cure goes with it.



Catarrhozone always cures because it reaches the source of the disease quickly and thoroughly. Its healing vapor penetrates the minutest air cells of the nasal passages, throat and lungs. It attacks the cause of the disease direct, and doesn't work in a round about way through the stomach.

The antiseptics in Catarrhozone kill the germs that cause catarrh. It clears the nostrils, cures headache and foul breath. It prevents droppings in the throat, allays inflammation, heals sore spots and running at the nose.

So certain is Catarrhozone to remove and cure that doctors, ministers and public speakers keep it as their standby for coughs, colds, catarrh and throat trouble. Because it lasts, so long it is cheap, and as it is sure to cure even the poorest can afford to buy it.

Mrs. J. A. Morris, of Perth, Ont., writes, "I cannot withhold my testimony for Catarrhozone. It cured my daughter of chronic catarrh and I therefore heartily recommend it to all sufferers. No house should be without Catarrhozone."

Why not use Catarrhozone? It cures colds in a few hours, and no case of catarrh can withstand it. Catarrhozone cures by the inhalation of medicated air which goes to all parts of the lungs, throat and breathing organs. A pleasant, certain, quick cure follows the use of Catarrhozone, which is guaranteed under all conditions to cure catarrh in any part of the system.

Two months' treatment, hard rubber inhaler and extra liquid costs only one dollar; sample size 25c. Sold by all druggists or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., or Hartford, Conn., U.S.A. Order Catarrhozone now.

Strike Still On

The strike of the Great North-Western Telegraph operators is still on. No negotiations have yet been entered into with the company, but some developments are expected the early part of next week. The company has filled up the vacancies with operators taken from the outside offices, but the men believe that these will not prove satisfactory, and that the company will have to make terms.

Go for the Hospital

Sheriff Hall is doing a good deed in furnishing a beginning for a fund for the endowment of a perpetual cot for sick children in some hospital—that is a cot always ready for those cases which frequently arise in the Children's Aid work. The full sum required is, we believe, $2500, but large as it may be a beginning is what is wanted. Bequests and donations are sure to follow when it is realized that the need is of the highest importance.

No Infraction Intended

Mr. John Kylie, the well known Hunter street shoeman, was fined yesterday morning for infraction of the early closing by-law. To the Times Mr. Kylie explained that he does not keep open for the purpose of selling goods, for he has never broken the law in this respect. He conducts a custom department, and repairs are frequently called for at night. For this purpose he has been obliged to keep his store open, upon being assured that he might do so by the authorities. Not only this, but Mr. Kylie has no other means of ingress and egress to his home. He had no intention of violating the town by-law.

Honey Famine

According to the Brockville Times there is a honey famine in sight owing to the heavy mortality among bees the past severe winter. Last summer was a poor season for bees. It was for a time too dry then for a long time too wet. The bees did not get a chance to work. The result was that in the fall they not only did not have enough honey made to yield their owners a supply, but in many cases they did not have enough stored to last themselves through the winter. In order to try and pull them through most beekeepers had not only to leave the honey that was in the hives, but to feed the bees with sugar. Despite these efforts most of the bees have died.

DAN GROSVENOR SAYS:

"Pe-ru-na is an Excellent Spring Catarrh Remedy—I am as Well as Ever."

HON. DAN. A. GROSVENOR, OF THE FAMOUS OHIO FAMILY.

Hon. Dan. A. Grosvenor, Deputy Auditor for the War Department, in a letter written from Washington, D. C., says:

"Allow me to express my gratitude to you for the benefit derived from one bottle of Peruna. One week has brought wonderful changes and I am now as well as ever. Besides being one of the very best spring tonics it is an excellent catarrh remedy."—DAN. A. GROSVENOR.

In a recent letter he says:

"I consider Peruna really more meritorious than I did when I wrote you last. I receive numerous letters from acquaintances all over the country asking me if my certificate is genuine. I invariably answer, yes."—Dan. A. Grosvenor.

A County Commissioner's Letter.

Hon. John Williams, County Commissioner, of 517 West Second street, Duluth, Minn., says the following in regard to Peruna:

"As a remedy for catarrh I can cheerfully recommend Peruna. I know what it is to suffer from that terrible disease and I feel that it is my duty to speak a good word for the tonic that brought me immediate relief. Peruna cured me of a case of catarrh and I know it will cure any other sufferer from that disease."—John Williams.

A Congressman's Letter.

Hon. H. W. Ogden, Congressman from Louisiana, in a letter written at Washington, D. C., says the following of Peruna, the national catarrh remedy:

"I can conscientiously recommend your Peruna as a fine tonic and all around good medicine to those who are in need of a catarrh remedy. It has been commended to me by people who have used it, as a remedy particularly effective in the cure of catarrh. For those who need a good catarrh medicine I know of nothing better."

W. E. Griffith, Concan, Texas, writes: "I suffered with chronic catarrh for many years. I took Peruna and it completely cured me. I think Peruna is the best medicine in the world for catarrh. My general health is much improved by its use, as I am much stronger than I have been for years."—W. E. Griffith.

A Congressman's Letter.

Congressman H. Bowen, Ruskin, Tazewell county, Va., writes:

"I can cheerfully recommend your valuable remedy, Peruna, to any one who is suffering with catarrh, and who is in need of a permanent and effective cure."—H. Bowen.

Mr. Fred. D. Scott, Larue, Ohio, Right Guard of Hiram Foot Ball Team, writes:

"As a specific for lung trouble I place Peruna at the head. I have used it myself for colds and catarrh of the bowels and it is a splendid remedy. It restores vitality, increases bodily strength and makes a sick person well in a short time. I give Peruna my hearty indorsement." Fred. D. Scott.

Gen. Ira C. Abbott, 900 M street, N. W., Washington, D. C., writes:

"I am fully convinced that your remedy is an excellent tonic. Many of my friends have used it with the most beneficial results for coughs, colds and catarrhal trouble."—Ira C. Abbott.

Mrs. Elmer Fleming, orator of Reservoir Council No. 165, Northwestern Legion of Honor, of Minneapolis, Minn., writes from 2533 Polk street, N.E.:

Mrs. Elmer Fleming, Minneapolis, Minn.

"I have been troubled all my life with catarrh in my head. I took Peruna for about three months, and now think I am permanently cured. I believe that for catarrh in all its forms Peruna is the medicine of the age. It cures when all other remedies fail. I can heartily recommend Peruna as a catarrh remedy."—Mrs. Elmer Fleming.

Treat Catarrh in Spring.

The spring is the time to treat catarrh. Cold, wet winter weather often retards a cure of catarrh. If a course of Peruna is taken during the early spring months the cure will be prompt and permanent. There can be no failures if Peruna is taken intelligently during the favorable weather of spring.

As a systemic catarrh remedy Peruna eradicates catarrh from the system wherever it may be located. It cures catarrh of the stomach or bowels with the same certainty as catarrh of the head.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

TO FIGHT A DUEL

A Citizen Challenged to Fight a Duel on the Old Dickson Bridge

A peculiar case came before Police Magistrate Dumbie yesterday.

Donald Brown charged Felix Lynch with challenging him to a duel, contrary to the criminal code. Both are employees of the Dickson Company and it appears that Brown has owed Lynch a sum of money for some time, and the latter had made several attempts to collect it, but without success. They finally had litigation in the Division Court, and Lynch got judgment for $2.00. He endeavored to collect that amount from Brown, but was unsuccessful and Brown informed Lynch that he could go ahead and sue him.

Patterce had evidently ceased to be a virtue with Lynch, who forwarded Brown the following letter:

"Mr. Donald Brown.

"I would like if you would meet me on next Thursday about 7.30 on the old Dickson Bridge, and I will fight you to a finish, and let that settle our trouble. You are the meanest man I ever had anything to do with. You are acting a rogue and you have a rotten principle, but if you come and meet me I will settle with you in short order. Thursday evening 28th of April, at 7.30. Make no mistake."

Mr. R. F. McWilliams appeared for the accused. Magistrate Dumbie fined the accused $10 and $16 costs, to be paid in five days.

If Must Come.

As inevitable as the changing seasons of the year is the change which comes to every woman. And just as one anticipates the changes of other seasons it is wise to anticipate this change of season and prepare for it. In this way the discomforts and disasters suffered by many women at the period of change can be avoided or overcome.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, a medicine for every season of woman's life, will entirely meet the needs of women at this period of change. It cures the physical ills and relieves the mental anxiety and depression usually associated with this critical period. It tranquilizes the nerves, encourages the appetite and induces refreshing sleep.

$500 REWARD! FOR WOMEN

WHO CANNOT BE CURED.

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States, for any case of Leucorrhœa, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

J. S. Carlisle, Esq., of Manchester, Collin Co., Texas, writes: "I have been using your medicine for the last season or eighteen years in my practice. I am superintendent of the Collin County Penitentiary and Asylum combined. Your 'Favorite Prescription,' 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and 'Pleasant Pellets' are the best medicines for the diseases for which they are recommended, that I ever used. They have my wife's life at the time of 'change of life.' I have given commendation to your remedies in many afflicted women and have often guaranteed them if it did not cure I would pay back the money I got for it. I have told our druggist that if the cure I have in my mind of Dr. Pierce's medicines did not give satisfaction, to the above head state money and charge it to me. I have not once been called upon to refund. I have never found anything to equal the 'Favorite Prescription' for diseases of women."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps for the paper covered book, or 31 stamps for the cloth bound. Address R. V. Pierce, M.D., Buffalo, N. Y.

THE JAPANESE VERY ACTIVE ALONG THE BANKS OF THE YALU

Russians Report Steady Concentration by the Enemy--Active Operations Have Not Yet Begun

St. Petersburg, May 2.—The Japanese troops are still concentrating in the neighborhood of the Yalu River, but nothing of particular moment has thus far been reported.

The Emperor received a telegram from General Kouropatkin, under today's date, as follows:

"General Sassulitch reports that the night of April 28-29 passed quietly. Small bodies of Japanese are moving on the right bank of the Yalu, at the mouth of which steamers are arriving.

"On April 28, at about two in the afternoon Japanese columns were seen going from Yongampo towards Wiju, and a party of Japanese scouts was seen on a mountain to the southward of Sindaja.

"The Japanese have not yet undertaken any active operations."

Vladivostock, May 2.—The squadron, consisting of the armored cruisers Rossia, Rurik and Gromoboi, and the protected cruiser Bogatyr, put to sea at daybreak April 23. The Rurik returned the following day, but the others proceeded to Gen San, Corea, and hove to off the town during the morning of April 25, about five miles from the entrance of the bay. Admiral Yessen sent into the bay two torpedo boats, commanded by Lieutenants Poshi and Maximoff. As they ran in towards the shore they found the Japanese trading steamer Goyo-Maru at anchor with a crew of about 20 men on board. The latter were ordered ashore. Lieutenant Maximoff boarded the Goyo-Maru, took possession of her papers and flag, and then sent her to the bottom with a torpedo. The torpedo boat forthwith rejoined the squadron, after four hours' absence.

There was no sign of troops ashore and the bay was empty, but it was learned that four Japanese torpedo boat destroyers had put out to sea at dawn on April 25.

RETURNED TO PORT.

The Russian squadron returned to Vladivostock, and on the night of April 26 started on another expedition. At six in the evening of April 27, when 200 miles out the squadron sighted a Japanese steamer, with war stores on board. Her crew, consisting of 15 Corsean and 12 Japanese, were placed in safety and the steamer was sunk by a pyroxylin cartridge, fired from the Gromoboi.

The same night, at about 11 o'clock, when the squadron was 12 miles off Plaksin Bay, Corea, a large Japanese transport, the Kinshusimaru, was overhauled. Her commander mistook the Russian for a Japanese squadron and signalled "I am bringing you coal."

The Russian commander promptly signalled in reply, "Stop instantly."

FOUND THEIR MISTAKE.

The crew of the transport then recognized their mistake and began to lower boats and steam pinnaces with the greatest haste and endeavored to escape. But the Russian steam cutters captured them all.

On board the transport were four Hotchkiss guns of 47 millimetres. At the outset it looked as if no one was left on board, but on examination it was found that the cabin was locked and barred. Therein the Russians found six infantry officers, who surrendered without resistance and were taken on board the Rurik. In another part of the ship 130 infantrymen who refused to surrender were found.

Admiral Yessen, whose vessel was about 1,600 yards away, ordered his men to leave the transport. The Japanese soldiers then opened fire and wounded a Russian coxswain. Afterwards the transport was sent to the bottom by means of a mechanical mine and a few shots.

FIRED TILL ENGULFED.

The Japanese on board did not cease firing, and made no attempt to save themselves, though they had a launch in which they could have left the transport. The fire of the Japanese actually continued until the waves closed over the ship.

The transport had on board not only ammunition, but 2,000 tons of coal for Admiral Makamura.

The prisoners numbered 183, including 17 officers. Altogether 210 prisoners were taken by the Russian squadron landed at Vladivostock, and immediately dispatched by train to Nikolsk.

FOG DELAYED JAPS.

It was reported at the time the Russian cruisers were returning to Vladivostock that a Japanese fleet of ten vessels was also making for here but it failed to reach Vladivostock owing to the fog.

A wireless telegraph message was picked up by the Russian ships while at sea. It was in code and unintelligible, but was evidently passing between the Japanese ships.

CAME TOO LATE.

Among the Japanese prisoners are a colonel and an officer of the general staff, while the soldiers include a number of Japanese who before the war worked as artisans at Vladivostock. A Jap squadron was sighted off Vladivostock after the fleet's return.

St. Petersburg, May 2.—The poor Czar is in a helpless state, and his orders, which must be blindly carried out, spell confusion in many quarters.

By Nicholas' personal orders the army and navy at the front has a glut of commanders. While Alexieff in commander-in-chief both Generals Zenlyvitch and Kuropatkin are nominally in command of the same formations. Kuropatkin outranks Alexieff and will not take orders from him in the long run. That everybody is certain of.

Of the four corps commanders appointed by Nicholas, not a single one has had any experience whatever, with so large a contingent. The First Siberian corps has now been without a commander for three weeks yet Nicholas cannot decide upon a proper person.

The Second army corps, so called, consists of one brigade only. The Fourth corps has no existence in fact.

It is pointed out that since the beginning of the war every commanding position in the army and navy has had one or more substitute incumbents. The Czar also ordered the new formation of two new sharpshooter brigades, Nos. 9 and 10, for which there are neither men nor horses, and confusion reigns in all departments.

It is thought that the Czar fears European complications, having been informed of their imminence by his Danish relatives. Therefore he will not permit the order of battle of his European troops disturbed. The order of battle means the formations that eventually may take the field in the Balkans, or against the Germans.

Apraxin, author of blood and thunder novels, turned the war into a literary quarry, that promises to make him a rich man if peace is long delayed. Apraxin is writing a novel in daily installments, in which the war bulletins are cleverly interwoven. The hero is on the staff of Viceroy Alexieff, the heroine a prisoner on Admiral Togo's flagship; she risks her life daily several times by informing her swain of the Japs' moves. Of course, Togo informs the heroine of all his intentions and permits her to use his megaphone. The wonder is that Alexieff doesn't do better with such aid. The paper printing these yarns would have a million circulation daily if more Russians could read.

Dalai Lama Roused to Sense of British Power

London, April 30—Col. Younghusband, commanding the political mission to Tibet, reports that the situation in the country is improving. The Chinese Amban has sent notice that he is coming to negotiate with the mission. He adds that the Dalai Lama is now roused to a sense of the British power. The Tibetan officials are Lhassa are greatly perturbed and want the difficulty settled. There is a general attitude of acceptance of the inevitable, combined with a sense of relief at the flight of the oppressive Lhassa officials, who prompted the resistance to the mission.

The people of Gyangtse are friendly to the mission. Local traders are besieging the camp to sell produce to the mission at exorbitant prices. The Tibetans are sharp traders. They are already sending to India to increase their stocks.

RUSSIA'S INTRIGUE.

St. Petersburg, April 30—It is reported that the Russian agent at as has, in view of the British expedition now in Tibet, urged the Dalai Lama to take refuge in Russian territory.

WROTE REQUEST, IN HIS OWN BLOOD

Cap Then Got Leave to Risk Life for Country

Toronto, April 30—A letter has been received at the Methodist Mission Rooms from Rev. R. C. Armstrong, a missionary in Shidzuoka, Japan, in which he speaks of the effect of the war on religious work. He writes:

"History repeats itself in that nations in trouble seek Almighty help, and so the prayer service is better attended. To show the influence of war on the religious life, let me give an illustration. The other night I was returning from my class, when I met about fifty young men. They were dressed in something resembling white bathing suits; each one carried a Japanese lantern and a small sheep bell. The first one had a branch of evergreen. They ran in single file, and repeated as they ran "Rokon-shojyo.' I learned they were going to the temples and shrines praying for the success of the soldiers. They dressed in pilgrim outfits in order to receive favor from the gods. The green branch was symbolic of life, and the words means "May our six senses be pure, for otherwise the gods will not hear their prayer. I have seen this several times, but lately the Governor has has forbidden such superstitious practices, and so it has ceased."

In another part of the letter Rev. Mr. Armstrong writes of the spirit with which the Japanese have entered into the great conflict."

"The Japanese can teach us some lessons in patriotism," he writes. "When volunteers were desired 'to block Port Arthur, many applied who could not go. One of these was so disappointed at the refusal that he cut his finger, wrote an application in his own blood, and again sent it in and was accepted. Even the school children are filled with the spirit. In a certain city one boy is reported to have been killed because he took the part of Russia in a school contest representing Japan and Russia. And yet, though these things indicate deep feeling and loyalty, there is very little of the fiery spirit; it is more hidden and less demonstrative."

THE FINEST TYPE OF TRUE SOLDIER

Such was the Late Admiral Makharoff.

LORD NELSON HIS IDOL.

He Had Made Many Visits to England Where He was Very Well Known.

Toronto May 2.—Mr. T. P. O'Connor, writing of the late Admiral Makaroff, in "M.A.P.," has this to say:

Turning to the personality of Admiral Makaroff, there seems to be no doubt that he was one of those fascinating beings who are an inspiration in war and in peace, with all the virtues that win sympathy and affection. There is always a great attractiveness in the Russian soldier and sailor. Underneath there may be something of the untamed passions that they derive still from their closeness to the mysterious east. Kipling, who knows his Russian, though he is not quite fair to him, always contends that Russia should be considered the most eastern of European powers, but the most western of the nations of Asia; and I daresay that is a sound judgment. But, all the same, there is no man who has the external culture and charm of Europe to such an extent as the Russian gentleman. Brought up from childhood by women of different nationalities—by a French nurse, by an English governess, by a nurse from Germany—the Russian gentleman is often able to speak, not only with perfect correctness, but almost without a trace of accent, nearly every language of Europe. And of these foreign languages, the one the Russian loves most of all is perhaps the English. With all that antagonism which what are supposed to be conflicting ambitions create between the Russians and the British races, there is a good deal of respect underneath it all.

HIS STAY IN NEWCASTLE.

Admiral Makaroff was a true type of this Russian gentleman that I have been sketching. He spoke English perfectly; he was intimately acquainted with most English things; he had as his hero and master that greatest of the sailors of any nation and of any age—Nelson. I have seen it stated that he wrote a work on Nelson which showed yet grander appreciation and command of the genius and work of Nelson than even the famous books of Captain Mahan on the same subject. Makaroff was a daily student of Nelson, in fact. He also showed his keen faith in the naval genius of England by constant visits to this country. In Newcastle-on-Tyne he was especially well known, and says a Newcastleman, writing to the Westminster Gazette, "to know him was to like him."

The gallant admiral (continues this writer) counted a large circle of friends in and around Newcastle who will to-day sincerely mourn his fate. A man of fine presence, with a great charm of manner, displaying at all times a quick intelligence, a lively interest in all matters pertaining to shipbuilding and an old-world courtesy that knew no distinction of social station—it is little wonder that he became popular amongst North Country peoples. Probably his most intimate friend was Mr. Arthur Gulston, who was associated with him in the construction of the Yermack, and accompanied him on her earlier cruises to the Baltic. The admiral was a frequent and always welcome guest at Mr. Gulston's house in Newcastle, and the latter retains pleasant recollections of visits paid to Admiral Makaroff's home in Russia. It may be added that Admiral Makaroff spoke English with remarkable fluency, and upon one occasion delivered an admirable speech on Arctic exploration at a gathering in the Durham College of Science Newcastle.

"THE ENGLISHMAN."

In another way the dead sailor showed his appreciation of English methods. "The late Admiral Makaroff," says a writer in the Daily News, "was nicknamed 'the Englishman' by the Emperor Alexander II., owing to his intense activity and devotion to outdoor sports. Even when long past middle-age he allotted two hours a day to physical exercise. He rode before breakfast every morning, but his favorite exercise was swimming, and it is one of the ironies of fate that such a man, so much at home on the water, should die from drowning.

"Not only was Makaroff a first-rate swimmer, but he attempted to coerce his subordinates into equal proficiency. In 1900 he gave a silver cup to be competed for by the sailors at Cronstadt, and, timing the race, was much disgusted to find that the winner had taken longer to cover half a verst than he had often done it in himself. Every morning he was rowed in a boat from the Government quay for the purpose of bathing, and 'Old Blue-Beard,' with a towel across his arm, was sometimes seen walking to the quay within a week of the breaking up of the ice."

HIS READING.

The writer from whom I have just quoted seems to know more about Makaroff as the man than any other of those whose articles I have read. he has drawn a very vivid and intimate picture of him. Makaroff had that love of the light French novel in his hours of ease which seems to be a trait common to many great men of action. "Bismarck, we all know, was never so happy in his hours of rest as when he was deep in the entanglement of one of Gaboriau's detective stories. Mr. Balfour is known to be a devourer of French novels and memoirs; and, though it is not generally known, Mr. Chamberlain has the same passion. When he is so thoroughly exhausted by his tremendous work as to be unable to read anything else, Mr. Chamberlain can lose himself in a modern French story. So also did Makaroff amuse his leisure.

"In his library at Cronstadt," says the writer in the Daily News, "a whole wall of book-shelves was covered with the sensational romances of Eugene Sue and Dumas. His favorite, however, was Maupassant. He knew English well, but declared that he could not read English novelists except Smollett and Fielding. Poetry of all sorts he detested."

"OLD BLUE-BEARD."

Makaroff would not be entirely interesting and attractive if he had not had his share of human weaknesses. One was a strange hallucination as to his powers. He would not have cared, apparently, to have been recognized as one of the greatest sailors of his time, but he was very proud of his skill as an artist. I quote from the Daily News correspondent again:

"He invariably copied the designs for his own inventions, and his success in this encouraged him in the belief that he could draw from nature. During a holiday, two years ago, on the north coast of the Gulf of Finland, he spent nearly all his mornings turning out water-color drawings of the surrounding scenery. One day two young cadets from the Smoi Vaiki, who were spending their holidays on a 'datcha' or summer house close by, saw an elderly and somewhat untidy old man working laboriously at a sketch. Looking over his shoulder, they began to criticize the drawing unfavorably. The admiral turned round, and said quizzically, 'I think I know you, young gentleman.' 'We don't know you,' retorted one scapegrace, 'but you're as like Old Blue-Beard as two eggs.' The incident ended by the admiral inviting the offenders to lunch, dismissing them with the caustic words, 'Even elderly artists deserve respect from naval aristocrats.'"

The King in Ireland

Dublin, April 28.—King Edward, Queen Alexandria and their suites landed at Kingston from the royal yacht Victoria and Albert before noon, and soon afterwards proceeded to the Punchestown races. Their Majesties were accorded a splendid reception, and large crowds assembled to greet them. The vessels in the harbor were gayly trimmed with bunting, while Kingstown was bright with Venetian masts and festoons.

Several addresses were presented to the King, replying to which his majesty expressed his delight at finding the spirit of loyalty was in the future as evidenced on the occasion of his last visit. With the improvement in agriculture and industry, the King confidently anticipated a growth of better feeling throughout the country. His majesty believed that the greatest hope for the future of Ireland lay in education, for the wide diffusion of cultivated intelligence was the surest guarantee of social peace and the most faithful source of self-reliance.

Serious Tie-up Threatened

Montreal, April 30—Everything in the labor situation in Montreal points to a serious tie up in a very short time. The carpenters, plumbers, plasterers, and marble cutters are all expected to go out, unless some arrangement is come to.

BALKAN WAR IS NOW VERY NEAR

Clash in Smyrna May Lead to Fighting Once More

GREEK FLEET TAKES ACTION

Turks Would Imprison Agents of the Greek Government—Situation Considered Grave

Athens, May 2.—A sensational affray, in which the Greek representative in Smyrna was wounded, has caused the hurried departure tonight of a Greek squadron for Turkish waters. The affair is looked upon here as of grave importance, as it may prove to be the long-expected clash that is to plunge the whole Balkan region and the nations interested into war.

It appears that M. Delyannis, secretary of the Greek consulate in Smyrna, endeavored to open the shops of Greek merchants which had been closed for nonpayment of taxes. This was opposed by the gendarmes. The Turkish authorities imprisoned M. Delyannis and two consulate guards, who were only released after the intervention of the French consul.

The Turkish minister here, after a long conference with the foreign minister, promises full satisfaction for the affair.

An official communique issued tonight says M. Delyannis, acting in self-defence, fired several shots. The Greek consul general proceeded to the office of the Ottoman governor after the arrest of M. Delyannis and the consulate guards and found M. Delyannis there, bound and bleeding from his wounds. M. Delyannis was authorized to accompany the consul general, but the soldiers prevented the departure of the two guards and unharnessed the horses from the consul's carriage. The guards were finally released through the intervention of the French consul. The communique adds; "A fleet is leaving this evening to engage in maneuvers."

BECOMES AGGRESSIVE.

In the present critical condition of affairs not much is needed to precipitate a war that would involve Turkey, Greece, Bulgaria, Austria, and Russia. Since the outbreak of war in the east the Sultan has become aggressive, believing that Russia is so sully occupied that she will not be disposed to interfere in his affairs.

The Turkish army is in better condition to carry on a war than it has been at any time since 1878. It nominally numbers about 300,000 men, but should occasion require 1,500,000 men could be called to the service.

The cavalary and artillery are well drilled and thoroughly equipped. While the Sultan has been parsimonious in every other respect his expenditures for the army have been on a generous scale. German officers have entirely reorganized the force within the last few years and its effectiveness has been greatly increased.

London, May 2.—England is now free from the anxieties of the empire. The Thibetan expedition is a hazardous venture and the condition of South Africa is far from satisfactory. Protests against the demand of the crown colony agents for exclusive control of the purchase of supplies for the Transvaal and the Range river colonies can be easily met by official compromises, but there are many signs of discontent and dangerous unrest in South Africa. One is the circumstantial evidence of the formation of a Boer secret conspiracy in the Lydenburg district, with concealed supplies of arms and ammunition. Another is the widespread disappointment over the continuance of hard times and the prostration of mining interests.

Cotton Industry Suffers

London, April 30—One of the largest cotton spinners in Blackburn says that the exodus of the Lancashire cotton workers who have started for Canada is likely to ruin thousands and be the greatest blow to the industry since the cotton famine caused by the civil war in 1863. Numbers of emigrants are taking with them a capital of £50 to £150.

A FEELING OF UNEASINESS IN ENGLAND OVER CIVILIAN ARMY

Members of Parliament Regard the War Office's Attitude With Some Disfavor--News from Over the Ocean

London, May 2.—The circumstantial rumors which are current concerning the attitude of the new War Office organization towards the volunteer force are causing much uneasiness amongst the large number of members of Parliament who regard the encouragement of the civilian army as one of the most essential features of our military system. The resignation of General Sir Alfred Turner, Inspector-General of Auxiliary Forces, and of Colonel Leroy Lewis, his Deputy Adjutant-General, and the transfer of the Auxiliary Forces branch to Whitehall with purely nominal duties, while the real power remains in the Adjutant-General's Department, and in the hands of heads of sections believed to be hostile to the volunteers, were yesterday the subject of much adverse comment in the lobby. Surprise was also expressed at the fact that such steps should be taken before the Royal Commission presided over by the Duke of Norfolk had reported.

London, May 2.—Edward S. Montague and Baron Herbert have written an open letter commenting on an article recently published in the Times, under the caption, "Canada and the Commercial Defence of the Empire." The letter in part follows:

"The Times' article begins with a reference to the preference granted to Great Britain by the Canadian Government. But this preference was given primarily as a popular method of reducing Canadian taxation—i. e. the taxes on Canadian imports paid, of course, by the Canadian consumer. The Canadian Government, well knowing that England could not give her a preference without abandoning free trade, refused to ask for one, and it was not until the corn tax of 1902 temporarily made such preference possible that they consented to do so.

SIR RICHARD'S POSITION.

"The article would seem to infer that Sir Richard Cartwright is a supporter of Mr. Chamberlain's scheme. But Sir Richard Cartwright is, if we may use the expression, a Balfourite retaliator who does not discard a tax upon corn as a method of retaliation. He has no sympathy at all with Mr. Chamberlain's proposal to tax all foreign foodstuffs in order to bind the Empire together, but suggests in the interests of British trade a retaliatory tax on the United States, a tax which, if successful, must perforce be temporary. Such a tax must not be confused, as is done by your correspondent, with the permanent one that would be necessary for a colonial preference.

"Although the leaders of Western opinion may be willing to concede a substantial increase of the existing preference to Great Britain, the manufacturers of the east are not, but are, on the contrary, demanding adequate protection for their products in the home market. That adequate protection, in certain lines at any rate, they do not consider the present tariff against Great Britain gives them.

THE FARMERS' POSITION.

"The article draws attention to the natural preference that the Canadian farmer already enjoys over the American farmer, due to cheaper railway rates, cheaper land, better quality of wheat and larger yield per acre. But this seems to me the overwhelming argument against the necessity for a further preference to this already profitable industry from every point of view Canadian farming is more profitable and [illegible] under better conditions than farming in the United States. Each time that he points this out he demonstrates afresh the absence of any need for a further preference. All the Canadian agriculturist requires in order that it may boom are the advocates of preferential tariffs devote its advertisement, and this it is getting. Consequently it is booming, and settlers are arriving as fast as they can be placed on the land. Every pound of agricultural produce the Canadian farmer can send to Britain finds a ready market there at a price that is highly profitable to the producer. Hence the suggested preference would seem to be quite superfluous and even lost in the larger preference with which nature has endowed the Canadian farmer."

London, May 2.—"Are you suggesting," said Mr. Justice Grantham, Wednesday, "that the value of a horse is to be dependent on its value as a means of gambling?"

Council replied that he thought everyone who knew anything of the turf was aware of that.

The judge was hearing an action brought by Mr. Charles Hibbert, of Nottingham, to recover 300 guineas from Mr. Benjamin Elam, the proprietor of the Warren House stud farm, Epsom, for the loss of a racehorse, Rushlight, which met with an accident and had to be destroyed.

The mare cost 410 guineas in 1902 as a two-year-old. The jury awarded the plaintiff £25 damages.

London, May 2.—Thomas Taylor, described as a toy manufacturer, in answering a judgment summons at the Lambeth County Court, said he had no means. German imports had ruined his trade.

Judge Emden—"You ascribe your misfortune to German competition?"

Mr. Taylor—"Yes, the Germans have taken my trade away. I lost £11,000 sterling."

London, May 2.—Sympathy for Japan in her contest with Russia is everywhere evident in the metropolis, and invades the home as well as the mart.

The latest decorative fad is the Japanese print showing all sorts of warlike and other native scenes in vivid red and blue on a cream background.

Some of the prints, however, are on a dark blue background, and collectors will be glad to know that these are frequently very old and sometimes valuable.

One way in which these prints are utilized is to make a frieze of them, either encased in a cedar wood frame or mounted on a blue and white cretonne cloth.

Sofa pillow decoration is, however, the very latest use to which they have been put. A decorator, too, has evolved a pair of curtains in which the prints are pasted all over the curtains close together on both sides, and blue satin ribbon is basted crosswise and lengthwise on the curtains to make a frame. The ribbon is then stitched on both edges with yellow silk thread.

TORONTO AND THE CANAL

The Queen City Strongly in Favor of the Perdiliope Route

If Trenton gets the Trent Valley Canal the merchants of Toronto might just as well bid the trade of the Midland district farewell, says the Toronto Star. They would not have a chance in competition with Montreal. As matters stand now the Montreal wholesaler can land his goods on the wharf at Port Hope for exactly the same price as a Toronto man can place his bales and boxes at the same point. It is 277 miles from Montreal to Port Hope. The distance from Toronto to Port Hope is about 56 miles by water.

If the Montreal business man is on the same terms with his Toronto rival at Port Hope what opportunity will the latter have if Montreal has a through line of barges entering the Midland district at Trenton, 40 miles further east?

In addition, the Montreal man's goods would be carried by craft that would take return freights as incidental and charge accordingly, while the Toronto man, to obtain transportation, will have to pay a rate that will reimburse the barge owner, is he has to make the return trip light, if indeed he secured a chance to ship by water via Trenton to that district at all. The chances are that if the outlet is at Trenton there will be no western traffic at all, and the Toronto man will have to meet Montreal competition with goods sent in by rail. Every shipper knows what that means. In the interests of Toronto, Hamilton, and other points, and in the interests of the Midland district itself, the outlet should be located at Port Hope.

Labor Premier Cautious

London, April 30—Premier Watson of Australia says if it comes to the nationalizing of industries, care will be taken to deal with the whole question on a commercial basis "before we embark on the undertaking. Our programme will depend on the finding of the money. The financial side will be carefully considered." He expected to see the realization of his ideals in a reasonable space of time, or three weeks.

DECLINE OF FALL FAIRS

THE PURCHASE OF THOROUGHBRED STOCK INSTEAD

Ontario Superintendent of Agriculture Discovers How to Investigating Advisability of Advocating Change

Mr. H. B. Cowan, Superintendent of Agricultural Societies, is at present inquiring into the operation of township organizations, which, instead of holding an annual exhibition, use all the Government grant for the purchase of thoroughbred stock. The plan has been in operation in Quebec and the Maritime Provinces for several years, and the Department of Agriculture of the former Province has just written to Mr. Cowan, stating that it is being carried on with great success. A meeting was held recently for the purpose of reducing the number of annual fairs in Quebec, and substituting the scheme for the use of members [illegible] townships of Ontario have already made the change with, apparently, satisfactory results.

Complaints have been common that the usefulness of the township fair has gone very largely. Mr. Cowan's object is to ascertain whether it is advisable to advocate the other method as a substitute.

Superintendent Putnam has just completed the list of farmers' institute meetings for the approaching season. Over 200 meetings will be held, and on each of the delegations will be two women lecturers.

Will Abandon Dam

Orillia, April 30—The council has decided to abandon the broken dam of the municipal power plant and to blast a tunnel through the solid rock for 1,500 feet, to bring the water to a bulkhead at the entrance to the flumes and prevent the possibility of such accidents as that which befell the plant this spring. The cost of the work is estimated at $30,000 to $30,000.

An auxiliary steam plant has been ordered, and will be running in two weeks.

Detroit Specialist Discovers Something Entirely New for the Cure of Men's Diseases in Their Own Homes.

You Pay Only if Cured

He Accepts No Money Unless He Cures Your Method and Full Particulars Sent Free —Write For It This Very Day

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and boards, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes; so that there may no longer be any doubt in the mind of any man that he has

DR. S. GOLDBERG,
The Possessor of 14 Diplomas and Certificates Who Wants No Money That He Does Not Earn.

both the method and the ability to do as he says, Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic troubles, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation of parts, impotence, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but like wise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as many booklets on the subject, including the one that contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply

Dr. S. Goldberg, 268 Woodward Ave., Room ——, Detroit, Mich., and it will all immediately be sent you free.

This is something entirely new and well worth knowing more about. Write at once.

AN ODD SITUATION

Blenheim town faces a peculiar situation. A vote under the Local Option Act was taken, and 519 out of 535 on the voters' list recorded their votes, the bylaw being carried by a majority of 7. Now the town council refuses to give the bylaw its third reading. The matter was laid before the Provincial Secretary and he was asked not to permit the issue of licenses till the bylaw was tested, and if found faulty, set aside. Against that view it was pleaded that the list was "fraudulent," it having been accepted by agreement, unrevised; also, that although it was fully advertised in the papers, copies of the bylaw had not been posted up. Mr. Stratton thought the exceptionally large vote showed that people were well informed as to the polling, and that if both sides had accepted the voters' list neither should now complain. He promised to lay the case before his colleagues. Local option has been carried in Harwich, the township in which Blenheim is situated.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE A PRESSING NECESSITY

Peterborough's School Buildings not Equal to those of Other Towns

"Ratepayer" Writes a Strong Letter Asking for Support of the By-law—Small Cost to the Ratepayers

To the Editor of The Times:

Sir,—The vote on the Collegiate Institute bylaw will be taken on Thursday, the 5th of May. The importance of this vote, I think, is scarcely realized by the citizens of Peterborough, and I am surprised that so little has been said concerning it by the press. We are all proud of our manufacturing institutions, our churches, our hospitals, and our splendid retail stores, but few of us are proud of our school building, notwithstanding their great importance. There are few towns in Ontario so backward and so poorly equipped as we are with respect to school buildings and why the citizens of Peterborough have so long tolerated this condition of things is not easily understood. Our people are progressive in the best sense of the word, and there is no single interest approaching the importance of the educational interest. The future of our boys and girls depends largely on the character of the education they receive at our public school and collegiate institute and consequently nothing is too good for them. We find in the west almost every town has splendid school buildings thoroughly equipped. Orillia has just completed a splendid high school building, and last year Cobourg completed a high school which is modern in all respects. We find also that Bowmanville, Lindsay, Brockville and Napanee have fine structures, and the Government grant, considering the size of the places, is very large. Belleville has not only a fine high school but they have also a college, which is much appreciated by the citizens. Galt has had a very good collegiate institute in the past, but the town has decided to build a collegiate during the present year that will cost over $40,000. If the citizens of these different places can afford to do this, surely Peterborough is in no worse position. In the past our Government grant has been very small owing to the fact that our institute building and equipments have been marked very low by the high school inspectors. I understand that if we had proper grounds and a new institute that the amount we would receive from the Government be greatly increased. Further, I understand our public schools, especially in the junior departments, at present are over-crowded and unless the Collegiate Institute Bylaw passes it will be necessary for the board to ask from the council a sum not less than $15,000 or $20,000 to build a new public school, which would be entirely unnecessary if a new institute were built. Further every rate-payer can compel the Board of Education to furnish proper accomodation for the education of his children. I have learned from a member of the board that it is not the intention to pay a large price for a lot. The price, I understand, will not exceed $5,000 or $7,000 at the utmost, and that, of course, is moderate. In the past our high school teachers have been working at a disadvantage and the pupils have been working at a still greater disadvantage owing to the fact that the present building is not at all suitable for high school purposes. Should the bylaw pass it will mean an expenditure of about $50,000. The average assessment in Peterborough is about $1,400. Therefore the average cost to the property holders would be about 77c. (seventy-seven cents) a year. To those whose assessment averages from $500 to $600, the extra cost would be about 35c. of 36c. a year. Surely no person in Peterborough would be unwilling to contribute this small amount yearly for 20 years for such an institution as the Board of Education proposes to build. I take it, therefore, that it is the duty of all who have the interest and welfare of the town at heart to turn out and vote for the Collegiate Institute Bylaw to be submitted for the approval of the citizens of Peterborough on Thursday, the 5th of May.

Respectfully yours,
CIVIS.

MORE TWO CENT POSTAGE

Ottawa April 30—When Sir William Mulock was in Mexico he commenced negotiations with the Government of that country for the reduction of the postage between Canada and Mexico to two cents. The President of the Republic has expressed himself favorable to the proposal, and has written, stating that the Mexican representative, who is to visit Canada shortly to arrange the details of the steamship service, will at the same time take up Sir William Mulock's suggestion for a reduction of postage rates.

Faded Women Need Richer Blood

It Stamps the Glow of Robust Health on Cheeks and Lips. How Blood is Made Rich and Red Enough to Beautify the Complexion.

A bright rosy complexion can easily be acquired. All that is necessary is to purify the blood and supply it with an increased number of red corpuscles. The simplest method of doing it is to introduce more iron into the system, which is always lacking where the complexion is pallid or sallow.

Iron in a concentrated form, specially adapted for internal use is contained in its most efficient state in Ferrozone, which is noted for marvellous blood building properties. No matter how weak or poor the blood may be, Ferrozone will enrich and nourish it. The immediate result is a better color, which will improve steadily under Ferrozone.

Every girl that takes pride in her complexion would find Ferrozone o greater value than cosmetics or face powders. Its influence is lasting, whereas artificial beautifiers are but a temporary aid. Thousands that have used Ferrozone are glad to endorse it strongly because it certainly is the best remedy for pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and poor complexion than money can buy.

Miss Minnie E. Stirling, of Lancaster, writes, "I can recommend Ferrozone to everyone who needs something to clear up their complexion. Before using Ferrozone my skin was sallow, and had a very unhealthy color. After the first box of Ferrozone there was a great improvement and when I had used three boxes I felt much better and had a satisfactory color in my cheeks."

Mrs. C. T. Warwick, of Bradford, says: "My daughter was greatly benefitted by using Ferrozone. She used to have a sickly color and never looked as if she was strong. After using two boxes of Ferrozone she felt better and her color was wonderfully improved. This encouraged her to continue Ferrozone and in a few weeks she looked like a different person and had a clear rosy complexion. Ferrozone accomplished wonders for my daughter."

Ferrozone is just what most girls and women need. It builds up their system, improves their looks, and makes them feel what buoyant good health really means. Price 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50 at all druggists. Beware of substitutes and get Ferrozone when you ask for it. Mailed to your address by N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

WALKS ABROAD IN SNOW.

Ten-Year-Old Geneva, N. Y., Lad, Barefoot, Takes Stroll in Storm with Pet Dog.

John Mulvey, the ten-year-old son of Michael Mulvey, of Geneva, N. Y., is a somnambulist. One morning recently the boy's father, who keeps watch over him at night, went to his room and found the bed empty. He searched the house, but found no trace of him. One of the outside doors was open, and the father continued his search outside. Presently he found prints of the boy's bare feet in the snow. The tracks led toward the Lehigh Valley station, which is not far from the house.

He had almost reached the station when he saw the boy walking in the drenching rain, which froze as it fell. He was in his night clothes, and his pet dog was trotting beside him.

Mr. Mulvey overtook his son, picked him up in his arms, and carried him back home before the boy was awakened. A doctor was called, but the boy seemed not to have suffered from the exposure. He went back to bed and to sleep. He could remember nothing of his trip, but said he dreamed that some one was following him.

Manufacture of Quartz Glass.

Quartz glass consists essentially of melted quartz, which is made into tubes and other articles. It is perfectly translucent. The initial experiments in the manufacture of the new glass were made in England. The manufacture of quartz glass has shown symptoms of vigorous growth. While two years ago England led in its production, she has since been relegated to second place by Germany. The properties of quartz glass are such that it will soon replace ordinary glass for many uses. If quartz glass can be produced at a moderate price—and it seems to be quite possible where electric force can be cheaply obtained from water power—it will no doubt be largely employed, especially in the chemical and electrical industries.

SEVERED TONGUE REPLACED.

Workman in a Marion, Ind., Factory Regains Speech Lost by a Peculiar Injury.

Charles Brodt, an employe of a hub works at Marion, Ind., had his tongue cut off while operating a boring machine recently. He was boring a hole through a hub when the hub in some way caught in the bit, was hurled upward, striking him under the chin. His tongue was between his teeth and was cut off. C. L. Wright, manager of the plant, had his attention attracted to Brodt, who was making signals with his arms.

When Wright reached the main's side blood was spurting from his mouth. Wright asked him what had happened, but he was unable to talk, but pointed to the machine and block, which had caused the accident. The end of the severed tongue was picked up. Brodt was hurried to the office of V. V. Cameron, surgeon, who sewed the severed end back in place. The flow of blood was stopped and Brodt was enabled to talk.

VALUABLE ART TREASURE.

Greek Archaic Chariot Believed to Be in Possession of American Museum.

Although not specifically mentioned, it is supposed the Greek archaic, the sale of which to Americans has been the subject of interrogation in the Italian chamber of deputies, is now in the Metropolitan museum of art in New York. It was unearthed by peasants digging a foundation for a farmhouse at the foot of "Il Capitano hill," beneath which the road from Montelcone leads to Norcia, the ancient Estruscian city of Nursia, 14 miles from Vitrobo.

President Rhinelander, of the Metropolitan, said: "The 'biga,' or chariot, is one of our most valued pieces of ancient artisanship, and thought to be the only specimen of that early period in existence."

Jacob Rogers, the millionaire locomotive manufacturer, purchased it for the museum shortly before his death.

Vividly Described.

The reporter from whose account of a fire the following is quoted must himself, says the representative of a rival journal, have been in great danger of being consumed by the fire of his own eloquence:

"The water seemed to spur the fire to wilder deeds. The flames and the smoke rolled higher and higher, and the scene became luridly, awfully magnificent, beyond tottering words' power to paint. It was a canto of Dante's 'Inferno' acted in all its fiery gloom and splendor. Banners of flame would now be waved out by dark smoke hands, then ten million curling little penones of the fire would bind and flutter, then vanish, and a great reeling tower of smoke, whose darkness was stabbed and spangled with flames and sparks, would fill the buildings, grimly shoot back from reflected surfaces a crimson greeting, and up in the far-off sky the outpinioned stars turned pale for shame and the moon through the drifted smoke glowed like a bowl of blood."

TRICKS OF THE BRAIN.

Experiences Which Physiological Theories Fail to Explain.

An uncle of mine with whom I was walking in a part of Yorkshire near Skipton, where neither of us had ever been before, stopped suddenly to say, "When we turn that corner you will see on the right an Elizabethan house partly surrounded by trees, with a lake or large pond showing through them, and in the middle of the water a little artificial island."

When we turned the corner we saw precisely what he had described, and yet he had never seen or heard or read of the place. The dual brain theory fails here, since neither lobe of the brain had received an impression of the place before we turned the corner.

Jean Jacques Rousseau in his "Confessions" says he foresaw in a reverie while taking a solitary walk all the incidents of the happiest day of his life as they occurred eight years later:

"I saw myself, as in an ecstasy, transported into that happy time and occasion, where my heart, possessing all the happiness possible, enjoyed it with inexpressible raptures, without thinking of anything sensual. I do not remember being ever thrown into the future with more force or an illusion so complete as that which I then experienced. What struck me most in the recollection of that reverie, now that it has been realized, is to have found objects so exactly as I had pictured them. If ever the dream of a man awake had the air of a prophetic vision that was assuredly such."

It is, I think, noteworthy that in all clairvoyant cases of this kind the body is through overwork or ill health or fasting or congenitally in the subdued state to which the Indian mystic and miracle monger reduces his own by maceration. It was so with Scott and Rousseau, and with William Hone when he had the following experience recorded in his memoir. When worn out with overwork he was shown into a certain room in a certain part of London where he had never been before.

"On looking around everything appeared perfectly familiar to me. I seemed to recognise every object. I said to myself: 'What is this? I was never here before, and yet I have seen all this, and if so there is a very peculiar knot in the shutter.' I opened the shutter and found the knot. Now, then, I thought, here is something I cannot explain on my principles; there must be some power beyond matter."

And from being a pronounced materialist he became a believer in spirits, and, indeed, eventually a profoundly religious soul.—T. P.'s London Weekly.

High Class Investment

THE OREGON MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY

Offer to Canadian investors a limited amount of stock of the above company. The property owned by the Company consists at the present time of about 500 acres, which are located in the Tarryall District and Park County, Colorado. This whole district has been known for years on account of its rich placer ground, and is now prominently before the public owing to the number of very good properties which have been opened up recently producing, principally, gold, and lately some that are producing Platinum. On the Oregon property there are a number of well known veins of low grade ore that will yield a profit by being treated on the ground of the company. The company have recently opened up a fine vein in the Hawkeye group and this vein shows not only good values but an immense amount of ore which alone would make the property very valuable. Assays from ore taken from various parts of this property range from a few dollars to $373 per ton in gold. We have very little silver, lead or copper in the district. The company have a shaft 240 feet deep, with a good shaft house thoroughly well equipped with all modern mach nery to develop same. They are now driving a tunnel which is at about 700 feet and which will cut the Hawkeye vein about 370 feet deeper than where it is opened at present. There is enough ore exposed on the property of this company to keep them busy for a number of years and the reason for selling stock at the present time is to secure funds to build a mill. The company will probably join with the Almaden Company in building this mill. There is water enough to furnish water power and over 100 acres of fine spruce and pine timber. The affairs of the company have always been managed in a business-like economical manner and there are no officers' salaries. The monies received from the sale of stock go direct into the property.

I can heartily recommend this stock as safe, as well as an unusually good investment, because of the immense amount of ore which the company have already opened up. It is not a mere prospect, but the property has been developed by expense of a considerable amount of money and time.

The company is splendidly officered by men of integrity and high standing. The company has not pushed the sale of stock the last year owing to a delay in getting title to the ground from the Government, but now that has been satisfactorily adjusted and work will be pushed to a finish.

The number of exceedingly rich strikes which have been made during the last few weeks in the various camps in the State of Colorado is the best evidence of the prosperity of the mining business. Almost every camp in the state has opened up rich bodies of ore, and Park County is well in the lead in that line.

There are only $25,000 of stock for sale, at $1.00 per share. The company is capitalized at $200,000, and the advantage to the investor of selling the stock at par, is that every share is fully paid up and non-assessable.

SERVANTS FROM ENGLAND

Salvation Army Proposes to Relieve the Stringency

The Immigration Department of the Army has big Problem on its Hands

Major Thos. Howell, secretary of the Immigration and Transportation Department of the Salvation Army, Toronto, states that the army was now prepared to do something to relieve the stringency in the domestic help market. In connection with the Immigration Department, which is working in connection with the Federal and Provincial Governments, the Army will accept deposits sufficient to pay the fare of domestic servants from England. The English branch of the Army will not allow any servants to come out unless they have the highest references, and each one who comes up to the required standard will be required to make a contract for a year with the lady who makes the deposit for her transportation.

Major Howell says he is ready now to accept deposits from housewives, and he feels certain that many servants brought out by this means will be most particular in their selection.

So far the general immigration policy of the Army has been most successful. Already this season 150 have arrived, and within the last three weeks have been placed in good employment. The immigrants are not all members of the Army, but they are all known to Army officers in England, and are guaranteed to be reliable and desirable settlers. The married men are kept in Ontario as far as possible, and the single men sent to the Northwest. They are now on file in the Army Immigration Bureau more applications for help than can be filled, although the English officers have reported already over 2,000 bookings. It is not at all unlikely that as many more will be brought to Canada during the coming season.

Arrangements are made for an officer of the Salvation Army to meet all immigrants on their arrival in Canada, and to see that they are put on the right trains and supplied with whatever they may need. Another batch of fifty is expected this week, and 200 more left Liverpool yesterday for Quebec.

—The death took place in Manvers last week of one of their oldest and most respected residents, in the person of Mrs. Wm. McMaster. She and Mr. McMaster, who is still hale and well, had been married fifty eight years. The funeral took place on Wednesday to the Presbyterian cemetery, Millbrook.

ONE OF THE BEST INVESTMENTS EVER OFFERED TO THE PUBLIC OF CANADA.

The Peterborough Brokerage Company will direct and through their agents offer a limited amount of stock of

Consumers' Coal Company

Limited.

Incorporated under the laws of South Dakota, with a capital stock of $250,000 with Par Value of $5 each.

The officers of the Company are C. F. Bumann, President and Treasurer; George W. Butler Secretary, and C. Burrows, home officer in South Dakota as required by law. Of the $250,000 capitalization, in shares of $1 each, $150,000 worth is issued, the first on all allotment of this was sold at 65c per share the second small allotment at 75c per share and the balance has all been sold at par, $1.

The Consumers' Coal Company controls and owns clear of incumbrance, a coal mine in Chemea, Illinois which is a first-class coal mine on the Toledo, Peoria & Warsaw and the Chicago & Alton R.R. The former line crosses five different railroads running parallel to Chicago. The Mine is on a paying basis and the output is increasing from day to day. We have 321 acres underlaid with three distinct veins, or layers of coal which are 4½ feet thick each. The first one at a depth of 203 feet, it is this vein which we are now mining, the second one at a depth of 320 feet and the third at 463 feet. Our main shaft runs down through all three of these veins and a hundred feet below the third, which serves as a sump, makes our shaft's total depth 583 feet. The mine is fully equipped and in good repair and working order. Our machinery engines and everything else is in duplicate so in case of a breakdown we can switch and operate without any loss of time. We have our own blacksmith shop and car shop in which we build our own cars. Our output is now hanging in the neighborhood of 100 tons per day, but I have the promise of the superintendent to increase the output to not less than 200 tons per day within two or three weeks, however his arrangements, I know this to be possible.

Although it should not cost more than 85c at the big best to mine coal in Illinois, yet it costs us a trifle over a dollar owing to the extensive improvements we have made in and at the mine, but as we increase the output the cost per ton of mining will decrease, our fixed expenses will be no more in mining several hundred tons per day than they are at the present time in mining one hundred tons. Up to the present time we have sold most of our output at the mouth of the shaft to the surrounding farmers and towns people, and, therefore, we have no freight or cartage to pay. We receive from $2.25 to $2.65 for Mine Run and $2.75 for Lump. In that way we have made quite a handsome profit and we can make that our average, or net earnings at the Mine up to the present time is about $100 per day and we hope to soon increase this as we increase output.

We have three yards in Chicago in which we are handling 16 different kinds of coal and we have a very substantial business and have made considerable profit each month out of which we have paid over 20 per cent in dividends last year and accumulated a surplus fund equal to the amount paid in dividends.

The reason we are selling stock at the present time is that our business has grown so extensively that it takes more money to handle the same, besides this, we are buying teams with which to handle our coal in Chicago which will cost us about $250 each. We predict that this stock will be worth not less than $3 per share before another year is over as by that time our Mine will be producing not less than four or five hundred tons per day. We will appreciate your subscription to any amount you see fit to invest and if possible to interest some of your friends kindly do so. I remain,

Yours very truly,

"It's not likely he is much," said Theo, "and if grandma were here, I presume she would assign him the chamber over the kitchen. The wall is low on one side, I know, but I dare say he is not accustomed to anything better.

Accordingly several articles of stray lumber were removed from the chamber, which the ladies arranged with care, and which, when completed, presented quite a respectable appearance. But Maggie had no idea of putting her guest, as she considered him, in the kitchen chamber; and when, as the party entered the house, Mrs. Jeffrey, from the head of the stairs, called out: "This way, Maggie — tell them to come this way," she waved her aside, and led the way to a large, airy room, over the parlor, where, in a high, old-fashioned bed, surrounded on all sides by heavy damask curtains, they laid the weary stranger. The village surgeon arriving soon after, the fractured bones were set, and then, as perfect quiet seemed necessary, the room was vacated by all save Maggie, who glided noiselessly around the apartment, while the eyes of the sick man followed her with eager, admiring glances, so beautiful she looked to him in her new capacity of nurse.

Henry Warner, as the stranger was called, was the junior partner of the firm of Douglas & Co., Worcester, and his object in visiting the Hilladale neighborhood was to collect several bills which for a long time had been due. He had left the cars at the depot, and hiring a livery horse, was taking the shortest route from the east side of town to the west, when he came accidently upon Maggie Miller, and, as we have seen, brought his ride to a sudden close. All this he told to her on the morning following the accident, retaining until the last the name of the firm of which he was a member.

"And you were once there at our store," he said, "How long ago?"

"Five years," answered Maggie, "when I was eleven, and Theo thirteen;" then, looking earnestly at him, she exclaimed "And you are the very one, the clerk with the saucy eyes whom grandma disliked so much because she thought he made fun of her, but we didn't think so—Theo and I," she added, hastily, as she saw the curious expression on Henry's mouth and fancied he might be displeased. "We liked them both very much, and knew they must of course be annoyed with grandma's English whims."

For a moment the saucy eyes studied intently the fair, girlish face of Maggie Miller, then slowly closed, while a train of thought something like the following passed through the young man's mind "A woman and yet a perfect child, innocent and unsuspecting as little Rose herself. In one respect they are alike, knowing no evil and expecting none; and if I, Henry Warner, do aught by thought or deed to injure this girl may I never again look on the light of day or breathe the air of heaven."

The vow had passed his lips. Henry Warner never broke his word, and henceforth Maggie Miller was as safe with him as if she had been an only and well-beloved sister. Thinking him to be asleep, Maggie started to leave the room, but he called her back, saying "Don't go. Stay with me, won't you?"

"Certainly," she answered, drawing a chair to the bedside. "I supposed you were sleeping."

"I was not," he replied. "I was thinking of you and of Rose. Your voices are much alike. I thought of it yesterday when I lay upon the rock."

"Who is Rose?" trembled on Maggie's lips, while at the sound of that name she was conscious of the same undefinable emotion she had once before experienced. But the question was not asked. "If she were his sister he would tell me," she thought, "and if she is not his sister—"

She did not finish the sentence, neither did she understand that if Rose to him was something dearer than a sister she, Maggie Miller, did not care to know it.

"Is she beautiful as her name, this Rose?" she asked at last.

"She is beautiful, but not so beautiful as you. There are few who are," answered Henry, and his eyes fixed themselves upon Maggie, to see how she would bear the compliment.

But she scarcely heeded it, so intent was she upon knowing something more of the mysterious Rose. "She is beautiful, you say. Will you tell me how she looks?" she continued, and Henry Warner answered: "She is a frail, delicate little creature, almost dwarfish in size, but perfect in form and feature."

Involuntarily Maggie shrunk back in her chair, wishing her own queenly form had been a very little shorter, while Mr. Warner continued, "She has a sweet, angel face, Maggie, with eyes of lustrous blue, and curls of golden hair."

"You must love her very dearly," said Maggie, the tone of her voice indicating a partial dread of what the answer might be.

"I do indeed love her," was Mr. Warner's reply, "love her better than all the world beside. And she has made me what I am; but for her, I should have been a worthless, dissipated fellow. It's my natural disposition; but Rose has saved me, and I almost worship her for it. She is my good angel—my darling my——"

Here he paused abruptly, and leaning back upon his pillows rather enjoyed than otherwise the look of disappointment plainly visible on Maggie's face. She had fully expected to learn who Rose was, but this knowledge he purposely kept from her. It did not need a very close observer of human nature to read at a glance the ingenious Maggie, whose speaking face betrayed all she felt. She was unused to the world. He was the first young gentleman whose acquaintance she had ever made, and he knew that she already felt for him a deeper interest than she supposed. To increase this interest was his object, and this he thought to do by withholding from her, for a time, a knowledge of the relation existing between him and the Rose of whom he had talked so much. The ruse was successful, for during the remainder of the day, thoughts of the golden-haired Rose were running through Maggie's mind, and it was late that night ere she could compose herself to sleep, so absorbed was she in wondering "what Rose was to Henry Warner. Not that she cared particularly," she tried to persuade herself, "but she would like to be at ease upon that subject."

To Theo she had communicated the fact that their guest was a partner of Douglas & Co., and this tended greatly to raise the young man in the estimation of a young lady like Theo Miller. Next to rank and station money was with her the one thing necessary to make a person somebody. Douglas, she had heard, was an immensely wealthy man; possibly the junior partner was wealthy, too, and if so, the parlor chamber, to which he had at first objected, was none too good for his aristocratic bones. She would go herself and see him in the morning.

TIME TO MAKE OUT CLEAN SLATE

Japan Must Settle Corean Question No

LETTER FROM MARQUIS ITO

Russian Supremacy Would Means Destruction of Japanese Commercial Rights

Tokio, April 28.—The visit of the Corean special Ambassador is attracting little attention here. He has had an audience and breakfast with the Emperor, and has given a reception and dinner to prominent Japanese and foreigners.

The Marquis Ito, in a letter just published, states that Russian supremacy in Corea would mean not only a constant menace to Japan's national existence, but also the wholesale destruction of her vested commercial and industrial rights. Russian policy in the Far East is gradually to monopolize the resources of the countries she dominates. In fighting for her own interests Japan is contending for the principle of open competition and new markets.

The Kokumin, commenting on the administration of Corea, says: "It is no longer a matter of discussion, but for action. Now is Japan's opportunity to carry out its purposes regarding Corea. Russia, who alone contested Japan's rights, has been driven from Corean soil, and Japan has the practical command of the sea, and her forces occupy an advantageous position for further advantageous position for further advances by land. The Coreans are turning to Japan for direction, and it would be folly to postpone the Corean question until the Manchurian question had been also settled. The former is vital to Japan, who has the recognized right to conserve the fruits of victory. The demands made of Russia were, respecting Corea, Japan's minimum. They were made in a spirit of concession, and she might have reasonably demanded more. Now is the time to make out a clean slate. Japan's chief reason for going to war was to secure a position in Corea, and bring Corea under her protection. Corea is now practically in the occupation of the Japanese armies. If the problem of administration is neglected the real object of the war may be lost."

CREW SENT ASHORE.

St. Petersburg, April 28—The Emperor has received a telegram from Viceroy Alexieff as follows:

"Rear Admiral Uriu, who is at sea with cruisers and torpedo boats, despatched the latter to Gensan, Corea. The torpedo boats blew up a Japanese merchantman in the roadstead. The crew was sent ashore. The torpedo boats returned the same day to the squadron."

THE BALTIC FLEET.

St. Petersburg, April 30—Vice-Admiral Skrydloff, recently appointed commander of the Russian naval force in the Far East, to-day visited the barracks of the naval guard. Addressing the latter he made his first public reference to the going out of the Baltic fleet, saying "Twenty-eight years ago I went with your predecessors to fight for the Emperor's country against the Turks. It is now the Monarch's wish that I should lead you again, as Commander-in-Chief of the fleet which you are going to join on board the battleship Alexander III."

This company now owns the well-known Augusta mine and its extension for over two feet in addition to other claims aggregating a total acreage of 80 acres. This property has produced over $250,000 in gold, silver and lead ores and is a producer to-day. Has shipped ores of an average net value of $40 per ton for first class and $15 per ton for second class, all the past summer and the summer before smelter and mill returns of which are on file in our office.

Has immense bodies of these grades of ore, which cannot be exhausted in five years, already opened up and its main working tunnel is nearing completion, cutting the apex of the vein at a depth of 1,000 feet.

This block of shares is offered to enable the Company to connect the above tested with its concentrating mill and projected terminus of railroad by tramway, a distance of 11,120 feet, thereby permitting shipments during the entire year.

A production of at least 125 tons daily will be maintained when these improvements are made, and if completed in the early summer, dividends can be paid from ore settlements before this fall.

We offer for a limited time only a SPECIAL BLOCK OF 50,000 SHARES OF THE TREASURY STOCK of these Companies.

We reserve the right to reject subscriptions over and above the 50,000 shares offered. Each subscription to be booked as received.

Tunnel B of the Black Queen Company is now going in at a rate of 175 feet per month, and early spring will see this work vieing with Tunnel A of the Augusta Company in its record of production.

Will cut known proven ore bodies 1100 feet from Apex, and open sufficient stoping ground to make an output of 100 tons daily.

Has already cut through a cross vein two feet in width of good marketable Galena ore, the point of intersection being 400 feet beneath the surface. We have 900 feet of this vein in length.

We can show you these facts and ask that you ask us to do so.

THE RUSSIANS ARE STILL UNPREPARED

Although About 300,000 Are in the Neighborhood of Corea--All Quiet in the Vicinity of Pt. Arthur

St. Petersburg, April 30.—Speaking seriously to intelligent friends, members of the general staff place the total number of troops at General Kuropatkin's command at about 300,000. Even this statement is regarded as excessive, while the half-million figure is intended for foreign, and especially Japanese, consumption, although the few Russian soldiers imagine that the enemy can be greatly misled in this respect.

This 300,000 is said to comprise all the forces in Port Arthur and Vladivostock, on the banks of the Yalu, in New Chwang, Liao Yang, Mukden and Harbin, on the Amur River, and at Chita, in Trans-Baikalia, and at Irkutsk, on the west side of Lake Baikal. The army availble for active operations is in the neighborhood of 200,000, including the local Amur and Siberian Cossacks and Light Artillery recently equipped with modern arms. The importance of such a force would be great if it were not by force of circumstances partly occupied in watching the Trans-Siberian Railway.

Military experts say that the coast of Corea Bay and of the Liao-Tung Gulf probably can not be defended successfully. The right wing of the Russian army will be based on Mukden and the left on Kirin, should the Japanese force Gen. Kuropatkin to retire from his position at New Chwang, Lia Yang and Feng Wang Chang.

ALL QUIET AT PORT ARTHUR.

Che Foo, April 30.—After a cruise which covered the whole coast line from Port Arthur to Kinchow Bay, a press correspondent has, on the despatch boat Fawn, returned to this port. By minute inspection of the likely landing places, it was ascertained that no Japanese forces had been landed on that stretch of territory. No sign of the Japanese fleet was seen, and no transports were met throughout the cruise. The captains of Chinese junks and fishermen wherever met, reported that no Japanese naval operations were being conducted off Port Arthur.

STILL UNPREPARED.

Berlin, April 30.—Colonel Von Gaedke, war correspondent of the Berliner Tageblatt, writing from Harbin, Manchuria, under date of April 4, says he found the Russians much more unprepared for war than he anticipated. High officers assured him that the garrison of Port Arthur amounted to only 8,000 combatants, when the first attack occurred. The troops south of Mukden ready for action numbered only 20,000 to 25,000. Colonel Von Gaedke asserts that the total strength of the Russians in Manchuria at that time was hardly above 90,000 men exclusive of 23,000 railroad guards. The Russians expected a speedy advance of the Japanese after the outbreak of war and rather lost their heads. Much censure the colonel adds, was heard in army circles of the mismanagement of the defence of Port Arthur.

St. Petersburg, April 30—Official details of the recent exploit of the Vladivostock squadron show that 200 men went down with the Japanese transport. The smallness of the number is due to the fact that the steamer was heavily laden with coal and other supplies.

The satisfaction of the people of St. Petersburg at the exploits of the Vladivostock squadron is tempered with admiration for the bravery of the Japanese soldiers who were on board the Kinshiu Maru, and who preferred to drown rather than surrender. The admiral admits that the men acted heroically, but holds that Admiral Yesaen had no other alternative but to sink the transport, as he could not spare a prize crew or hamper his swift squadron with a slower steamer. The Czar is said to be very indignant at the conduct of the admiral, and wants to relieve him of his command and court-martial him.

USING WIRELESS.

The Admiralty believe Admiral Yesaen is in communication with Vladivostock by wireless telegraphy, and is not likely to be surprised by the Japanese squadron sent to prevent his return. Tokio thinks the squadron slipped by the Jap fleet in a fog.

RUSSIAN SPIRIT REVIVED.

The operations of the Vladivostock squadron have revived the spirits of the people of St. Petersburg, who have been downcast since the destruction of the Petropavlovsk, and the consequent confinement of the remnant of the Port Arthur fleet to the harbor. The fact that the navy is doing something of an offensive character appeals to the popular mind, which has been unable to appreciate the reason for the inactivity of the fine ships of the Vladivostock squadron. It is generally recognized that Rear-Admiral Yesaen cannot do more than frighten the Japanese and compel them to exercise greater care in their military movements, as the sinking of a few transports, or even cruisers can have no permanent effect on the result of the war. Moreover, he is bound by his instructions not to risk his ships unduly, the intention being to keep them safe for an attack with the Baltic fleet when it arrives in the Pacific.

St. Petersburg, April 30—The Official Messenger publishes the following circular letter, issued by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs to the Russian representatives with foreign powers:

"The foreign press have recently been persistently circulating reports concerning intentions on the part of some of the European governments to undertake a friendly intervention with a view to a speedy termination of the conflict between Russia and Japan. Telegrams have even been received, announcing that proposals of such a nature have already been made to the Imperial Government. You are empowered to deny this statement most categorically. Russia did not wish war, and everything within the limits of possibility was done by her to solve the complications which had arisen in the Far East in a peaceful manner, but after the treacherous surprise on the part of the Japanese, which forced Russia to take up arms, obviously no friendly mediation can have any success.

"Similarly, the Imperial Government will not admit the intervention of any power whatsoever in the direct negotiations which will occur between Russia and Japan after the termination of hostile operations in order to determine the conditions of peace."

JAP CREW ESCAPE.

Seoul, April 30—Further details of the sinking of the Goyo have reached here. The Russian vessels entered the harbor of Gensan at 11 o'clock The crew of the Goyo were ordered ashore, but it is not known that they went, and whether they escaped or not has not been reported.

THE SQUADRON'S OBJECT.

St. Petersburg, April 30.—The Emperor has received a despatch from the commander of the Vladivostock squadron, confirming the reports of the sinking of a Japanese transport of 600 tons at (Wonsan (Gensan). The object of the squadron's cruise is to destroy all transports traversing the Sea of Japan, show the Russian flag in Corean waters and impress the population advantageously, and also to compel the Japanese to guard all their transport expeditions.

JAP CRUISERS IN PURSUIT.

Chicago, April 30—A special cable to the Daily News from Kobe says: "Under full steam a strong squadron of Japanese armored cruisers were observed this morning making its way northward in the Japan Sea. It is believed that the vessels are on their way to attempt to cut off the Russian squadron that appeared at Wonsan, on the east coast of Corea Monday. It is feared, however, that the Czar's cruisers are superior in speed to those of the Mikado they may escape in safety to the shelter of Vladivostock.

"It is also stated that the Japanese have succeeded in luring the Russians from the protection of the Vladivostock guns, and that there is another Japanese squadron between them and their retreat, but these are mere rumors."

TOGO WAITING FOR THEM.

London, April 30—The opinion that Vice-Admiral Togo is waiting for the Vladivostock squadron is confirmed by the Daily Telegraph's Tokio correspondent, who says that the Japanese are taking steps to cut off the retreat of the Vladivostock warships.

CZAR MAY GO TO SEAT OF WAR.

New York, April 30—The Herald correspondent in St. Petersburg says he has excellent authority for the statement that the Emperor will go to the seat of war some time in August, the exact date depending upon a happy family event which is expected to take place about that time, and which is the subject of engrossing interest in court circles.

SUBMARINES AT PORT ARTHUR

Port Arthur, April 30—The experiments with submarine boats here have been attended with brilliant success.

All is quiet in the region of the fortress.

HAVE TO WAIT FOR THE TIDE.

St. Petersburg, April 30—A letter dated March 29, written by Colonel Agapieff (a member of the staff of Vice-Admiral Makaroff, who was lost in the Petropavlovsk disaster, on April 13), throws considerable light on the conditions prevailing at Port Arthur. He said: "Our squadron suffers from the great disadvantage of not being able to go out of the harbor except at high tide, which is especially awkward if it is high water before dawn. The enemy has not failed to profit thereby, coming up with impunity on the ebb tide and attacking the whole morning, if the squadron was inside. I mentioned this to Makaroff, thinking he would not take notice of it, but the next time it was high water before daylight he ordered the squadron out the previous afternoon, by which he spoiled the Japanese game, and also avoided the danger of collision in going out of the narrow entrance after dark."

STRANGE STORY FROM CRONSTAD

Cronstadt, April 30—A sensational story is afloat here of an attempt to destroy the battleship Alexander III. According to the reports a sailor saw a stranger, wearing the uniform of an officer, going down into the engine room of the battleship, followed him and saw the stranger attaching something connected with wire to the dynamos. After the stranger left the sailor examined the attachment and found it to be a bomb. The sailor at once cut the wires, ran up on deck to tell what had happened, and found that the stranger had hanged himself.

The crew of the Alexander III, it is added were instructed not to speak of the occurrence, and it is said that the stranger was a madman, or a member of some revolutionary organization, to whose lot it had fallen to blow up the Alexander III.

WAS A DESPATCH BOAT.

Nagasaki, Japan, April 30.—The Japanese steamer Kinshiu Maru, which was run by their Russians near Gensan (resulting in the drowning of 200 Japanese troops who had refused to surrender), was attached to the fleet as a despatch boat.

Watches Stepmother

Binghampton, N.Y., April 28.—Coroner White, of Delaware County today began an inquest at Sidney, into the death of seventeen-year-old Florence Mackintosh, who died at Sidney on April 11, her death being ascribed to stomach trouble. A provisional warrant for use in case the woman tries to leave town has been issued for the girl's stepmother, Mrs. Henrietta Dewitt, who is now suspected of poisoning the girl to obtain $2000 insurance on the girl's life. Against the protests of Mrs. Dewitt an autopsy was performed which revealed the fact that the girl died as the result of some irritant poison, believed to be opiates.

Smuggler Gold Mining Co.'s Proposition

of which I am the authorized agent

Investments in mining stocks where they can be purchased cheaply whose property contains merit and whose directors are men of unquestionable honor and integrity, and especially when sufficient work has been done to guarantee a producing mine and the leads have been demonstrated to be permanent, offer the greatest opportunity for large returns from modest investments.

The shrewdest capitalists of England and America are giving more attention to mining properties and putting more money into them than at any time in the past history of the world.

The Smuggler Group consists of five full sized claims, to-wit:- The Smuggler, Georgia, Black Jack, Star and Bed Rock, located in the Greenhorn District of Eastern Oregon. Surface ores mines are Potosi, Pride of Pendleton, Bonanza and Rockefeller, development work to the extent of 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifts and crosscuts have been made, exposing hundreds of tons of high grade ore, averaging from $15 to $45 per ton, based on smelter returns, and for the purpose of equipping the mines a limited number of shares of Treasury Stock will be sold at 25 cents per share, the par value of which is $1.00.

HIGH CLASS INVESTMENT

LA ZACUALPA RUBBER PLANTATION COMPANY

Incorporated Under the Laws of the State of California.

La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation is situated in the best location in Mexico for the cultivation of rubber. It has been known for a great many years as a very choice strip of rubber land and subsequent experience has shown that it is equal to all that has been claimed for it. The affairs of the company are in the hands of men of undoubted integrity and high reputation as successful men of business. To those seeking a safe investment which will secure a good income for life, this proposition offers a favorable opportunity

Shares in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation are not capital stock of a corporation, and carry none of the responsibilities and obligations, or liability to assessment of capital stock; but represent an undivided interest in the plantation itself.

The twelve thousand acres comprising the plantation are divided into twelve thousand shares, each share representing one acre of land, and the holders of shares in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation are the actual owners of one undivided acre of land, for each share held, with a guarantee expressed upon the certificate by La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company, under its official seal, to plant two hundred or more rubber trees per acre for each share sold, and to care for same for a period of five years, and at the expiration of that time to gather the first harvest and deliver the net proceeds thereof to the shareholder.

In other words, La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company sells to each shareholder one undivided acre of land in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation, with two hundred or more rubber trees five years old, and their profits for all time, for each share sold, and agrees to plant so that the first harvest belonging to the shareholder in the one to be gathered from La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation during the sixth year from the date of the certificate.

After the delivery of the first harvest La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company will care for the plantation, and harvest and market the crop for ten per cent. of the net proceeds therefrom. Out of this commission the Company agrees to pay all costs of administration, including maintenance of its home and branch offices.

This plan gives the purchaser of shares an interest of definite acreage, and his proportionate share in the total yield of rubber from the entire plantation forever, making it absolutely certain that the interest of each shareholder will receive the same careful attention

The Monarch Consolidated Gold & Copper Mining and Smelting Company

of BOULDER, COLORADO

Behind the co-operation of reputable men in providing means for the thorough and rapid development of two large gold and copper mining estates, which are second to none in intrinsic value, and to this end extends every opportunity for determination as to whether statements made by the company are true or false.

The proposition when developed will pay no less than 50 per cent. per annum on the investment, and it behooves anyone who wishes to better his financial condition, to give immediate attention to this.

Full particulars in every detail will be given to all to whom such a proposition may appeal, but please do not ask for them unless you really are interested, because you waste your own time and ours also.

Capital $1,000,000, 500,000 Shares in Treasury

Property includes two great mining estates—one gold, the other copper—both containing wide, deep, proven veins of high and low grade ore.

Development work has been systematically carried on, with results that more than justify every claim made by the company, and unquestionably proves the destiny of the property to equal that of the greatest successful mining companies of the world.

Above Statement Can be Easily Verified

The following two facts alone will give anyone familiar with mining a rough idea of the great value of the property.

The Copper King Group contains one vein 30 feet wide, 8 feet of which bruns from $10 to $100 per ton, and the Company owns 9,000 feet on this vein.

Ore running from $95 to $80 per ton is continually being shipped from the gold property, and 24 samples taken from widely different portions of the vein system averaged $30 25 per ton.

FACILITIES—The Company owns 1,760 acres of placer and timber land. Water power of 50 (minimum) horse power. No expensive shaft work necessary. Ore easily treated on Company's property, thus saving freight and smelter charges.

DIVIDENDS—To begin earning and paying large dividends it is only necessary to arrest two 50 ton mills, one on each property. To obtain funds for this purpose a limited amount of stock is offered at

75 Cents Per Share, Par Value $1.00

INVESTORS are afforded every opportunity for the strictest investigation regarding the property and the reputation of the officers and directors. Highest banking references.

A REMARKABLE TRIO

Triplets Living in Hillsdale, N. B., at Age of Eighty

Moncton, N.B., April 30.—Hillsdale, in the parish of Upham, Kings County, is not a place of much importance, but it boasts something which few places can, triplets 80 years of age, living in the same place all their lives, and enjoying good health. On the 7th of April, 1824, three children were born to the late William DeBow and wife. They were named Richard, James and Deborah. Richard married Elizabeth Taber, and to them was born one child. James never married. Deborah married Henry McDonald, and their children and grandchildren are legion. On the occasion of their 80th birthday this month, a large number of the friends waited upon them and presented them with a handsome purse of money. It was certainly a unique birthday celebration, the like of which, perhaps, cannot be duplicated in the Dominion. The aged triplets are all in the best of health, physically and mentally, and appear good for twenty years more.

HOME COMPANIES WILL RAISE RATES

Toronto Fire Losses Wiped out two Years' Gains

Of One Per Cent. is Likely to be Charged on Canadian Cities

London, April 29.—It is understood that the English fire insurance companies are contemplating, in consequence of the Toronto fire, the putting of Montreal and other Canadian cities on conflagration rates. They express profound disgust at the Canadian fire risks declaring that high as the rates of premiums are, namely 1 1-2 per cent per annum, compared with three-sixteenths per cent, in Great Britain, they are not high enough. The present high rates are due to the fact that there are so many wooden buildings, as in the case of the Ottawa fire. But the Toronto case shows that fire is equally devastating in well-built business quarters. The Toronto fire, with net losses of $2,800,000 to the British companies, wholly sweeps away the profits of the past two years.

AN EXPERT OPINION.

A writer in the Canadian Gazette who can speak authoritatively on the opinions of the English companies, says: "It is clear, after the Toronto blaze, that the best built towns are exposed to the gravest risks. These risks must be taken account of, if substantial insurance companies are to stake their vast resources in Dominion insurance. There is no use in them doing so unless the business is conducted by the soundest companies. If Canada wants the services of the really sound offices she must pay for them. British, American and Canadian companies in this matter are on the same footing, as they must organize the business on paying lines or retire.

CONFLAGRATION RATES.

It is probable that the fire insurance companies doing business in Canada will agree to charge a conflagration premium of one per cent. on Canadian cities, and add the rates for buildings and goods to this charge. The effect will be to make a large increase in the premium charges, throughout the Dominion, but unless Canadian local authorities have some convincing alternative to offer in the convincing alternative to offer in the way of more efficient precautions against conflagrations, the premiums will inevitably advance in accordance with proved risks."

OUR MILITARY POWER

Canada Needs an Efficient Army is Now Proclaimed

Halifax, N. S., April 29.—At the banquet held last evening by the St. George's Society Major-General Sir Charles Parsons was one of the guests of honor. When he arose to respond to the toast of the army and navy he was enthusiastically applauded. He said that the British army, during the past few years, has made great progress, and the lessons learned during the Boer war had worked improvement, and Britain's army today was more efficient than ever before. Canada's greatest danger would be from an attack by land forces, and to meet this contingency The General was glad to know that it was absolutely necessary to have efficiently equipped bodies of men. the feeling in Canada tended strongly towards the organization of rifle associations. Too much attention was seemingly paid to expert, or individual, firing. It would be preferable to have a lot of men with collective excellence at firing, than individual accuracy in prize or target shooting. The General favored regular visits of the Canadian militia to Aldershot, and great military centers. The interchange of ideas would be valuable to the British army, and the colonial forces. Preparation for war was best attained by having efficient fighting forces, for the men so trained are really paying premium on the defences of their country. The power of diplomacy is passing away, and we have practically nothing now to depend upon but our fighting men.

A FEW SUBSTANTIAL REASONS

To the Editor of the Times:

Sir,—I wish to present, as briefly as possible, a few specific reasons why a Collegiate Institute building should be erected in Peterborough at the present time, and I shall mention only such reasons as I think can be appreciated by all.

The Collegiate Institute has no building, but is occupying quarters rented from the Public Schools. These quarters are now required for the Public Schools, and a new building of some kind is absolutely necessary.

Although the building now occupied would make a satisfactory Public School it is far below the standard required by the education department for a Collegiate Institute. The High School Inspectors invariably report against it, and it is not unlikely that before long the Minister of Education will reduce the Institute to the grade of a High School if better accommodation is not furnished. This reduction would greatly reduce the annual government grant.

Some of the defects of the present building for a Collegiate Institute are:

1. It contains no assembly hall in which the students may be called together for general lectures, literary meetings, etc. The want of this hall makes it impossible to carry on a literary society in connection with the school, and such a society is a very important factor in High School work.

2. The laboratories are inconvenient and altogether inadequate impairing to a serious degree the instruction in science.

3. No suitable waiting rooms are provided for students, particularly for those who coming from some distance, find it necessary to remain at the school during the noon hour.

4. The gymnasium is too small, is badly ventilated and is otherwise unsuited for the work to be done in it.

5. The grounds are, for the Institute, worse than the building. The girls of the Institute have absolutely no place on which to set foot outside the building except their small platform and the street. As the grounds at the back are occupied by the boys of the Public School the boys of the Institute have practically no play ground and cannot organize any games. This utter want of play grounds causes the students to spend most of the intermission time inside instead of in the fresh air.

If a Collegiate Institute is erected the school boys will then be able, because of having ample room, to unite with the county for High School purposes admitting the county students on the same terms as those from the town. In this case the county will be required to pay its share of the yearly cost of maintenance. This share will be more than the additional yearly expenditure due to the larger attendance.

A considerable portion to the yearly government grant to Collegiate Institutes depends upon the building furnished. Of this portion Peterborough at present receives almost nothing.

If the proposed building is erected the Board of Education will have at their disposal accommodation for manual training and domestic science. These are branches for the teaching of which it is very desirable to provide, and the government is prepared to encourage this work by very liberal money grants.

GREAT EXODUS OF COTTON SPINNERS

Gigantic Emigration Movement has Begun in Great Britain

MANY COMING TO CANADA

To Take up Farming in the Northwest—Others go to United States

London, April 30.—Owing to the short time now being worked in the English cotton industry and the consequent hard times, a great emigration movement is just commencing of cotton workers to Canada and the United States, the dimensions of which have never been equalled since the disastrous effects of the American civil war. Many of these emigrants are seeking fresh work in the cotton mills of the United States on account of the higher wages and shorter hours prevailing there; but a large proportion I learn on the authority of one of the largest firms of cotton-spinners in Lancashire are abandoning the cotton business to take up farming in Western Canada.

The extent of the movement can be judged from the fact that the Allan liner Bavarian leaves Liverpool today with 1,500 passengers for Canada, nearly all of whom are British while the Dominion liner Southwark leaves Liverpool also today with 900 more. Another Allan liner leaves Liverpool on Saturday with a further 500.

DEAD AT HIS POST

The Engineer Died with His Hand on Lever

New York, April 29. — Engineer Charles Kelly, of the ferryboat America, died in the engine room of the America with his hand on the reversing lever, while the boat rammed into the guard pier last evening, on the Williamsburg side of the river, throwing two hundred passengers into a panic. Six were injured by flying splinters and broken glass. Kelly was stricken with apoplexy as the America was entering the slip, and when Pilot Chas. A. Smith gave the signal to reverse the engine Kelly grasped the lever in his hand, but died before he could move it. The America was approaching the pier under full headway, and Pilot Smith rang frantically, but got no response. Then the boat crashed into the bulkhead, tearing away three feet from her port bow. The crew and passengers rushed to the deck, many struggling for life preservers. The pilot signalled again as the boat bounded back, and then crashed ahead into the dock on her starboard side. Ten feet of the men's cabin was torn away in the smash. The fireman, who was in the lower hole finally stopped the boat.

SALVATION ARMY SELF-DENIAL

Self Denial Week of the Army to Begin on Monday Next

The now well-known Self Denial week of the Salvation Army will be observed from May 1st to 7th. Unusual activity has taken possession of the army's energetic members in anticipation of this great event. The army's beneficient operations are supported purely by the free will offerings of the people. The needs of its vast missionary labors among the heathen abroad, and the downfallen at home are met chiefly through the agency of self denial. The army is doing splendid work in its Industrial Homes, Rescue and Maternity Homes, Men's and Women's Shelters, established in different centres in this country. While the world over the army has about 500 similar refuges for the fallen and destitute. Major Archibald, the Prison Gate Secretary for the Dominion of Canada, will conduct services at the S. A. Barracks to-morrow at 11 a.m., 3 and 7 p.m. At the afternoon service the Major will give an address on the prison work of the army. All are heartily invited.

We are indebted to Messrs. Chappell & Co., Limited, the great music publishers of 50 New Bond street, London, England, for a choice selection of music. This company has a world-wide reputation as music publishers. Canadian dealers should make a note of this.

A BUSINESS MAN'S LETTER.

Wm. Thomson, Esq., of Orillia, Vice-President Standard Chemical Company of Toronto, Tells of a Visit to the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives.

GREATLY IMPRESSED WITH WORK BEING DONE.

Personally Raises Several Hundred Dollars to Help Lessen the Load of Debt.

There can be little doubt that the National Sanitarium Association is handicapped in its great work for Consumptives in the fact that its two institutions in Muskoka are far away from any large centre of population. Few people have an opportunity to see for themselves the magnificent work that is being done.

These hospitals are away from the public eye. Any, however, who do visit them, are united in their commendation of the splendid appointments of the place, and, best of all, of the real joy and hope that is being brought to many suffering ones.

We are glad to have the opportunity of publishing the following letter from Mr. Wm. Thomson, of Orillia, one of Canada's best known lumbermen, which tells what he has seen himself. It reads:

Orillia, Ont., November 2, 1903.

W. J. Gage, Esq.,
Chairman Executive Committee
National Sanitarium Association,
Toronto, Ont.

My Dear Mr. Gage,—

I have much pleasure in enclosing herewith cheque for One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) from the Tudhope Carriage Company of Orillia, a donation to the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. Please acknowledge this to the Tudhope Carriage Company in the usual way.

I have written to a number of my friends, to try and get them interested in this good work. I hope to be able to send you further donations. I have written my friends a personal letter, something similar to the following:

"Last week I paid a visit to the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. I met some of the management there, and promised to try and interest some of my friends in this work.

"I might say there were 49 patients there last week, all poor people, most of them without a dollar in the world, and suffering from the dreadful disease, Consumption. There are many sad stories, and I know I have thought a great deal about the work of the institution ever since my visit there. I do believe it is worthy of assistance, and we who have health and the necessaries of life should encourage this work along.

"I understand the expenses lately have been double the income, and unless the management meet with more encouragement, I am afraid the work will have to be curtailed. I know you have many calls, but I do wish you would give this matter a thought, and, if possible, assist. I have written to two or three confidentially, and hope to be able to collect some more for this work. Should you not feel like contributing a donation, remember this request, and your reply is just between you and me, and strictly confidential.

"I might mention, to show that I have confidence in the work, I have already given a donation of $100.00 and two row boats to the Free Hospital this year, and intend to give another $100.00 before the end of the year."

Sincerely yours,

Wm Thomson

Sir Wm. R. Meredith, Kt., or Mr. W. J. Gage, Toronto, will receive and acknowledge any contributions made.

THE CANADIAN NORTHERN

Will Build 600 Miles of New Lines this Summer

Winnipeg, April 30.—President W. Mackenzie, of the Canadian Northern, who is here, says the construction work on the road this year includes the completion, or as much of it as possible, of the line to Edmonton and the line to Prince Albert; also lines from Canberry to Brandon, Arizona to Carberry, the Greenway and Ridgeville branches, the line from Winnipeg to Oak Point, Manitoba, and the Clan William extension. They probably will grade from both the east and the west end of the Edmonton line and will make an effort to reach Edmonton by next winter. The new mileage, which will be added to the system this year, will aggregate almost 600 miles.

Russia Will Pay

Ottawa April 27.—The practical outcome of the recent negotiations between the Canadian commissioners, Mr. Little, and the Russian representatives over the seizure by the czar's cruisers of several Canadian sealing vessels over twelve years ago has been that Russia has consented to admit the claims for damages on account of the seizure of two of the vessels, the Carmolite and the Vancouver Belle, but refuses to recognize any of the other claims.

TO FIGHT A DUEL

A Citizen Challenged to Fight a Duel on the Old Dickson Bridge

A peculiar case came before Police Magistrate Dumbie yesterday.

Donald Brown charged Felix Lynch with challenging him to a duel, contrary to the criminal code. Both are employees of the Dickson Company and it appears that Brown has owed Lynch a sum of money for some time, and the latter had made several attempts to collect it, but without success. They finally had litigation in the Division Courts and Lynch got judgment for $2.00. He endeavored to collect that amount from Brown, but was unsuccessful and Brown informed Lynch that he could go ahead and sue him.

Patience had evidently ceased to be a virtue with Lynch, who forwarded Brown the following letter:

"Mr. Donald Brown:

"I would like if you would meet me on next Thursday about 7.30 on the old Dickson Bridge, and I will fight you to a finish, and let that settle our troubles. You are the meanest man I ever had anything to do with. You are acting a regular and you have a rotten principle—but if you come and meet me I will settle with you in short order. Thursday evening 28th of April, at 7.30. Make no mistake."

Mr. R. F. McWilliams appeared for the accused. Magistrate Dumbie fined the accused $10 and $10 costs, to be paid in five days.

—Mr. Elmer Best, who has been attending the Dental College in Toronto, is home, having completed his year.

Fine Weather Gives Relief from Catarrh

But Never Cures It Because the Germs are Still Alive, Though Inactive. First Kill the Germs Then You'll be Really Cured.

Catarrh germs are carried into the throat and lungs by the air we breathe. In the same way the remedy must be applied. To be effectual the cure must be breathed, for otherwise it can't get where the germs really are.

Mix your germ-killing medicine with air, breathe it right into all the little air cells where the catarrh really is, then you'll get cured quickly. This is exactly the way Catarrhozone acts. You inhale its medicated vapor to the very source of the disease. It destroys the cause of the inflammation, kills all the microbes that develop when the lining membranes become diseased. Besides this Catarrhozone is a wonderful healer. Every sore spot is rebuilt with new healthy tissue. All the poisonous secretions that have been putrifying the system are driven out. No trace of catarrh remains after Catarrhozone has been used.

Why don't you use Catarrhozone? Its the simplest thing in the world to use, and so sure to cure permanently that you really can't afford to be without it.

MISS E. M. PETERS is known by every resident in the pretty town of Highland Grove. She was cured by Catarrhozone of systematic catarrh and says; "For three years before I commenced using Catarrhozone I was continually bothered by a congested condition of my nose and throat. I was sneezing and coughing all the time and really never felt well. I perservered with Catarrhozone and was rewarded by being entirely cured. My recovery prompted others in this locality to use Catarrhozone, and many of them have had remarkable cures from using it."

MISS LOUISE MURPHY a well known society belle residing at 22 Monument St., Medford, writes: "Kindly forward me three outfits of Catarrhozone which I have found most valuable for catarrhal affections of the nose and throat. Catarrhozone cured me of weak lungs and really saved me from consumption. I am recommending Catarrhozone above all other treatments, knowing what great curative powers it possesses. I know others who have also benefited by Catarrhozone."

Catarrhozone is perfectly harmless and may be used with perfect safety by the most delicate infant. Instead of deadening the stomach with drugs, it sends the healing vapor along with the air you breathe into every air cell and passage of the nose, throat, lungs and bronchial tubes. Catarrhozone can't fail, it's sure to cure. If not satisfied you can have your money back for the asking. Two months' treatment, hard rubber inhaler and extra bottle of inhalent costs $1.00, sample size 25c. By mail to any address if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont., Can.

OLD COUNTRY WONDERERS AND NORWOOD PLAY A TIE

ON SATURDAY AFTERNOON—AN EXCITING GAME—NEITHER TEAM SCORE

The first game of the Midland Football League was played on Saturday afternoon at Norwood. When the Old Country Wanderers journeyed to that town and played the local team a tie. Although the weather was unfavorable a good crowd was present curious to see how the boys from the "old sod" played. Yes, they can kick a ball with the best of them, and they gave our boys an awful surprise," said a Norwood citizen after the game. "And I think those English fellows will pretty nearly be at the top at the wind up." The game was free from all rough play and the spectators witnessed some very brilliant work by the players of both teams, while Butler, in goal for the visitors did excellent work. Mr. Arthur Noble officiated as referee, but had little to do as there was not a player ruled off either side.

The Old Country Wanderers have certainly made a good showing in this, their initial game. The club has just been organized this season, many of the players having never spent a summer on this side of the ocean. Some changes will be made in the team, which will materially strengthen it.

BIG WATER RESERVOIRS.

Enormous Quantities of Water to Feed the Trent Canal

Fifty Northern Lakes Hold Billion Feet—Navigation Has Largely Increased of Late.

In his report to the Department, Engineer R. B. Rogers, of the Trent Valley Canal, says.

The regulation of the water is under three different managements, namely, the Dominion government, the Ontario government, and the lumbermen, consequently it is not surprising that there are complaints regarding the management in the dry season. Owing to the immense country drained, and the country becoming every year more cleared, the proper regulation of the water becomes difficult. The regulation of the water also between Lakefield and Peterborough is, under the present circumstances, very unsatisfactory, and as the power at the several dams along the river is developed, the trouble will be increased. Owing to the mills at Young's Point and Lakefield using all the surplus water, any temporary stoppage almost stops the entire flow; in consequence the mills below are often stopped for a time. If the power owners at Lakefield and other dams were to notify the government caretakers of the dams, or otherwise compensate for the stoppage by allowing extra water to escape, when it is necessary to stop temporarily for repairs, the cause of the complaint would be removed.

LOTS OF WATER AWAY BACK.

With reference to the water supply, it is not generally known that such a vast system of reservoirs exists as there are in the country to the north of the direct route of the canal. From a recent survey of reservoirs, it was ascertained that there are over fifty dams at present constructed, which control about 70,000 acres of water, on which over 25 billion cubic feet of water can be stored, not taking into account the large quantity that could be stored by many new dams that could be constructed.

ARE OVER 30 BOATS.

The proper storage and regulation of the large quantity of water above referred to is a most important matter, not only to navigation, but to the vast commercial interests that are located along the valley of the Trent. The traffic on this waterway has nearly doubled during the last ten years—the total number of lockages ten years ago was only 2,500—now the lockages total 15,299, being an increase of over 114 over those of that year. This does not fairly represent the traffic on the canal, as owing to many of the longer routes of the steamers not passing through a lock, no record of the traffic is kept. There are over 30 steamers engaged in commerce between Lakefield and Balsam Lake, besides a large number of small steamers belonging to private individuals.

Uxbridge Journal: Oshawa is more enthusiastic over her ball team than her lacrosse club. The ball tossers will again enter the Midland League along with Cobourg, Bowmanville, Port Hope, Peterborough and Lindsay, says a despatch to the Toronto dailies. I am in receipt of a letter, however, from the Lindsay club wanting to know what Uxbridge thinks of "a league consisting of Orillia, Lindsay, Uxbridge and two Peterborough clubs." Looks as if Lindsay was desirous of bolting from the old organization. Things are shaping for the Markham-Stouffville, Uxbridge League, and it is altogether likely this will be the district in which Uxbridge will be interested this season, unless it should be decided to sport two teams and enter one in a northern league along with Sunderland, Cannington and Beaverton.

The T.A.S. club will hold a smoker on Monday, May 9th.

BREEZY LOCAL BREVITIES.

By The Times Reporters on Their Daily Rounds

—Water is to be turned on in the lift lock this week.

—Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons on Saturday received an immense shipment of jute from Scotland, to be used in the manufacture of blankets.

—The annual district meeting of the Methodist Church in the Peterborough district will be held in the George Street Church on May 17th. Rev. J. P. Wilson, B.A., is the chairman of the district, and Rev. J. G. Lewis, B.A., secretary.

—The funeral of the late Lewis Glover took place from his late residence, Allandale, Otonabee, on Saturday, to the Little Lake cemetery, where interment took place. The cortege was a large one, showing the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

—The Toronto breweries will probably enjoy the distinction of figuring in a big strike. All the employes go out this morning if the employers do not surrender to the union, which means that beer may be scarce in Peterborough and elsewhere this summer.

—Port Hope hotelkeepers are in a state of funk over the discovery that the law demands a space of 300 feet between a barroom and a place of public worship. The British hotel, St. Lawrence Hall, Queen's hotel and Hunter's shop are within the prohibited distance.

—A charter has been granted by the Dominion Government to the Campbellford, Lake Ontario & Western Railway Co., to build a line of railway from a point of the C.P.R. between Ivanhoe and Bairtron, thence southwesterly, taking in the towns along the front and connecting again with the C.P.R. at a point between Locust Hill and Leaside Junction.

—Mr. S. S. Aplin, who for sometime has filled the position of Physical Director of the local Y.M.C.A., left on Saturday morning for Pembroke Ont., where he will take the General Secretaryship of the Y. M. C. A. A number of the younger members of the association, with whom Mr. Aplin has been very popular, were at the station to bid him farewell.

—It will be pleasing news to Dr. Moffat's many Peterborough friends to learn that he is recovering from his serious illness, and is expected home to Norwood in a few days from the Toronto General Hospital, where he has been under treatment for some weeks.

The Street Railway

Work on the street railway will begin this week, it is said. Under the agreement with the town the new owners of the railway are to have it in operation by July 1st. There is likely, therefore, to be a hurry during the next two months.

Get a Dog Tag

The police are after the owners of tagless dogs. The dog tax year begins to-day, and all owners of dogs who have not taken out a license will be prosecuted without regard to creed or color. Chief Rousel says there are 1,000 tagless canines in town.

CLOSED BY POLICE

Montreal Credit Company Brought Up with a Turn

Montreal, May 2.—The Compagnie de Credit du Canada was closed Friday afternoon, and its assets seized by the Montreal police acting under instructions from the Minister of Justice at Ottawa. The statement that the company voluntarily suspended is incorrect. It will be remembered that at the time of the debate on the credit companies last week Sir Wilfrid committed to Mr. Fitzpatrick the task of finding out what had better be done with such financial institutions.

It is certain that the Compagnie de Credit has about 20,000 contracts out against it, but as no definite period of maturing is named and the purchase value of the contract varies according to the time it is left running it is quite impossible to say what the liabilities amount to. It is difficult to sympathize very deeply with the persons who are losing their money in this concern, because they desire 250 per cent. on their money, but the indirect will undoubtedly be a serious blow to small savings in the Province of Quebec. There are half a dozen other companies doing business similar to that of the company in question that most of them will probably voluntarily close their doors. There is little chance of successful criminal prosecutions. The present manager of the Compagnie de Credit du Canada has been such for week only, and his predecessors are not to be found.

The step taken is of great interest to Toronto, because it seems to involve the principle that the operations of a Dominion chartered company can be suspended by the Government upon a mere decision that it is not in a position to fulfill the promises it is making. The Compagnie de Credit offered 250 per cent., so it is not hard to assume the impossibility of fulfillment. There are said to be companies in Toronto which offer anywhere from 50 to 200 per cent., but on much vager contracts, and the interesting question is, where will the Government draw the line.

THE CAMEL'S HEAD.

"Where the camel's head goes his body follows," says an Oriental proverb. It's the same way with disease. A small opening will give it an entrance and when disease once has a place in the body a large number of ills may follow it.

The opening for disease is often found in a "weak" stomach. When the stomach is "weak" the body also becomes weakened by lack of nutrition, and disease attacks the heart, liver, lungs, kidneys and other organs.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the weak stomach strong. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, and so enables the body to resist or throw off other diseases.

Men and women who are sick are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free, and so obtain without charge the opinion of a specialist on their ailments. All correspondence strictly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"For the past two years I have been a very sick woman," writes Mrs. Chumley, of 161 Woodland Ave., Cleveland, Ohio. "I tried medicines from doctors and to no avail. At last I decided to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When I started I was all run-down and had a very unpleasant taste in my mouth. Was choked up, and at times it was very hard for me to breathe. I had severe headaches and aching pains in my knee joint. Was so weak I could not attend to my work nor walk up or down stairs without the assistance of my brother or some friend. I am now taking the fourth bottle, and am happy to say I feel like myself again. I can go up and down stairs and perform my duties as well as any one. Everything seems to brighten, and I can assure you that life is worth living."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing just as good for dyspepsia or debility.

Biliousness is cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

THE FIRST BIG LAND BATTLE FOR JAPS

RUSSIANS LOSE OVER 800 MEN, 20 OFFICERS AND 28 GUNS--JAPANESE LOSSES, 700 KILLED AND WOUNDED

The Present Position of the Yellow Men is a Dominating One, and They May Force the Abandonment of the Defences Erected by the Russians at Antung and Other Points.

London May 3rd.—Latest reports of the big land battle between the Japs and Russians, Gen. Kouroki reports, under date of May 1st., notwithstanding strong resistance the Imperial Guards 2nd and 12th divisions, advanced on three roads, driving the enemy and at 8 p.m. captured the line from Antung and Lienshiukon and the Imperial Guards surrounded the enemy on three sides and after severe fighting captured twenty guns with horses and carriages.

And over twenty officers and many soldiers. The enemy fled toward Leng Choung. Our casualties were almost 700. We captured twenty-eight quick-firing guns, large quantities of ammunition and rifles. Our heavy firing guns proved very effective. Russian officers taken prisoners say the Russian commanders of both army corps and division were wounded, and their casualties exceeded 800.

JAP'S GREAT VICTORY.

From the official Japanese reports which are to hand, it now becomes possible to follow the operations on the lower Yalu. From there it appears that the centre of General Kuroki's force occupied Wiju while the flanks extended for several miles north and south of that town. The Russian troops were posted above the Village of Chiuliencheng over against Wiju and on the heights situated on the right banks of the Iho River, which enters the Yalu from the north nearly opposite Wiju.

Fighting commenced on Tuesday with an artillery duel, which was prolonged over the remainder of the week and which resulted in the silencing of the Russian batteries. While the Japanese artillery were gaining the mastery their infantry seized the islands of Chukodi and Kinteito a few miles south of Wiju and prepared to throw a pontoon bridge across the Yalu near that town. At the same time a strong Japanese force concentrated at Saikokchin, where a crossing was also intended to be made.

All being in readiness the passage of the river was begun on Saturday at both points and successfully accomplished. As the Japanese right wing outflanked the Russian left the latter was placed in a very disadvantageous position, necessitating a change of front. On Sunday a general advance was ordered by the Japanese commander, in the course of which his troops forced the Iho river driving the Russian defenders out of Chiuliencheng and from the heights with the loss of twenty-eight quick-firing guns, twenty officers and many non-commissioned officers and men.

There is no greater test of the skill of a commander and the quality of troops than the crossing of a river in the face of an enemy well posted and strong in artillery. This test the Japanese general and army have brilliantly stood. The history of the operations demonstrates how thoroughly the Japanese have grasped the rules of modern fire tactics. No advance was made until the ground had been thoroughly searched by a commanding artillery fire, and when the offensive movement was begun it was carried out with surprising swiftness and efficiency. That the Russian reverse approached a rout is sufficiently evident from the number of quick-firing guns captured by the assailants, amounting to two-thirds of the Russian armament in that line. The defeated troops apparently retreated northwest in the direction of Fenghoangcheng on the Liaoyang road.

While these operations were in progress a smaller Japanese force, aided by gun boats from the fleet, drove the Russians out of Antung on the right bank of the Yalu and as a result of the whole combined movement the Japs are now securely across the river and in a position to menace Newchwang and the line of the Manchurian Railway. This will in all probability be their next objective.

RUSSIA ON THE VERGE OF INEVITABLE RUIN

Diplomats at Washington Consider Her Hopelessly Beaten By Japan

Washington, May 3.—That Russia is already hopelessly beaten and soon must swallow her pride and sue for peace is the opinion of some of the diplomats of the highest rank at this capital. Such views were expressed by members of the diplomatic corps who met socially not many hours ago and talked informally of the outlook in the far East. These men are not unfriendly to Russia. They are simply statesmen of the world, well informed and able through wide knowledge and long experience to catch the first faint shadow of coming events. One of them, well known on both sides of the Atlantic for his skill as a diplomat, made use of the following words:

"Russia is fast going the road to ruin. The war is virtually over, and Russia is vanquished. Japan has command of the sea, and command of the sea in modern warfare is victory. Russia cannot win without recovering superiority of sea-power and that is impossible unless she is willing to prolong the conflict three years, or until she can construct a new fleet of battleships. That would mean the ruin of the Russian empire—hopeless bankruptcy, commercial panic, revolution at home.

"No. There is nothing for the Czar to do but to save what he can out of the wreck. He should move at once. He should dismiss the war party—send Alexieff and Bezobrazoff and all the other belligerents into retirement, along with Besobrazoff. The Czar can't well dismiss his uncle and aunts and rid himself of the influence of the grand dukes and grand duchesses. But he should disregard their counsel. He should reinstate Dr Witte and lean heavily upon Count Lamsdorff, and the other friends of peace. He should immediately make overtures through Paris and London for mediation and settlement with Japan, paying the necessary price and saving what he can out of the wreck. To continue the war it is hopeless. It is ruin and suicide."

The foregoing words summarize the best opinion in the diplomatic world. They would create a sensation if the name of the man who spoke them could be given, though this expression is only that of an individual and must not in any way be taken as possessing political significance. There is in some minds here a belief and in others a hope that the Czar will rise to the crisis of the hour and adopt the very course which has been indicated. It is the belief of diplomats whose opinions are of value that now, before any great land battles have been fought and Japan has made only trifling sacrifices of men and money, Russia could secure terms of peace which might be regarded as favorable under the circumstances—that is to say, by merely granting Japan's original demands, with one or two additions. Besides a guarantee of the independence of Corea and evacuation of Manchuria, Japan would now doubtless insist upon the surrender to her, or at least the disarmament and neutralization of the Liaotung Peninsula, including, of course, Port Arthur.

"But Port Arthur will soon fall into the possession of Japan," said the diplomatist already quoted. "That must be regarded as inevitable. With sea power lost, the holding of Port Arthur is at best of doubtful value to Russia. It is a tax upon her military strength without any corresponding advantages. As long as the Russian fleet was sufficiently formidable to menace Japan's transports or ports, Port Arthur was the key to the situation. But now the Russian fleet is more than half destroyed or disabled. What remains is in a state of demoralization. Admiral Togo has only to station a part of his squadron before the port, establish a blockade, and Port Arthur itself and the Russian ships there are powerless to inflict any damage upon Japan. All the troops Russia keeps at Port Arthur are so many men out of the fighting elsewhere. The minute the remnant of the Russian fleet come out of the harbor and give battle the Japanese will overwhelm them with superior force. If they stay in port they are harmless. Meanwhile the Japanese are strong enough to go after the cruisers at Vladivostok.

"So far as sea power is concerned the outlook is altogether hopeless for Russia," continued this authority. "If the Baltic fleet is sent to the Pacific it in turn will be overpowered and destroyed. What I wish to emphasize is that by losing the freedom of the ocean Russia has lost the struggle, and it is useless to continue it on land.

"If three months ago anyone had predicted what has actually happened, he would have been deemed crazy. One Russian naval detachment destroyed at Chemulpo. Another bottled up and harmless at Vladivostok. The third and principal one cut to pieces and virtually blockaded at Port Arthur. Japanese transports moving everywhere without peril. Russia afraid to send out naval reinforcements because of the probability that they would meet a like fate. All this without the loss of a ship by Japan, and almost without the loss of a man. The only parallel to it in history is found in the Spanish-American war. Russia's case is as hopeless as was Spain's. When Sampson destroyed the Spanish fleet at Santjago the war was virtually over, and Spain hastened to seek peace. The destruction of the fleet of Admiral Makaroff, though not yet complete is, practically speaking, already accomplished. Port Arthur will fall whenever the Japanese get ready to take it. And with the fall of Port Arthur, if not now, the war is virtually at an end, and the hour has struck for the Czar to recover mastery of himself, return to his original policy of peace, and seek settlement on the best terms that can be had.

"When we turn to the land we find that another wonderful thing has happened. Corea has been evacuated by Russian troops almost without firing a shot. No land engagement of any importance has taken place. But without loss on land or sea the Japanese have obtained mastery of the ocean and mastery of Corea.

"Thus the first stage of the war is closed, and it shows that Russia has been dislodged from her former position. What next? I am not of those who believe the Japanese will follow the Russians into the interior. I believe the Japanese forces will take Port Arthur, take Newchwang, and perhaps also Vladivostok, and that there they will stop. Why should they go further? They will then have all that is worth fighting for. They will have entrenched themselves in the strongest possible position. They can well afford to hold their lines and let the enemy dislodge them if they can. They should, and in my opinion will," and the speaker's position, I assure you, my readers, makes his utterances significant, "stay close to the sea, where they are masters. If the Japanese do this they will be virtually unconquerable. Possession of the sea is everything.

"Russia's outlook is hopeless," concluded this eminent diplomatist. "She cannot recover control of the sea and she cannot put into the far East and maintain there an army strong enough to drive the Japanese into the sea. Imagine you Americans trying to fight Russia at Cape Nome, for instance—your enemy being in control of the sea, and you supporting an army of 400,000 or 500,000 men over a single track railway.

"I have little hope that the Czar will sue for peace. I am talking about what he should do. In my opinion, the Russian people will through pride demand that the war continue. There will be a terrible struggle. If it continues very long both nations will be well nigh bankrupt. The Czar did not want war, but he succumbed to the influences about him. Alexieff is the man who brought on this war, simply because he thought the Japanese were bluffing. His is a terrible responsibility. The future of Russia is dark, indeed, but I fear the Czar has not sufficient moral courage to rise to the occasion and sue for peace at this favorable moment."

THE PROPOSED NEW COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE

STRONG REASONS WHY THE BY-LAW SHOULD PASS ON THURSDAY

Every Freehold Ratepayer Should Read the Letter Below, and Vote Accordingly

To the Editor of The Times:

Sir,—In the correspondence which has already appeared in your columns, the facts regarding the urgent need for the erection of an up-to-date Collegiate Institute building have been fully stated, but as the day for taking the vote on the by-law is close at hand it will not be out of place again to draw attention to the more important of them.

1. The present building is not at all suitable, and has been repeatedly reported against by the High School Inspectors. It is Public School property, for which the town pays an annual rental of ($1100) eleven hundred dollars.

2. The Masonic building, for which the School Board pays about (500) five hundred dollars per annum in rent and taxes, will not be available for school purposes when the present lease expires, and even with it many of the school rooms are over crowded. If the Collegiate Institute vacated its present premises eight or nine rooms would be added to the present Public School accomodation, which would be sufficient for some time to come.

3. The sixteen hundred dollars now paid in rent and taxes would pay interest and provide a sinking fund for the payment of a large fraction of the fifty thousand dollars which it is proposed to raise for the erection of a new Collegiate Institute building.

4. The average assessment of the property holders of the town is about fourteen hundred dollars, and the taxes on this assessment for Collegiate Institute purposes will be about 77 cents, at our present rate of 18 1-2 mills, and many of our property holders would not be taxed over 25 or 40 cents per annum to provide the money which it is proposed to expend.

5. Large and small tax payers alike enjoy the educational advantages which a Collegiate Institute provides, and to a very large extent the rich pay for the education of the poor. This is surely a reason why every small property holder should support the by-law. Just the other day a man of very moderate means said to one of his friends "that if it had not been for the Peterborough Collegiate Institute his boy would never have occupied the position which he holds today." This is only one father among many of small means who could truthfully say the same thing.

6. We have the finest commercial town in the Province, and we are all proud of its progressive, mercantile spirit, but we are behind many of the much smaller and poorer business towns around us in educational buildings and equipment. Is it not high time we should make an effort to be ranked first class in this respect also? Nothing makes a town more attractive to energetic business men as a place in which to settle than first class educational advantages. We have many good business men, but we have room for more. Let us provide them with a Collegiate Institute which will be a strong inducement for them to select Peterborough as a field of labor.

For the above reasons it is our duty to heartily support the Collegiate Institute By-law to be submitted on May 9th.

Yours etc.,

ANOTHER CITIZEN.

THE FARMERS ARE FAVORABLY INTERESTED.

In Culture of Sugar Beets So Say the Acreage Solicitors

The undersigned solicited acreage for the Peterborough Sugar Company, Limited, for about 60 days each last winter, until soliciting was discontinued by the company. We canvassed in the Counties of Victoria, Ontario and Durham, and met with a reception so favorable that about 75 per cent. of the farmers called upon, within four miles of the nearest station, contracted to grow beets at $4.00 a ton.

In South Ontario we found a large number of farmers who had last year grown beets for the Berlin factory and all but two or three expressed their willingness to continue growing beets and signed the Peterborough Sugar Company's contracts. We were able to secure about 100 acres a week on an average. In the townships of Rusch and Mariposa alone we secured about 400 acres; and we do not hesitate to confirm the statement made by Mr. Garvin that the counties adjoining Peterborough will grow in subsequent years not less than 4,000 acres of sugar beets. Everywhere we found the farmers favorably interested in the sugar beet industry, and quite of the opinion that the cultivation of beets will prove unusually profitable.

Yours truly,

W. A. IRVINE,

WM. A. BELL.

HAMILTON AND THE CANAL

THE AMBITIOUS CITY PREFERS THE PORT HOPE ROUTE

The Trent Waterway No Longer Regarded as a Fake, But a Reality

For a quarter of a century or so the Trent Valley canal has been looked upon as a huge political joke, says the Hamilton Spectator. When a government was about to go to the country the Trent Valley canal appeared in the estimates, set down for a small sum of money; but in the intervals between elections the canal was not heard of outside its immediate neighborhood. Now, however, principally owing to the active endeavors of the Port Hope Canal association, the long-neglected canal is coming to the notice of the people as a real, live, sensible, useful canal that only wants a fair show to enable it to be of vast benefit to the region it runs through, and to Ontario generally.

And now that there is some chance that something may be done toward the completion of the canal, the ancient squabble between Port Hope and Trenton, on the honor and profit of having the south end of the canal, has broken out again, and virulently. A very brief glance at the map will show any man having sense that Port Hope is, geographically speaking, the proper place for the outlet. It is the most convenient place, particularly for Hamilton and other points on the western half of the lake, while it is just as convenient—to say the least—for the eastern ports as Trenton would be. To fix the outlet at Port Hope would put Peterborough, Orillia, Lindsay, and all that country 85 miles nearer Hamilton than by way of Trenton.

The Port Hope Canal association is making a strong campaign in favor of its town, and is able to point out many other advantages besides the geographical position of Port Hope which ought to count in favor of that town. There is the cost of construction which, to Port Hope, would be very much less than to Trenton, nearly 40 miles further; and there is the fact that there exists a natural ravine leading to Port Hope which would very materially cheapen the construction of the shorter route.

ATHLETIC WORLD

BY OUR SPORTING EDITOR

CANOEING.

There is a movement on foot to reorganize the Trent Valley Canoe Club which was in existence last year. The club while not a bowling success financially, provided much enjoyment and real sport for its members many of whom are anxious to see the club in existence once more. Several regattas were successfully run off last season and the club outings were quite numerous. Peterborough is famous the world over as a canoe manufacturing centre, and it seems only appropriate that there should be a canoe club in town with such fine advantages as the Little Lake and Otonabee River provide. Last year's experience should prove invaluable to those who may have charge of the club's affairs this year, and there is no reason why the club should not be a success financially and in every other way. If such a club is to be reorganised steps should be taken along that line as soon as possible, for if the present mild weather continues it will not be long before the canoeist will be seen with his paddle and canoe enjoying the favorite summer sport.

PRIMARY ROOMS CROWDED.

Inspector Duncan Walker reported as follows:

Gentlemen,—In submitting herewith the report on the attendance at the Public Schools for the month of April, I beg leave to call your attention to the crowded state of our primary rooms. The attendance there is larger than at any time during the past six years, the enrollment being as follows: Central School, 61; South Ward School, 71; East Ward School, 75; North Ward School, 63; West Ward School, 63, and George Street School, 42, making a total of 375, or an average for each of the six rooms of 62.

The two largest classes are those of the South and East Ward Schools, and for these some relief is urgent. As it is now too late in the term to make any distribution of the pupils among the other teachers, I would suggest that the lowest division in each of these two rooms be divided until midsummer into two classes, one to attend the morning, the other the afternoon sessions of school.

This will afford temporary relief, and will be no serious detriment to the progress of the pupils, the loss in time per day being less than half an hour.

These pupils are at present dismissed at the morning and afternoon recess, and so are at school about three hours per day. Under the proposed arrangement the time will be about two and one-half hours.

On motion of Trustee Hill, seconded by Trustee Pringle, the suggestions of the Inspector will be acted on at once.

HIGH SCHOOL INSPECTOR'S REPORT.

The report of the High School Inspector Hodgson, embodied the suggestion that the provision of an electric lantern would be of great assistance in connection with the teaching of Light History, Geography, Botany and Literature in the Collegiate Institute. These lanterns are in use in nearly all Collegiate Institutes situated in towns where a day current is available. He reported good provision for all the prescribed courses of study that are taken up. All members of the teaching staff are legally qualified, the discipline is good, all the pupils have been regularly admitted, the text books are in accord with the regulations, the daily and general registers are properly kept and excellent provision is made for English Literature in Forms I. and II. and Supplementary Literature in Forms III. and IV.

In grading the character of the teaching as I. good, II. fair, III. poor and IV. bad, the report reads thus: English and History I. and III.; Classicks I., Drawing, not inspected; Mathematics I. and III.; French and German I.; Reading I; Science I; Commercial I.; Drill, Calisthenics and Gymnasium I.

As to the standing of the pupils in reading the report showed that of the last admitted pupils five were good, twelve fair, five poor and four bad of the thirty-two examined, and of other pupils, ten were good, eight fair and two poor of the twenty examined. The bookkeeping sets, the work in Drawing, the Drill, calisthenics and gymnastics were good.

In conclusion the report stated that the Institute continued admirably organized and administered. On the occasion of his visit tentative plans for a new building on a convenient site in close proximity to the proposed armories, which will be available for physical training purposes, were submitted him. A building erected according to those plans, with a few modifications, will, he reported, bring Peterborough abreast of other important towns in Ontario.

REPAIRS TO SCHOOLS.

Chairman Eastwood submitted the report of the Property Committee recommending considerable repairs to the several school buildings and grounds.

The report concluded that the North Ward building is in fair condition in general, and is kept in the most orderly condition of any of the schools. The cost of these repairs will be considerably above the amount proportioned for this purpose, but cannot be helped, as our properties are absolutely to far below a good standard of maintenance until that standard is improved.

The report was adopted as read.

FINANCE REPORT.

Trustee Fair submitted the Finance Committee's report, recommending payment of a number of accounts, which was adopted as read.

THE NEW INSTITUTE.

Trustee Pringle submitted the draft of a circular letter to the ratepayers setting forth the reasons for asking their support of the by-law to authorize an expenditure of $50,000 on a new Collegiate Institute and site.

Mr. Pringle suggested that as a large number of people are not aware of the exact state of affairs, it is the Board's duty to enlighten them on the subject. Amongst other reasons for a new building is a deplorable lack of requirements for present day needs, and the Institute has been reported inadequate by the Provincial Inspector, in consequence of which the grant has been lower than it would otherwise have been. No site has yet been decided upon, as that is a matter depending upon the passage of the by-law. He suggested that this circular be referred to a committee for printing and distributing.

Trustees Pringle, H. P. Kennedy and Hill were appointed a committee to revise the above circular, and have 3,000 copies printed and thoroughly distributed from house to house.

The Board then adjourned.

LAYING DOWN NEW TRACKS

C. P. R. to Improve the Road Bed on The Section

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company will lay a new track on its line between Toronto and Smith's Falls this summer, at an estimated outlay of $50,000. The new rails will weigh eighty pounds instead of seventy-two pounds of the ones at present in use, which were laid in 1890.

The company is also strengthening its bridges on the Toronto-Owen Sound branch to enable the big Mogul engines to haul grain on this line to the city. The grain traffic from the West has been so heavy of late as to make the company handle part of the crop via Owen Sound to Toronto.

The addition track of the C.P.R., which is building between Parkdale and Toronto Junction, will be finished in about a month.

Detroit Specialist Discovers Something Entirely New for the Cure of Men's Diseases in Their Own Homes.

You Pay Only if Cured

He Accepts No Money Unless He Cures Your Method and Full Particulars Sent Free —Write For It This Very Day

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and boards, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes; so that there may be no doubt in the mind of any man that he has

DR. S. GOLDBERG,
The Possessor of 14 Diplomas and Certificates Who Wants No Money That He Does Not Earn.

both the method and the ability to do as he says, Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic troubles, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation of parts, impotency, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but like wise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interest of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as many booklets on the subject, including the one that contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply

Dr. S. Goldberg, 258 Woodward Ave., Room Detroit, Mich., and it will all immediately be sent you free.

This is something entirely new and well worth knowing more about. Write at once.

UNION LABEL

PETERBOROUGH, MAY 3 1904

A GREAT UNION MOVEMENT

The respective committees which were appointed by the Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational bodies to discuss the question of possible union of these three religious denominations in Canada report unanimously that they see no insuperable difficulties in the way of organic union. The report probably comes with a little shock of surprise to most of us, says the Ottawa Journal. Notwithstanding the talk in favor of such union which has been widespread in Canada lately, notwithstanding the fact that almost all the informal expressions of opinion have been in favor of such union, notwithstanding that when you come to think seriously about it there hardly appear to be any forcible arguments against union, most people belonging to the three great religious bodies named have had heard more about it long ago. The idea that there must be some big reason against union or else we would have heard more about it before. The majority of us are pretty conservative in our secret hearts in our opinions on religious and social questions. Union between Presbyterians and Methodists and Congregationalists? Why, Presbyterians, Methodists and Congregationalists have been apart for hundreds of years! Must there not be something wrong about the coming together now? This has been probably the half-conscious thought of the average member of each body, and he is inclined to be surprised to find that nearly all his fellow-members as well as himself are suddenly ready to concede that there is no really vital objection to the principle of union.

But there has been rapid missionary work of late among the three and the verdict of the committees powerful denominations concerned, which have been formally examining into the matter and discussing it with each other that organic union is feasible, is certain to be received with well-nigh universal satisfaction by the mass of Protestants in Canada belonging to these three bodies. And come to think of it this country is just the place where the idea of union among Protestant denominations should make easy headway, and come early to practical action. The historic fact is that Canadians have led the way already in reunions of Christian bodies, although previous movements among us were confined to unions of branches of the same denomination, as in the case of the once separate Presbyterian bodies. And this country is of all countries well fitted for such union movements. The protestant portion of our population is probably more homogeneous than the corresponding population of any other country. Our Protestant people have practically no divisions of race or caste. They have few and weak divisions of class. Our people in general have more social liberalism than our brothers in Great Britain; yet, more social conservatism and concentration than our friends in the United States. If there are no doctrinal religious difficulties that can not be got over in the way of Protestant church union among us, there are certainly no serious difficulties or drawbacks arising from coolness or friction between race or class, no good reason why all in Canada who can tolerate each other's doctrinal views should not participate fully and freely in membership in one great religious body.

Of course, no early consummation of a union movement need be expected. Years, many years, must pass at least before practical steps towards organic union of the Presbyterians, Methodist and Congregationalist bodies in this country can arrive at a fairly complete result. But there is no need to hurry. The essential thing is unity of Christian spirit, and that is already promoted materially by the mere fraternal discussion of organic union. Slow and sure is a good motto for the progress in the outward and visible league, and towards the hoped for ultimate amalgamation. That the latter is a consummation devoutly to be wished we do not for a moment doubt. There is something to be said for the possibilities of special keenness and energy in each of a number of competing denominations; but there is a vast deal to be said for the brotherliness, the strength, the concentration, the increase both in economy of effort and wealth of effective resource, which must attend the greater union. Christianity was united enough to start with—was embodied in one man—it ought not to need to be split up into infinite diversity of creed and effort in these latter days.

RAILWAY RAILS

The Canadian Pacific will not their Supply from U. S.—Grand Trunk Harvest Placed their Order Not

Montreal, April 30—As a result of the placing of the German surtax by the Canadian Government, the announcement was made to-day that very little German iron and steel would find its way into Canada during the present season, while last year over 100,000 tons of rails and plates were brought in. Of the little tonnage that will come from Germany the local companies claim that the greater part was contracted for early last year.

Last year the Canadian Pacific brought in 25,000 tons of rails and the Grand Trunk 15,000 tons, from Germany. This year the Canadian Pacific are bringing in all their rails from the United States, while the Grand Trunk have not contracted for any new shipments.

Rheumatism Conquered!

DRIVEN FROM THE SYSTEM BY ELIMINATING POISONOUS URATES IN THE BLOOD

Stubborn Cases Quickly Relieved, Chronic Sufferers Absolutely Cured by an Internal Remedy

This disease originates in the blood as the poisons in the blood that cause the pain. Get rid of these poisons and you cure the pain. Doesn't that seem logical.

These poisons are composed largely of uric acid which dissolves and quickly passes out of the system if Ferrozone is employed, it being a complete and perfect solvent for all the poisons that give rise to rheumatic pain. No case is too chronic no person too old to be forever released from the agonies of rheumatism if Ferrozone is used; it cures after all other treatments proved useless. You may have been disappointed with other remedies. But don't let this defer you from using Ferrozone. It's not like the ordinary "cure"—it possesses peculiar qualities not found in any other remedy.

FERROZONE CURES RHEUMATISM

Mr. Edgar F. Richmond, an old and well known resident of Winchester says:—"My endorsement of Ferrozone is cheerfully given for I know that I am speaking for a sure cure for rheumatism. Ferrozone cured me so the pain didn't come back again. I honestly believe that no medicine on this face of the globe can do as much for rheumatism as Ferrozone."

Mrs. D. J. Thurston, of Burton, P. O., writes; "As a long sufferer from rheumatism I can say that Ferrozone is the most satisfactory remedy that I used. Quite frequently I would get a bad attack and be laid up in bed. Ferrozone removed every trace of the disease and I have been well ever since."

Ferrozone is beyond all question the proper remedy to use in rheumatism. There is none better. Beware of substitutes and don't allow a druggist to palm off something he may say is just as good. Insist on having Ferrozone, use it as directed and you will be cured. Price 50c, per box or six boxes for $2.50, at all druggists or by mail, from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

HAUNTED ENGINES?

Strange Sights Seen by Employes of the T. H. & B. at Welland

Niagara Falls, May 2—Much has been written of the strange superstitions and beliefs of railway men—particularly enginemen—and recent occurrences in this section strikingly illustrate the truth of these stories. Enginemen on some lines are constantly relating and discussing the strange doings reported from the roundhouse of the Toronto, Hamilton & Buffalo Railway at Welland Station. George and Alexander Harper, two roundhouse employes, are the narrators of hair-raising stories of what they have seen in the building of late. According to them, the apparition usually takes the form of a man sitting on the cow-catcher of a locomotive standing in its stall in the roundhouse. George Harper says that on several occasions he has distinctly seen men sitting on the pilots, but when he approached them or looked at them closely they faded away. A few nights ago Alex. Harper was cleaning an engine, and, looking towards the front of it, saw a man seated on the cross beam. He thought first it was another employe, but when he looked again the form disappeared without apparent movement. There is a story of a farmer who lives along the line having seen men riding on the pilots of engines on several occasions. The engines in question have an evil impression, having run down and killed several men in their time. In a more superstitious land these reports would cause an immense sensation, but here they are the subject of grave discussion among the other knights of the rail.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

SEPERATE SCHOOLS ACT

Did not Take Long to Take Advantage of the Precedent set by the Sturgeon Falls School Bill

St. Catharines, April 30.—It did not take the Separate School Board long last night to take advantage of the precedent set in the Sturgeon Falls School Bill. At a meeting last night this resolution was passed.

Moved by Trustees Brennan and McCarron, That whereas by certain bylaws passed by the Council of the city of St. Catharines sums of money have been granted to various persons and companies carrying on manufacturing establishments in the city, and these manufacturing establishments have also been exempted from the payment of taxes for municipal purposes; and whereas the said grants of money and exemptions from the payment of taxes impose burdens on the ratepayers, irrespective the question whether they are supporters of the Public or Separate schools; and whereas the said exemptions do not and cannot by law relieve the exempted corporations or persons from the payment of taxes levied for school rates, the Public School trustees receive large sums of money paid by such corporations and persons as school taxes, and thereby the supporters of Public Schools are relieved from a considerable portion of the burden imposed on them by the said bylaws, while on the other hand the supporters of the Separate schools receive no relief whatever, for the reason that no portion of such school taxes are paid to the Separate School trustees; and whereas this Board is of the opinion that as long as the Separate School supporters share the burdens imposed by the said bylaws in common with the other ratepayers, common justice should also make them entitled to a share of the abatement thereof, caused by the levying and payment of the school taxes; therefore is is hereby resolved by this Board that before any bylaw shall be hereafter passed by the City Council granting aid exemption to any corporation which shall constitute a charge on the general body of taxpayers some binding arrangement and agreement shall be made with this Board of a fair and equitable portion of the taxes which may be levied on and collected from the persons and corporations so aided or exempted for school purposes; that the secretary is hereby directed to send a copy of this resolution to the City Clerk for presentation to the Council at its next meeting.

The effect of this action will be seen when the ratepayers vote on May 18 on a bylaw to bonus J. M. Ross Sons Company, recently burned out.

WILL FIGHT TO END

Sturgeon Falls, Ont., April 30.—The legalising of the Separate School bill by the Lieutenant-Governor was a surprise to the delegation which waited on his Honor some time ago, particularly to A. A. Beach, of this town, who states that he was convinced from the remarks of the Lieutenant-Governor to the delegation that assent would be withheld if an action was entered in the courts. The action was entered practically on the advice of his Honor, who has just legalized the bill. The opinions of Public Schools supporters here is that the Separate School Board has a rocky road to travel if they attempt to realize on the Legislature's handout. Public School supporters here are convinced that if this legislation is allowed to be enforced, Public Schools all over will be attacked, and the case should be fought, even to the highest court.

COLLECTIVE NAMES.

Old English Terms For Groups of Persons and Animals.

In a book on British sports, written in the eighteenth century, Joseph Strutt gives the old English terms for groups of various beasts as follows: "When beasts went together in companies there was said to be a pride of lions, a lepe of leopards, a herd of harts, of bucks and of all sorts of deer; a bevy of roes, a sleth of bears, a sownder of wild swine, a drift of tame swine, a route of wolves, a harras of horses, a rag of colts, a stud of mares, a pace of asses, a baren of mules, a team of oxen, a drove of kine, a flock of sheep, a tribe of goats, a skulk of foxes, a cete of badgers, a richness of martins, a feasnes of ferrets, a husk or a down of hares, a nest of rabbits, a clowder of cats and a kyndall of young cats, a shrewdness of apes and a labor of moles."

Similar terms were applied to gatherings of human beings. Strutt gives them as follows: "A state of princes, a skulk of thieves, an observance of hermits, a lying of pardoners, a subtilte of sergeants, an untruth of sompners, a multiplying of husbands, a safeguard of porters, a stalk of foresters, a blast of hunters, a draft of butlers, a temperance of cooks, a melody of harpers, a poverty of pipers, a drunkenship of cobblers, a disguising of taylors, a wandering of tinkers, a malpertness of pedlars, a fighting of beggars, a ryotul—that is, a ratful—of knaves, a blush of boys, a bevy of ladies, a scrupulence of wives, a gagle of women, a gagle of geese."

In the old days the word "leash" was applied to three greyhounds, while two were "a brace." On the other hand, two spaniels or harriers were called "a couple." A number of hounds went under the term of "a mute of hounds," while it was correct to speak of "a teanel of raches, a litter of whelps and a cowardice of curs."

WHY THEY ARE POOR.

Their ideas are larger than their purses.

They are easy dupes of schemers and promoters.

They reverse the maxim, "Duty before pleasure."

They have too many and too expensive amusements.

They do not think it worth while to save nickels and dimes.

They have risked a competence in trying to get rich quickly.

They allow friends to impose upon their good nature and generosity.

They try to do what others expect of them, not what they can afford.

They prefer to incur debt rather than to do work which they consider beneath them.

They think it will be time enough to begin to save for a rainy day when the rainy day comes.

They risk all their eggs in one basket when they are not in a position to watch or control it.

Helping Him Out.

Mrs. Hoyt, wife of Charles Hoyt, the playwright, added much to the enjoyment of a Lambs' club banquet in Chicago by her sharp and witty tongue, always ready for a home thrust. Mr. Hoyt was second on the list of speakers and was badly frightened. He concluded that he would plunge quickly into his speech when called upon, and, with this idea, he arose briskly when announced and started in: "Ladies and gentlemen, I feel honored, I'm sure, by the request of the toastmaster, but it is so unexpected I really had no time to prepare—I—I really had no time to prepare—e"— And he stopped. Every one felt sorry for him, but Mrs. Hoyt seemed in no way disturbed. When she noticed his predicament she turned toward him suddenly and called out, "Why, Charley, you did it perfectly this morning!"

Reading and Thinking.

The things one merely reads about never stick. Those on which one thinks become permanent acquisitions; hence the man who is not afraid of thinking and who does not dread "that cursed hour in the dark" is at a distinct advantage on every ground. He passes the time without being bored, and he strengthens his mind. To say this may no doubt sound slightly priggish, but it is none the less true. The man who can enjoy and make use of his own thoughts has a heritage which can never be alienated. Even blindness for him loses some of its terrors.—London Spectator.

THE OREGON MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY

Offer to Canadian investors a limited amount of stock of the above company The property owned by the Company consists at the present time of about 500 acres, which are located in the Tarryall District and Park County, Colorado. This whole district has been known for years on account of its rich placer ground, and is now prominently before the public owing to the number of very good properties which have been opened up recently producing, principally, gold, and lately some that are producing Platinum. On the Oregon property there are a number of well known veins of low grade ore that will yield a profit by being treated on the ground of the company. The company have recently opened up a fine vein in the Hawkeye group and this vein shows not only good values but an immense amount of ore which alone would make the property very valuable. Assays from ore taken from various parts of this property range from a few dollars to $373 per ton in gold. We have very little silver, lead or copper in the district. The company have a shaft 240 feet deep, with a good shaft house thoroughly well equipped with all modern machinery to develop same. They are now driving a tunnel which is in about 700 feet and which will cut the Hawkeye vein about 300 feet deeper than where it is opened at present. There is enough ore exposed on the property of this company to keep them busy for a number of years and the reason for selling stock at the present time is to secure funds to build a mill. The company will probably join with the Almaden Company in building this mill. There is water enough to furnish water power and over 100 acres of fine spruce and pine timber. The affairs of the company have always been managed in a business-like economical manner and there are no officers' salaries. The monies received from the sale of stock go direct into the property.

I can heartily recommend this stock as safe, as well as an unusually good investment, because of the immense amount of ore which the company have already opened up. It is not a mere prospect, but the property has been developed by expenditure of a considerable amount of money and time.

The company is splendidly officered by men of integrity and high standing. The company has not pushed the sale of stock the last year owing to a delay in getting title to the ground from the Government, but now that has been satisfactorily adjusted and work will be pushed to a finish.

The number of exceedingly rich strikes which have been made during the last few weeks in the various camps in the State of Colorado is the best evidence of the prosperity of the mining business. Almost every camp in the state has opened up rich bodies of ore, and Park County is well in the lead in that line.

There are only $25,000 of stock for sale, at $1.00 per share. The company is capitalized at $200,000, and the advantage to the investor of selling the stock at par, is that every share is fully paid up and non-assessable.

BIG WATER RESERVOIRS.

Enormous Quantities of Water to Feed the Trent Canal

In his report to the Department, Engineer R. B. Rogers, of the Trent Valley Canal, says.

The regulation of the water is under three different managements, namely, the Dominion government, the Ontario government, and the lumbermen, consequently it is not surprising that there are complaints regarding the management in the dry season. Owing to the immense country drained, and the country becoming every year more cleared, the proper regulation of the water becomes difficult. The regulation of the water also between Lakefield and Peterborough is, under the present circumstances, very unsatisfactory, and as the power at the several dams along the river is developed, the trouble will be increased. Owing to the mills at Young's Point and Lakefield using all the surplus water, any temporary stoppage almost stops the entire flow; in consequence the mills below are often dead for a time. If the power owners at Lakefield and other dams were to notify the government caretakers of the dams, or otherwise compensate for the stoppage by allowing extra water to escape, when it is necessary to stop temporarily for repairs, the cause of the complaint would be removed.

With reference to the water supply, it is not generally known that such a vast system of reservoirs exists as there are in the country to the north of the direct route of the canal. From a recent survey of reservoirs, it was ascertained that there are over fifty dams at present constructed, which control about 70,000 acres of water, on which over 25 billion cubic feet of water can be stored, not taking into account the large quantity that could be stored by many new dams that could be constructed.

The proper storage and regulation of the large quantity of water above referred to is a most important matter, not only to navigation, but to the vast commercial interests that are located along the valley of the Trent. The traffic on this waterway has nearly doubled during the last ten years—the total number of lockages ten years ago was only 2,500—now the lockages total 15,299, being an increase of over 114 over those of last year. This does not fairly represent the traffic on the canal, as owing to many of the longer routes of the steamers not passing through a lock, no record of the traffic is kept. There are over 30 steamers engaged in commerce between Lakefield and Balsam Lake, besides a large number of small steamers belonging to private individuals.

Old Hagar's Secret

BY MRS. M. J. HOLMES

Author of "For a Woman's Sake," "Love's Triumph," "Purified by Suffering," "A Grass Widow," "Woman Against Woman," Etc.

Accordingly, on the morning of the second day she went with Maggie to the sick-room, speaking to the stranger for the first time, but keeping still at a respectful distance, until she should know something definite concerning him.

"We have met before, it seems," he said, after the first interchange of civilities was over, "but I did not think our acquaintance would be renewed in this manner."

No answer from Theo, who, like many others, had taken a dislike to his mouth, and felt puzzled to know whether he intended ridiculing her or not.

"I have a distinct recollection of your grandmother," he continued, "and now I think of it, I believe Douglas has once or twice mentioned the elder of the two girls. That must be you?" and he looked at Theo, whose face brightened perceptibly.

"Douglas," she repeated. "He is the owner of the store, and the one I saw, with black eyes and black hair, was only a clerk?"

"The veritable man himself," cried Mr. Warner. "George Douglas, the senior partner of the firm, said by some to be worth two hundred thousand dollars, and only twenty-eight years old, and the best fellow in the world, except that he pretends to dislike women."

By this time, Theo's proud blue eyes shone with delight, and when, after a little further conversation, Mr. Warner expressed a wish to write to his partner, she brought her own rosewood writing-desk for him to use, and then, seating herself by the window, waited until the letter was written.

"What shall I say for you, Miss Theo?" he asked, near the close; and, coloring slightly, she answered: "Invite him to come out and see you."

"Oh, that will be grand!" cried Maggie, who was far more enthusiastic, though not more anxious than her sister.

Of her, Henry Warner did not ask any message. He would not have written it had she sent one; and, folding the letter, after adding Theo's invitation, he laid it aside.

"I must write to Rose next," he said. "'Tis a whole week since I have written, and she has never been so long without hearing from me."

Instantly there came a shadow over Maggie's face, while Theo, less scrupulous, asked "who Rose was."

"A very dear friend of mine," said Henry, and, as Mrs. Jeffrey just then sent for Theo, Maggie was left with him alone.

"Wait one moment," she said, as she saw him about to commence the letter. "Wait till I bring you a sheet of gilt-edged paper. It is more worthy of Rose, I fancy, than the plainer kind."

"Thank you," he said. "I will tell her of your suggestion."

The paper was brought, and then seating herself by the window, Maggie looked out abstractedly, seeing nothing, and hearing nothing save the sound of the pen, as it wrote down words of love for the gentle Rose. It was not a long epistle; and, as at the close of the Douglas letter he had asked a message from Theo, so now at the close of this he claimed one from Maggie.

"What shall I say for you?" he asked; and coming toward him, Margaret answered, "Tell her I love her, though I don't know who she is!"

"Why have you never asked me?" queried Henry, and coloring crimson, Maggie answered hesitatingly, "I thought you would tell me if you wished me to know."

"Read this letter and that will explain who she is," the young man continued, offering the letter to Maggie, who, grasping it eagerly, sat down opposite, so that every motion of her face was visible to him.

The letter was as follows:

"My Darling Little Rose:

"Do you fancy some direful calamity has befallen me, because I have not written to you for more than a week? Away with your fears, then, for nothing worse has come upon me than a badly broken limb, which will probably keep me a prisoner here for two months or more. Now, don't be frightened, Rose. I am not crippled for life, and even if I were, I could love you just the same; while you, I am sure, would love me more.

"As you probably know, I left Worcester on Tuesday morning for the purpose of collecting some bills in this neighborhood. Arrived at Hilsdale, I procured a horse, and was sauntering along leisurely through the woods, when I came suddenly upon a dying witch in the shape of a beautiful young girl. She was the finest rider I ever saw, and such a chase as she led me, until at last, to my dismay, she leaped across a chasm, down which a nervous little creature like you would be afraid to look. Not wishing to be outdone, I followed her, and, as a matter of course, broke my bones.

"Were it not that the accident will greatly fidget you, I should not much regret it, for to me there is a peculiar charm about this old stone house and its quaint surroundings. But the greatest charm of all, perhaps, lies in my fair nurse, Maggie Miller, for whom I risked my neck. You two would be fast friends in a moment, and yet you are totally dissimilar, save that your voices are much alike.

"Write to me soon, dear Rose, and believe me ever.

"Your affectionate brother,
"HENRY."

"Oh," said Maggie, catching her breath, which for a time had been partially suspended, "Oh!" said in that single monosyllable there was, to the young man watching her, a world of meaning. "She's your sister, this little Rose;" and the soft dark eyes flashed brightly upon him.

"What did you suppose her to be?" he asked, and Maggie answered, "I thought she might be your wife, though I should rather have her for a sister, if I were you."

The young man smiled involuntarily, thinking to himself how his fashionable city friends would be shocked at such perfect frankness, which meant no more than their own studied airs.

"You are a good girl, Maggie," he said, at last, "and I would not for the world deceive you; Rose is my stepsister. We are in no way connected save by marriage, still I love her all the same. We were brought up together by a lady who is aunt to both, and Rose seems to me like an own dear sister. She has saved me from almost everything. I once loved the wine cup; but her kindly words and gentle influence won me back, so that now I seldom taste it. And once I thought to run away to sea, but Rose found it out, and meeting me at the gate persuaded me to return. It is wonderful, the influence she has over me, keeping my wild spirits in check, and if I am ever anything, I shall owe it all to her."

"Does she live in Worcester?" asked Maggie, and Henry answered, "No, in Leominster, which is not far distant. I go home once a month, and I fancy I can see Rose now, just as she looks when she comes tripping down the walk to meet me, her blue eyes shining like stars, and her golden curls blowing over her pale forehead. She is very, very frail; and sometimes when I look upon her,

PARTICULARLY SAD DEATH

Mrs. James Graystock, of Dummer Passes Away Suddenly

The many friends in town and country will exceedingly regret the demise of Mrs. James Graystock, of Dummer. The particulars of the sad occurrence are not to hand, but from the meagre intelligence received it appears the deceased lady passed away suddenly.

Mrs. Graystock had only been married a couple of years, and was a young woman. She was a daughter of Mr. James Little, of North Dummer, and occupied the old A. R. Kidd homestead, about two miles from Warsaw. She was beloved by all who knew her, and her demise will be greatly deplored.

DECLINE OF FALL FAIRS

THE PURCHASE OF THOROUGHBRED STOCK INSTEAD

Mr. H. B. Cowan, Superintendent of Agricultural Societies, is at present inquiring into the operation of township organizations, which, instead of holding an annual exhibition, use all the Government grant for the purchase of thoroughbred stock. This plan has been in operation in Quebec and the Maritime Provinces for several years, and the Department of Agriculture of the former Province has just written to Mr. Cowan, stating that it is being carried on with great success. A meeting was held recently for the purpose of reducing the number of annual fairs in Quebec, and substituting the scheme for the use of members. Several townships of Ontario have already made the change with, apparently, satisfactory results.

Complaints have been common that the usefulness of the township fair has gone very largely. Mr. Cowan's object is to ascertain whether it is advisable to advocate the other method as a substitute.

Superintendent Putnam has just completed the list of farmers' institute meetings for the approaching season. Over 200 meetings will be held, and on each of the delegations will be two women lecturers.

OLD COUNTRY WONDERERS AND NORWOOD PLAY A TIE

The first game of the Midland Football League was played on Saturday afternoon at Norwood. When the Old Country Wanderers journeyed to that town and played the local team of the. Although the weather was unfavorable a good crowd was present curious to see how the boys from the "old sod" played. Yes, they can kick a ball with the best of them, and they gave our boys an awful surprise," said a Norwood citizen after the game. "And I think those English fellows will pretty nearly be at the top at the wind up." The game was free from all rough play and the spectators witnessed some very brilliant work by the players of both teams, while Butler, in goal for the visitors did excellent work. Mr. Arthur Noble officiated as referee, but had little to do as there was not a player ruled off either side.

The Old Country Wanderers have certainly made a good showing in this their initial game. The club has just been organized this season, many of the players having never spent a summer on this side of the ocean. Some changes will be made in the team, which will materially strengthen it.

The following players represented the teams:

O. C. W. S.—Goal, Butler; full backs, Whitlow (right), Smailes (left); half backs, Allen (right), Hawkins (centre), Strange (left); forwards, Linney (right), Wallace (inside right), Biddlestone (centre), Haines (inside left), Head (left).

Members of Parliament Regard the War Office's Attitude With Some Disfavor--News from Over the Ocean

London, May 2.—The circumstantial rumors which are current, concerning the attitude of the new War Office organization towards the volunteer force are creating much uneasiness amongst the large number of members of Parliament who regard the encouragement of the civilian army as one of the most essential features of our military system. The resignation of General Sir Alfred Turner, Inspector-General of Auxiliary Forces, and of Colonel Leroy Lewis, his Deputy Adjutant-General, and the transfer of the Auxiliary Forces branch to Whitehall with purely nominal duties, while the real power remains in the Adjutant-General's Department, and in the hands of heads of sections believed to be hostile to the volunteers, were yesterday the subject of much adverse comment in the lobby. Surprise was also expressed at the fact that such steps should be taken before the Royal Commission presided over by the Duke of Norfolk had reported.

London, May 2.—Edward S. Montague and Baron Herbert have written an open letter commenting on an article recently published in the Times, under the caption, "Canada and the Commercial Defence of the Empire." The letter in part follows:

"The Times' article begins with a reference to the preference granted to Great Britain by the Canadian Government. But this preference was given primarily as a popular method of reducing Canadian taxation—i. e., the taxes on Canadian imports paid, of course, by the Canadian consumer. The Canadian Government, well knowing that England could not give her a preference without abandoning free trade, refused to ask for one, and it was not until the corn tax of 1902 temporarily made such preference possible that they consented to do so.

SIR RICHARD'S POSITION.

"The article would seem to infer that Sir Richard Cartwright is a supporter of Mr. Chamberlain's scheme. But Sir Richard Cartwright is, if we may use the expression, a Balfourite retaliator who does not discard a tax upon corn as a method of retaliation. He has no sympathy at all with Mr. Chamberlain's proposal to tax all foreign foodstuffs in order to bind the Empire together, but suggests in the interests of British trade a retaliatory tax on the United States, a tax which, if successful, must perforce be temporary. Such a tax must not be confused, as is done by your correspondent, with the 'permanent' one that would be necessary for a colonial preference.

"Although the leaders of Western opinion may be willing to concede a substantial increase of the existing preference to Great Britain, the manufacturers of the east are not, but are, on the contrary, demanding adequate protection for their products in the home market. That adequate protection, in certain lines at any rate, they do not consider the present tariff against Great Britain gives them.

THE FARMERS' POSITION.

"The article draws attention to the natural preference that the Canadian farmer already enjoys over the American farmer, due to cheaper railway rates, cheaper land, better quality of wheat and larger yield per acre." But this seems to us an overwhelming argument against the necessity for a further preference to this already profitable industry. From every point of view Canadian farming is more profitable and is carried on under better conditions than farming in the United States. Each time that he points this out he demonstrates afresh the absence of any need for a further preference. All the Canadian agitation [illegible] order that it may boom as the advocates of preferential tariffs desire, is advertisement, and this it is getting. Consequently it is booming, and settlers are arriving as fast as they can be placed on the land. Every pound of agricultural produce the Canadian farmer can send to Britain finds a ready market there at a price that is highly profitable to the producer. Hence the suggested preference would seem to be quite superfluous and even lost in the larger preference with which nature has endowed the Canadian farmer."

London, May 2.—"Are you suggesting," said Mr. Justice Grantham, Wednesday, "that the value of a horse is to be dependent on its value as a means of gambling?"

Council replied that he thought everyone who knew anything of the turf was aware of that.

The judge was hearing an action brought by Mr. Charles Gilbert, of Nottingham, to recover 300 guineas from Mr. Benjamin Ellam, the proprietor of the Warren House stud farm, Epsom, for the loss of a racehorse, Rushlight, which met with an accident and had to be destroyed.

The mare cost 410 guineas in 1902 as a two-year-old. The jury awarded the plaintiff £25 damages.

London, May 2.—Thomas Taylor, described as a rope manufacturer, in answering a judgment summons at the Lambeth County Court, said he had no means. German imports had ruined his trade.

Judge Emden—"You ascribe your misfortune to German competition?"

Mr. Taylor—"Yes, the Germans have taken my trade away. I lost £11,000 sterling."

London, May 2.—Sympathy for Japan in her contest with Russia is everywhere evident in the metropolis, and invades the home as well as the mart.

The latest decorative fad is the Japanese print showing all sorts of warlike and other native scenes in vivid red and blue on a cream background.

Some of the prints, however, are on a dark blue background, and collectors will be glad to know that these are frequently very old and sometimes valuable.

One way in which these prints are utilized is to make a frieze of them, neither encased in a cedar wood frame or pasted on a blue and white crepe cloth.

Sofa pillow decoration is, however, the very latest use to which they have been put. A decorator, too, has evolved a pair of quaint portieres. The prints are pasted all over the curtains close together on both sides, and blue satin ribbon is basted crosswise and lengthwise on the curtains to make a frame. The ribbon is then stitched on both edges with yellow silk thread.

BALKAN WAR IS NOW VERY NEAR

Clash in Smyrna May Lead to Fighting Once More

GREEK FLEET TAKES ACTION

Turks Would Imprison Agents of the Greek Government—Situation Considered Grave

Athens, May 2.—A sensational affray, in which the Greek representative in Smyrna was wounded, has caused the hurried departure tonight of a Greek squadron for Turkish waters. The affair is looked upon here as of grave importance, as it may prove to be the long-expected clash that is to plunge the whole Balkan region and the nations interested into war.

It appears that M. Delyannis, secretary of the Greek consulate in Smyrna, endeavored to open the shops of Greek merchants which had been closed for nonpayment of taxes. This was opposed by the gendarmes. The Turkish authorities imprisoned M. Delyannis and two consulate guards, who were only released after the intervention of the French consul.

The Turkish minister here, after a long conference with the foreign minister, promises full satisfaction for the affair.

An official communique issued tonight says M. Delyannis, acting in self-defence fired several shots. The Greek consul general proceeded to the office of the Ottoman governor after the arrest of M. Delyannis and the consulate guards and found M. Delyannis there, bound and bleeding from his wounds. M. Delyannis was authorized to accompany the consul general, but the soldiers prevented the departure of the two guards and unharnessed the horses from the consul's carriage. The guards were finally released through the intervention of the French consul. The communique adds; "A fleet is leaving this evening to engage in maneuvers."

BECOMES AGGRESSIVE.

In the present critical condition of affairs not much is needed to precipitate a war that would involve Turkey, Greece, Bulgaria, Austria, and Russia. Since the outbreak of war in the east the Sultan has become aggressive, believing that Russia is so fully occupied that she will not be disposed to interfere in his affairs.

The Turkish army is in better condition to carry on a war than it has been at any time since 1878. It nominally numbers about 300,000 men, but should occasion require 1,500,000 men could be called to the service.

The cavalry and artillery are well drilled and thoroughly equipped. While the Sultan has been parsimonious in every other respect his expenditures for the army have been on a generous scale. German officers have entirely reorganized the force within the last few years and its effectiveness has been greatly increased.

London, May 2.—England is now free from the anxieties of the empire. The Thibetan expedition is a hazardous venture and the condition of South Africa is far from satisfactory. Protests against the demand of the crown colony agents for exclusive control of the purchase of supplies for the Transvaal and the Pauge river colonies can be easily met by official compromises, but there are many signs of discontent and dangerous unrest in South Africa. One is the circumstantial evidence of the formation of a Boer secret conspiracy in the Lydenburg district, with concealed supplies of arms and ammunition. Another is the widespread disappointment over the continuance of hard times and the prostration of mining interests.

CLOSED BY POLICE

Montreal, May 2.—The Compagnie de Credit du Canada was closed Friday afternoon, and its assets seized by the Montreal police acting under instructions from the Minister of Justice at Ottawa. The statement that the company voluntarily suspended is incorrect. It will be remembered that at the time of the debate on the credit companies last week Sir Wilfrid committed to Mr. Fitzpatrick the task of finding out what had better be done with such financial institutions.

It is certain that the Compagnie de Credit has about 20,000 contracts out against it, but as no definite period of maturing is named and the purchase value of the contract varies according to the time it is left running it is quite impossible to say what the liabilities amount to. It is difficult to sympathize very deeply with the

of which I am the authorized agent

Investments in mining stocks where they can be purchased cheaply whose property contains merit and whose directors are men of unquestionable honor and integrity, and especially when sufficient work has been done to guarantee a producing mine and the leads have been demonstrated to be permanent, offer the greatest opportunity for large returns from modest investments.

The shrewdest capitalists of England and America are giving more attention to mining properties and putting more money into them than at any time in the past history of the world.

The Smuggler Group consists of five full sized claims, to-wit:—The Smuggler, Gangre, Black Jack, Starand Bed Rock, located in the Greenhorn District of Eastern Oregon. Concurrent Mines are Peterl, Pride of Pendleton, Bonanza and Rockefeller, developing work to the extent of 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifts and crosscuts have been made, exposing hundreds of tons of high grade ore, averaging from $35 to $45 per ton, based on smelter returns and for the purpose of equipping the mines a limited number of shares of Treasury Stock will be sold at 25 cents per share, the par value of which is $1.00.

HIGH CLASS INVESTMENT

LA ZACUALPA RUBBER PLANTATION COMPANY

Incorporated Under the Laws of the State of California.

La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation is situated in the best location in Mexico for the cultivation of rubber. It has been known for a great many years as a very choice strip of rubber land and subsequent experience has shown that it is equal to all that has been claimed for it. The affairs of the company are in the hands of men of undoubted integrity and high reputation as successful men of business. To those seeking a safe investment which will secure a good income for life, this proposition offers a favorable opportunity

Shares in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation are not capital stock of a corporation, and carry none of the responsibilities and obligations, or liability to assessment of capital stock; but represent an undivided interest in the plantation itself.

The twelve thousand acres comprising the plantation are divided into twelve thousand shares, each share representing one acre of land, and the holders of shares in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation are the actual owners of one undivided acre of land, for each share held, with a guarantee expressed upon the certificate by La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company, under its official seal, to plant two hundred or more rubber trees per acre for each share sold, and to care for same for a period of five years, and at the expiration of that time to gather the first harvest and deliver the net proceeds thereof to the shareholder.

In other words, La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company sells to each shareholder one undivided acre of land in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation, with two hundred or more rubber trees five years old, and their profits for all time, for each share sold, and agrees to plant so that the first harvest belonging to the shareholder is the one to be gathered from La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation during the sixth year from the date of the certificate.

After the delivery of the first harvest La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company will care for the plantation, and harvest and market the crop for ten per cent. of the net proceeds therefrom. Out of this commission the Company agrees to pay all costs of administration, including maintenance of the home and branch offices.

This plan gives the purchaser of shares an interest of definite amount and his proportionate share in the total yield of rubber from the entire plantation forever, making it absolutely certain that the interest of each shareholder will receive the same careful attention forever, making it absolutely certain that the interest of each shareholder will receive the same careful attention forever, making it absolutely certain to others, no matter how large or small, for the success of the plantation will be the mutual gain of all.

The foregoing state of facts makes it impossible for any person or persons to combine against or injure the individual interest of the smallest shareholder in the plantation, or to encumber the same, and it can be readily seen that the success of one means the success of all.

All persons have some money, but more time. A little money and five years of time, if applied to the cultivation of rubber, will produce large profits.

Full information will be supplied on application to Mr. Roland Kidd, Fiscal Agent for Ontario, or to

of BOULDER, COLORADO

Solicits the co-operation of reputable men in providing means for the thorough and rapid development of two large gold and copper mining estates, which are second to none in intrinsic value, and to this end extends every opportunity for determination as to whether statements made by the company are true or false.

The proposition when developed will pay no less than 50 per cent. per annum on the investment, and is believed anyone who wishes to better his financial condition, to give immediate attention to this.

Full particulars in every detail will be given to all to whom such a proposition may appeal, but please do not ask for them unless you are really interested, because you waste your own time and ours also.

Capital $1,000,000, 500,000 Shares in Treasury

Property includes two great mining estates—one gold, the other copper—both containing wide, deep, proven veins of high and low grade ore.

Development work has been systematically carried on, with results that more than justify every claim made by the company, and unmistakably proves the destiny of the property to equal that of the greatest successful mining companies of the world.

Above Statement Can be Easily Verified

The following two facts alone will give anyone familiar with mining a rough idea of the great value of the property.

The Copper King Group contains one vein 30 feet wide, 8 feet of which bruns from $10 to $100 per ton, and the Company owns 9,000 feet on this vein.

Ore running from $18 to $50 per ton is continually being shipped from the gold property, and 24 samples taken from widely different portions of the vein system averaged $30.25 per ton.

FACILITIES—The Company owns 1,720 acres of placer and timber land, water power of 50 (minimum) horse power. No expensive shaft work necessary. Ore can be treated on Company's property, thus saving freight and smelter charges.

DIVIDENDS—To begin earning and paying large dividends it is only necessary to erect two 50 ton mills, one on each property. To obtain funds for this purpose a limited amount of stock is offered at

The King in Ireland

Dublin, April 28.—King Edward, Queen Alexandria and their suites landed at Kingston from the royal yacht Victoria and Albert before noon, and soon afterwards proceeded to the Punchestown races. Their Majesties were accorded a splendid reception, and large crowds assembled to greet them. The vessels in the harbor were gayly trimmed with bunting, while Kingstown was bright with Venetian masts and festoons.

Several addresses were presented to the King, replying to which his majesty expressed his delight at finding the spirit of hopefulness in the future as evidenced on the occasion of his last visit. With the improvement in agriculture and industry, the King confidently anticipated a growth of better feeling throughout the country. His majesty believed that the greatest hope for the future of Ireland lay in education, for the wide diffusion of cultivated intelligence was the surest guarantee of social peace and the most faithful source of self-reliance.

THE FINEST TYPE OF TRUE SOLDIER

Such was the Late Admiral Makharoff.

LORD NELSON HIS IDOL.

He Had Made Many Visits to England Where He was Very Well Known.

Toronto May 2.—Mr. T. P. O'Connor, writing of the late Admiral Makaroff, in M.A.P.' has this to say.

Turning to the personality of Admiral Makaroff, there seems to be no doubt that he was one of those fascinating beings who are an inspiration in war and in peace, with all the virtues that win sympathy and affection. There is always a great attractiveness in the Russian soldier and sailor. Underneath there may be something of the untamed passions that they derive still from their closeness to the mysterious east. Kipling, who knows his Russian, though he is not quite fair to him, always contends that Russia should be considered the most eastern of European powers, but the most western of the nations of Asia; and I daresay that is a sound judgment. But, all the same, there is no man who has the external culture and charm of Europe to such an extent as the Russian gentleman. Brought up from childhood by women of different nationalities—by a French nurse, by an English governess, by a nurse from Germany—the Russian gentleman is often able to speak, not only with perfect correctness, but almost without a trace of accent, nearly every language of Europe. And of these foreign languages, the one the Russian loves most of all is perhaps the English. With all that antagonism which what are supposed to be conflicting ambitions create between the Russians and the British races, there is a good deal of respect underneath it all.

HIS STAY IN NEWCASTLE.

Admiral Makaroff was a true type of this Russian gentleman that I have been sketching. He spoke English perfectly; he was intimately acquainted with most English things; he took as his hero and master that greatest of the sailors of any nation and of any age—Nelson. I have seen it stated that he wrote a work on Nelson which showed yet grander appreciation and command of the genius and work of Nelson than even the famous books of Captain Mahan on the same subject. Makaroff was a daily student of Nelson, in fact. He also showed his keen faith in the naval genius of England by constant visits to this country. In Newcastle-on-Tyne he was especially well known; and says a Newcastleman, writing to the Westminster Gazette, "to know him was to like him."

The gallant admiral (continues this writer) counted a large circle of friends in and around Newcastle who will to-day sincerely mourn his fate. A man of fine presence, with a great charm of manner, displaying at all times a quick intelligence, a lively interest in all matters pertaining to shipbuilding and an old-world courtesy—that knew no distinction of social station—it is little wonder that he became popular amongst North Country people. Probably his most intimate friend was Mr. Arthur Gulston, who was associated with him in the construction of the Yermack, and accompanied him on her earlier cruises to the Baltic. The admiral was a frequent and always welcome guest at Mr. Gulston's house in Newcastle, and the latter retains pleasant recollections of visits paid to Admiral Makaroff's home in Russia. It may be added that Admiral Makaroff spoke English with remarkable fluency, and upon one occasion delivered an admirable speech on Arctic exploration at a gathering in the Durham College of Science Newcastle.

"THE ENGLISHMAN."

In another way the dead sailor showed his appreciation of English methods. "The late Admiral Makaroff," says a writer in the Daily News, "was nicknamed 'the Englishman' by the Emperor Alexander II., owing to his intense activity and devotion to outdoor sports. Even when long past middle-age he allotted two hours a day to physical exercise. He rode before breakfast every morning, but his favorite exercise was swimming, and it is one of the ironies of fate that such a man, so much at home on the water, should die from drowning.

"Not only was Makaroff a first-rate swimmer, but he attempted to coerce his subordinates into equal proficiency. In 1900 he gave a silver cup to be competed for by the sailors at Cronstadt, and, timing the race, was much disgusted to find that the winner had taken longer to cover half a verst than he had often done it in himself. Every morning he was rowed in a boat from the Government quay for the purpose of bathing, and 'Old Blue-Beard,' with a towel across his arm, was sometimes seen walking to the quay within a week of the breaking up of the ice."

HIS READING.

The writer from whom I have just quoted seems to know more about Makaroff as the man than any other of those whose articles I have read; he has drawn a very vivid and intimate picture of him. Makaroff had that love of the light French novel in his hours of ease which seems to be a trait common to many great men of action. Bismarck, we all know, was never so happy in his hours of rest as when he was deep in the entanglement of one of Gaboriau's detective stories. Mr. Balfour is known to be a devourer of French novels and memoirs; and, though it is not generally known, Mr. Chamberlain has the same passion. When he is so thoroughly exhausted by his tremendous work as to be unable to read anything else, Mr. Chamberlain can lose himself in a modern French story. So also did Makaroff amuse his leisure.

"In his library at Cronstadt," says the writer in the Daily News, "a whole wall of book-shelves was covered with the sensational romances of Eugene Sue and Dumas. His favorite, however, was Maupassant. He knew English well, but declared that he could not read English novelists except Smollett and Fielding. Poetry of all sorts he detested."

"OLD BLUE-BEARD."

Makaroff would not be entirely interesting and attractive if he had not had his share of human weaknesses. One was a strange hallucination as to his powers. He would not have cared, apparently, to have been recognized as one of the greatest sailors of his time, but he was very proud of his skill as an artist. I quote from the Daily News correspondent again:

"He invariably copied the designs for his own inventions, and his success in this encouraged him in the belief that he could draw from nature. During a holiday, two years ago, on the north coast of the Gulf of Finland, he spent nearly all his mornings turning out water-color drawings of the surrounding scenery. One day two young cadets from the Staoi Veliki, who were spending their holidays on a 'datcha' or summer house close by, saw an elderly and somewhat untidy old man working laboriously at a sketch. Looking over his shoulder, they began to criticise the drawing unfavorably. The admiral turned round, and said quigsically, 'I think I know you, young gentleman.' 'We don't know you,' retorted one scapegrace, 'but you're as like Old Blue-Beard as two eggs.' The incident ended by the admiral inviting the offenders to lunch, dismissing them with the caustic words, 'Even elderly artists deserve respect from naval aristocrats.'"

WROTE REQUEST IN HIS OWN BLOOD

Jap Then Got Leave to Risk Life for Country

Toronto, April 30—A letter has been received at the Methodist Missionary Rooms from Rev. H. C. Armstrong, a missionary in Shidzuoka, Japan, in which he speaks of the effect of the war on religious work. He writes:

"History repeats itself in that nations in trouble seek Almighty help, and so the prayer service is better attended. To show the influence of war on the religious life, let me give an illustration. The other night I was returning from my class, when I met about fifty young men. They were dressed in something resembling white bathing suits; each one carried a Japanese lantern and a small sheep bell. The first one had a branch of evergreen. They ran in single file, and repeated as they ran 'Rokon-shogo.' I learned they were going to the temples and shrines praying for the success of the soldiers. They dressed in pilgrim outfits in order to receive favor from the gods. The green branch was symbolic of life, and the words means 'May our six senses be pure, for otherwise the gods will not hear their prayer. I have seen this several times, but lately the Governor has has forbidden such superstitious practices, and so it has ceased."

In another part of the letter Rev. Mr. Armstrong writes of the spirit with which the Japanese have entered into the great conflict."

"The Japanese can teach us some lessons in patriotism," he writes. "When volunteers were desired to block Port Arthur, many applied who could not go. One of these was so disappointed at the refusal that he cut his finger, wrote an application in his own blood, and again sent it in and was accepted. Even the school children are filled with the spirit. In a certain city one boy is reported to have been killed because he took the part of Russia in a school contest representing Japan and Russia. And yet though these things indicate deep feeling and loyalty, there is very little of the jingo spirit; it is more hidden and less demonstrative."

Will Abandon Dam

Orillia, April 30—The council has decided to abandon the broken dam of the municipal power plant and to blast a tunnel through the solid rock for 1,500 feet, to bring the water to a bulkhead at the entrance to the flumes and prevent the possibility of such accidents as that which befell the plant this spring. The cost of the work is estimated at $25,000 to $30,000.

An auxiliary steam plant has been ordered, and will be running in two or three weeks.

TORONTO AND THE CANAL

The Queen City Strongly in favor of the Ford, Hope Route

If Trenton gets the Trent Valley Canal the merchants of Toronto might just as well bid the trade of the Midland district farewell, says the Toronto Star. They would not have a chance in competition with Montreal. As matters stand now the Montreal wholesaler can land his goods on the wharf at Port Hope for exactly the same price as a Toronto man can place his bales and boxes at the same point. It is 277 miles from Montreal to Port Hope. The distance from Toronto to Port Hope is about 56 miles by water.

If the Montreal business man is on the same terms with his Toronto rival at Port Hope what opportunity will the latter have if Montreal has a through line of barges entering the Midland district at Trenton, 40 miles further east?

In addition, the Montreal man's goods would be carried by craft that would take return freights as incidental and charge accordingly, while the Toronto man, to obtain transportation, will have to pay a rate that will reimburse the barge owner, is he has to make the return trip light, if indeed he secured a chance to ship by water via Trenton to that district at all. The chances are that if the outlet is at Trenton there will be no western traffic at all, and the Toronto man will have to meet Montreal competition with goods sent in by rail. Every shipper knows what that means. In the interests of Toronto, Hamilton, and other points, And in the interests of the Midland district itself, the outlet should be located at Port Hope.

Dalai Lama Roused to Sense of British Power

London, April 30—Col. Younghusband, commanding the political mission to Tibet, reports that the situation in the country is improving. The Chinese Amban has sent notice that he is coming to negotiate with the mission. He adds that the Dalai Lama is now roused to a sense of the British power. The Tibetan officials are Lhassa are greatly perturbed and want the difficulty settled. There is a general attitude of acceptance of the inevitable, combined with a sense of relief at the flight of the oppressive Lhassa officials, who prompted the resistance to the mission.

The people of Gyangtse are friendly to the mission. Local traders are besieging the camp to sell produce to the mission at exorbitant prices. The Tibetans are sharp traders. They are already sending to India to increase their stocks.

St. Petersburg, April 30—It is reported that the Russian agent at as has, in view of the British expedition now in Tibet, urged the Dalai Lama to take refuge in Russian territory.

A BUSINESS MAN'S LETTER.

Wm. Thomson, Esq., of Orillia, Vice-President Standard Chemical Company of Toronto, Tells of a Visit to the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives.

GREATLY IMPRESSED WITH WORK BEING DONE.

Personally Raises Several Hundred Dollars to Help Lessen the Load of Debt.

There can be little doubt that the National Sanitarium Association is handicapped in its great work for Consumptives in the fact that its two institutions in Muskoka are far away from any large centre of population. Few people have an opportunity to see for themselves the magnificent work that is being done.

These hospitals are away from the public eye. Any, however, who do visit them, are united in their commendation of the splendid appointments of the place, and, best of all, of the real joy and hope that is being brought to many suffering ones.

We are glad to have the opportunity of publishing the following letter from Mr. Wm. Thomson, of Orillia, one of Canada's best known lumbermen, which tells what he has seen himself. It reads:

ORILLIA, Ont., November 2, 1903.

W. J. Gage, Esq.,
Chairman Executive Committee
National Sanitarium Association,
Toronto, Ont.

My Dear Mr. Gage,—

I have much pleasure in enclosing herewith cheque for One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) from the Tudhope Carriage Company of Orillia, a donation to the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. Please acknowledge this to the Tudhope Carriage Company in the usual way.

I have written to a number of my friends, to try and get them interested in this good work. I hope to be able to send you further donations. I have written my friends a personal letter, something similar to the following:

"Last week I paid a visit to the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. I met some of the management there, and promised to try and interest some of my friends in this work.

"I might say there were 49 patients there last week, all poor people, most of them without a dollar in the world, and suffering from the dreadful disease, Consumption. There are many sad stories, and I know I have thought a great deal about the work of the institution ever since my visit there. I do believe it is worthy of assistance, and we who have health and the necessaries of life should encourage this work along.

"I understand the expenses lately have been double the income, and unless the management meet with more encouragement, I am afraid the work will have to be curtailed. I know you have many calls, but I do wish you would give this matter a thought, and, if possible, assist. I have written to two or three confidentially, and hope to be able to collect some more for this work. Should you not feel like contributing a donation, remember this request, and your reply is just between you and me, and strictly confidential.

"I might mention, to show that I have confidence in the work, I have already given a donation of $100.00 and two row boats to the Free Hospital this year, and intend to give another $100.00 before the end of the year."

Sincerely yours,

Wm Thomson

Sir Wm. R. Meredith, Kt., or Mr. W. J. Gage, Toronto, will receive and acknowledge any contributions made.

All stock fully paid and non-assessable. No personal liability to stockholders.

CAPITAL $1,500,000

IN TREASURY, 856,000 SHARES

Par value of shares $1.00 each.

The attention of all mining men is attracted to Tonapah and vicinity. The great finds which have been discovered in Lone Mountain, only a few miles distant, are to the investor still more attractive. Here we have value from the start. The Tonapah Crown Mining Company's ledges are plainly in sight for a distance of over 3000 feet.

We are bounded by such properties as the "Tamblyn," which ore assays from $950 to $1500 to the ton: Lynch & Omeara's "Alpine," which is producing $30,000 per month; the "Lone Star" group and the "Princess Maud."

You Should Invest With Us

BECAUSE—The majority of the stock is in the treasury, 856,000 shares.

BECAUSE—The Company is managed by successful business men. They are Cyrus Wheeler, W. H. Routz, F. F. Hoard, F. A. King and C. A. Menning, all of Los Angeles.

BECAUSE—No preferred stock; therefore every one is on an equal footing.

BECAUSE—We are selling our stock at a low rate now so we can put a large force of men to work and make shipments of ore just as soon as the railroad, now building, shall have been completed.

Thirty miles of this railroad is already graded and the road will be in operation by May 15.

THE COSTILLA GOLD MINING COMPANY

Has 10 Gold-bearing Veins Exposed

190 Acres in a Solid Block and All Patented

A Crosscut Driven 117 feet to the First Big Vein

A drift run on the vein 178 FEET IN ORE, the Gold value or contents running from 2 to 8 ounces, per ton, or from $40 to $160. This ore has not been stoped and will not be until main shoot is reached.

The breast of the drift is, only 52 feet, according to engineer's survey, from the first BIG vertical ore shoot, which, at the surface, 550 feet above, shows values of 2 to 7 ounces gold, per ton.

Slabs and feeders of gold ore are coming in freely in the drift.

This is a business proposition. It is the KIND AND QUALITY which makes for great and permanent success. It is worth an investment of 10c. on the dollar, per share, now. It will be worth par with development.

Consumption Can Be Cured

A Powerful and Effective Destroyer of Disease Germs Discovered Which Cures Consumption.

The ravages of consumption which for years have terrorized the modern world will no longer continue to cut off our population by thousands. Science has at last produced a remedy which not only can be readily applied to the lungs, but also kills every trace of bacilli in the throat, bronchial tubes, and air passages of all the breathing organs.

The name of this marvellous antiseptic about which the doctors are talking so much is Catarrhozone, the ozonated air cure. The vapor is more soothing than the air of pine woods, and its healing properties are without limit.

Through a skilfully devised inhaler the sufferer is enabled to breathe this fragrant medicated vapor into the most minute air cells of the lungs. It is so destructive to microbic life that the tubercular germs are rapidly killed and prevented from ever returning. Congestion and inflammation are relieved, coughing stops, all disagreeable symptoms are quickly cured by Catarrhozone.

So simple is Catarrhozone that anyone can use it. So certain to cure lung and throat troubles that it is prescribed by not less than twenty thousand doctors in United States and Canada. One well known authority who has made a life long study of consumption, has the following to say; "Catarrhozone is certainly a true specific for White plague. I find that its healing vapor readily spreads all through all the breathing organs passing over probably not less than one thousand square feet of mucous surface at a single inhalation. It is a perfect germicide and destroys tubercular germs with wonderful certainty. Catarrhozone is entitled to rank among the great medical discoveries of the age."

No matter how often you have been disappointed with other remedies you must not be discouraged. In Catarrhozone you will find new hope. What it has done before it can do again. Your case is not worse than others it has cured. Therefore if properly used you can also be cured by Catarrhozone. Two months treatment $1.00. At druggists or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., or Kingston, Ont. Refuse any substitute for Catarrhozone—only the genuine can cure.

To the Citizens of Peterborough

Looking for a Thief

Chief Jarvis, of Bowmanville, is asking for the arrest of John Mason alias Stewart Horner, alias John Kinkin, who is described as 5 ft. 9 in., 170 pounds, dark complexion, clean shaven. He is wanted for stealing from J. W. Whiteside, Hampton, on April 16th, $1,200 in $1 bills, one Bank of Commerce bill, one set of veterinary instruments, valued at $400, pair buckskin gauntlets, one Persian lamb cap and one revolver.

High Speed Equipment

The Grand Trunk Railway is experimenting on the international limited with the high speed equipment, the latest attachment to be introduced by the Westinghouse Air Brake Company. It is simply an improvement on the old air brake by which trains call be stopped in a short space of time, and with less jar than heretofore. The air pressure is one-third greater than that now generally in use and is intended mainly for passenger trains.

Farm Laborers Coming

Major Howell, of the Salvation Army, Toronto, has received a telegram announcing the departure from Halifax of the first batch of immigrants 60 in number, brought out by the army. They will arrive in Toronto by C.P.R. this evening. Most of this number, Major Howell states, are farm laborers, and if they are not all seized by eager farmers immediately on their arrival may be engaged through him at the Salvation Army's temple.

Fruit Famine Predicted

Mr. J. L. Denike, a well known fruit expert, expects a fruit famine this season, the equal of which Canada has not experienced in many years. He has been a close observer of the formation of blossoms ever since he was a boy, and he says at the present time buds when squeezed in the fingers are black and perfectly dead. Mr. Denike gives this as his reason. Apples cannot be grown successfully in Manitoba and the past winter Canada has had a Manitoba winter.

The C. P. R's Good Work

Last fall the Canadian Pacific Railway Company supplied its agents all along the road, with spring flowering bulbs, and the posies are now to be seen at every station. The company has now sent out to the agents liberal packages of flower seeds, with instructions for their culture, that every station may be made beautiful. It is just such things as this that make the Canadian Pacific road popular. The travelling public appreciate the efforts of a railway company that troubles itself to give them a sight of beautiful flowers at each station and section house as they pass by.

Very Sudden Death

On Saturday evening Mrs. Ellen Anglesye, who resided with her brother, Mr. Samual Anglesye, 480 Reid street, passed away with awful suddenness. She had been feeling unusually well and partook of a hearty meal. After completing her household duties she took a violent spasm of coughing, during which she passed away. She was 45 years of age, and was of a kindly disposition and was greatly beloved by her friends. Much sympathy is extended t ober brother and family. The funeral takes place from the family residence, 480 Reid street, this morning at 9 o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral.

Death of W. H. Hodgkinson

Toronto Globe: Mr. William Henry Hodgkinson died at his residence, 48 Czar street, on Friday, at the age of 64. In his early days he lived in Peterborough, and was in the employ of Thomas Bradburn & Company. He was then for a number of years traveller for Ogilvy & Company, of Montreal, and was one of the best known men in the trade, particularly in eastern Canada. About four years ago he entered the employ of Messrs. R. B. Hutchinson & Company, Toronto, wholesale woollens, with whom he continued until his death. He was of an amiable and kindly disposition. He leaves a widow and two sons, one in Chicago and one in Pennsylvania. In religion he was a consistent Methodist.

A VERY SUPERIOR BOARD

To the Editor of the Times:

Sir,—Having been asked to express an opinion on the Collegiate Institute by-law, I state with pleasure that it is our duty to support the trustees in this matter by a large majority.

We have in Peterborough a very superior Board of Education. They are a body of men in whose judgment we can place confidence on any business question submitted to them.

They are experts on a question of this kind by reason of long public service and experience in educational matters.

Moreover, they are unanimous and have stated their case for the new building in such a clear convincing manner that no opposition has been heard to their arguments. They point out that if the ratepayers refuse to provide a new Collegiate Institute they must provide new Public Schools, which would also be false economy at the present time, and only defers the erection of a larger building for a few years.

A large vote in favor of this by-law will give public expression to the confidence we have in the judgment of the Board who have the best interests of all our citizens at heart.

Yours truly,
R. M. DENNISTOUN.

A Woman's Prayer

It is notable that in the despondency caused by womanly diseases, there seems to many a suffering woman no way of escape from pain except at the price of life itself. It would be sad to record such a story of struggle and suffering except for the fact that in such dire distress many a woman has found a way back to health and happiness by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The one and only remedy for leucorrhea, female weakness, prolapsus, or falling of the womb, so absolutely specific and sure in curing these common ailments of women, as to warrant its makers in offering to pay, as they hereby do, the sum of $500 reward for a case of the above maladies which they cannot cure.

"Your medicine almost raised me from the dead," writes Mrs. Edwin H. Gardner, of Egypt, Plymouth Co., Mass., Box 15. "My urine was like brick dust, and I had pain all over me, and such a dragging feeling it seemed I could not do my house work. One day I found a little book. I read it and wrote to Dr. Pierce, and in a few days received an answer. I decided to try his medicine, and to-day I am a well woman. I have no backache, no headache, no pain at all. I used always to have headaches previously to the monthly period and such pains that I would spill on the floor in agony. I took three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and three of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and three vials of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, and was completely cured."

Accept no substitute for "Favorite Prescription." There is nothing just as good.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser—sent free on receipt of stamps to cover expense of customs and mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers; or 50 stamps for the cloth bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Japanese Lose Two and Eight Fireships Sunk at Port Arthur--Togo Fails to Block Port Arthur

Port Arthur, May 4.—A Japanese squadron appeared off Port Arthur after daybreak to-day and engaged the forts and warships. The fight is still proceeding.

Thirty Japanese prisoners have been captured.

St. Petersburg, May 4.—It is reported that Vice-Admiral Togo made another desperate attempt to block the entrance of Port Arthur last night, but failed. Viceroy Alexieff sent out a section of the fleet to meet the attack, and sank eight fireships and two Japanese torpedo boats The channel is reported to be clear.

Later—The report that Vice-Admiral Togo had made another attempt to block Port Arthur was confirmed Viceroy Alexieff reported officially that the Japanese sent eight fireships last night to block the entrance of the harbor, but they were all sunk by Russian torpedo boats and the fire from the land batteries, leaving the channel clear. The Viceroy also reported that the Russians sank two Japanese torpedo boats.

London ,April 30—The Times to-day has the following from Tokio:—"One of the alleged spies recently shot by the Russians at Mukden has been identified as M. Sonde, a Japanese Judge, and not a military man.

COLOMBIAN BONDHOLDERS

London, April 30—The correspondent of the Times at Paris says: An important meeting of Colombian bondholders convened by the foreign bondholders' committee, will be held in London to-morrow. The recently elected President of Colombia, General Reyes, at whose instigation the unsuccessful legal action was taken against the Panama Canal Company, will not be present, he having left Paris a few days ago for Bogota. The proceedings at to-morrow's meeting will have special interest for Britain, as of the £3,000,000 sterling of Colombian bonds the major part is held in that country. The bonds were issued in London at 85 and the debt originally contracted was about £5,000,000, which was reduced one-half by arrangement with Colombia. Now one of the lawsuits undertaken by Colombia against the Panama Canal Company concerns the retention by the latter of 50,000 Panama Company shares to the value of about 6,000,000 francs, which Colombia left on deposit with the company when the new contract with the Panama Company was signed. Both those shares and the $10,000,000 to be paid by the United States are claimed by the new Republic of Panama.

HOPES ARE SHATTERED.

The British and continental holders of Colombian bonds had hoped that Colombia would use the money which was received from the United States to pay off part of its foreign indebtedness. As Panama has separated, and as the money is to be paid to the new republic, the hopes of the bondholders are temporarily shattered. It is hoped the United States will perhaps eventually use its good offices with the Republic of Panama to induce it to assume an equitable share of the bonded obligation of Colombia. The point of view of the holders of Colombian bonds is that Britain, which by cancelling the Clayton-Bulwer treaty enabled the United States to carry out its canal policy, will likewise do all in its power to protect the rights of its citizens who are Colombian bondholders.

ANOTHER BATTLE NEAR GENSAN

3,000 Troops were Engaged on Each Side

JAPS FINALLY RETIRED

Both Combatants had Considerable Losses

St. Petersburg, May 4.—It is stated that 3000 Russians approached Gensan yesterday. A similar number of Japanese sailed from the town to meet them, and severe fighting followed, with considerable losses on both sides. The Japanese eventually retired into Gensan. Two prominent Russian officials were wounded.

It is announced that the Ministry of War has already despatched all the guns and artillery stores necessary to re-arm the Russian army in the Far East.

It is assumed this announcement refers to Sunday's losses.

TRANSPORT MISSING.

Seoul, May 4.—The transport Hagimoura Maru is at Jinsen overdue at Gensan that it is feared that she has met the same fate as the Kinshiu Maru, and been blown up by a Russian torpedo boat.

FRANCE BLOCKS RUSSIAN LOAN

Minister of Finance Will Not Allow Appeal to Public

Paris, May 3.—I learn that negotiations have been in progress during the last few days for floating a new Russian loan on the French market, but have in a measure failed, owing to the absolute refusal of M. Rouvier, Minister of Finance, to countenance another appeal being made to the French public. As an alternative M. Rouvier approves of an issue of treasury bonds to the value of between three and four hundreds, redeemable at three months and at a high rate of interest not yet fixed, which the Bank of Hottinguer, at the head of a group of capitalists, it is understood would be willing to take up.

EXPERT'S VIEWS ON JAP VICTORY.

No Tendency to Deduce too Much from Facts to Hand

WHERE ARE OTHER ARMIES?

Second Corps in the Field for Weeks and no Person Knows Where it is Located

London, May 3.—There is no tendency on the part of experts to deduce too much from the hitherto available accounts of land fighting. They point out that the Russians and Japanese accounts are irreconcilable on various points while the importance of the obscure villages mentioned in the despatches, many of which cannot be located cannot be determined without fuller knowledge. Moreover, it is still doubtful to what extent the Russians intended to oppose the passage of the Yalu and defend their position on the bank of the river. It is fully recognized, however, that the Japanese have won a decided victory along a four mile front in the first real active land operation. It is assumed that the Japanese advance on the Yalu has been accomplished or will be immediately followed by movements elsewhere. The second army corps under Gen. Baron Oku has been in the field for weeks, and the third army corps has been ready for the field for several days. It is unhere, and is probably even unknown to the Russians, where either of these corps is. Meanwhile, if the Russians are unable to maintain their position at Motien they will be in danger of being forced to abandon the Liau Valley altogether.

The Times, commenting upon the situation in the far east, says that if Gen. Sasulitch is reinforced, the troops must be taken from the Russian reserves at Liao-Yang. If they are withdrawn from that place it is not likely that they can be replaced in time from Harbin. The result would seem to be if the second or third Japanese army attempts a landing on the east or west side of the Liaotung Peninsula, there will be no overwhelming force at Liao-Yang able to crush them before they have taken up a defensible position.

TURNED THE POSITION.

London, May 3.—A despatch to the Daily Telegraph from Tokio says Sunday's brilliant operations have assuredly turned the Russian position at Antung. The Japanese casualties were probably heavy, but it is likely that the Russian losses were heavier, including losses of guns and material. The position stormed is named Yujuho. It is a high bluff between Mako and Chiu-Tien-Chang.

The Tokio correspondent of the Chronicle says that the Japanese have moved at the rate of twelve miles a day.

Steamers Have Started

As will be seen by advertisement in another column, the steamers of the Lindsay-Bobraygeon section of the Trent Valley Navigation Company have started on the season's work. The entire fleet has been placed in good shape in anticipation of a greatly increased tourist trade.

RUSSIAN STORY OF THE CROSSING

Outline of the Past Week's Operations

COULD NOT STOP THE JAPS

Pursued Policy of Harassing Enemy Then Retreated

St. Petersburg, May 4.—Only short statements of the last few days' operations on the Yalu River have been issued officially, instead of the usual textual extracts from the despatches. It cannot be concealed that the Japanese have secured a success but the results are minimized and the engagement is described as continuing. The losses are declared to be below thirty. The news caused considerable depression, which is increased by the prevalence of alarming unofficial reports representing the Russians as being in full retreat. These reports state that many have been killed or wounded in bayonet charges, and that several guns have been captured by the Japanese. The newspapers reproduce the official statements only, and scarcely comment on them. The Novoe Vremya briefly declares that Gen. Kouropatkin did not intend to hinder the Japanese from entering Manchuria, but only intended to harass them and delay their crossing. This view is incompatible with the official announcement that reinforcements are being sent to the contingent at the mouth of the Ambikhe, with orders to drive the Japanese back across the Yalu.

The absence of news led to the circulation of rumors. For instance, it was reported that Gen. Sasulitch would be relieved of his command and courtmartialed for making a too strenuous stand on the right bank of the Yalu. As a matter of fact, while the War Office is surprised at the resistance made by Gen. Sasulitch, a telegram from Gen. Kouropatkin to the Emperor on April 26 announced that Sasulitch, in view of the preparations which the Japanese were making to cross the Yalu, had begun to reinforce his troops on the Manchurian bank.

Another report says that the War Office has been informed that the Russian casualties numbered 2,000. Should this be true it can be accepted as a certainty that the Russian plan of operations never contemplated such a sacrifice.

THE COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE

Some Cogent Reasons Why the Institute By-law Should be Supported

1. Higher education is part and parcel of the school system of the province.

2. Peterborough, the premier town, cannot afford to be outstripped by other places.

3. A new building is absolutely essential to advance the Institute to the grade it should hold.

4. It would be a distinct retrograde for Peterborough to defeat the by-law; it would be evidence that our town is behind the times.

5. The total cost is insignificant, being only $2979.92 per annum. This is equal to only 56 one-hundredths of a mill on the assessment; that is, for every $100 that a ratepayer is assessed he pays only 5 6-10 cents a year for thirty years towards this

A DELIGHTFUL CONCERT

Under the Auspices of the Y.M.C.A. Foot-ball Club

The concert given in the Y.M.C.A. Hall last evening, under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. Football Club, was in every respect most successful and well attended. The talent was all local and those who participated are to be congratulated on the success of their efforts.

The entertainment opened with an instrumental solo by Miss W. Gumpricht rendered in her usual artistic and masterly manner.

The next number was a vocal solo "The Village Wedding Song," by Miss Dawson, which was given with much sweetness of tone. Mr. A. E. Brundrett followed with "In the Heart of the Mighty Deep," which was received with much applause. A solo by Mrs. C. B. McAllister came next and was very much enjoyed, after which Mr. W. D. Campbell gave an excellent reading entitled "Travelling With a Reformer."

After a short intermission Mr. R. H. Jolliffe sang "The Maid of Malabar" in his usual good style. Mr. Dunsdow then gave a recitation, after which Mr. S. Glass sang "Message of the Violet. Mr. F. H. Dobbin then gave a humorous chalk talk on the teaching of drawing in the early days. The closing number, entitled "Rose of My Life," was given by Mr. Alf. E. Young and brought out to great advantage the fine qualities of his voice.

The programme throughout was most enjoyable and each number was encored and gracefully responded to by those taking part.

The accompanyists of the evening were Mrs. W. J. Morrow and Mr. Geo. Schneider.

RUSSIAN LOSS SAID TO EXCEED TWO THOUSAND

A Startling Report Afloat in St. Petersburg --Censor Holds Back News--Excitement at Fever Heat.

St. Petersburg, May 4.—An unconfirmed report of severe fighting between 3,000 Russians and a similar number of Japanese at Gensan is sent by the Standard's St. Petersburg correspondent, who says the Japanese were compelled to retire into Gensan both sides losing heavily. Two Russian officers are said to be among the wounded.

CENSORS HELD BACK NEWS.

St. Petersburg, May 4.—The interest of the public in the news of the fighting on the Yalu is at fever heat, especially since the last official report, which announced the fighting at Chingow, was given out. To the general disappointment, no further telegrams from Gen. Kuropatkin have been published by the War Commission, nor will the censor pass press despatches wired from the front.

BARON HAYASHI'S VIEWS.

London May 4—Baron Hayashi, the Japanese Minister here, said to the Associated Press:

"The immediate result of General Kuroki's success will probably be a movement on Fangwangcheng, which the Chinese have fortified with their usual brick structures. Since the commencement of the war the Russians doubtless have added earthwork, but their loss of guns must seriously diminish their defensive strength.

"I understand that Rus ia had only 100 guns in Manchuria. If that is the case, her artillery strength has been diminished almost one-third.

"They fight well, those Russians, and Fenwangcheng will not be taken without a hard struggle unless General Kuropatkin again changes his plan of campaign.

Bridgeport, Conn., May 4.—A stockholder of the Lake Submarine Torpedo Boat Company of this city, builders and owners of the submarine boat Protector, says that negotiations practically have been completed for the sale of the Protector to representatives of the Japanese government, the Japanese having outbid the Russian representatives for the boat.

The Protector is now in the very best condition. She was launched yesterday at Fall River and sailed for Newport.

Berlin May 4.—Colonel von Gaedke, war correspondent of the Berliner Tageblatt, writing from Harbin, Manchuria, under date of April 4, says he found the Russians much more unprepared for war than he anticipated. High officers assured him that the garrison at Port Arthur amounted to only 8,000 combatants when the first attack occurred. The troops south of Mukden ready for action then numbered only 20,000 to 25,000 men.

Colonel von Gaedke asserts that the total strength of the Russians in Manchuria at that time was hardly above 90,000 men, exclusive of 24,000 railroad guards. The Russians expected a speedy advance of the Japanese, after the outbreak of war and rather lost their heads. Much censure, the colonel adds, was heard in army circles of the mismanagement of the defense of Port Arthur.

BUILD UP PETERBOROUGH.

Reasons Why the Property-Owners Should Vote for the Sugar Company By-law

1. No cash bonus is asked, no extra assessment is necessary. The town simply guarantees the Company's bonds to the amount of $100,000.

2. The bonds are instalment bonds, $50,000 of which are to be retired by the Company in three years, and $7,000 annually thereafter for six years and $8,000 the tenth year.

3. The Sugar Company pays the interest, and retires every bond as it falls due.

4. Mr. D. A. Gordon, President and Manager of the Wallaceburg Sugar Company, and his associates, will invest $100,000, and he will take the Presidency of the local Sugar Company. Mr. Gordon has built up three great manufacturing establishments in the small town of Wallaceburg, and is one of the most successful business men in Western Ontario.

5. The factory, when completed, will cost in hard cash not less than $350,000. The town has a first mortgage on this value as security for the guarantee.

6. The town has the right to appoint a Director of the Company.

7. At least 50,000 tons of beets can be secured per annum in the Trent Valley. This tonnage will yield 12 1-2 million pounds of sugar, or over 40,000 300 lb. barrels; it will require 15 trains of 20 ton cars each to carry the output from Peterborough.

8. The value of the sugar will be nearly $500,000 which amount will be distributed in Peterborough and vicinity.

9. The factory will employ during the months of November, December, January and February not fewer than 150 hands. This is important to the workingmen, who are too often compelled to be idle during these months. As the factory runs night and day during the four months, there will be required three shifts of men.

10. During the summer months much work at good wages will be provided men and boys in the farmers' beet fields.

11. The by-law provides that no bonds shall be guaranteed by the town until the buildings are erected ready for the machinery, and until the machinery is on the grounds; and not then unless the grounds, buildings and machinery are free of liens, and the town is given a first mortgage on them.

12. The second $50,000 of bonds are not to be guaranteed until the factory is completed and running for ten days.

13. It is nonsense to say that the town cannot afford to guarantee the bonds. Peterborough has gone into debt but very little for industrial concerns. For nearly all of the town's indebtedness there are good assets. The waterworks is an example of this.

14. The walls of the Sugar Company's immense buildings 340 feet long and 110 feet wide, all built of solid concrete, are already 20 feet above ground. When completed, the factory will be a magnificent structure. Every citizen loyal to the town and to its future development should not hesitate to vote for its completion.

15. Mr. Gordon asks no guarantee for his $100,000; he has knowledge of the industry and hence faith in its future. He believes that Peterborough has exceptional advantages for a beet sugar factory, and is prepared to put up a dollar in actual cash for every dollar he asks the town to temporarily guarantee.

16. Build up Peterborough, should be the motto of our citizens. Our industries on the whole have been successful. We should have strong faith and courage in our industrial future.

Remember—Your vote will be a vote for or against the progress of industry in our midst. Which?

THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL IS CERTAIN TO HAVE A GREAT FUTURE.

The Splendid Waterway Provided By Nature

Will be Lined with Flouring Mills and Other Industries

The following article, from the pen of Mr. J. Alexr. Culverwell, recently appeared in the Canadian Electrical News. It contains much information regarding the Trent Valley Canal—soon to become Canada's great route from the west to the seaboard. Mr. Culverwell says:

What a remarkable situation for Canadians to waken up to—that at this late day they discover the Trent Valley Canal has followed out the method adopted in the $100,000,000 modern German canal system connecting the coal and steel districts with the North Sea, viz., length and breadth of lock rather than depth.

The draught of the German barges is 7 1-3 feet and capacity 1,000 tons. The dimensions of the Trent Valley locks are 134 feet long by 33 feet wide, and will have a depth of 8 feet 4 inches on the sill, as per departmental instructions. The locks will accomodate barges of 800 tons or 25,000 bushels, and the total cost will be about $9,000,000.

The present Erie Canal, which has a capacity for only 240 ton barges, is now being enlarged by New York State at a cost of $10,000,000 to accommodate barges of 1,000 tons, 150 feet long, 25 feet wide, and having ten feet draught—the depth on lock sills being 11 feet, and the depth in the canal reach 12 feet.

The work on the Trent Valley Canal was originally commenced by the Imperial Government in 1825, but the money voted was diverted to quell the Mackenzie rebellion. Construction was again started in 1880 by the Dominion Government and has been dragging along until now. Nearly $4,000,000 has been expended, and this season construction will have been completed between Lake Couchiching—an arm of Lake Simcoe—on the north, and Rice Lake on the south. The balance, viz., $5,000,000, would open up to the two outlets, the northern outlet between Midland on Georgian Bay and Orillia on Lake Simcoe and the southern outlet between Rice Lake and Lake Ontario, either at Port Hope or Trenton. This waterway would then open up about 1,600 miles of inland shore line, as many of the lakes and rivers tie transversely to the line of the canal, and have some six million acres of land within ten miles of its wharves.

In its national work of utility, the Trent Valley Canal and waterway will connect the Georgian Bay at Midland, where the great lake carriers will discharge the North-West grain into the Trent Valley barges, which, passing through this series of connecting short canals, lakes and rivers, via Peterborough, will enter Lake Ontario at Port Hope or Trenton, and thence proceed by the St. Lawrence river and canals to the city of Montreal, where they will discharge into the ocean carriers for Europe. The old 9-foot system of St. Lawrence canals, which are still in existence, can be used by the Trent Valley barges, which therefore will not need to crowd up the new 14-foot St. Lawrence ship canal system—a great advantage.

Cheap power and cheap transportation are the two principal factors of the cost of manufacture, and with such advantages as the cheap power now offering at Peterborough and also elsewhere on the canal, it does not take a Rothschild to see as he did in 1898 and make the statement that "This district is destined to become one of the great manufacturing centres of the continent." Surely it must be admitted the possibilities of this district are that it will become a great industrial beehive, and that Midland and other towns on the Georgian Bay, as well as Orillia, Barrie, Lindsay, and Peterborough, and the great Midland District on the line of the canal, will be simply feeders to the trade and prosperity of Toronto and Hamilton, etc., as well as points east and Montreal. Here it may well be noted that the manufacturing development at Peterborough, in particular, has been remarkable indeed the "past three years."

THE NEW COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE

The ratepayers of the town are called upon on Thursday to vote for or against a most important bylaw which is to decide the question of a new Collegiate Institute building for Peterborough, the most flourishing town in Ontario. It has been seen that although commercially Peterborough is in every respect well equipped, educationally, the standard is not as high as it should be. The staff of our present Institute is second to none in the Dominion, but the structure is antiquated and therefore inefficient. If Peterborough wishes to hold its own in educational matters with the minor towns such as Lindsay, Napanee and Cobourg, which have modern, first-class Collegiate Institute buildings, the answer given to the question tomorrow will be in the affirmative. If Peterborough is to become a city, and we are proud to think it soon will be, the endeavor should be to provide better educational facilities and make room for the rapidly increasing population. This is one of the most important features of the argument, as the educational advantages of a town should be considered first by any right thinking person who wishes to settle or make a home there. Industrially, Peterborough is the foremost town in the Dominion, and is essentially a manufacturing center. The aim, therefore, should be to provide an educational institution which shall meet the necessities of the children in regard to giving a knowledge of physical science and the rudiments of technical training, such as are demanded by the conditions of the present day. In consideration of the fact that Peterborough is the greatest electrical industrial town in Canada, the importance of placing mechanical and practically scientific education within the reach of the younger generation should be considered first. New buildings, therefore, are justified, as the present ones are structurally inadequate for such purposes.

NAVIGATION BEING IMPEDED.

The High Water Prevents the Locks from Being Used

The high water this year compelled the opening of the gates of the locks below the Little Lake, to let the water down. The gates have not been closed, and the result is that navigation is impeded. The Calcutt Line of steamers have 500 cords of wood to bring up, while the other steamers are also prevented getting to dock in the Little Lake.

It is likely that next week will see the water down sufficient to enable the locks to be put inorder for work.

both the method and the ability to do as he says, Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name, and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic troubles, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emission of parts, impotency, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but likewise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. RUSSIA TAKING A LOOK AHEAD

Coupled with the statement that Russia has announced that no power or powers will be permitted to take part in settling the present Japanese war is the further statement that it is not known whether the suggestion of mediation by the Kings of Denmark and of England, grandfather and uncle of the Czar, ever reached him, but whether or not, the reply is "no."

It is probable that somebody who controls Russian policy has made such a reply. It is of a piece with the Russian stubbornness before the war was opened. The Czar's advisers would listen to nothing and war followed. Those particular advisers are said to be out of favor now, but the controlling spirit seems to be the same.

It is declared that the war must continue till Japan is whipped, and then Russia will dictate her own terms, and no Berlin congress shall have any part in the settlement. This seems a very foolish thing to say. It is possible that when the war ends Japan may dictate the terms. Russian naval power in the east is hopelessly crippled, the Czar must depend on a single-track railway four or five thousand miles long, laid with a forty-seven-pound rail, to transport all his men and all their equipment, ammunition and food, and the utmost the road can do is to deliver about 800 men a day and sustain only about 200,000 at best. Even a Czar cannot mass two and two five.

The chances are that when the war ends, either way, both of the combatants will be too tired and sore and crippled to resist a demand made by even one or two of the other great powers with all their resources intact. That such a demand—for "something to say" in the determination of the conditions after the war—will be made by practically all the powers is as certain as any human event in the future.

It would have been wiser for Russia to recognize this reasonable certainty and to have admitted other powers to advisory participation in negotiations before the war. Had they tried and failed then she would have fair excuse for denying them afterward, if she thinks she can. Russia ought to see that never again will the conqueror in any great European war be given as free a hand as was Germany after the fall of Paris in 1871. It was given then because that was regarded as a kind of finishing up of the concerted work of 1815, the last installment of the decree of Waterloo.

Every other considerable war since the Napoleonic wars has ended with concerted action of powers not parties to it. Russia felt it after the Crimean war and again after the exhausting struggle with Turkey. She joined in it when Turkey stood over prostrate Greece a little while ago and led in applying it to Japan in 1895.

How can she hope to escape it when this war shall end, no matter how, when she knows that the decision must materially affect the interests of every one of the other powers?

Cannot the Czar see that the attitude taken in this advance "bluff" is the surest way to consolidate all the great powers of Europe—leaving America wholly out of view—against him? Or does he imagine that after having thrashed Japan to a finish"—even if he be permitted to do that—he will then be ready to face an adverse concert of all Europe?

If he thinks this concert will not appear he is mistaken. Fifty years have metamorphosed the world, nations had grown too close together and commerce too interpenetrative not to see that the vital interest of each is more or less bound up in all the others.

Kouropatkin promises to give battle to the Japs just as soon as he gets them in the right place. Kouropatkin is, we believe, the first great commander on record who ever expected the enemy to kindly and deliberately place himself where it would be most convenient to smash him.

Ten thousand families were evicted from their homes in New York because they could not pay their rent in one week. Poor old Ireland, how Americans do sympathize with you. They should send a few hogsheads of tears to Ireland. But Ireland never had such a record. The land laws of the Republic are ten worse than in Ireland.

HEALTH OF CZAR IS FAILING

Worry and Extreme Labor Over War Said to Prevent Sleep

Copenhagen, May 3.—According to information received here this afternoon from St. Petersburg the Czar is in an unsatisfactory state of health, his nervousness preventing him from sleeping. Since the outbreak of the war his Majesty has overworked himself daily by studying every detail in the War Department. This intense application, in connection with the recent Russian disasters and disappointments, has begun to tell on his health.

St. Petersburg, May 3.—I am told on what I must consider excellent authority that the Emperor will go to the seat of war some time in August, the exact date depending upon a family event which is expected to take place about that time, and which is the subject of engrossing interest in court circles.

Turned Back at the Tunnel

London April 30—Mr. Arthur Hill, a well known London horseman, who was on his way to the World's Fair St. Louis, where he has secured a position, was yesterday stopped at the St. Clair tunnel by the United States authorities for violation of the alien law. He had been trapped into admitting that he was under contract to work at the Fair, and had to return to Canadian territory.

Strong Blood Fortifies the Nerves Strengthens the Heart, Keeps You in the Swim. How to Nourish the Blood

To keep abreast in the unceasing race that confronts us, both energy and reserve strength are essential. Strength is power. Power is money—that's the way we resolve it today yet even when evidence of failing strength and dwindling power becomes manifest, very few of us face the actual condition and deal with it as we would with something involving monetary value.

Thousands of people are falling behind in the race of life simply because they are failing in strength. Instead of using Ferrozone, which revitalizes all the functions of the body, forms rich, red blood, improves digestion, thereby renewing vitality and endurance, they simply drift along until the doctor or undertaker confronts them.

If Ferrozone was unpleasant to take, or if its action were not immediate and permanent, if physical improvement were not of the highest value to the individual, there might be some excuse for deferring the use of this remarkable tonic.

If your health is inconsequential, then Ferrozone may be dispensed with. But if health and vigor give you more power and comfort, can't you see the foolishness of denying yourself the many advantages of using such a grand medicine?

Do this fair thing by yourself, go right to your druggist and get Ferrozone. You will then know what perfect health, good spirits, and strong nerves really mean.

Ferrozone, like other good things, is grossly substituted, so insist on getting Ferrozone, which is prepared in tablet form and sold only in boxes, six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

$200,000 LIBEL SUIT

Dr. R. V. Pierce's company, The World's Dispensary Medical Association, of Buffalo, N.Y., has brought a suit of libel against the publishers of The Ladies Home Journal, of Philadelphia, for $200,000 damages. The sworn complaint has been filed in the Clerk's Office at Buffalo, N. Y. It appears from this that The Ladies' Home Journal in a recent number published an attack on patent medicines. The article charged that the well-known remedy, called "Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," contained seventeen per cent. of alcohol, also certain drugs, and that these ingredients made the medicine harmful and dangerous. The sworn complaint shows that the above statement is wholly and absolutely false in every particular, and that the medicine contains no deleterious ingredients whatever, and none of the ingredients stated in the article so published, being made of certain extracts of medicinal plants and roots—harmless to the most delicate constitution.

When called upon, Dr. V. Mott Pierce, an officer of the company, said:

"In a recent article, The Ladies' Home Journal made this wholly unfounded attack upon our remedy. The charges made against our medicine are absolutely false, as the complaint in our suit shows. We find it hard to understand how a reputable magazine of the high standing and enormous circulation of the Ladies' Home Journal should make such a damaging statement without taking pains to ascertain the facts. The remedy, 'Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription' is so well and favorably known, and has such a wide sale, that we cannot afford to allow such a charge to pass unanswered. The fact is the 'Favorite Prescription' is composed of extracts of medicinal plants, roots and herbs, which would not harm the most delicate system. It is a false and unfounded attack upon the good name and record of our company."

THE COSSACKS.

A Favorite Camp Story Through Which Generals Are Criticised.

Unlike other Russian soldiers, the Cossacks are very intelligent in military matters and do not hesitate to criticise their generals freely among themselves. They have bitter tongues and a genius for satire. There is a favorite story which has been told in Cossack camps for generations. It is handed down from father to son, the names being changed to fit the military commanders of the day. Freely translated, it runs something like this:

The war god of Russia was asleep in heaven one day when he was awakened by the confused clamor of two hosts in battle on the earth beneath. He shouted to the Angel Gabriel:

"Look out and see what my Cossacks are doing."

"They are fighting the Turks, and Prince Potemkin is leading them."

"Oh, that's all right," said the war god. "He's a good man."

So the deity went asleep again, only to be awakened by another turmoil.

"What's that?" he asked sleepily.

"They are fighting the Turks again under Suwarow."

"He's a fine fellow. They'll do all right."

And so the story goes on interminably around the campfire, each man adding the name of his favorite commander until at last one of them makes the Angel Gabriel mention the name of some general who happens to be regarded by the Cossacks as a duffer. Then the next man makes the war god reply in accents of great alarm:

"Oh, my beloved Cossacks! They must be perishing under that man! It is time I interfered. Hasten, Gabriel, and bring me my long boots, for I must go down at once and save them."

TURTLE FLESH.

The Handsomest of the Animals Gives the Worst Meat.

No one really knows how large a turtle may grow, but certainly there does not appear to be much if any exaggeration attached to the statements of Pliny and Strabo, who, describing the chelonophagi of the Red sea, say that they utilized the shells of the turtles they had eaten as roofs to their huts and boats for their feeble voyages.

Strange to say, the handsomest turtle, the hawk's bill variety (Chelone imbricata), furnishes the worst flesh, being so strongly flavored with musk as to be almost uneatable. This peculiarity would seem to point to a diet of squid since these molluscs are exceedingly musky. But it may not be out of place to remark here that turtle flesh, even of the best sorts, is not nice. As Sam Weller's pieman hoarsely whispered, "It's the seasoning as does it." A diet of turtle steaks or of hashed turtle or of turtle soup, au naturel, would soon sicken any one but a savage. For sixpence or its equivalent in most of the West India island towns one can get a heaped plate of turtle steak with bread or jams or sweet potatoes ad lib. But I never knew even a hungry sailor who wanted more than one meal a week of it, for all its cheapness. The fact is that in the cult of turtle soup we are following (a long way off, it is true) the example set by the Chinese, who love gelatinous soups and pay fabulous prices for the nests of the sea swallows, the holothuria, or sea slug, and the sharks' fins because of their gelatinous qualities.—Frank G. Fulton in London.

A FAMOUS SOCIETY.

Where London's Famous Preachers and Teachers Gathered.

The closing decades of the last century comprehended the palmy period of a distinguished little society in London which might have been described as a club for the teachers and preachers of their age, secular or religious. Such indeed was the Metaphysical society. Its organizing spirit had perhaps been James Knowles. If its most famous member were found in W. E. Gladstone its leading spirits, who took the most active part in its discussions, were Cardinal Manning and Richard Holt Hutton, the editor of the Spectator. James Martineau, Matthew Arnold and William George Ward, the erewhile mathematical tutor of Balliol, as well as the poet Browning, may sometimes have been of the company, but the chief figures were those already mentioned. In his earlier days Hutton, like so many reflective men of his day, was the disciple of F. D. Maurice. Then among his associates were J. M. Ludlow and Thomas Hughes, the author of "Tom Brown's School Days." Afterward R. H. Hutton's mental master would have been recognised by him in his brother member of the Metaphysical society, James Martineau.

The great incidents in its proceedings at this time were the high speculative arguments wherein different sides were taken by teachers of their generation so mutually opposed and so individually distinguished as Manning and Martineau, upon very rare occasions, it may be, by Gladstone, Browning and, I rather think, once or twice by Tennyson himself. The extraordinary magnetism exercised by Martineau over his personal following was perceptible in his manner with casual acquaintances. As such, it was realized very many years ago by the present writer when, as an exceedingly young man fresh from college, he was concerned in preparing some examination questions, in which his venerable seniors, Maurice and Martineau, with one of two more, were to have a voice.—T. H. S. Escott in Chambers'.

He Was Awful Homely.

One day while on a hunting expedition in the Alps Victor Emmanuel met an old woman gathering brambles. She inquired of the stranger whether it was true, as she had heard, that the king was in the neighborhood. If so, was there any chance of seeing him?

"Yes," said his majesty, "he is about. Would you like to see him?"

The old woman declared that few sights would give her more pleasure.

"Well, mother, I am the king."

She stared at him for a moment and broke into a grin.

"Get out with you, jester! Do you think a nice woman like the queen would marry a chap like you, with that hideous mug?"

The king was not offended. Perhaps the compliment to his wife mollified him. He gave the woman a piece of money, with which he was always free, and passed along.

Lightning Roasted Duck.

An extraordinary effect of lightning is reported from Lake Grandlieu, in the Nantes region. A violent tempest burst over the lake, with vivid lightning and thunder. A number of boats were on the lake, and while they were hurrying to bank there was a tremendous peal of thunder. Almost immediately there fell among the boats the dead bodies of a large flock of wild ducks, some of them roasted to a nicety, and some charred to a cinder. Roast duck cooked by lightning reads like a novelty, even in the freaks of meteorology. If it could only be adapted to the "quick lunch" system!

THE OREGON MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY

Offer to Canadian investors a limited amount of stock of the above company The property owned by the Company consists at the present time of about 500 acres, which are located in the Tarryall District and Park County, Colorado. This whole district has been known for years on account of its rich placer ground, and is now prominently before the public owing to the number of very good properties which have been opened up recently producing, principally, gold, and lately some that are producing Platinum. On the Oregon property there are a number of well known veins of low grade ore that will yield a profit by being treated on the ground of the company. The company have recently opened up a fine vein in the Hawkeye group and this vein shows not only good values but an immense amount of ore which alone would make the property very valuable. Assays from ore taken from various parts of this property range from a few dollars to $373 per ton in gold. We have very little silver, lead or copper in the district. The company have a shaft 240 feet deep, with a good shaft house thoroughly well equipped with all modern machinery to develop same. They are now driving a tunnel which is in about 700 feet and which will cut the Hawkeye vein about 300 feet deeper than where it is opened at present. There is enough ore exposed on the property of this company to keep them busy for a number of years and the reason for selling stock at the present time is to secure funds to build a mill. The company will probably join with the Almades Company in building this mill. There is water enough to furnish water power and over 100 acres of fine spruce and pine timber. The affairs of the company have always been managed in a business-like economical manner and there are no officers' salaries. The monies received from the sale of stock go direct into the property.

I can heartily recommend this stock as safe, as well as an unusually good investment, because of the immense amount of ore which the company have already opened up. It is not a mere prospect, but the property has been developed by expense of a considerable amount of money and time.

The company is splendidly officered by men of integrity and high standing. The company has not pushed the sale of stock the last year owing to a delay in getting title to the ground from the Government, but now that has been satisfactorily adjusted and work will be pushed to a finish.

The number of exceedingly rich strikes which have been made during the last few weeks in the various camps in the State of Colorado is the best evidence of the prosperity of the mining business. Almost every camp in the state has opened up rich bodies of ore, and Park County is well in the lead in that line.

There are only $25,000 of stock for sale, at $1.00 per share. The company is capitalized at $200,000, and the advantage to the investor of selling the stock at par, is that every share is fully paid up and non-assessable.

RUSSIA ON THE VERGE OF INEVITABLE RUIN

Diplomats at Washington Consider Her Hopelessly Beaten By Japan

Washington, May 3.—That Russia is already hopelessly beaten and soon must swallow her pride and sue for peace is the opinion of some of the diplomats of the highest rank at this capital. Such views were expressed by members of the diplomatic corps who met socially not many hours ago and talked informally of the outlook in the far East. These men are not unfriendly to Russia. They are simply statesmen of the world, well informed and able through wide knowledge and long experience to catch the first faint shadow of coming events. One of them, well known on both sides of the Atlantic for his skill as a diplomat, made use of the following words:

"Russia is fast going the road to ruin. The war is virtually over, and Russia is vanquished. Japan has command of the sea, and command of the sea in modern warfare is victory. Russia cannot win without recovering superiority of sea-power and that is impossible unless she is willing to prolong the conflict three years, or until she can construct a new fleet of battleships. That would mean the ruin of the Russian empire—hopeless bankruptcy, commercial panic, revolution at home.

"No. There is nothing for the Czar to do but to save what he can out of the wreck. He should move at once. He should dismiss the war party—send Alexieff and Lessar and all the other belligerents into retirement, along with Bezobrazoff. The Czar can't well dismiss his uncle and aunts and rid himself of the influence of the grand dukes and grand duchesses. But he should disregard their counsel. He should reinstate Dr Witte and lean heavily upon Count Lamsdorff, and the other friends of peace. He should immediately make overtures through Paris and London for mediation and settlement with Japan, paying the necessary price and saving what he can out of the wreck. To continue the war it is hopeless. It is ruin and suicide."

The foregoing words summarize the best opinion in the diplomatic world. They would create a sensation if the name of the man who spoke them could be given, though this expression is only that of an individual and must not in any way be taken as possessing political significance. There is in some minds here a belief and in others a hope that the Czar will rise to the crisis of the hour and adopt the very course which has been indicated. It is the belief of diplomats whose opinions are of value that now, before any great land battles have been fought and Japan has made only trifling sacrifices of men and money, Russia could secure terms of peace which might be regarded as favorable under the circumstances—that is to say, by merely granting Japan's original demands, with one or two additions. Besides a guarantee of the independence of Corea and evacuation of Manchuria, Japan would now doubtless insist upon the surrender to her, or at least the disarmament and neutralization of the Liaotung Peninsula, including, of course, Port Arthur.

"But Port Arthur will soon fall into the possession of Japan," said the diplomatist already quoted. "That must be regarded as inevitable. With sea power lost, the holding of Port Arthur is at best of doubtful value to Russia. It is a tax upon her military strength without any corresponding advantages. As long as the Russian fleet was sufficiently formidable to menace Japan's transports or ports, Port Arthur was the key to the situation. But now the Russian fleet is more than half destroyed or disabled. What remains is in a state of demoralization. Admiral Togo has only to station a part of his squadron before the port, establish a blockade, and Port Arthur itself and the Russian ships there are powerless to inflict any damage upon Japan. All the troops Russia keeps at Port Arthur are so many men out of the fighting elsewhere. The minute the remnant of the Russian fleet come out of the harbor and give battle the Japanese will overwhelm them with superior force. If they stay in port they are harmless. Meanwhile the Japanese are strong enough to go after the cruisers at Vladivostok.

"So far as sea power is concerned the outlook is altogether hopeless for Russia," continued this authority. "If the Baltic fleet is sent to the Pacific it in turn will be overpowered and destroyed. What I wish to emphasize is that by losing the freedom of the ocean Russia has lost the struggle, and it is useless to continue it on land.

"If three months ago anyone had predicted what has actually happened, he would have been deemed crazy. One Russian naval detachment destroyed at Chemulpo. Another bottled up and harmless at Vladivostok. The third and principal one cut to pieces and virtually blockaded at Port Arthur. Japanese transports moving everywhere without peril. Russia afraid to send out naval reinforcements because of the probability that they would meet a like fate. All this without the loss of a ship by Japan, and almost without the loss of a man. The only parallel to it in history is found in the Spanish-American war. Russia's case is as hopeless as was Spain's. When Sampson destroyed the Spanish fleet at Santiago the war was virtually over, and Spain hastened to seek peace. The destruction of the fleet of Admiral Makaroff, though not yet complete is, practically speaking, already accomplished. Port Arthur will fall whenever the Japanese get ready to take it. And with the fall of Port Arthur, if not now, the war is virtually at an end, and the hour has struck for the Czar to recover mastery of himself, return to his original policy of peace, and seek settlement on the best terms that can be had.

"When we turn to the land we find that another wonderful thing has happened. Corea has been evacuated by Russian troops almost without firing a shot. No land engagement of any importance has taken place. But without loss on land or sea the Japanese have obtained mastery of the ocean and mastery of Corea.

"Thus the first stage of the war is closed, and it shows that Russia has been dislodged from her former position. What next? I am not of those who believe the Japanese will follow the Russians into the interior. I believe the Japanese forces will take Port Arthur, take Newchwang, and perhaps also Vladivostok, and that there they will stop. Why should they go further? They will then have all that is worth fighting for. They will have entrenched themselves in the strongest possible position. They can well afford to hold their bases and let the enemy dislodge them if they can. They should, and in my opinion will," and the speaker's position, I assure you, my readers, makes his utterances significant, "stay close to the sea, where they are masters. If the Japanese do this they will be virtually unconquerable. Possession of the sea is everything.

"Russia's outlook is hopeless," concluded this eminent diplomatist. "She cannot recover control of the sea and she cannot put into the far East and maintain there an army strong enough to drive the Japanese into the sea. Imagine you Americans trying to fight Russia at Cape Nome, for instance—your enemy being in control of the sea, and you supporting an army of 400,000 or 500,000 men over a single track railway.

"I have little hope that the Czar will sue for peace. I am talking about what he should do. In my opinion, the Russian people will through pride demand that the war continue. There will be a terrible struggle. If it continues very long both nations will be well nigh bankrupt. The Czar did not want war, but he succumbed to the influences about him. Alexieff is the man who brought on this war, simply because he thought the Japanese were bluffing. His is a terrible responsibility. The future of Russia is dark, indeed, but I fear the Czar has not sufficient moral courage to rise to the occasion and sue for peace at this favorable moment."

The C. P. R's Good Work

Last fall the Canadian Pacific Railway Company supplied its agents all along the road, with spring flowering bulbs, and the posies are now to be seen at every station. The company has now sent out to the agents liberal packages of flower seeds, with instructions for their culture, that every station may be made beautiful. It is just such things as this that make the Canadian Pacific road popular. The travelling public appreciate the efforts of a railway company that troubles itself to give them a sight of beautiful flowers at each station and section house as they pass by.

THE BRIDGE BROKEN

Chemong Lake Bridge Badly Wrecked on Thursday Last

Mr. George Brown, of Chemong Park Hotel, was in town Monday, and told the Times that the bridge had been damaged by the ice, which broke up last Thursday. The ice came down the lake on the aboveday and carried the bridge away, breaking it into five sections.

County Engineer Belcher was at once notified, and put on a gang of men to repair the damage. It is thought that the bridge will be ready for traffic in four or five days.

Investments in mining stocks where they can be purchased cheaply whose property contains merit and whose directors are men of unquestionable honor and integrity, and especially when sufficient work has been done to guarantee a producing mine and the leads have been demonstrated to be permanent, offer the greatest opportunity for large returns from modern investments.

The shrewdest capitalists of England and America are giving more attention to mining properties and putting more money into them than at any time in the past history of the world.

The Smuggler Group consists of five full sized claims, to-wit:- The Smuggler, Gangers, Black Jack, Star and Red Rock, located in the Greenhorn District of Eastern Oregon. Surface ore bodies are Potent. Pride of Pendleton, Bonanza and Rockefeller, developing work to the extent of 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifts and crosscuts have been made, exposing hundreds of tons of high grade ore, averaging from $25 to $45 per ton, based on smelter returns and for the purpose of equipping the mines a limited number of shares of Treasury Stock will be sold at 25 cents per share, the par value of which is $1.00.

Shares in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation are not capital stock of a corporation, and carry none of the responsibilities and obligations, or liability to assessment of capital stock; but represent an undivided interest in the plantation itself.

The twelve thousand acres comprising the plantation are divided into twelve thousand shares, each share representing one acre of land, and the holders of shares in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation are the actual owners of one undivided acre of land, for each share held, with a guarantee expressed upon the certificate by La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company, under its official seal, to plant two hundred or more rubber trees per acre for each share sold, and to care for same for a period of five years, and at the expiration of that time to gather the first harvest and deliver the net proceeds thereof to the shareholder.

In other words, La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company sells to each shareholder one undivided acre of land in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation, with two hundred or more rubber trees five years old, and their profits for all time, for each share sold, and agrees to plant so that the first harvest belonging to the shareholder is the one to be gathered from La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation during the sixth year from the date of the certificate.

After the delivery of the first harvest La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company will care for the plantation, and harvest and market the crop for ten per cent. of the net proceeds therefrom. Out of this commission the Company agrees to pay all costs of administration, including maintenance of its home and branch offices.

This plan gives the purchaser of shares an interest of definite acreage, and his proportionate share in the total yield of rubber from the entire plantation forever, making it absolutely certain that the interest of each shareholder will receive the same careful attention

In Culture of Sugar Beets So Say the Acreage Solicitors

The undersigned solicited acreage for the Peterborough Sugar Company, Limited, for about 60 days each last winter, until soliciting was discontinued by the company. We canvassed in the Counties of Victoria, Ontario and Durham, and met with a reception so favorable that about 75 per cent. of the farmers called upon, within four miles of the nearest station, contracted to grow beets at $4.00 a ton.

In South Ontario we found a large number of farmers who had last year grown beets for the Berlin factory and all but two or three expressed their willingness to continue growing beets and signed the Peterborough Sugar Company's contracts. We were able to secure about 100 acres a week on an average. In the townships of Reach and Mariposa alone we secured about 400 acres; and we do not hesitate to confirm the statement made by Mr. Garvin that the counties adjoining Peterborough will grow in subsequent years not less than 4,000 acres of sugar beets. Everywhere we found the farmers favorably interested in the sugar beet industry, and quite of the opinion that the cultivation of beets will prove unusually profitable.

Yours truly,
W. A. IRVINE,
WM A. BELL.

A VERY SUPERIOR BOARD

To the Editor of the Times.

Sir,—Having been asked to express an opinion on the Collegiate Institute by-law, I state with pleasure that it is our duty to support the trustees in this matter by a large majority.

We have in Peterborough a very superior Board of Education. They are a body of men in whose judgment we can place confidence on any business question submitted to them.

They are experts on a question of this kind by reason of long public service and experience in educational matters.

Moreover, they are unanimous and have stated their case for the new building in such a clear convincing manner that no opposition has been heard to their arguments. They point out that if the ratepayers refuse to provide a new Collegiate Institute they must provide new Public Schools, which would also be false economy at the present time, and only defers the erection of a larger building for a few years.

A large vote in favor of the by-law will give public expression to the confidence we have in the judgment of the Board who have the best interests of all our citizens at heart.

Yours truly,
R. M. DENNISTOUN.

Old Hagar's Secret

BY MRS. M. J. HOLMES

Author of "For a Woman's Sake," "Love's Triumph," "Purified by Suffering," "A Grass Widow," "Woman Against Woman," Etc.

the dread fear steals over me that there will come a time, ere long, when I shall have no sister."

There were tears in Maggie's eyes, tears for the fair young girl whom she had never seen, and she felt a yearning desire to look once on the beautiful face of her whom Henry Warner called his sister. "I wish she would come here, I want to see her," she said, at last, and Henry replied, "She does not go often from home. But I have her daguerreotype in Worcester. I'll write to Douglas to bring it," and opening the letter, which was not yet sealed, he added a few lines. "Come, Maggie," he said, when this was finished, "you need exercise. Suppose you ride over to the office with these letters."

Maggie would rather have remained with him; but she expressed her willingness to go, and in a few moments was seated on Gritty's back, with the two letters clasped firmly in her hand. At one of these, the one bearing the name of Rose Warner, she looked often and wistfully; "'twas a most beautiful name," she thought, "and she who bore it was beautiful, too." And then there arose within her a wish, shadowy and undefined to herself, it is true—but still a wish—that she, Maggie Miller, might one day call that gentle Rose her sister. "I shall see her sometimes, any way," she thought, "and this George Douglas, too. I wish they'd visit us together," and having by this time reached the postoffice, she deposited the letters and galloped rapidly toward home.

CHAPTER VII.

The large establishment of Douglas & Co. was closed in the night. The clerks had gone each to his own place; old Safford, the poor relation, the man of all work, who attended faithfully to everything, groaning often and praying oftener over the careless habits of "the boys," as he called the two young men, his employers, had sought his comfortless bachelor attic, where he slept always with one ear open, listening for any burglarious sound which might come from the store below, and which, had it come to him listening thus, would have frightened him half to death. George Douglas, too, the senior partner of the firm, had retired to his own room, which was far more elegantly furnished than that of the old man in the attic, and now in a velvet easy chair he sat reading the letter from Hillsdale, which had arrived that evening, and a portion of which we subjoin for the reader's benefit.

After giving an account of his accident, and the manner in which it occurred, Warner continued:

"They say 'tis a mighty bad wind which blows no one any good, and so, though I verily believe I suffer all a man can suffer with a broken bone, yet, when I look at the fair face of Maggie Miller, I feel that I would not exchange this high old bed, to enter which needs a short ladder, even for a seat by you on that three-legged stool behind the old writing-desk. I never saw anything like her in my life. Everything she thinks, she says, and as to flattering her, it can't be done. I've told her a dozen times at least that she was beautiful and she didn't mind it any more than Rose does when I flatter her. Still, I fancy if I were to talk to her of love, it might make a difference, and perhaps I shall ere I leave the place.

"You know, George, I have always insisted there was but one female in the world fit to be my wife, and as that one was my sister, I should probably never have the pleasure of paying any bills for Mrs. Henry Warner; but I've half changed my mind, and I'm terribly afraid this Maggie Miller, not content with breaking my bones, has made sad work with another portion of the body, called by physiologists, the heart, I don't know how a man feels when he is in love, but when this Maggie Miller looks me straight in the face with her sunshiny eyes, while her little soft white hand pushes back my hair (which, by the way, I slyly disarrange on purpose), I feel the blood tingle to the ends of my toes, and still I dare not hint such a thing to her. 'Twould frighten her off in a moment, and she'd send in her place either an old hag of a woman, called Hagar, or her proud sister, Theo, whom I cannot endure.

"By the way, George, this Theo will just suit you, who are fond of aristocracy. She's proud as Lucifer, thinks because she was born in England, and sprung from a high family, that there is no one in America worthy of her ladyship's notice, unless, indeed, he chances to have money. You ought to have seen how her eyes lighted up when I told her you were said to be worth two hundred thousand dollars. She told me directly to invite you out here, and this, I assure you, was a good deal for her to do. So don your best attire, not forgetting the diamond cross, and come for a day or two. Old Safford will attend to the store. It's what he was made for, and he likes it. But, as I am a Warner, so shall I do my duty, and warn you not to meddle with Maggie. She is my own exclusive property, and altogether too good for a worldly fellow like you. Theo will suit you better. She's just aristocratic enough in her nature. I don't see how the two girls come to be so wholly unlike as they are. Why, I'd sooner take Maggie for Rose's sister, than for Theo's.

"Bless me, I had almost forgotten to ask if you remembered that stiff old English woman, with the snuff-colored satin, who came to our store some five years ago, and found so much fault with Yankee goods, as she called them? If you have forgotten her, you surely remember the two girls in flats, one of whom seemed so much distressed at her grandmother's remarks. She, the distressed one, was Maggie; the other was Theo, and the old lady was Madam Conway, who, luckily for me, chances at this time to be in England, buying up goods, I presume. Maggie says that this trip to Worcester, together with a sleigh-ride she had on the Hillsdale woods last year, is the extent of her travels, and one would think so to see her. A perfect child of nature, full of fun, beautiful as a Hebe and possessing the kindest heart in the world. If you wish to know more of her, come and see for yourself, but again I warn you, hands off, nobody is to flirt with her but myself, and it is very doubtful whether even I can do it peaceably, for that old Hagar, who by the way, is a curious specimen, gave me to understand when I lay on the rock, with her sitting by as a sort of ogress, that so long as she lived no city chap with strapped pants (do, pray, bring me a pair, George, without straps!) and sneering mouth was going to fool with Margaret Miller.

"So, you see, my mouth is at fault again. Hang it all, I can't imagine what ails it that everybody should think I'm making fun of them. Even old Safford mutters about my making mouths at him when I haven't thought of him in a month! Present my compliments to the old gentleman, and tell him one of 'the boys' thinks seriously of following his advice, which you know is 'to sow our wild oats and get a wife.' Do pray come, for I am only half myself without you.

"Yours in the brotherhood,
"HENRY WARNER."

STRONG REASONS WHY THE BY-LAW SHOULD PASS ON THURSDAY.

To the Editor of The Times.

Sir,—In the correspondence which has already appeared in your columns, the facts regarding the urgent need for the erection of an up-to-date Collegiate Institute building have been fully stated, but as the day for taking the vote on the bylaw is close at hand it will not be out of place again to draw attention to the most important of them.

1. The present building is not at all durable, and has been repeatedly reported against by the High School Inspectors. It is Public School property, for which the town pays an annual rental of ($1100) eleven hundred dollars.

2. The Menzie building, for which the School Board pays about (500) five hundred dollars per annum in rent and taxes, will not be available for school purposes when the present lease expires, and even with it many of the school rooms are over crowded. If the Collegiate Institute vacated its present premises eight or nine rooms would be added to the present Public school accomodation, which would be sufficient for some time to come.

3. The sixteen hundred dollars now paid in rent and taxes would pay interest and provide a sinking fund for the payment of a large fraction of the fifty thousand dollars which it is proposed to raise for the erection of a new Collegiate Institute building.

4. The average assessment of the property holders of the town is about fourteen hundred dollars, and the taxes on this assessment for Collegiate Institute purposes will be about 77 cents at our present rate of 18 1-2 mills, and many of our property holders would not be taxed over 35 or 40 cents per annum to provide the money which it is proposed to expend.

5. Large and small tax payers alike enjoy the educational advantages which a Collegiate Institute provides, and to a very large extent the rich pay for the education of the poor. This is surely a reason why every small property holder should support the bylaw. Just the other day a man of very moderate means said to one of his friends "that if it had not been for the Peterborough Collegiate Institute his boy would never have occupied the position which he holds today." This is only one father among many of small means who could truthfully say the same thing.

6. We have the finest commercial town in the Province, and we are all proud of its progressive, mercantile spirit, but we are behind many of the much smaller and poorer business towns around us in educational buildings and equipment. Is it not high time we should make an effort to be ranked first class in this respect also? Nothing makes a town more attractive to energetic business men as a place in which to settle than first class educational advantages. We have many good business men, but we have room for more. Let us provide them with a Collegiate Institute which will be a strong inducement for them to select Peterborough as a field of labor.

For the above reasons it is our duty to heartily support the Collegiate Institute Bylaw to be submitted on May 5th.

Yours etc.,
ANOTHER CITIZEN.

LAYING DOWN NEW TRACKS.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company will lay a new track on its line between Toronto and Smith's Falls this summer, at an estimated outlay of $50,000. The new rails will weigh eighty pounds instead of seventy-two pounds of the ones at present in use, which were laid in 1890.

The company is also strengthening its bridges on the Toronto-Owen Sound branch to enable the big Mogul engines to haul grain on this line to the city. The grain traffic from the West has been so heavy of late as to make the company handle part of the crop via Owen Sound to Toronto.

The addition track of the C.P.R., which is building between Parkdale and Toronto Junction, will be finished in about a month.

The Augusta Metal Mining Co.

Capitalized at $2,000,000.00.
Par value $1.00. Full Paid and Non-Assessable

At 75 Cents per Share

This company now owns the well-known Augusta mine and its extension for over 1000 feet in addition to other claims approximating a total acreage of 200 acres. This property has produced over $250,000 in gold, silver and lead ores and is a producer to-day. Has shipped ores of an average net value of $40 per ton for first class and $18 per ton for second class, all the past summer and the summer before smelter and mill returns of which are on file in our office.

Has immense bodies of these grades of ore, which cannot be exhausted in five years, already opened up and its main working tunnel is nearing completion, cutting the apex of the vein at a depth of 1,600 feet.

This block of shares is offered to enable the Company to connect the above tunnel with its concentrating mill and projected terminus of railroad by tramway, a distance of 11,120 feet, thereby permitting shipments during the entire year.

A production of at least 125 tons daily will be maintained when these improvements are made, and if completed in the early summer, dividends can be paid from ore settlements before this fall.

We offer for a limited time only a SPECIAL BLOCK OF 50,000 SHARES OF THE TREASURY STOCK of these Companies.

We reserve the right to reject subscriptions over and above the 50,000 shares offered. Each subscription to be booked as received.

Investigate to your heart's content, and quickly, then let us hear from you.

The Black Queen Gold Mining Co.

1,500,000 Shares. Par value $1.00. Full Paid and Non-Assessable.

Selling at 7½c a share

Like its sister Company is today giving the best value for the money of any share offered.

This Company owns and controls over 300 acres of good mineral-producing ground, including the well-known Excelsior and Yankee Blade, which have produced upward of $175,000.

Tunnel B of the Black Queen Company is now going in at a rate of 176 feet per month, and early spring will see this work vieing with Tunnel A of the Augusta Company in its record of production.

Will cut known proven ore bodies 1100 feet from Apex, and open sufficient stoping ground to make an output of 100 tons daily.

Has already cut through a cross vein two feet in width of good marketable galena ore, the point of intersection being 400 feet beneath the surface. We have 900 feet of this vein in length.

We can show you these facts and ask that you ask us to do so.

If your investment becomes profitable you will tell others; therefore it is much to our interest to have you make money on your investment.

The Monarch Consolidated Gold & Copper Mining and Smelting Company of BOULDER, COLORADO

Solicits the co-operation of responsible men in providing means for the thorough and rapid development of two large gold and copper mining claims, which are assumed to possess intrinsic value, and to this end extends every opportunity for determination as to whether statements made by the company are true or false.

The proposition when developed will pay no less than 50 per cent. per annum on the investment, and it behooves anyone who wishes to better his financial condition, to give immediate attention to this.

Full particulars in every detail will be given to all to whom such a proposition may appeal, but please do not ask for them unless you really are interested, because you waste your own time and ours also.

Capital $1,000,000, 500,000 Shares in Treasury

Property includes two great mining claims—one gold, the other copper—both containing wide, deep, proven veins of high and low grade ore.

Development work has been systematically carried on, with results that more than justify every claim made by the company, and unquestionably proves the destiny of the property to equal that of the greatest successful mining companies of the world.

Above Statement Can be Easily Verified

The following two facts alone will give anyone familiar with mining a rough idea of the great value of the property.

The Copper King Group contains one vein 30 feet wide, 6 feet of which bruns from $10 to $100 per ton, and the Company owns 9,000 feet on the vein.

Ore running from $18 to $30 per ton is continually being shipped from the gold property, and 24 samples, taken from widely different portions of the vein system averaged $26.25 per ton.

FACILITIES—The Company owns 1,720 acres of placer and timber land, water power of 80 (minimum) horse power. No expensive shaft work necessary. Ore easily treated on Company's property, thus saving freight and smelter charges.

DIVIDENDS—To begin earning and paying large dividends it is only necessary to erect two 50 ton mills, one on each property. To obtain funds for this purpose a limited amount of stock is offered at

RUSSIANS LOST VERY HEAVILY

London May 3rd.—Latest reports of the big land battle between the Japs and Russians, Gen. Kouropat reports, under date of May 1st, notwithstanding strong resistance the Imperial Guards and 1st and 12th divisions advanced on three roads, driving the enemy out at 8 p.m. captured the guns from Antung and Liendshukon and the Imperial Guards surrounded the enemy on three sides and after severe fighting captured twenty guns with horses and carriages.

And over twenty officers and many soldiers. The enemy fled toward Lengchoung. Our casualties were almost 700. We captured twenty-eight quick-firing guns, large quantities of ammunition and rifles. Our heavy fighting guns proved very effective. Russian officers taken prisoners say the Russian commanders of both army corps and division were wounded, and their casualties exceeded 800.

From the official Japanese reports which are to hand, it now becomes possible to follow the operations on the lower Yalu. From these it appears that the centre of General Kuroki's force occupied Wiju while the flanks extended for several miles north and south of that town. The Russian troops were posted above the Village of Changchengkou overlooking Wiju and on the heights situated on the right banks of the Yalu River, which enters the Yalu from the north nearly opposite Wiju.

Fighting commenced on Tuesday with an artillery duel which was prolonged over the remainder of the week and which resulted in the silencing of the Russian batteries. While the Japanese artillery were gaining the mastery their infantry seized the islands of Chikuli and Kinteito a few miles south of Wiju and prepared to throw a pontoon bridge across the Yalu near that town. At the same time a strong Japanese force concentrated at Saikokchin, where a crossing was also intended to be made.

All being in readiness the passage of the river was begun on Saturday at both points and successfully accomplished. As the Japanese right wing outflanked the Russian left the latter was placed in a very disadvantageous position, necessitating a change of front. On Sunday a general advance was ordered by the Japanese commander, in the course of which his troops forced the line river driving the Russian defenders out of Chiuliencheng and from the heights with the loss of twenty-eight quick-firing guns, twenty officers and many non-commissioned officers and men.

There is no greater test of the skill of a commander and the quality of troops than the crossing of a river in the face of an enemy well posted and strong in artillery. That test the Japanese general and army have brilliantly stood. The history of the operations demonstrates how thoroughly the Japanese have grasped the rules of modern fire tactics. No advance was made until the ground had been thoroughly searched by a commanding artillery fire, and when the offensive movement was begun it was carried out with surprising swiftness and efficiency. That the Russian reverse approached a rout is sufficiently evident from the number of quick-firing guns captured by the assailants, amounting to two-thirds of the Russian armament in that line. The defeated troops apparently retreated northwest in the direction of Fenghoangcheng on the Liaoyang road.

While these operations were in progress a smaller Japanese force, aided by gun boats from the fleet, drove the Russians out of Antung on the right bank of the Yalu and as a result of the whole combined movement the Japs are now securely across the river and in a position to menace Newchwang and the line of the Manchurian Railway. This will in all probability be their next objective.

HAMILTON AND THE CANAL

THE AMBITIOUS CITY PREFERS THE PORT HOPE ROUTE

The Great Waterway Is No Longer Regarded as a Fake, But a Reality

For a quarter of a century or so the Trent Valley canal has been tossed upon as a huge political joke, says the Hamilton Spectator. When a government was about to go to the country the Trent Valley canal appeared in the estimates, set down for a small sum of money; but in the intervals between elections the canal was not heard of outside its immediate neighborhood. Now, however, principally owing to the active endeavors of the Port Hope Canal association, the long-neglected canal is coming to the notice of the people as a real, live, sensible, useful canal that only wants a fair show to enable it to be of vast benefit to the region it runs through, and to Ontario generally.

And now that there is some chance that something may be done toward the completion of the canal, the ancient squabble between Port Hope and Trenton, on the honor and profit of having the south end of the canal, has broken out again, and virulently. A very brief glance at the map will show any man having sense that Port Hope is, geographically speaking, the proper place for the outlet. It is the most convenient place, particularly for Hamilton and other points on the western half of the lake, while it is just as convenient—to say the least—for the eastern ports as Trenton would be. To fix the outlet at Port Hope would put Peterborough, Orillia, Lindsay, and all that country 85 miles nearer Hamilton than by way of Trenton.

The Port Hope Canal association is making a strong campaign in favor of its town, and is able to point out many other advantages besides the geographical position of Port Hope which ought to count in favor of that town. There is the cost of construction which, to Port Hope, would be very much less than to Trenton, nearly 40 miles farther; and there is the fact that there exists a natural ravine leading to Port Hope which would very materially cheapen the construction of the shorter route.

HAUNTED ENGINES?

Niagara Falls, May 2—Much has been written of the strange superstitions and beliefs of railway men—particularly engineers—and recent occurrences in this section strikingly illustrate the truth of these stories. Engineers on some lines are constantly relating and discussing the strange doings reported from the roundhouse of the Toronto, Hamilton & Buffalo Railway at Welland Station. George and Alexander Harper two roundhouse employes, are the narrators of hair-raising stories of what they have seen in the building of late. According to them, the apparition usually takes the form of a man sitting on the cow-catcher of a locomotive standing in his stall in the roundhouse. George Harper says that on several occasions he has distinctly seen men sitting on the pilots, but when he approached them or looked at them closely they faded away. A few nights ago Alex. Harper was cleaning an engine, and, looking towards the front of it, saw a man sailed on the cross beam. He thought first it was another employe, but when he looked again the form disappeared without apparent movement. There is a story of a farmer who lives along the line having seen men riding on the pilots of engines on several occasions. The engines in question have been reported as having run down and killed several men in their time. In a more superstitious land these reports would cause an immense sensation, but here they are the subject of grave discussion among the other knights of the rail.

PRIMARY ROOMS CROWDED.

Inspector Duncan Walker reported as follows:

Gentlemen,—In submitting herewith the report on the attendance at the Public Schools for the month of April, I beg leave to call your attention to the crowded state of our primary rooms. The attendance there is larger than at any time during the past six years, the enrollment being as follows, Central School, 61; South Ward School, 71; East Ward School, 75; North Ward School, 63; West Ward School, 63, and George Street School, 42, making a total of 375, or an average for each of the six rooms of 62.

The two largest classes are those of the South and East Ward Schools, and for these some relief is urgent. As it is now too late in the term to make any distribution of the pupils among the other teachers, I would suggest that the lowest division in each of these two rooms be divided until midsummer into two classes, one to attend the morning, the other the afternoon sessions of school.

This will afford temporary relief, and will be no serious detriment to the progress of the pupils, the loss in time per day being less than half an hour.

These pupils are at present dismissed at noon and attending on afternoon recess, and so are at school about three hours per day. Under the proposed arrangement the time will be about two and one-half hours.

On motion of Trustee Hill, seconded by Trustee Pringle, the suggestions of the Inspector will be acted on at once.

HIGH SCHOOL INSPECTOR'S REPORT.

The report of the High School Inspector Hodgson, embodied the suggestion that the provision of an electric lantern would be of great assistance in connection with the teaching of Light History, Geography, botany and Literature in the Collegiate Institute. These lanterns are in use in nearly all Collegiate Institutes situated in towns where a day current is available. He reported good provision for all the prescribed courses of study that are taken up. All members of the teaching staff are legally qualified, the discipline is good, all the pupils have been regularly admitted, the text books are in accord with the regulations, the daily and general registers are properly kept and excellent provision is made for English Literature in Forms I. and II, and Supplementary Literature in in Forms III. and IV.

In grading the character of the teaching as I. good, II. fair, III. poor and IV. bad, the report reads thus: English and History I. and III.; Classicks I.; Drawing, not inspected; Mathematics I. and III.; French and German I.; Reading I; Science I; Commercial I.; Drill, Calisthenics and Gymnasium I.

As to the standing of the pupils in reading the report showed that of the last admitted pupils five were good, twelve fair, five poor and four bad of the thirty-two examined, and of other pupils, ten were good, eight fair and two poor of the twenty examined. The bookkeeping sets, the work in Drawing, the Drill, calisthenics and gymnastics were good.

In conclusion the report stated that the Institute continued admirably organized and administered. On the occasion of his visit tentative plans for a new building on a convenient site in close proximity to the proposed armories, which will be available for physical training purposes, were submitted him. A building erected according to those plans, with a few modifications, will, he reported, bring Peterborough abreast of other important towns in Ontario.

REPAIRS TO SCHOOLS.

Chairman Eastwood submitted the report of the Property Committee recommending considerable repairs to the several school buildings and grounds.

The report concluded that the North Ward building is in fair condition in general, and is kept in the most orderly condition of any of the schools. The cost of these repairs will be considerably above the amount proportioned for this purpose, but cannot be helped, as our properties are absolutely too far below a good standard of maintenance until that standard is improved.

The report was adopted as read

FINANCE REPORT.

Trustee Fair submitted the Finance Committee's report, recommending payment of a number of accounts, which was adopted as read.

THE NEW INSTITUTE.

Trustee Pringle submitted the draft of a circular letter to the ratepayers setting forth the reasons for asking their support of the by-law to authorize an expenditure of $50,000 on a new Collegiate Institute and site.

Mr. Pringle suggested that as a large number of people are not aware of the exact state of affairs, it is the Board's duty to enlighten them on the subject. Amongst other reasons for a new building is a deplorable lack of requirements for present day needs, and the Institute has been reported inadequate by the Provincial Inspector, in consequence of which the grant has been lower than it would otherwise have been. No site has yet been decided upon, as that is a matter depending upon the passage of the by-law. He suggested that this circular be referred to a committee for printing and distributing.

Trustees Pringle, H. P. Kennedy and Hill were appointed a committee to revise the above circular, and have 3,000 copies printed and thoroughly distributed from house to house.

The Board then adjourned.

A BUSINESS MAN'S LETTER.

Wm. Thomson, Esq., of Orillia, Vice-President Standard Chemical Company of Toronto, Tells of a Visit to the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives.

GREATLY IMPRESSED WITH WORK BEING DONE.

Personally Raises Several Hundred Dollars to Help Lessen the Load of Debt.

There can be little doubt that the National Sanitarium Association is handicapped in its great work for Consumptives in the fact that its two institutions in Muskoka are far away from any large centre of population. Few people have an opportunity to see for themselves the magnificent work that is being done.

These hospitals are away from the public eye. Any, however, who do visit them, are united in their commendation of the splendid appointments of the place, and, best of all, of the real joy and hope that is being brought to many suffering ones.

We are glad to have the opportunity of publishing the following letter from Mr. Wm. Thomson, of Orillia, one of Canada's best known lumbermen, which tells what he has seen himself. It reads:

ORILLIA, Ont., November 2, 1903.

W. J. Gage, Esq.,
Chairman Executive Committee
National Sanitarium Association,
Toronto, Ont.

My Dear Mr. Gage,—

I have much pleasure in enclosing herewith cheque for One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) from the Tudhope Carriage Company of Orillia, a donation to the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. Please acknowledge this to the Tudhope Carriage Company in the usual way.

I have written to a number of my friends, to try and get them interested in this good work. I hope to be able to send you further donations. I have written my friends a personal letter, something similar to the following:

"Last week I paid a visit to the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. I met some of the management there, and promised to try and interest some of my friends in this work.

"I might say there were 49 patients there last week, all poor people, most of them without a dollar in the world, and suffering from the dreadful disease, Consumption. There are many sad stories, and I know I have thought a great deal about the work of the institution ever since my visit there. I do believe it is worthy of assistance, and we who have health and the necessaries of life should encourage this work along.

"I understand the expenses lately have been double the income, and unless the management meet with more encouragement, I am afraid the work will have to be curtailed. I know you have many calls, but I do wish you would give this matter a thought, and, if possible, assist. I have written to two or three confidentially, and hope to be able to collect some more for this work. Should you not feel like contributing a donation, remember this request, and your reply is just between you and me, and strictly confidential.

"I might mention, to show that I have confidence in the work, I have already given a donation of $100.00 and two row boats to the Free Hospital this year, and intend to give another $100.00 before the end of the year."

Sincerely yours,

Wm Thomson

Sir Wm. R. Meredith, Kt., or Mr. W. J. Gage, Toronto, will receive and acknowledge any contributions made.

The attention of all mining men is attracted to Tonapah and vicinity. The great finds which have been discovered in Lone Mountain, only a few miles distant, are to the investor still more attractive. Here we have value from the start. The Tonapah Crown Mining Company's ledges are plainly in sight for a distance of over 3000 feet.

We are bounded by such properties as the "Tamblyn," which ore assays from $950 to $1500 to the ton; Lynch & Omsara's "Alpine," which is producing $30,000 per month; the "Lone Star" group and the "Princess Maud."

You Should Invest With Us

BECAUSE—The majority of the stock is in the treasury, 856,000 shares.

BECAUSE—The Company is managed by successful business men. They are Cyrus Wheeler, W. H. Routz, F. F. Heard, F. A. King and C. A. Messing, all of Los Angeles.

BECAUSE—No preferred stock; therefore every one is on an equal footing.

BECAUSE—We are selling our stock at a low rate now so we can put a large force of men to work and make shipments of ore just as soon as the railroad; now building, shall have been completed.

A Crosscut Driven 117 feet to the First Big Vein

A drift run on the vein 178 FEET IN ORE, the Gold value or contents running from 2 to 8 ounces, per ton, or from $40 to $160. This ore has not been stoped and will not be until main shoot is reached.

The breast of the drift is, only 52 feet, according to engineer's survey, from the first BIG vertical ore shoot, which, at the surface, 550 feet above, shows values of 2 to 7 ounces gold, per ton.

Slabs and feeders of gold ore are coming in freely in the drift.

This is a business proposition. It is the KIND AND QUALITY which makes for great and permanent success. It is worth an investment of 10c. on the dollar, per share, now. It will be worth par with development.

Lung, Throut and Catarrhal Troubles

A MARVELLOUS DISCOVERY THAT HAS DELIGHTED ALL CANADA BY ITS PROMPT CURES

The method that has proved successful through its enormous advantages of being pleasant and free from the danger of creating the drug habit employs dry air as the carrying agent.

By this method every part of the breathing apparatus is bathed by a medicated air. Germs which excite the trouble are immediately destroyed. Sore and tender spots are healed and the congested surfaces restored to normal condition.

This method of treatment is known as Catarrhosone, and has obtained a footing never attained by any other remedy for the many diseases affecting the respiratory tract.

Catarrhosone is fragrant, healing, balsamic, pleasant as the air of the pine woods and more active as a healing agent than anything hitherto discovered. It contains neither cocaine nor any of those irritating substances which really increase the congestion and add to the difficulty, instead of curing as Catarrhosone so quickly does.

MRS. BINY BROWN, of Tenecape, N.S., had lung trouble and catarrh. She took cough mixtures but they made her sick. Then she used an atomizer, but after resorting without benefit to poultices and numerous other remedies, she tried Catarrhosone. "I used Catarrhosone Inhaler," she writes, "five minutes every hour, and soon recognized it was going to cure. I could feel the soothing medicated air spreading through the air passages of the throat, and it touched the sore spots in the lungs that other remedies failed to reach. Catarrhosone seemed to go just where it was needed most, and soon put a stop to my cough. It restored me to perfect health, and I am convinced that no cough, cold or catarrh can exist where Catarrhosone is used."

The complete Catarrhosone outfit contains a large bottle of inhalent, sufficient to keep recharging the inhaler for two months. It costs $1.00 and is guaranteed to cure; sample size 25c. Sold by all druggists or sent direct to your home by mail if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., or Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

THE INSTITUTE QUESTION

To the Editor of the Times:

Sir,—The Trustees decided at their meeting on Monday evening that the "primary classes" were crowded. Are they proposing to increase the primary accommodation? We have heard nothing of that. The cross seems to be for a magnificent new institute at all costs. The public schools and their pupils are being sacrificed for a fad. It is a bad thing to have too good an idea at any time.

THE TOWN'S FINANCES

In view of Mr. Moore's recent attack upon the credit of the Town, made with the object of deterring the timid from voting in favor of the Sugar Company Bylaw, it is well to look at the true state of the Town's position, when it will be found that Mr. Moore's presentation of his case was both erroneous and misleading.

As stated in the Bylaw the total Debenture debt inclusive of waterworks debentures and exclusive of local improvement debentures, amounts to..... ....$558 040.07

The waterworks debentures Amount to..... .... 242,000.00

Leaving the general indebtedness... ... ...$316,040.07

To this, however, it is fair to add the proportion payable by the town generally on local improvement debentures namely 39,940.07

Making total of..... ....$355,980.14

The waterworks debentures are specially charged upon the works themselves and the balance of the local improvement debentures is specially charged upon the properties affected.

Mr. Moore admitted to tell his hearers that the Town has some assets to apply against the above liability of..... ....$355,980.14

They are as follows:

"Immediately available"

Sinking fund.....$	48,900.39
Midland Railway mortgage	32,000.00
Cash in hand and in Bank...	10,873.16
Rents due.....	2,220.24	94,008.79
Reducing the debt to... .....$261,976.35

But there are other assets of a marketable nature namely.

Market Square & Buildings... .....$130,000.00
Town Offices	6,000.00
Fire Hall and Stables...	3,000.00
Fire Engine and Hose Wagons ...	4,000.00
Interest in County Buildings ...	9,750.00
Land in Wards 1 and 3...	3,472.00
Steam Roller, Crusher & Engine...	3,764.00
	159,986.00
Leaving only... ... ...$101 990.35

Against which the town has all its school properties, valued at $82,516. Now, Mr. Moore knows that all these assets would have to be realised ob before the ratepayers generally could be called upon to pay a cent. The figures here given are taken from the Auditors' report. We are, after all not in quite such a state of 'blue ruin' as the learned gentleman depicted in lugubrious terms and with visage as if he were about to weep. There is no town in Canada having such a splendid financial position. But, says Mr. Moore, think what we have to provide in the near and distant, especially distant, future! Waterworks dam for example. Truly the expenditure of $50,000, upon that would be fearfully burdensome; the revenue from waterworks is so wretched that the Commissioners have been able to do no more than reduce rates 25 per cent., provide all interest and sinking fund for the debentures, pay all expenses and contribute some thousands of dollars to the general revenue of the town! Yet this bug-a-boo of a new dam is put forward as a terrible burden. We may thank Heaven there are not many such pessimists as Mr. Moore in Peterborough. Our people have confidence in the present and hope in the future; they are not to be frightened by an imaginative picture of what the future may produce.

The March Out

The first march out of the season of the 57th Regiment took place last night. Both bands furnished music and the regiment looked well. The companies are still in need of recruits, in order to have its full strength enrolled. A large number of civilians lined the streets during the parade.

The Farmers' Picnic

Commodore Calcutt, with his accustomed enterprise, has fixed the date of the big farmers picnic to Jubilee Point, which will take place on Thursday, June 16th. The entire fleet of steamers on the lower waters will run excursions from all points between Hersley's Falls, on the River Trent, to Peterborough, the City of Peterborough, of course, taking this end rouge. Commodore Calcutt intends that this year's event will eclipse any previous record.

IS MR. GORDON A MYTH?

To the Editor of the Times:

Dear Sir,—While in town yesterday I overheard a couple of men expressing doubt as to whether there was such a man as Mr. D. A. Gordon. Why don't they ask some of the Bank Managers of Peterborough? Mr. Gordon is one of the best known business men in Western Ontario. In Wallaceburg, Ontario, he has built up three of the largest factories of their kind in Canada, the Sugar Factory, the Sydenham Glass Works, employing 150 hands, and the Cooperage Factory, which supplies one million barrels alone to the sugar refiners of Montreal. Besides these great establishments Mr. Gordon is an important member of two gigantic lumber companies. How so busy a man became interested in Peterborough I do not know but his interest, if made to several other towns in Ontario would be quickly accepted. He has never been known to fail in any business enterprise and a man of his exceptionable ability is a very valuable asset in any community. Mr. Gordon is also the Liberal candidate for West East for the Dominion Commons, and a safe winner in the next campaign.

THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

There is every reason to expect that the Trent Valley Canal will be lined with great flour mills—we have already made a good start at Peterborough and Lindsay—and thus become a second "Minneapolis" district—by reason of the cheap water power and the short route water way to the North-West. If we would be consistent in our "Made-in-Canada" companys, we would not export our greatest product as raw material.

The great lumber regions on the shore of the Georgian Bay can be tapped by the Trent Valley barges. I would look to see also the canal district becoming an iron centre through Lake Superior ore being brought into close touch by the opening of the canal—as by reason of the shorter distance the upper lake steamers could make three trips to the canal port in the same time as would be consumed for only two trips to Buffalo. In fact, the Welland route between the Soo and Montreal will be a day longer, or two days in the return trip, than the Trent Valley route. The Trent route between the Soo and Liverpool is shorter altogether by 730 miles, or nearly 1,500 in the return trip, than by the Erie route.

At Peterborough the hydraulic lift-lock is now completed, while a second one, a lower lift, which is located near Lake Simcoe, is well on to completion. Nature has indeed repeated itself five times in different locations on this waterway, adapting herself for the use of great hydraulic lift-locks—which together will save about six hours over the ordinary system of locking as used on the Welland and Erie canals. The Peterborough hydraulic lift-lock will lift these 25,000 bushel barges from the lower level of the canal 65 feet up to the higher level, or vice versa, by means of two immense steel pontoons. These pontoons are closed at their ends by gates, hung on the lower edges, and gates being also used to close the ends of the reaches of the canal on the upper and lower levels. These pontoons, guided between three massive concrete towers, are each supported on top of the steel pistons 7 1-2 feet in diameter, which work in watertight steel wells one under each piston. Each pontoon is simultaneously up and down.

The canal, on the level above the Peterborough lift-lock, starts at Nassau, where it is diverted from the river Otonabee, and is carried along the high table and parallel with the river for four miles, and is lowered by means of the lift-lock into the river below, at Peterborough.

This hydraulic lift-lock simply copies the method adopted in the modern European canal, and its use was recommended by Frank Turner, C.E., who was one of the Canadian Government Commission of 1897 associated with John Kennedy, C.E. harbor engineer of Montreal, and Judge Walker, of Peterborough. This Commission it is well to add, reported favorably on the Trent Valley Canal both as to its water supply, feasibility and utility, and advised its completion.

A number of hydraulic lift-locks have been in successful use in Europe for some years. The lock at Les Fontinettes in France, was constructed in 1888, and replaced six ordinary connecting locks, thus reducing the time as well as operating charges. The German lock lifts a 1,000 ton barge, while the Peterborough lifts an 800 ton barge. There is also a double lift-lock at La Louviere, and also a lift at Anderton, in the west of England.

Detailed figures as to the probable cost of carriage by Trent Valley steam barge with several tow-barges in consort between Midland and Montreal were submitted to the Royal Commission on Transportation at their recent sitting at Peterborough by practical marine men, which well bear out my previously repeated contentions that grain could be shipped via Trent Valley in so much shorter time and at a cheaper rate than via the New Enlarged Erie route, notwithstanding that the Enlarged Erie locks will accomodate two barges in tandem. Here it must not be forgotten that the Trent Valley expenditure will only total $9,000,000 as against a total of $103,000,000 which as the cost of the Erie and Lake Canal together with the proposed enlargement. The Trent Valley locks can also be duplicated at a small comparative cost, thus further shortening the line of a fleet of barges and cheapening the rate over the enlarged Erie, as also enlarging the total tonnage at the canal.

Surely anyone should see at a glance the superiority of the Trent Valley route over the enlarged Erie, when it is noted that there will be 257 miles of actual standard canalage and 233 miles of river and lake on the new Erie between Buffalo and New York while there will be only 13 miles actual standard canalage on the Trent Valley and 45 miles on the St. Lawrence canals, or a total of 58 miles of canalage and 411 miles of river and lake between Midland and Montreal.

The late Mr. E. Sweet, C.E., State Egnineer of New York has shown by experiments that the same power that will propel a barge 4 miles per hour in Erie standard canalage will drive a barge 5.9 miles per hour in open water. This feature alone will cause a great saving both in time and in coal consumption on the Trent Valley over the Enlarged Erie.

Certain marine men are clamboring the government to enlarge the Welland Canal, to enable 6,000 ton boats to pass on to Kingston, making necessary a 21 foot scheme), and doubling the length of locks — the the idea being to discharge at Kingston into 2,000 ton barges, the cost of which I am well assured would be some $33,000,000. This request was made just after $40,000,000 had been spent on enlarging the whole Welland-St. Lawrence route from 9 to 14 14 feet. I advocate, first, the spending of the five millions necessary to complete the outlets of the Trent Valley Canal, and would point out the fact that marine experts writing in American journals have stated that the only Canadian route they feared was the barge route through the Trent Valley, which, as they express it, was simply a connecting of lakes and rivers. "The grain hopper is full, but the mouth is small." Canadians must awake to the fact that in the Trent Valley Canal this country has been entertaining an angel unawares.

THE JAPANESE DEAD PILED IN HEAPS

Russians Abmit Losses of 1,200 Men and 30 Guns but Claim a Victory

Rather Than Defeat Considering the Fearful Odds.

They Assert That the Japanese Lost Twice as Many Men

St. Petersburg, May 5.—The gloom which prevailed here yesterday was almost completely dissipated this morning when the people read the story of the glorious fight made by Gen. Zassalitch's handful of rough regiments against the flower of the Mikado's legions at the Yalu and of the utter defeat of Vice-Admiral Togo's new attempt to seal the entrance to Port Arthur.

It is now plain that not more than 6,000 Russians were actually engaged in the fighting at the Yalu against the Japanese army of a total strength of between 30,000 and 40,000. The losses on both sides, which are expected to reach 1,000, and possibly 1,200 in the Russian force, and twice that number for the Japanese, make it one of the bloodiest fights in history.

A DEFEAT OR A VICTORY.

At the river crossing the Japanese dead lied piled up literally in heaps, and Gen. Kuroki's success was purchased at such a heavy cost that the Russians are disposed to regard it as rather a defeat than a victory for him.

Gen. Kouropatkin's despatch shows that the Russians fought with much bulldog tenacity and bravery against the overwhelming superiority of the enemy, that the latter's nominal victory was eclipsed by the prowess of the Czar's soldiers.

ZASSALITCH IS ACCLAIMED.

Gen. Kouropatkin's report also served to restore General Zassalitch to public favor. Those who were disposed to criticise him even at the headquarters of the general staff, where it is considered that he made a tactical blunder, now say that he redeemed himself by his gallantry in action, and the damage he inflicted upon the enemy.

THE HEROES OF THE ELEVENTH.

About bulletin boards the people are especially impressed with the desperate bayonet charge of the 11th Regiment. The mental picture of the regiment advancing against the enemy with bands and bugles blaring, and the priest with cross aloft at the head, appealed to the dramatic sense of the Russian population as nothing else could. The survivors of this heroic regiment, which cut its way out, declared that the position was surrounded by more than a thousand Japanese dead.

THRITY GUNS WERE LOST.

The loss of the guns, which, according to the best information available consisted of 22 field pieces, and 8 machine guns, is considered particularly unfortunate, even though they will be of no service to the enemy on account of the removal of their breech locks but members of the general staff say that the exigence of war often times many instances where guns have been sacrificed to allow infantry to retreat in good order.

The official reports were issued too late for comment in this morning's papers.

KOUROPATKIN'S REPORT.

The Emperor has received the following telegram from Gen. Kouropatkin:

"Gen. Zassalitch's report, dated today (May 3) on the fight of May 1 says that the battle was fought under the following circumstances:

"The 12th and 22nd Regiments, and the second and third batteries of the Sixth Brigade of Artillery, were engaged in the battle, which began with heavy cannonading on our right flank by siege guns at Wiju and field batteries in the distance.

"After a lull the fighting was resumed with extraordinary violence against the left flank of our main position at Turen-Cheng, and our position at Potietinsky. A fusilade was also begun by small parties of Japanese across the Iho River.

"The situation of the defender's position became increasingly difficult especially at Potietinsky, which was bombarded on the front and both flanks.

"Thirty Japanese guns were pitted against our battery at Potietinsky which, after having silenced the enemy's mountain battery, directed its fire on the Japanese infantry, and maintained few losses so long as it was not obliged to take up another position, owing to the withdrawal of our infantry from the bank.

CLOSE FIGHTING WITH BAYONETS.

"The Japanese under our fire made continued bayonet attacks on our troops.

"Japanese bodies lay in heaps at the river fords.

"Simultaneously with this attack at Potietinsky an attack was being made on our left flank at Turen-Cheng, and the Russian trenches had to be abandoned owing to the Japanese enfilading fire. Our reserves several times mingled with the fight time, thus enabling it for a long time to maintain its position.

A CHINESE RISING NOW SAID TO BE IMMINENT

Her Neutrality Tottering Owing to the Vexatious Attitude of the Russians Towards the Manchus

London, May 4.—The Shun-Hai-Kwan correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says that an interview between Manchurian officials and the chiefs of the Colao-huei near Sin-Min-Ting elicited facts tending to show that China's neutrality is tottering owing to the vexatious attitude of the Russians towards the Manchus. The Tartar generals in the provinces of Kirin and Feng-Tien are urging the Pekin Government to adopt a strong policy against Russian aggression west of the Liao River. General Ma, who is at Choo-Yang with fifteen battalions, will be instructed to keep a careful watch and be ready to advance eastward. Every thing points to China making a military demonstration against either belligerent fighting west of the Liao River. Several hundred Russian cavalry are scouting west of Kaopantze. Should Russia carry her present dominating policy across the Liao River she will invite hostilities with the Chinese troops. The Tartar generals are already against the Russians, and they are daily being driven to desperation. It is considered that a general rising will become imminent should the Japanese land at New-Chwang.

A despatch to the Standard from Tien-Tsin says that Admiral Alexieff has sent a lengthy despatch to General Ma, the Chinese commander, through the Tartar general in Feng-Tien, stating that it may be necessary for the Russians to increase their forces at Sin-Min-Ting and elsewhere, and requesting that the Chinese troops and police be immediately withdrawn. Admiral Alexieff added that he required as answer in three days.

Yuan-Shih-Kai, Viceroy of Chili, and Commander-in-Chief of the Chinese forces, has ordered the various viceroys in Mongolia to procure 2,000 horses for his troops immediately.

RETURNED TO GENSAN.

Tokio, May 4.—The following official telegram has been received:

"Admiral Kamimura's fleet arrived at Gensan on the 26th of April without having effected the intended bombardment of Vladivostock owing to the thick fog continually prevailing. Learning that the Kinsiu Maru was overdue the fleet left Port on the 27th in search of the steamer, and again proceeded near to Vladivostock, but the incessant fog prevented any further operations and the fleet returned to Gensan.

THE ADMIRAL'S REPORT.

Tokio, May 4.—Vice-Admiral Kamimura, who is in command of the Japanese squadron which has been operating recently against Vladivostock, has sent in a report from Gensan, Corea, dated Sunday, in which he says that the impenetrable fog twice forced the abandonment of the attack on Vladivostock and twice spared the Russian squadron a sea fight.

While Kamimura was steaming north the first time he passed the Russian squadron bound south on the said to Gensan, which resulted in the sinking of the Japanese steamer Goyo Maru and the transport Kinshiu Maru. The Japanese and Russian squadrons must have passed very close to each other, for the Japanese were conscious of the presence of the enemy.

As soon as Kamimura returned to the Corean coast he learned that the Kinshiu Maru was missing, and immediately returned to the north to search for and pursue it. He found three boats belonging to the Kinshiu Maru floating at sea. He then detached some cruisers from his squadron and ordered them to search certain inlets in the vicinity of Najiwa. These vessels discovered some Russian mines at Izumi. The Japanese cruisers exploded the mines.

Vice-Admiral Kamimura closes his report by saying that the continuance of the fog since Thursday has prevented a renewal of the attack.

A Port Arthur correspondent reports that the injuries to the injured battleships have almost been completed. The protected cruiser Pallada is out of dock, and work on the battleship Retvizan is advancing.

The divers who have been searching the wreck of the battleship Petropavlovak, in the hope of recovering the body of Vice-Admiral Makaroff, have practically abandoned their efforts.

It is the subject of general remark in St. Petersburg that the Japanese on crossing the Yalu adopted identically the tactics they followed during the Chinese-Japanese War forcing the passage at the exact place they did in 1895.

THE RUSSIAN FORCE

The Probable Location Of The Russians Armies

Paris, May 5.—It is believed here that the Russian forces are distributed as follows. First corps, commanded by General Stackelberg, is in gross that lined up between Harbin and Vladivostok. It has one of its largest divisions located near Mukden. To Stackelberg belongs the column whose importance has been ignored up to the present and which is operating in Corea, between Inman and the sea, having in front of it the independent cavalry division of General Rennenkampf. The fourth corps has been at Harbin since the beginning of April, with its two divisions of Siberian infantry and brigade of Cossacks. There is also near this town a division of Siberian Cossacks and a brigade from Caucasus. The second corps comprising the fifth and sixth divisions of Chasseurs, commanded by General Sassulitch, is near Mukden with certain detached parties near Yalu.

The third corps, formed of the third, fourth and ninth divisions of Chasseurs, has its headquarters at Liao Yang. The third division, under the orders of General Karchtalinski is posted on the Yalu and supports the brigade of Cossacks of General Mitschenko, which in turn is in touch with Rennekampf's division. The ninth division, commanded by General Kondratvich, is detached toward Niu Chwang to oppose Japanese landing. Each of the three first corps has besides its cavalry and infantry, a battery of machine guns composed of five officers, ninety-one men, thirty-six horses, eight guns, eith caissons and six waggons. Each gun is supplied with 5,850 rounds.

TWELVE TOWNS ARE WIPED OUT

Serious Disturbances in the Districts Asia Minor

TURKISH TROOPS BEATEN

Relations Between Porte and Greece May be Strained Thereby

Constantinople, May 5. — According to official advices there has been serious fighting in the Sassun district of Asia Minor between the troops and Armenian insurgents numbering 2,000. The troops lost twenty killed and twenty-three wounded. Twelve villages in the Talori district have been destroyed, but whether by insurgents or Kurds is not known.

There are 10,000 troops in the disturbed area.

Private advices say that the Kurds attacked two villages north of Sassun, losing twenty-six killed.

The Sassun district of Asia Minor became notorious in 1894 because of a series of massacres of Armenians in the neighboring districts of Bitlis and Mush.

Athens, May 5.—Advices have been received here to the effect that the porte has communicated to the Greek minister at Constantinople M. Gryparis, the report of the vali of Smyrna concerning the affair between Turkish gendarmes and Greeks in Smyrna, in which M. Delyannis, secretary of the Greek consulate was slightly wounded, throwing the entire responsibility for the incident on the Greek consular agents.

Premier Theotokis has held a conference with King George on the subject. It is feared that the attitude of the porte will seriously result in seriously straining the relations between Greece and Turkey.

RUSSIAN SAILORS EFFECTING A LANDING FROM THE "VARIAG."

C.P.R. TO FIGHT GREAT NORTHERN

Canadian Line will Invade Spokane and Other U. S. Territory

BARGAIN WITH MR. CORBIN

For Construction of Branch From Crow's Nest Line Through Idaho

Montreal, May 5.—The Canadian Pacific Railway is stated to have thrown down the gauntlet of competition at the feet of Mr. James J. Hill, of the Great Northern Railway.

Some years ago the Spokane and Northern Railway which runs from Spokane to Northport and branches of which opened up the far famed Kootenay country, spurs running to Rossland and Nelson were built.

The man who built the Spokane and Northern, Mr. D. C. Corbin, of Spokane, has been in the city for the past few days. Mr. Corbin, who is well known both in Canada as well as the other side of the line, has been identified with large railway and other enterprises for many years. When the western country was opening up the needs of railway facilities were immediately recognized. Trade follows the track and the Spokane and Northern was built.

Four years ago the Spokane and Northern, of which Mr. Corbin was the president, was in the market. The Canadian Pacific Railway Co. had a chance to acquire the road, but the opportunity was allowed to slip by, and the Great Northern stepped in and bought out the road. The acquisition of the old Spokane & Northern by the Great Northern gave teh latter road the opportunity for which it had long been anxious, viz. the chance to encroach on the acknowledged preserves of the Canadian Pacific Railway. That opportunity was not permitted to lie idle long and the C.P.R. began to feel the competition of the road of Mr. J. J. Hill.

Mr. Corbin admitted to a press representative that the people of the west would have been better pleased if the Canadian Pacific Railway had taken hold of the Spokane & Northern. They recognize that road as a progressive institution, and the policy of some of the lines at present operating in that western territory was not in the best interests fo the development of the country. However, the C.P.R. did not grasp the opportunity and the Great Northern got control. Mr. Corbin admitted that the C.P.R. had no option on the Spokane & Northern, but had an equal chance with the Great Northern, but did not take it.

It would appear that now the time has come when the Canadian road desires an entrance into Spokane, and it is understood on good authority that the presence of Mr. Corbin in the city during the past few days was for the purpose of negotiating with the Canadian Pacific Railway in that matter. Mr. Corbin would not deny that his presence here was on that account although he said the time was not ripe for any details concerning the matter. It is understood, however, that the C.P.R. intend commencing operations to build a line from York on the Crow's Nest line and running in a southwesterly direction through the corner of Idaho into the State of Washington.

JAPAN'S HEEL IS VERY HEAVY

American Statesman says Russia's Humiliation will be Great

SEES WOE TO THE CZAR

Should Mikado win as Seems more than Probable at Present

Chicago, May 5.—That Russia will be offered harsh terms of peace if defeated by Japan and that interference from other nations will not be tolerated by the Island Empire in that contengency are probabilities, unless Japanese policy has greatly changed in the past ten years. These were the deductions to be drawn from a speech made last night by John W. Foster, former Secretary of State, before the Commercial Club in the uAditorium.

Mr. Foster gave a detailed account of his mission to China and Japan, when he went as a private individual at the request of the Chinese Emperor to aid in effecting a peace settlement during the China-Japanese war. He spoke to the subject: "Making of Peace Between China and Japan; a Personal Reminiscence."

Li Hung Chang and Mr Foster for China and Marquis Ito for Japan were the chief persons through whom the peace negotiations were carried on.

DEMANDS WERE HEAVY.

"The first proposals submitted from Japan were severe in the extreme," said Mr. Foster, "but I have been quite prepared to find them of the harshest. They provided for an enormous war indemnity, twice the sum actually expended; for a cession of territory in Manchuria which could not fairly be demanded, and for certain commercial privileges not usually granted even to Great Britain, who has got the best terms in the far East."

Mr. Foster told how discouraged the Chinese were with the proposals, and how, by diplomacy, he managed to effect a vast reduction in the scope of the demands. How Japan showed her teeth to the world was thus described:

'Viceroy Li said that if the terms of peace involved the interests of any other country it would be well to proceed cautiously. 'Why?' demanded Ito. 'Many difficulties may arise.' 'No,' declared Ito, 'this is entirely our affair. Other countries must not meddle with what does not concern them.'"

HOPED FOR ASIATIC UNION.

hTe Japanese statesmen also recognized clearly the possibilities of confederation by Asiatic powers and a battling of the yellow race against the white, was proved by the speakers recital of another conversation between Ito and Li.

"'Is it' well that we should live at enmity?' demanded Li. 'We should prevent the yellow race from succumbing to the white race of Europe.' To that Ito replied: 'I indorse your excellency's views with all my heart.'"

Talking generally of the negotiations, Mr. Foster emphasized the fact, as a suggestive one, that the English language was generally used.

ENGLISH WAS SPOKEN.

"A notable feature was the use made of English," he said. "Ito and the Chinese secretaries spoke it freely, and in conference it was the language of communication. All the formal documents exchanged were accompanied by an English translation, and when haste required, English only was used."

Mr. Foster detailed the various phases of the negotiations and told how the peace was finally signed, on terms much easier for China and more soothing to her pride than were the first imperious demands of Japan. Mr. Foster indicated that it was largely Japan's desire to stand well in the eyes of the remainder of the world that aided in arranging a more favorable peace.

AID WAS RECOGNIZED.

In recognition of his services and of the tactful diplomacy he had used throughout the negotiations, Mr. Foster was tendered a banquet at Tokio, and he was also presented with a laudatory address from the Tokio Chamber of Commerce.

That the former Secretary of State may prepare an autobiography was hinted by him in his prefatory remarks.

"I am embarrassed in coming before you with personal reminiscences" he said, "but it will afford me a chance to see how you take them and I may be encouraged to add to them at some future time."

REOPENING OF THE CASE OF ALFRED DREYFUS.

TheCourt Held a That Sufficient Showing Had Been Made to Warrut a Reopening of case

Paris, May 2.—The Criminal Branch of the Court of Cassation a short time ago granted the appeal of Alfred Dreyfus for a revision of his trial at Rennes.

The court held that a sufficient showing had been made to warrant a reopening of the case and ordered a supplementary investigation for the purpose of establishing all the doubtful points which have been the basis for the present application.

The decision is another marked success for Dreyfus, although it is not yet final, owing to the extended supplementary investigation which must follow the court's decision.

BY MME. SEVERINE.

Paris, May 2.—I sought an interview with ex-Captain Dreyfus, whose trial at Rennes I reported, and who is now—as the daily despatches indicated—on the high road to vindication and reinstatement.

Dreyfus has greatly changed during the past year. Though his hair is thinner and whiter, he seems younger. He looks calm and confident. His voice has lost the unevenness and raucousness that were so painful to hear after his return from Devil's Island, though it retains its alsatian accent. He has regained his normal tone during his five years of waiting for justice; both his physical and moral personality have been restored, reconstituted. Dreyfus said to me:

"No one suspected the state I was in before the Rennes Council of War. The newspapers talked about champagne repasts in prison; in reality I lived on kola and milk. I was burnt, with fever and devoured with thirst. I could not sleep. It was pride that forced me to let nothing be seen; to stand before my judges erect and correct. This is my gesture.

"I deserved to be pitied, but it would seem a weakness to do anything that should provoke pity. I desired only justice of the people, and though I maintained a passivity that was due to having lived so long outside the living world and in almost absolute silence.

LESSON IN SOLITUDE.

"I had lost the sense of listening, and the sound of voices reached my ears like the confused noise of the sea. After five minutes of attention the sense of what had been said escaped me. Gradually the struggle became fiercer, and before the great fatigues of the end I forced myself to render more frequent those brief periods of lucidity during which I fought step by step to defend my honor and become master of myself. My nerves, my will and my cerebral energies were sustained to this sole end—not to fall from the chair like a log, like a thing inert that a policeman should carry out amid the clamor of emotions or irony.

"No difference of religion did cause the initial trouble. Catholics, Protestants, Israelites and Atheists lived in perfect harmony in the schools and orthodox Buddhists and Mhometans would have been treated the same. The loss of money by the nobility in Union Generale was needed to incite a feeling of anti-Semitism. Nevertheless, I feel no hatred for my persecutors. When one has lived far from all and everything, and never heard anything but the wind and a wave, one gets the impression of existing along eternity and one learns to measure how little man is how little one sees in the great game of eternal forces.

GOOD FAITH OF FRIENDS.

"Certainly my friends, the most heroic and devoted, are saddened at my not attaining the end of my struggle more quickly and thus securing a recompense to their disinterested effort. Their haste is the greatest proof of their affection, yet I should like them to share in my patience and make them share in that endurance which is my reserve force.

"It is nearly ten years since my torment began and four years since that series of tortures which marked the abominable nightmare of Rennes. I can now study my dossier complete and I now understand that delay has been indispensable to enlighten me in my own cause and to enlighten others to bring about peace.

"I have suffered atrociously. I live under the blow of the most frightful imputation that can dishonor a man and a soldier. I have lived through sad and cruel moments, but never a shadow of discouragement has troubled my soul. That is confidence, not stoicism. I believe in the infinite supremacy of right and the inevitable triumph of reason and justice, but I fear the darkness dear to imposture to intrigue and equivocal machinations.

COMFORTED BY HIS SON.

"I have always had too exact a mind and my critical sense is too developed to accept without control such monuments of absurdities as those put into my dossier. I have a passion for exact logic; that is why I am so deeply interested in Reinach's history of 'l'Affaire Dreyfus.' I have also the faculty of exteriorization, and so Reinach's history appears to me to be an extraordinary romance so much was I a stranger to that which was woven around me that it seems like reading the history of a century ago by Michelet or Carlyle.

"My son is twelve and a half years old. He is a brave and serious little man. When he was ten years old we told him all. Until then my courageous wife succeeded, by prodigies, ingenuity and prudence in concealing the situation from him. Now he studies the affair in order later to teach it to his little sister, and he has loved me far more by reason of the affair.

"You know when my wife was at Rennes during the trial some wretches threatened to invade her house and drag her and the children out and throw into the water 'the Jewess and her little ones.'

"I expect everything from justice which must not be impeded nor yet unduly advanced. My cause should not be made to suffer from regrettable zeal or perfidious construction. What is most needed is goodness for goodness, otherwise I would not be saved."

Lost His Life

London, May 3.—A man named Goldsmith, the mate of the fishing smack Alfred of Ramsgate, lost his life recently under remarkable circumstances.

A keg of powder was picked up off the North Foreland by the smack Harry Martin, and remained on deck until the vessel arrived in the fishing grounds off Lowestoft.

It is suggested that the keg was part of a jettisoned cargo from a Dutch barque, which went ashore on the Goodwin sands last week.

At Lowestoft the skipper of the board the vessel to act as skipper. Harry Martin had his hand crushed in the gear, and Goldsmith went on.

After the work was done Goldsmith was seen tampering with the gun powder, and was warned not to interfere with it.

He persisted, however, and asked the third hand for a flare. The man refused it, and Goldsmith said: "All right; I've got a match."

Then he placed the keg in a small boat and rowed away a short distance. Suddenly a loud report was heard. For a time Goldsmith's head shoulders were seen above the water but he soon sank, the boat disappearing at the same time.

No trace of the keg was left. It was plainly marked "Gunpowder" on the outside.

A LIFER'S PLEA

Man Who Has Been Sixteen Years in Penitentiary Wants Freedom

Kingston, May 4.—Matthew Jones, in prison for 16 years for arson, is seeking release. He was sent up for life for burning a barn. He says he is innocent. He was found drunk in Lambton County, near the fire, and farmers were about to lynch him when he was rescued. He had been in jail before for a similar crime. His hair is nearly white from sorrow and confinement. His wife, aged 65, keeps the house at Marine City, Mich., hoping for his return. He has been promised a speedy release. He was born as also his father, a mile from the penitentiary where he has suffered 16 years' imprisonment.

Detroit Specialist Discovers Something Entirely New for the Cure of Men's Diseases in Their Own Homes.

You Pay Only if Cured

He Accepts No Money Unless He Cures Your Method and Full Particulars Sent Free—Write For It This Very Day

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and hospitals, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes; so that there may be no doubt in the mind of any man that he has

DR. S. GOLDBERG,
The Possessor of 14 Diplomas and Certificates Who Wants No Money That He Does Not Earn.

both the method and the ability to do as he says, Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic trouble, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation of parts, impotence, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but like wise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as many booklets on the subject, including the one that contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply

Dr. S. Goldberg, 208 Woodward Ave., Room ——, Detroit, Mich., and it will all immediately be sent you free.

This is something entirely new and well worth knowing more about. Write at once.

GLORIOUS WAR AND "IGNOBLE" PEACE

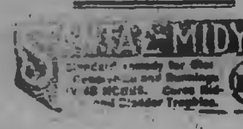
It may be that some of the soldiers—though by no means all of them—engaged in the war between Japan and Russia would endorse the enthusiastic declaration of a contemporary that the struggle now going on is "worth a thousand years of ignoble peace."

It is certain, however, that the women of Russia and Japan who have husbands and brothers and sweethearts at the front would declare for "ignoble peace" if the decision lay with them. It is upon women that the burdens of war bears most heavily.

The pomp, pride and panoply of glorious war appeal not to them. Days of anxiety and heartache, nights of sleeplessness and dread—these are the portion of women whose nation is at war. The men who are fighting are sustained by the excitement and by the natural prompting of men to fight. But those women who sit at home and await with cruel apprehension the news of battles by sea and by land are buoyed up by no such stimulus. Theirs is the real suffering and the real burden. Theirs is the woe and the grief of war. For them the world would be brighter and happier if "ignoble peace" never were broken.

"Ignoble peace" has several features to commend it. Men are not killed by thousands while it prevails; dreadful wounds are not inflicted by wholesale; hardships and privations are not caused by it. National debt is not vastly increased and taxes are not doubled by "ignoble peace," nor is the industry deranged by it. These are important considerations, but they are all insignificant as compared with the comfort and tranquility which peace between nations allow to women.

There is nothing "ignoble" in a condition which brings happiness to mothers and sisters and wives. War may sometimes be an unfortunate necessity, but it is never to be glorified as a fine and noble thing. On the contrary, it is the most cruel and horrible thing in the world.



SHALL WE HAVE A NEW COLLEGRTE INSTITUTE?

Reasons why a New Building is a Vital Necessity

To the Editor of The Times:

Sir,—In a few days the property owners of the town will be called upon to vote for or against a by-law to raise $50,000 for the erection of a new Collegiate Institute building.

The question naturally arises whether the citizens should vote yea or nay. As a citizen of the town I wish to call attention to some of the many reasons why every publicly spirited citizen should vote yea.

1. The board of Education, a thoroughly representative body, composed of men who have distinguished devoted a good deal of time and thought to educational matters say that we are in need of such a building.

2. The lease of the Mcgie's property expires in 1905, and that building will no longer be available for school purposes. The present building used for Collegiate purposes is public school property, and $1100 is annually paid in rent, therefore a new building must be built. As the present building is not and cannot be properly equipped for the proper teaching of the old line of subjects not to speak of the utilitarian subjects of domestic science and technical training, recently added to the program of students, it necessarily follows that it would be wise to use the present building for public school purposes and build a new up-to-date Collegiate Institute building.

3. A town the size of Peterborough should have a building for secondary education of which the citizens may be proud. Who ever thinks of showing a visitor any school building in town? Instead we show them the largest "Porridge Factory" in canada, the largest Hydraulic Lift Lock in the world, the best equipped Cordage Factory in America, our Y. M.C.A., Canadian General Electric Works building and our Skating Rink. But as regards our school buildings and opera house "Mum is the word." This is not as it should be and, whilst our material resources are great, we should pay a good deal more attention to providing proper facilities for the education of our rising generation.

4. It is said that the Collegiate Institute is not a popular institution in town. This is true, but what is the reason? Pupils have no love for an institution where everything is, or has been, nothing but grind, grind, grind. Parents have no love for an institution between which their only bond is an obligation to pay fees. To create a proper esprit-de-corps among the pupils there should be an Assembly Hall to be used for Social gatherings, such as Literary Society Meetings, the presentation of Scholarship medals, etc., and for the girls there should be provision, at least for courts for lawn tennis, and for the boys should be grounds for cricket, lacrosse and baseball.

5. In this age we rightly pay considerable attention to athletics. The battle of Waterloo according to the "Iron Duke" was won on the "football field of Rugby." What chance have our boys for sports? None whatever. No we can turn out the best in the country in the different lines as our records show, still we are handicapped. We, as the best town in Canada, want three things, an Opera House, Athletic Field and a new up-to-date Collegiate Institute Building.

Nature Sounds A Warning Call

To Everyone in poor health, Now is the Time to get Strong, Build Up and Increase Your Weight. Use Ferrozone the Great Food Tonic.

Most of us make the mistake of neglecting the first message that comes from our tired body demanding more strength and less nervous strain.

When any organ of the body becomes feeble when the brain wearies and the nerves rebel against work, it is time to take Ferrozone and build up. The purpose of Ferrozone is to stimulate appetite, improve digestion, convert food into nourishment and supply the kind of blood and building material that fortifies the nervous system and strengthens the whole body.

Ferrozone is not an unnatural stimulant, but a food medicine combining the most strengthening elements known to science. Unlike sickly cod liver oil mixtures and bitters, Ferrozone is prepared in tablet form, convenient to take and always of uniform strength. Its health-giving properties are at once felt and it is sure to help you quickly. Striking proof of its merits is found in the letter of Mr. N. W. Burke, a well-known lawyer in Meriden, who says: "When I first took Ferrozone I was in a nervous, run-down condition, almost sick enough to give up work. I lacked strength and felt as if I could not get down to work. Ferrozone at once gave me a good appetite and drove away the nervous apprehensive feelings that formerly made my life miserable. As I continued the use of Ferrozone I grew stronger and am glad to say it has brought me back to perfect health. I know that Ferrozone is an excellent tonic for business men, and people inclined to a sedentary life. I can recommend it to such."

Ferrozone is endorsed by prominent people in every walk of life, because it never fails to bring the good health that sick folks are looking for.

You must be sure to get Ferrozone and flatly refuse any substitute. Price 50c per box, or six boxes for $2.50, all druggists or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford Conn., U.S.A.

FINDS CANCER CURE.

MICHIGAN DOCTOR USES WATER IMPREGNATED WITH RADIUM.

New Method Declared to Be Absolutely Painless — Case of Eighteen Years' Standing Is Given Instant Relief.

The possibility of using radium to convert ordinary rain and well water into a mineral water, more highly medicinal than any known natural mineral water, has been demonstrated at the University of Michigan in a series of experiments.

Dr. Rollin H. Stevens has hit upon the idea of immersing a radium tube in water, tightly closed in glass bottles. He was looking for a method by which radium could be applied to the interior of a cancer without any danger of the terrible radium, or X-ray, burns.

He worked on the known phenomenon that every substance, brought even within a moderate distance of radium, absorbs the radium rays and afterward gives them out exactly like a radium tube. By leaving a sealed tube in pure, distilled water for 24 hours he produced radio-active water, of powerful effects, as his tests immediately proved.

Injected into cancers this water stopped pain in ten minutes. His first patient was a man whose allotted life was one week, a sufferer from cancer and an X-ray burn. This man took morphine to endure his pain, but after one application of the radium water he was able to stop the morphine completely and life prolonged two months.

Other patients now under the radium water treatment include one with a cancer of 18 years' standing, and some of the ordinary nose and breast cancers. The 18-year cancer has had six weeks of water treatment, and from the first five minutes after applying water pain has been almost wholly absent. In each of the other cases pains stopped immediately, and several poor sufferers were released from the morphine habit, which had been forced upon them.

Apparently the water is curing every one of these cancers, even the one with an 18-year history, for all of them have steadily and consistently diminished in size, the worst one now being only half its former bulk. The mineralizing of pure water will soon begin on a much larger scale.

Good Reward, Good

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

PANACEA FOR ALL ILLS.

Chicago Doctor Prescribes Golf as a Cure for Many Ailments That Distress Mortals.

Golf has long been declared a panacea for all the ills which distress mortal man, but it has rarely been called a specific guaranteed to cure any certain ailment except, it may be, ennui or the worries resulting from too close application to business or professional duties.

But the members of the Homeopathic Medical society, of Chicago, were told recently that golf is a sure cure for Bright's disease. Dr. E. N. Nash made the statement at the meeting of the society and he supported his statement by citing cases in which he had noted definite and immediate benefit resulting in the patient's pursuit of the pastime and in the healthful open air life on the links and close communion with nature which the exercise compels.

Professional and business men of Chicago have derived the greatest benefit, physically and mentally, from the royal and ancient game and have declared the exhilaration of the tee and green, the swipping of far and sure drives, the staccato click of clock on ball and the joy of laying up long putts dead to the hole have given them as great pleasure as the winning of a legal battle or the cure of a stubborn medical case or the delivery of a brilliant speech.

John D. Rockefeller and Andrew Carnegie—not to mention thousands of lesser lights—have extolled golf to the skies. Dr. Nash's statement will not only be hailed with satisfaction by the followers of the old Scotch pastime, but they one and all will indorse his words as gospel truth.

DEAFNESS IN SCHOOLS.

Thirteen Per Cent. of Children in New York City Institutions Declared to Be Partially Afflicted.

The annual report of Superintendent William H. Maxwell, of New York city, has been issued, analyses the progress made during the fiscal year ending July, 1903. Under the caption "Defective Children" the statement is made that, according to one authority, 13 per cent. or more than one-eighth of the 676,566 children in the public school have partial deafness, and that of these only three per cent. are aware of their affliction. The net enrollment of school children in the entire city shows a decrease of 13,046 from the previous year. The average daily attendance is given as 439,928. The part-time classes have increased enormously. On June 30, 1902, there were 35,347 part-time pupils. On the same date last year there was 55,208, and October 31 last year there were 51,365. The sum of $30,233,556.60 was expended for educational purposes by the city during the last fiscal year.

MOHAMMEDANS AND DOGS.

They Take Particular Pains Not to Come In Contact.

In Egypt dogs are never permitted to enter the dwelling of a Mohammedan, and if one is found in a mosque he is immediately put to death.

In consequence of this excommunication from the society which this animal seems so instinctively disposed to cultivate, Egyptian dogs live, for the most part, in the open air, feeding upon garbage and any other filth that chance throws in their way. Yet they are found to be faithful protectors of the property and even persons of the very men by whom they are thus despitefully treated, although, Sonini remarks, it is extremely curious to see the pains taken by a Mussulman and a dog when they happen to meet to avoid coming in contact with each other. Notwithstanding this state of persecution, dogs are remarkably numerous in the towns of Egypt. The species is a large one, about the size and make of the greyhound. As a proof of the Mohammedan prejudice against this useful animal, it is sufficient to state that they regard the terms Christian and dog as synonymous—both, of course, in the most opprobrious sense.

As a singular contrast for their dislike for dogs, the Egyptians have ever held cats in greatest veneration, and in ancient time even worshiped them. And historians tell us that Bubastis and Atribes, two towns in Egypt, the former a votary of cats and the latter of mice, contracted on that account so strong an antipathy to each other that the inhabitants were never known to intermarry, although only a few miles asunder. In some parts of India, too, we are told, they have a similar reverence for grimalkin, as the only crimes punished capitally there are the murder of a man and a cat.

TRIALS OF DIPLOMATS.

They Were Many In the Early Days of American History.

There exists a popular tendency to overrate the delights and to underrate the hardships of the diplomatic life; but, however much opinions may differ on this point, there can be no doubt that the office of an American diplomatist in the days of the Revolution was no holiday pastime.

If he was not already in Europe, his journey to his post was beset with perils graver than those of the elements. In the eyes of the British law American revolutionists were simply "rebels," the reprobation of whose conduct was likely to be proportionate to their prominence and activity, and the seas were scoured by British cruisers, the dreaded embodiment of England's maritime supremacy. Deane went abroad secretly before independence was declared, but when his presence in France became known the British government asked that he be seized and delivered up into its custody. Franklin sailed for France on a small vessel of war belonging to congress, called the Reprisal. On the way over she took two prizes, and more than once, on descrying a suspicious sail, cleared for action. Had she been captured by the British, Franklin would have had an opportunity to test the truth of his remark to his associates in congress that they must "either hang together or hang separately." John Adams, on his first journey, took passage on an American vessel; on his second he embarked on the French frigate Sensible and landed at Ferrol, in Spain. Jay committed his fate to the American man-of-war Confederacy and, like Adams and Franklin reached his destination.

An Isolated Church.

In the valley of Westdale Head, in Cumberland, England, a strange little church nestles amid a group of the highest of England's mountains. It is over 400 years old and has two windows, and the pulpit is lighted by a pane of glass having been inserted in a hole in the roof above it. There are only eight pews, of which seldom more than two are used. The little bell, hanging loose in the open belfry, may on stormy nights be heard mingling its tones with the wind and thunder. But for the belfry it would hardly be known to be a church. This little gray edifice is described as the most isolated church throughout the whole of England.

Good Reason.

A school inspector, explaining to his class that the land of the world was not continuous, said to the boy who happened to be standing nearest to him:

"Now, could your father walk round the world?"

"No, sir," was the prompt reply.

"Why not?"

"Because he's broken his leg," was the altogether unlooked for response.—Chums.

High Class Investment

THE OREGON MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY

Offer to Canadian investors a limited amount of stock of the above company The property owned by the Company consists at the present time of about 500 acres, which are located in the Tarryall District and Park County, Colorado. This whole district has been known for years on account of its rich placer ground, and is now prominently before the public owing to the number of very good properties which have been opened up recently producing, principally, gold, and lately some that are producing Platinum. On the Oregon property there are a number of well known veins of low grade ore that will yield a profit by being treated on the ground of the company. The company have recently opened up a fine vein in the Hawkeye group and this vein shows not only good values but an immense amount of ore which alone would make the property very valuable. Assays from ore taken from various parts of this property range from a few dollars to $373 per ton in gold. We have very little silver, lead or copper in the district. The company have a shaft 240 feet deep, with a good shaft house thoroughly well equipped with all modern machinery to develop same. They are now driving a tunnel which is in about 700 feet and which will cut the Hawkeye vein about 320 feet deeper than where it is opened at present. There is enough ore exposed on the property of this company to keep them busy for a number of years and the reason for selling stock at the present time is to secure funds to build a mill. The company will probably join with the Almaden Company in building this mill. There is water enough to furnish water power and over 100 acres of fine spruce and pine timber. The affairs of the company have always been managed in a business-like economical manner and there are no officers' salaries. The monies received from the sale of stock go direct into the property.

I can heartily recommend this stock as safe, as well as an unusually good investment, because of the immense amount of ore which the company have already opened up. It is not a mere prospect, but the property has been developed by expense of a considerable amount of money and time.

The company is splendidly officered by men of integrity and high standing. The company has not pushed the sale of stock the last year owing to a delay in getting title to the ground from the Government, but now that has been satisfactorily adjusted and work will be pushed to a finish.

The number of exceedingly rich strikes which have been made during the last few weeks in the various camps in the State of Colorado is the best evidence of the prosperity of the mining business. Almost every camp in the state has opened up rich bodies of ore, and Park County is well in the lead in that line.

There are only $25,000 of stock for sale, at $1.00 per share. The company is capitalized at $200,000, and the advantage to the investor of selling the stock at par, is that every share is fully paid up and non-assessable.

RUSSIAN LOSS SAID TO EXCEED TWO THOUSAND

A Startling Report Afloat in St.Petersburg --Censor Holds Back News--Excitement at Fever Heat.

St. Petersburg, May 4.—An unconfirmed report of severe fighting between 3,000 Russians and a similar number of Japanese at Gensan is sent by the Standard's St. Petersburg correspondent, who says the Japanese were compelled to retire into Gensan both sides losing heavily. Two Russian officers are said to be among the wounded.

CENSORS HELD BACK NEWS.

St. Petersburg, May 4.—The interest of the public in the news of the fighting on the Yalu is at fever heat, especially since the last official report, which announced the fighting at Chingow, was given out. To the general disappointment, no further telegrams from Gen Kuropatkin have been published by the War Commission, nor will the censor pass press despatches wired from the front.

BARON HAYASHI'S VIEWS.

London May 4—Baron Hayashi, the Japanese Minister here, said to the Associated Press:

"The immediate result of General Kuroki's success will probably be a movement on Fengwangcheng, which the Chinese have fortified with their usual brick structures. Since the commencement of the war the Russians doubtless have added earthworks, but their loss of guns must seriously diminish their defensive strength.

"I understand that Russia had only 100 guns in Manchuria. If that is the case, her artillery strength has been diminished almost one-third.

"They fight well, those Russians, and Fenwangcheng will not be taken without a hard struggle unless General Kuropatkin again changes his plan of campaign.

Bridgeport, Conn., May 4.—A stockholder of the Lake Submarine Torpedo Boat Company of this city, builders and owners of the submarine boat Protector, says that negotiations practically have been completed for the sale of the Protector to representatives of the Japanese government, the Japanese having outbid the Russian representatives for the boat. The Protector is now in the very best condition. She was launched yesterday at Fall River and sailed for Newport.

Berlin May 4.—Colonel von Gaedke, war correspondent of the Berliner Tageblatt, writing from Harbin, Manchuria, under date of April 4, says he found the Russians much more unprepared for war than he anticipated. High officers assured him that the garrison at Port Arthur amounted to only 8,000 combatants when the first attack occurred. The troops south of Mukden ready for action then numbered only 20,000 to 25,000 men.

Colonel von Gaedke asserts that the total strength of the Russians in Manchuria at that time was hardly above 90,000 men, exclusive of 24,000 railroad guards. The Russians expected a speedy advance of the Japanese, after the outbreak of war and rather lost their heads. Much censure, the colonel adds, was heard in army circles of the mismanagement of the defense of Port Arthur.

TO CANADIAN INVESTORS

I desire to call the attention of investors to the

Smuggler Gold Mining Co.'s Proposition

of which I am the authorized agent

Investments in mining stocks where they can be purchased cheaply whose property contains merit and whose directors are men of unquestionable honor and integrity, and especially when sufficient work has been done to guarantee a producing mine and the leads have been demonstrated to be permanent, offer the greatest opportunity for large returns from modest investments.

The shrewdest capitalists of England and America are giving more attention to mining properties and putting more money into them than at any time in the past history of the world.

The Smuggler Group consists of five full sized claims, to-wit:- The Smuggler, Gangon, Black Jack, Star and Red Rose, located in the Greenhorn District of Eastern Oregon. Surrounding mines are Potosi, Pride of Pendleton, Bonanza and Rockefeller, developing work in the extent of 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifts and crosscuts have been made, exposing hundreds of tons of high grade ore, averaging from $25 to $45 per ton, based on smelter returns and for the purpose of equipping the mines a limited number of shares of Treasury Stock will be sold at 25 cents per share, the par value of which is $1.00.

Japanese Lose Two and Eight Fireships Sunk at Port Arthur--Togo Fails to Block Port Arthur

Port Arthur, May 4.—A Japanese squadron appeared off Port Arthur after daybreak to-day and engaged the forts and warships. The fight is still proceeding.

Thirty Japanese prisoners have been captured.

St. Petersburg, May 4.—It is reported that Vice-Admiral Togo made another desperate attempt to block the entrance of Port Arthur last night, but failed. Viceroy Alexieff sent out a section of the fleet to meet the attack, and sunk eight fireships and two Japanese torpedo boats. The channel is reported to be clear.

Later—The report that Vice-Admiral Togo had made another attempt to block Port Arthur was confirmed Viceroy Alexieff reported officially that the Japanese sent eight fireships last night to block the entrance of the harbor, but they were all sunk by Russian torpedo boats and the fire from the land batteries, leaving the channel clear. The Viceroy also reported that the Russians sank two Japanese torpedo boats.

London, April 30—The Times to-day has the following from Tokio—"One of the alleged spies recently shot by the Russians at Mukden has been identified as M. Sonder, a Japanese Judge, and not a military man.

COLOMBIAN BONDHOLDERS

London, April 30—The correspondent of the Times in Paris says: An important meeting of Colombian bondholders convened by the foreign bondholders' committee, will be held in London to-morrow. The recently elected President of Colombia, General Reyes, at whose instigation the unsuccessful legal action was taken against the Panama Canal Company, will not be present, he having left Paris a few days ago for Bogota. The proceedings at to-morrow's meeting will have special interest for Britain, as of the £3,000,000 sterling of Colombian bonds the major part is held in that country. The bonds were issued in London at 86 and the debt originally contracted was about £6,000,000, which was reduced one-half by arrangement with Colombia. Now one of the lawsuits undertaken by Colombia against the Panama Canal Company concerns the retention by the latter of 50,000 Panama Company shares to the value of about 6,000,000 francs, which Colombia left on deposit with the company when the new contract with the Panama Company was signed. Both those shares and the $10,000,000 to be paid by the United States are claimed by the new Republic of Panama.

HOPES ARE SHATTERED.

The British and continental holders of Colombian bonds had hoped that Colombia would use the money which was received from the United States to pay off part of its foreign indebtedness. As Panama has segregated, and as the money is to be paid to the new republic, the hopes of the bondholders are temporarily shattered. It is hoped the United States will perhaps eventually use its good offices with the Republic of Panama to induce it to assume an equitable share of the bonded obligation of Colombia. The point of view of the holders of Colombian bonds is that Britain, which by cancelling the Clayton-Bulwer treaty enabled the United States to carry out its canal policy, will likewise do all in its power to protect the rights of its citizens who are Colombian bondholders.

EXPERT'S VIEWS ON JAP VICTORY.

No Tendency to Deduce too Much from Facts to Hand

WHERE ARE OTHER ARMIES?

Second Corps in the Field for Weeks and no Person Knows Where it is Located

London, May 3.—There is no tendency on the part of experts to deduce too much from the hitherto available accounts of land fighting. They point out that the Russians and Japanese accounts are irreconcilable on various points while the importance of the obscure villages mentioned in the despatches, many of which cannot be located cannot be determined without fuller knowledge. Moreover, it is still doubtful to what extent the Russians intended to oppose the passage of the Yalu and defend their position on the bank of the river. It is fully recognized, however, that the Japanese have won a decided victory along a four mile front in the first real active land operation. It is assumed that the Japanese advance on the Yalu has been accomplished or will be immediately followed by movements elsewhere. The second army corps under Gen. Baron Oku has been in the field for weeks, and the third army corps has been ready for the fourth for several days. It is unhere, and is probably even unknown to the Russians, where either of these corps are. Meanwhile, if the Russians are unable to maintain their position at Motien they will be in danger of being forced to abandon the Liau Valley altogether.

The Times, commenting upon the situation in the far east, says that if Gen. Sassulitch is reinforced, the troops must be taken from the Russian reserves at Liao-Yang. If they are withdrawn from that place it is not likely that they can be replaced in time from Harbin. The result would seem to be if the second or third Japanese army attempts a landing on the east or west side of the Liaotung Peninsula, there will be no overwhelming force at Liao-Yang able to crush them before they have taken up a defensible position.

TURNED THE POSITION.

London, May 3.—A despatch to the Daily Telegraph from Tokio says Sunday's brilliant operations have assuredly turned the Russian position at Antung. The Japanese casualties were probably heavy, but it is likely that the Russian losses were heavier, including losses of guns and material. The position stormed is named Yujuho. It is a high bluff between Mako and Chiu-Tien-Chung.

The Tokio correspondent of the Chronicle says that the Japanese have moved at the rate of twelve miles a day.

HIGH CLASS INVESTMENT

LA ZACUALPA RUBBER PLANTATION COMPANY

Incorporated Under the Laws of the State of California.

La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation is situated in the best location in Mexico for the cultivation of rubber. It has been known for a great many years as a very choice strip of rubber land and subsequent experience has shown that it is equal to all that has been claimed for it. The affairs of the company are in the hands of men of undoubted integrity and high reputation as successful men of business. To those seeking a safe investment which will secure a good income for life, this proposition offers a favorable opportunity

Shares in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation are not capital stock of a corporation, and carry none of the responsibilities and obligations, or liability to assessment of capital stock; but represent an undivided interest in the plantation itself.

The twelve thousand acres comprising the plantation are divided into twelve thousand shares, each share representing one acre of land, and the holders of shares in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation are the actual owners of one undivided acre of land, for each share held, with a guarantee expressed upon the certificate by La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company, under its official seal, to plant two hundred or more rubber trees per acre for each share sold, and to care for same for a period of five years, and at the expiration of that time to gather the first harvest and deliver the net proceeds thereof to the shareholder.

In other words, La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company sells to each shareholder one undivided acre of land in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation, with two hundred or more rubber trees five years old, and their profits for all time, for each share sold, and agrees to plant so that the first harvest belonging to (a shareholder is the one to be gathered from La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation during the sixth year from the date of the certificate.

After the delivery of the first harvest La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company will care for the plantation, and harvest and market the crop for ten per cent. of the net proceeds therefrom. Out of this commission the Company agrees to pay all costs of administration, including maintenance of its home and branch offices.

This plan gives the purchaser of shares an interest of definite acreage, and his proportionate share in the total yield of rubber from the entire plantation forever, making it absolutely certain that the interest of each shareholder will receive the same care and attention forever, making it absolutely certainthat the interest of each shareholder will receive the same care and attention forever, making it absolutely certain, no matter how large or small, for the success of the plantation will be the mutual gain of all.

The foregoing state of facts makes it impossible for any person or persons to combine against or injure the individual interest of the smallest shareholder in the plantation, or to encumber the same, and it can be readily seen that the success of one means the success of all

All persons have some money, but more time. A little money and five years of time, if applied to the cultivation of rubber, will produce large profits.

RUSSIAN STORY OF THE CROSSING

Outline of the Past Week's Operations

COULD NOT STOP THE JAPS

Pursued Policy of Harassing Enemy Then Retreated

St. Petersburg, May 4.—Only short statements of the last few days' operations on the Yalu River have been issued officially, instead of the usual textual extracts from the despatches. It cannot be concealed that the Japanese have secured a success but the results are minimized and the engagement is described as continuing. The losses are declared to be below thirty. The news caused considerable depression, which is increased by the prevalence of alarming unofficial reports representing the Russians as being in full retreat. These reports state that many have been killed or wounded in bayonet charges, and that several guns have been captured by the Japanese. The newspapers reproduce the official statements only, and scarcely comment on them. The Novoe Vremya briefly declares that Gen. Kouropatkin did not intend to hinder the Japanese from entering Manchuria, but only intended to harass them and delay their crossing. This view is incompatible with the official announcement that reinforcements are being sent to the contingent at the mouth of the Ambikhe, with orders to drive the Japanese back across the Yalu.

The absence of news led to the circulation of rumors. For instance, it was reported that Gen. Sassulitch would be relieved of his command and courtmartialed for making a too strenuous stand on the right bank of the Yalu. As a matter of fact, while the War Office is surprised at the resistance made by Gen. Sassulitch, a telegram from Gen. Kouropatkin to the Emperor on April 28 announced that Sassulitch, in view of the preparations which the Japanese were making to cross the Yalu, had begun to reinforce his troops on the Manchurian bank.

Another report says that the War Office has been informed that the Russian casualties numbered 2,000. Should this be true it can be accepted as a certainty that the Russian plan of operations never contemplated such a sacrifice.

Old Hagar's Secret

BY MRS. M. J. HOLMES

Author of "For a Woman's Sake," "Love's Triumph," "Purified by Suffering," "A Grass Widow," "Woman Against Woman," Etc.

For a time after reading the above, George Douglas sat wrapt in thought, then bursting into a laugh as he thought how much the letter was like the jovial, light-hearted fellow who wrote it, he put it aside, and leaning back in his chair mused long and silently, not of Theo, but of Maggie, half wishing he were in Warner's place instead of being there in the dusty city. But as this could not be, he contented himself with thinking that at some time not far distant he would visit the old stone house — would see for himself this wonderful Maggie—and, though he had been warned against it, would possibly win her from his friend, who, unconsciously perhaps, had often crossed his path, watching him jealously lest he should look too often and too long upon the fragile Rose, blooming so sweetly in her bird's-nest of a home 'mong the tall old trees of Leominster.

"But he need not fear," he said, somewhat bitterly, "he need not fear for her, for it is over now. She has refused me, this Rose Warner, and though it touched my pride to hear her tell me no, I cannot hate her for it. 'She has given her love to another,' she said, and Warner is blind or crazy that he does not see the truth. But it is not for me to enlighten him. He may call her sister if he likes, though there is no tie of blood between them. I'd far rather it would be thus than something nearer;" and slowly rising up, George Douglas retired to dream of a calm, almost heavenly face, which but the day before had been bathed in tears as he told to Rose Warner the story of his love. Mingled, too, with that dream was another face, a laughing, sparkling, merry face, upon which no man ever yet had looked and escaped with a whole heart.

The morning light dispelled the dream, and when in the store old Safford inquired "What news from the boy?" the senior partner answered gravely that he was lying among the Milldale hills, with a broken leg, caused by a fall from his horse.

"Always was a careless rider," muttered old Safford, mentally deploring the increased amount of labor which would necessarily fall upon him, but which he performed without a word of compliment.

The fair May blossoms were faded, and the last June roses were blooming ere George Douglas found time or inclination to accept the invitation indirectly extended to him by Theo Miller. Rose Warner's refusal had affected him more than he chose to confess, and the wound must be slightly healed ere he could find pleasure in the sight of another. Possessed of many excellent qualities, he had unfortunately fallen into the error of thinking that almost any one whom he should select would take him for his money. And when Rose Warner, sitting by his side in the shadowy twilight, had said, "I cannot be your wife," the shock was sudden and hard to bear. But the first keen bitterness was over now, and remembering "the wild girls of the woods," as he mentally styled both Theo and Maggie, he determined at last to see them for himself.

Accordingly, on the last day of June, he started for Milldale, where he intended to remain until after the Fourth. To find the old house was an easy matter, for almost every one in town was familiar with its locality, and towards the close of the afternoon he found himself upon its broad steps applying vigorous strokes to the ponderous brass knocker, and half hoping the summons would be answered by Maggie herself. But it was not, and in the bent, white-haired woman, who came with measured footsteps, we recognize old Hagar, who spent much of her time at the house, and who came to the door in compliance with the request of the young ladies, both of whom, from an upper window, were curiously watching the stranger.

"Just the old witch one would expect to find in this out of the way place," thought Mr. Douglas, while at the same time he asked "If this were Madam Conway's residence, and if a young man by the name of Warner were staying here?"

"Another city beau!" muttered Hagar, as she answered in the affirmative, and ushered him into the parlor. "Another city beau; there'll be high carryings on now, if he's anything like the other one, who's come mighty nigh turning the house upside down."

"What did you say?" asked George Douglas, catching the sound of her muttering, and thinking she was addressing himself.

"I wasn't speaking to you. I was talking to a likelier person," answered old Hagar, in an undertone, as she shuffled away in quest of Henry Warner, who by this time was able to walk with the help of a cane.

The meeting between the two men was a joyful one, for George Douglas was a favorite with the subject of Rose, he would not suffer a matter like that to come between him and Henry Warner, whom he had known and liked from boyhood. Henry's first inquiries were naturally of a business character, and then George Douglas spoke of the young ladies, saying he was only anxious to see Mag, for he knew, of course, he should dislike the other.

Such, however, is wayward human nature, that the fair, pale face and quiet, dignified manner of Theo Miller had greater attractions for a person of George Douglas' peculiar temperament than had the dashing, brilliant Mag. There was a resemblance, he imagined, between Theo and Rose, and this of itself was sufficient to attract him toward her. Theo, too, was equally pleased, and when, that evening, Miriam Conway jokingly interposed her fast departing authority, telling her querulous pupils it was time they were asleep, Theo did not, as usual, heed the warning, but sat very still beneath the vine-wreathed portico, listening while George Douglas told her of the world which she had never seen, and she got proud toward him, for he possessed the charm of money, and as he looked down upon her, conversing with him so familiarly, he wondered how Henry could have called her cold and haughty—she was merely dignified, high-bred, he thought, and George Douglas liked anything which savored of aristocracy.

Meanwhile, Henry and Mag had wandered to a little summer-house, where, with the bright moonlight falling upon them, they sat together, but not exactly as of old, for Maggie did not now look up into his face as she was wont to do, and if she thought his eye was resting upon her, she moved uneasily, while the rich blood deepened on her cheek. A change has come over Maggie Miller; it is the old story, too—old to hundreds of thousands, but new to her, the blushing maiden. Theo calls her nervous—Mrs. Jeffrey calls her sick—the servants call her mighty queer—while old Hagar, hovering ever near, and watching her with a jealous eye, knows she is in love.

Faithfully and well had Hagar studied Henry Warner to see if there were aught in him of evil, and though he was not what she would have chosen for the queenly Mag, she was satisfied if Mr. Arnot loved him and he loved Margaret. "But did he? He had never told her so," and in Hagar Warren's wild dark eyes there was a savage gleam as she thought: "He'll rue the day that he dare trifle with Maggie Miller."

ANOTHER BATTIE NEAR GENSAN

3,000 Troops were Engaged on Each Side

JAPS FINALLY RETIRED

Both Combatants had Considerable Losses

St. Petersburg, May 4.—It is stated that 3000 Russians approached Gensan yesterday. A similar number of Japanese sailed from the town to meet them, and severe fighting followed, with considerable losses on both sides. The Japanese eventually retired into Gensan. Two prominent Russian officials were wounded.

It is announced that the Ministry of War has already despatched all the guns and artillery stores necessary to re-arm the Russian army in the Far East.

It is assumed this announcement refers to Sunday's losses.

TRANSPORT MISSING.

Seoul, May 4.—The transport Hagi-noura Maru is acknowledged overdue at Gensan that it is feared that she has met the same fate as the Kinshiu Maru, and been blown up by a Russian torpedo boat.

A DELIGHTFUL CONCERT

Under the Auspices of the Y.M.C.A. Football Club

The concert given in the Y.M.C.A. Tuesday evening under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. Football Club, was in every respect most successful and well attended. The talent was all local and those who participated are to be congratulated on the success of their efforts.

The entertainment opened with an instrumental solo by Miss W. Gumpricht rendered in her usual artistic and masterly manner.

The next number was a vocal solo "The Village Wedding Song," by Miss Dawson, which was given with much sweetness of tone. Mr. A. E. Brundrett followed with "In the Heart of the Mighty Deep," which was received with much applause. A solo by Mrs. C. B. McAllister came next and was very much enjoyed, after which Mr. W. D. Campbell gave an excellent reading entitled "Travelling With a Reformer."

After a short intermission Mr. R. H. Jolliffe sang "The Maid of Malabar" in his usual good style. Mr. Donslow then gave a recitation, after which Mr. S. Glass sang "Message of the Violet. Mr. F. H. Dobbin then gave a humorous chalk talk on the teaching of drawing in the early days. The closing number, entitled "Rose of My Life," was given by Mr. Alf. E. Young and brought out to great advantage the fine qualities of his voice.

The programme throughout was most enjoyable and each number was encored and gracefully responded to by those taking part.

The accompanyists of the evening were Mrs. W. J. Morrow and Mr. Geo. Schneider.

HEALTH OF CZAR IS FAILING

Worry and Extreme Labor Over War Said to Prevent Sleep

Copenhagen, May 3.—According to information received here this afternoon from St. Petersburg the Czar is in an unsatisfactory state of health, his nervousness preventing him from sleeping. Since the outbreak of the war his Majesty has overworked himself daily by studying every detail in the War Department. This intense application, in connection with the recent Russian disasters and disappointments, has begun to tell on his health.

St. Petersburg, May 3.—I am told on what I must consider excellent authority that the Emperor will go to the seat of war some time in August, the exact date depending upon a family event which is expected to take place about that time, and which is the subject of engrossing interest in court circles.

This block of shares is offered to enable the Company to connect the above tunnel with its concentrating mill and projected terminus of railroad by tramway, a distance of 11,120 feet, thereby permitting shipments during the entire year.

A production of at least 125 tons daily will be maintained when these improvements are made, and if completed in the early summer, dividends can be paid from ore settlements before this fall.

Will cut known proven ore bodies 1100 feet from Apex, and open sufficient stoping ground to make an output of 100 tons daily.

Has already cut, through a cross vein two feet in width of good marketable Galena ore, the point of intersection being 400 feet beneath the surface. We have 900 feet of this vein in length.

The Monarch Consolidated Gold & Copper Mining and Smelting Company of BOULDER, COLORADO

Solicits the co-operation of reputable men in providing means for the thorough and rapid development of two large gold and copper mining estates, which are second to none in intrinsic value, and to this end extends every opportunity for determination as to whether statements made by the company are true or false.

The proposition when developed will pay no less than 50 per cent. per annum on the investment, and it behooves anyone who wishes to better his financial condition, to give immediate attention to this.

Full particulars in every detail will be given to all to whom such a proposition may appeal, but please do not ask for them unless you really are interested, because you waste your own time and ours also.

Capital $1,000,000, 500,000 Shares in Treasury

Property includes two great mining estates—one gold, the other copper—both containing wide, deep, proven veins of high and low grade ore.

Development work has been systematically carried on, with results that more than justify every claim made by the company, and unquestionably proves the destiny of the property to equal that of the greatest successful mining companies of the world.

Above Statement Can be Easily Verified

The following two facts alone will give anyone familiar with mining a rough idea of the great value of the property.

The Copper King Group contains one vein 20 feet wide, 8 feet of which runs from $10 to $100 per ton, and the Company owns 9,000 feet on this vein.

Ore running from $18 to $50 per ton is continually being shipped from the gold property, and 24 samples taken from widely different portions of the vein system averaged $38.25 per ton.

FACILITIES—The Company owns 1,720 acres of placer and timber land, water power of 50 (minimum) horse power. No expensive shaft work necessary. Ore easily treated on Company's property, thus saving freight and smelter charges.

DIVIDENDS—To begin earning and paying large dividends it is only necessary to erect two 50 ton mills, one on each property. To obtain funds for this purpose a limited amount of stock is offered at

FRANCE BLOCKS RUSSIAN LOAN

Minister of Finance Will Not Allow Appeal to Public

Paris, May 3.—I learn that negotiations have been in progress during the last few days for floating a new Russian loan on the French market, but have in a measure failed, owing to the absolute refusal of M. Rouvier, Minister of Finance, to countenance another appeal being made to the French public. As an alternative M. Rouvier approves of an issue of treasury bonds to the value of between three and four hundreds, redeemable at three months and at a high rate of interest not yet fixed, which the Bank of Hottinguer, at the head of a group of capitalists, it is understood would be willing to take up.

THE TOWN'S FINANCES

In view of Mr. Moore's recent attack upon the credit of the Town, made with the object of deterring the ratepayers from voting in favor of the Sugar Company bylaw, it is well to look at the true state of the Town's position, when it will be found that Mr. Moore's presentation of his case was both erroneous and misleading.

As stated in the Bylaw the total Debenture debt inclusive of waterworks debentures and exclusive of local improvement debentures, amounts to..... .... $558,040.07

The waterworks debentures amount to..... .... 212,000.00

Leaving the general indebtedness... ... ...$316,040.07

To this, however, it is fair to add the proportion payable by the town generally on local improvement debentures namely 39,940.07

Making total of..... ....$355,980.14

The waterworks debentures are specially charged upon the works themselves and the balance of the local improvement debentures is specially charged upon the properties affected.

Mr. Moore committed to tell his hearers that the Town has some assets to apply against the above liability of..... ....$355,980.14 They are as follows.

"Immediately available"

Sinking fund.....$	48,900.39
Midland Railway mortgage	32,000.00
Cash in hand and in bank...	10,873.16
Rents due.....	2,230.24	94,003.79
Reducing the debt to... .....$261,976.35

But there are other assets of a marketable nature namely.

Market Square & Buildings... .....$130,000.00
Town Offices	6,000.00
Fire Hall and Stables...	3,000.00
Fire Engine and Hose Wagons ...	4,000.00
Interest in County Buildings ...	9,750.00
Land in Wards 1 and 3...	3,472.00
Steam Roller, Crusher & Engine...	3,764.00
	159,986.00

Leaving only... ... ...$101,990.35

Against which the town has all its school properties, valued at $82,516. Now, Mr. Moore knows that all these assets would have to be realized ob before the ratepayers generally could be called upon to pay a cent. The figures here given are taken from the Auditors' report. We are, after all not in quite such a state of 'blue ruin' as the learned gentleman depicted in lugubrious terms and with visage as if he were about to weep. There is no town in Canada having such a splendid financial position. But, says Mr. Moore, think what we have to provide in the near and distant, especially distant, future! Waterworks dam for example. Truly the expenditure of $50,000, upon that would be fearfully burdensome; the revenue from waterworks is so wretched that the Commissioners have been able to do no more than reduce rates 25 per cent., provide all interest and sinking fund for the debentures, pay all expenses and contribute some thousands of dollars to the general revenue of the town! Yet this bug-a-boo of a new dam is put forward as a terrible burden. We may thank Heaven there are not many such pessimists as Mr. Moore in Peterborough. Our people have confidence in the present and hope in the future; they are not to be frightened by an imaginative picture of what the future may produce.

GRAND FUTURE FOR TRENT VALLEY CANAL

The following article, from the pen of Mr. J. Alexr. Culverwell, recently appeared in the Canadian Electrical News. It contains much information regarding the Trent Valley Canal—soon to become Canada's great route from the west to the seaboard. Mr. Culverwell says:

What a remarkable situation for Canadians to waken up to—that at this late day they discover the Trent Valley Canal has followed out the method adopted in the $100,000,000 modern German canal system connecting the coal and steel districts with the North Sea, viz., length and breadth of lock rather than depth.

The draught of the German barges is 7 1-2 feet and capacity 1,000 tons. The dimensions of the Trent Valley locks are 134 feet long by 33 feet wide, and will have a depth of 8 feet 4 inches on the sill, as per departmental instructions. The locks will accomodate barges of 800 tons or 25,000 bushels, and the total cost will be about $9,000,000.

The present Erie Canal, which has a capacity for only 240 ton barges, is now being enlarged by New York State at a cost of $10,000,000 to accommodate barges of 1,000 tons. 150 feet long, 25 feet wide, and having ten feet draught—the depth on lock sills being 11 feet, and the depth in the canal reach 12 feet.

The work on the Trent Valley Canal was originally commenced by the Imperial Government in 1825, but the money voted was diverted to quell the Mackenzie rebellion. Construction was again started in 1880 by the Dominion Government and has been dragging along until now. Nearly $4,000,000 has been expended, and this season construction will have been completed between Lake Couchiching—an arm of Lake Simcoe—on the north, and Rice Lake on the south. The balance, viz., $5,000,000, would open up to the two outlets, the northern outlet between Midland on Georgian Bay and Orillia on Lake Simcoe, and the southern outlet between Rice Lake and Lake Ontario, either at Port Hope or Trenton. This waterway would then open up about 1,000 miles of inland shore line, as many of the lakes and rivers tie transversly to the line of the canal, and have some six million acres of land within ten miles of its wharves.

In its national work of utility, the Trent Valley Canal and waterway will connect the Georgian Bay at Midland, where the great lake carriers will discharge the North-West grain into the Trent Valley barges, which, passing through this series of connecting short canals, lakes and rivers, viz Peterborough, will enter Lake Ontario at Port Hope or Trenton, and thence proceed by the St. Lawrence river and canals to the city of Montreal, where they will discharge into the ocean carriers for Europe. The old 9-foot system of St. Lawrence canals, which are still in existence, can be used by the Trent Valley barges, which therefore will not need to crowd up the new 14-foot St. Lawrence ship canal system—a great advantage.

Cheap power and cheap transportation are the two principal factors of the cost of manufacture, and with such advantages as the cheap power now offering at Peterborough and also elsewhere on the canal, it does not take a Rothschild to see as he did in 1896 and make the statement that "This district is destined to become one of the great manufacturing centres of the continent." Surely it must be admitted the possibilities of this district are that it will become a great industrial beehive, and that Midland and other towns on the Georgian Bay, as well as Orillia, Barrie, Lindsay, and Peterborough, and the great Midland district on the line of the canal, will be simply feeders to the trade and prosperity of Toronto and Hamilton, etc., as well as points east and Montreal. Here it may well be noted that the manufacturing development at Peterborough, in particular, has been remarkable indeed the past three years.

There is every reason to expect that the Trent Valley Canal will be lined with great flour mills—we have already made a good start at Peterborough and Lindsay—and thus become a second "Minneapolis" district—by reason of the cheap water power and the short route water way to the North-West. If we would be consistent in our "Made-in-Canada" campaign, we would not export our greatest product as raw material.

The great lumber regions on the shore of the Georgian Bay can be tapped by the Trent Valley barges. I would look to see also the canal district becoming an iron centre through Lake Superior ore being brought into close touch by the opening of the canal—as by reason of the shorter distance the upper lake steamers could make three trips to the canal port in the same time as would be consumed for only two trips to Buffalo. In fact, the Welland route between the Soo and Montreal will be a day longer, or two days in the return trip, than the Trent Valley route. The Trent route between the Soo and Liverpool is shorter altogether by 730 miles, or nearly 1,500 in the return trip, than by the Erie route.

At Peterborough the hydraulic lift-lock is now completed, while a second one, a lower lift, which is located near Lake Simcoe, is well on to completion. Nature has indeed repeated itself five times in different locations on this waterway, adapting herself for the use of great hydraulic lift-locks—which together will save about six hours over the ordinary system of locking as used on the Welland and Erie canals. The Peterborough hydraulic lift-lock will lift these 25,000 bushel barges from the lower level of the canal 65 feet up to the higher level, or vice versa, by means of two immense steel pontoons. These pontoons are closed at their ends by gates, hung on the lower edges, and gates hung also used to close the ends of the reaches of the canal on the upper and lower levels. These pontoons, guided between three massive concrete towers, are each supported on top of the steel pistons 7 1-2 feet in diameter, which work in watertight steel wells one under each piston. Each pontoon is simultaneously up and down.

The canal, on the level above the Peterborough lift-lock, starts at Nassau, where it is diverted from the river Otonabee, and is carried along the high table and parallel with the river for four miles, and is lowered by means of the lift-lock into the river below, at Peterborough.

This hydraulic lift-lock simply copies the method adopted in the modern European canal, and its use was recommended by Frank Turner, C.E., who was one of the Canadian Government Commission of 1887 associated with John Kennedy, C.E. harbor engineer of Montreal, and Judge Weller, of Peterborough. This Commission, it is well to add, reported favorably on the Trent Valley Canal both as to its water supply, feasibility and utility, and advised its completion.

A number of hydraulic lift-locks have been in successful use in Europe for some years. The lock at Les Fontinettes, in France, was constructed in 1888, and replaced six ordinary connecting locks, thus reducing the time as well as operating charges. The German lock lifts a 1,000 ton barge, while the Peterborough lifts an 800 ton barge. There is also a double lift-lock at La Louviere, and also a lock at Anderton, in the west of England.

Detailed figures as to the probable cost of carriage by Trent Valley steam barge with several tow-barges in concert between Midland and Montreal were submitted to the Royal Commission on Transportation at their recent sitting at Peterborough by practical marine men, which well bear out my previously repeated contentions that grain could be shipped via Trent Valley in a much shorter time and at a cheaper rate than via Trent Valley in a much shorter time and at a cheaper rate than via the new Enlarged Erie route, notwithstanding that the Enlarged Erie locks will accomodate two barges in tandem. Here it must not be forgotten that the Trent Valley expenditure will only total $9,000,000 as against a total of $163,000,000 which is the cost of the present Erie canal together with the proposed enlargement. The Trent Valley locks can also be duplicated at a small comparative cost, thus further shortening the line of a fleet of barges and cheapening the rate over the enlarged Erie, as also enlarging the total tonnage at the canal.

Surely anyone should see at a glance the superiority of the Trent Valley route over the enlarged Erie, when it is noted that there will be 257 miles of actual standard canalage and 233 miles of river and lake on the new Erie between Buffalo and New York while there will be only 13 miles actual standard canalage on the Trent Valley and 45 miles on the St. Lawrence canals, or a total of 58 miles of canalage and 411 miles of river and lake between Midland and Montreal.

The late Mr. E. Sweet, C.E., State Egnineer of New York has shown by experiments that the same power that will propel a barge 4 miles per hour in Erie standard canalage will drive a barge 5.9 miles per hour in open water. This fact alone will cause a great saving both in time and in coal consumption on the Trent Valley over the Enlarged Erie.

Certain marine men are clamboring the government to enlarge the Welland Canal, to enable 6,000 ton boats to pass on to Kingston, making necessary a 21 foot channel, and doubling the length of locks — the the idea being to discharge at Kingston into 2,000 ton barges. the cost of which I am well assured would be some $33,000,000. This request was made just after $40,000,000 had been spent on enlarging the whole Welland-St. Lawrence route from 9 to 14 feet. I advocate, first, the spending of the five millions necessary to complete the outlets of the Trent Valley Canal, and would point out the fact that marine experts writing in American journals have stated that the only Canadian route they feared was the barge route through the Trent Valley, which, as they express it, was simply a connecting of lakes and rivers. "The grain hopper is full, but the mouth is small." Canadians must awake to the fact that in the Trent Valley Canal this country has been entertaining an angel unawares.

A BUSINESS MAN'S LETTER.

Wm. Thomson, Esq., of Orillia, Vice-President Standard Chemical Company of Toronto, Tells of a Visit to the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives.

GREATLY IMPRESSED WITH WORK BEING DONE.

Personally Raises Several Hundred Dollars to Help Lessen the Load of Debt.

There can be little doubt that the National Sanitarium Association is handicapped in its great work for Consumptives in the fact that its two institutions in Muskoka are far away from any large centre of population. Few people have an opportunity to see for themselves the magnificent work that is being done.

These hospitals are away from the public eye. Any, however, who do visit them, are united in their commendation of the splendid appointments of the place, and, best of all, of the real joy and hope that is being brought to many suffering ones.

We are glad to have the opportunity of publishing the following letter from Mr. Wm. Thomson, of Orillia, one of Canada's best known lumbermen, which tells what he has seen himself. It reads:

ORILLIA, Ont., November 2, 1903.

W. J. Gage, Esq.,
Chairman Executive Committee
National Sanitarium Association,
Toronto, Ont.

My Dear Mr. Gage,—

I have much pleasure in enclosing herewith cheque for One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) from the Tudhope Carriage Company of Orillia, a donation to the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. Please acknowledge this to the Tudhope Carriage Company in the usual way.

I have written to a number of my friends, to try and get them interested in this good work. I hope to be able to send you further donations. I have written my friends a personal letter, something similar to the following:

"Last week I paid a visit to the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. I met some of the management there, and promised to try and interest some of my friends in this work.

"I might say there were 49 patients there last week, all poor people, most of them without a dollar in the world, and suffering from the dreadful disease, Consumption. There are many sad stories, and I know I have thought a great deal about the work of the institution ever since my visit there. I do believe it is worthy of assistance, and we who have health and the necessaries of life should encourage this work along.

"I understand the expenses lately have been double the income, and unless the management meet with more encouragement, I am afraid the work will have to be curtailed. I know you have many calls, but I do wish you would give this matter a thought, and, if possible, assist. I have written to two or three confidentially, and hope to be able to collect some more for this work. Should you not feel like contributing a donation, remember this request, and your reply is just between you and me, and strictly confidential.

"I might mention, to show that I have confidence in the work, I have already given a donation of $100.00 and two row boats to the Free Hospital this year, and intend to give another $100.00 before the end of the year."

Sincerely yours,

Wm Thomson

Sir Wm. R. Meredith, Kt., or Mr. W. J. Gage, Toronto, will receive and acknowledge any contributions made.

TOILS WITHOUT SLEEP.

Lineman Works Aloft for Six Days and Seven Nights and Then Succumbs to Strain.

Dorr Hardy, of Utica, N. Y., is at his home exhausted from working 156 hours without sleep. Hardy is a lineman employed by the Bell Telephone company. With other members of his gang he went to Cooperstown recently to repair some wires which had been torn down by recent storms.

Hardy is a cable splicer, and, realizing the necessity of an early completion of the repairs, he declared that he would not quit until the job was done. For six days and seven nights he toiled, stopping only for meals. All of his work was among the crossbars of the poles, 30 feet from the ground. His midnight meal he ate aloft.

At the end of 156 hours he had finished his task. He said his nerves were unshaken until he had finished. Then relaxation seemed to set him on fire.

The Microbe Age.

Medical experts are reported to have discovered that appendicitis is caused by a germ. Now, says the Chicago Record-Herald, we may expect to hear at any time that the broken leg is due to microbes.

Consumption is Not Hereditary

It is Not Handed Down From Generation to Generation but is Simply "Caught" by the Germs Getting Into Your Lungs Cured by Catarrhozone

Consumption was formerly believed by some to be due to poverty of the blood. By others it was supposed to be hereditary. Both these beliefs are incorrect.

If the disease passes through several members of the same family it is because the germs get into the clothes, bedding, furniture and carpets that are in general use.

These germs find their way into the air, are inhaled, lodge themselves securely in the throat and lungs where they rapidly increase, and soon claim another victim.

The only remedy that has cured a genuine case of Consumption is Catarrhozone. Its germ-killing vapor is inhaled into every air cell and air passage of the head, throat and lungs, and creates a healthy condition of these organs in which disease germs cannot live.

It is impossible for consumption to make headway in the soothing antiseptic vapor of Catarrhozone is inhaled a few times daily into the lungs. The cause of the disease (germ life) is at once removed, the inflamed mucous surfaces are healed, and a lasting cure effected.

Catarrhozone is breathed right into the lungs. By its soothing influence the soreness caused by coughing is removed. The cough becomes less severe and soon ceases all together. Catarrhozone aids expectoration, quiets the nerves, and lends to the patient a large measure of comfort.

Consumptives are strongly urged to use Catarrhozone as immediate relief always follows. It is a direct method of treatment, and is endorsed by the highest medical authorities everywhere. The balsamic vapor reaches the lungs and respiratory tracts in a speedy manner that no medicine taken into the stomach can do.

Catarrhozone is just as good as a change of climate, equally pleasant and cheaper. It can be used at home at any hour of the day or night and never causes inconvenience or bother.

The complete Catarrhozone outfit contains two months treatment and costs only $1.00. It is a perfect boon to consumptives and their surrounding friends. You cannot afford to miss the benefit of Catarrhozone and should order it today. Sold by all druggists or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., or Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

Our Birthday Remembered

Yesterday when the managing editor of this great family journal returned from lunch, he found on his desk a superb bouquet of carnations and roses, with a card attached wishing him many happy returns of his birthday. The card was signed on behalf of the young ladies of the staff. There is nothing this gifted appreciates more than flowers—carnations and roses particularly—the sweetest of all nature's loveliness, and in this instance made additionally attractive by the green and goodness of the charming donors.

WORK AND TAXES

To the Editor of the Times:

Sir—We hear much about the danger of our taxes being raised if the sugar by-law carries. Well, what the workingman would like to know is how he can pay his taxes if he don't get work. Last summer many of us would have been idle, and in poverty, but for the Sugar Company. They employed 100 men and 50 boys for months and paid every cent of the wages. It was a God-send to many poor families in this town. Mr. Gordon, Mr. Kendry, Mr. Bradburn and Mr. Garvin are not the men to ask the town to vote for an unreasonable by-law, and every working man should support them.

Thanking you, sir, for your space, I am,

Yours truly,
LABORER.

Peterborough, May 3rd, 1904.

THE SUGAR SUPPLY

To the Editor of the Times:

Sir,—When farmers can make a net profit per annum of more than 50 per cent. of the value of their land by growing sugar beets, the citizens need have no fear of a lack of supply. A sugar factory in Peterborough County will mean in a few years smaller farms and increased profits. This will enable many farmers to keep their sons at home instead of driving them to Manitoba and the Territories. It seems clear from the experience of farmers around Berlin and Wallaceburg that 10 acres of sugar beets, with soil properly prepared, will yield a larger profit than 30 acres of any other crop. That being so, a farmer could live well on a thirty-acre farm by growing yearly 10 acres of beets, 10 acres of oats, and 10 acres of clover. The pulp from the factory, together with the oat straw and clover, would provide ample food for many cattle and hogs, to-day such a source of wealth to the farming community. By all means let the by-law be heartily supported.

THE MAYOR AND MR. GORDON

His Worship Pays a Flattering Tribute to Mr. D. A. Gordon

The following letter from his Worship Mayor Roger speaks for itself:

Mr.—In regard to any question concerning Mr. D. A. Gordon, I may say that Mr. Gordon appeared twice before the council and made a most favorable impression. He is a well known public man of high repute, both as to his financial standing, integrity and business ability, whose substantial interest in Peterborough it would be an acquisition to secure.

Yours truly,
G. M. ROGER.

There passed away yesterday afternoon at her home, McDonnel street, at the ripe old age of 86 years, Mrs. Charles Ormond, relict of the late Dr. Ormond. The deceased had been in rather poor health for some time, so that her demise was not unexpected. Her husband was the founder of the Ormond & Walsh drug business, now carried on by Mr. Dickson Davidson.

The deceased lady left no family. One daughter, Mrs. T. E. Bradburn, passed away some years ago. A number of grandchildren are left to mourn her demise. The announcement of the funeral will be made in to-morrow's issue.

NEW FIRE APPLIANCE

A Story Showing That the First Party Has No Chance

It was in the back parlors of the Snowden House, and a traveller from the Lower Provinces had the floor. The conversation turned on sugar making, and, our friend, not knowing what he was up against, started in to relate a story how a neighbor of his, near Sherbrooke, could fill a bucket of sap in an incredibly short time. "Ontario," he said, 'may be something on maple sugar, but I guess you ain't got no trees that give down like them in my neighbor's back lot. Why, gentlemen, I've seen a sap bucket fill in four minutes by my watch."

There was a silence for a few seconds, no one seeming to be equal to the task of answering, when the genial proprietor, with a mischievous twinkle in his eye, broke in:

"Huh!" said he disgustedly, "We wouldn't tap such trees around here. Why in many of our rural towns and villages there's sugar maples set all along the streets. If a house gets on fire what do you think we do?

"I don't know," said the knight of the grip.

"Saw off a limb and the sap shoots out like a steam fire engine and does the business for the fire in no time. Seen it done a thousand times."

A PRETTY MAY WEDDING

Mr. Wm. Comstock and Miss Eva Maud Lewis United in Marriage

A very pretty wedding took place yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mr. William Lewis, 219 Simcoe street, when his second daughter, Miss Eva Maud was married to Mr. William Comstock.

Rev. J. P. Wilson, of George street, Methodist Church, performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate relatives and friends.

The bride was given away by her father and wore a most becoming gown of dainty corded silk, with rimming of pearl and chilfon and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Lottie Lewis, who was attired in grey silk with trimmings of chiffon and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Manson Comstock. Miss Dolly Comstock rendered Mendelssohn's Wedding March very acceptably.

A dainty wedding breakfast was served at the conclusion of the ceremony by Mr. Harry Long.

Many and beautiful were the presents received by this popular young couple. A handsome silver pudding dish was presented to the groom by the Eko Club of which he is a valued member. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold watch and to the bridesmaid a crescent of pearls.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Edmunds, of Detroit, a sister of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Comstock left on the 5.10 C.P.R. express for a honeymoon trip to various western points and on their return will reside on Sherbrooke street.

Often leads to poverty. No real woman ever sold her heart for the luxuries of life. But many a woman who has gladly faced poverty for the man she loved, may well doubt her wisdom when pain becomes the mate of poverty. If she were rich, she thinks, she could find a way of cure.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is within the reach of every one. It lifts the burden of pain which weighs down those who suffer from womanly diseases. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"You have my heartfelt thanks for your kind advice to me," writes Mrs. Geo. Fletcher, of 161 Victoria Avenue, Galt, Ontario. "I was troubled with catarrh of uterus for over a year. The doctors said I would have to go through an operation, but I commenced to use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' also his 'Lotion Tablets' and 'Antiseptic and Healing Suppositories.' Now I am completely cured, after using six bottles of Dr. Pierce's medicine. I am glad to say his medicine has made me a new woman."

Weak and sick women, especially those suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

ington. In this way the new line would be brought into direct competition with the old Spokane & Northern and in addition it would tap a large and rich country.

Senator Turner, who will be remembered as a jurist of repute for the United States in the Alaskan boundary arbitration, will be the general counsel of the road. Mr. Corbin will be the prime mover in the matter. He will obtain the charter from the State of Washington, and the road will be constructed by him. That part of the bargain between Mr. Corbin and the C.P.R. would appear to be essential for if it were essential for the C.P.R to apply for the charter the opposition of the other lines running into Spokane would be roused and the new road might be blocked for an indefinite period. The idea so far as it is completed points to Mr. Corbin building the line from Yahk to Spokane, and ten turning it over to the C.P.R Mr. Corbin does not deny it.

JAPANESE KNOW NOT FEAR--CHEERED AS THEY WENT DOWN.

Remarkable Heroism was Displayed in the Blocking of Port Arthur Harbor-- Desperate Courage

Port Arthur, May 6.—The Japanese displayed desperate courage in their fireship attack on the night of Tuesday. The ships as they approached were divided into three groups, all heading straight for the entrance of the harbor. While still far from the shore they ran on the Russian mines, and they were under a murderous fire from the Russian batteries. Three torpedo boats followed the fireships to pick up the crews of the latter. When the first ship foundered the crew clambored up the mast, cheering for the Emperor of Japan as they went down. From the masthead of the second vessel, as she began to indicate her course to those astern, their small boats, though sorn riddled, did not raise the white flag.

A Japanese sailor who came ashore at Electric Hill, when summoned to surrender sprang forward with a revolver in his hand and died fighting.

Another Japanese sailor, who was pulled out of the water tried to throttle himself with his necktie.

One of the Russian rowboats which approached a sinking ship for the purpose of saving her crew, was met by a small arm fire.

The Russian sailors showed every consideration for the captured Japanese, wrapping them up in their own coats and carrying them ashore. One of the Japanese officers suicided by disemboweling himself, declaring he would, rather die than go home in disgrace.

torpedo boats were sunk, the remainder withdrawing in a damaged condition.

Eight fireships were sunk and very few of the crews were saved. Most of them were killed.

In the morning many dead bodies were seen floating about outside the harbor. These were collected by the Russians, who brought them ashore and buried them.

The vigilance of the men in the watch towers and on the guard boats was astonishing. To their keen eyes was due to the prompt sighting of the enemy.

The Japanese attacked brilliantly without seeming to notice the murderous fire directed on them.

The Russians captured two officers and thirty men.

It is stated that the crews of the fire ships included a number of Japanese cadets, who showed extraordinary bravery, especially when the ships were sinking. Several of the crew stood at the mastheads firing revolvers and then plunged into the sea. It is supposed that none of the cadets were saved.

The attempt to close the mouth of the harbor failed.

There has been no developments since the attack on Port Arthur on May 3.

During the bombardment the big guns of the Russian ships and batteries fired 2,500 shots, while the machine guns of the gunboat Gilak fired 3,000 shots.

WHY THE RUSSIANS RETIRED.

"Finally all the supports were brought up into the firing line, but owing to the great distance from our main reserves it was impossible for them to reach the advanced force in time, and our men retired from the principal position to another position in the rear of Tuncheu, followed by a concentrated fire of the Japanese, who could not make up their minds to descend from the crest they occupied and face the fire of our batteries and ferics and poutemmetes. They dug fresh trenches and opened a heavy artillery fire on our new position and began to turn our left flank toward Chingow.

"Two battalions of the 11th Regiment and the 33rd Battery of the Third Brigade of Artillery, belonging to the main reserve, were ordered to Laofumhou. They occupied a position with a double firing line, thus permitting our advanced line, which had suffered heavily, and our wounded, to retire.

THE ELEVENTH DID NOBLY.

"A battalion of the 11th Regiment both flanks of which were repeatedly turned by the enemy, advanced with fixed bayonets, preceded by buglers, to clear a passage. The Japanese, however, declined a hand-to-hand conflict and recoiled.

"In front of the regiment a chaplain, bearing a cross, was struck by two bullets.

"It was only by advancing on the Japanese with the bayonet that the 77th Regiment was able to retire.

"On the arrival of the battalion of the 10th Regiment all the troops were able to beat a retreat.

THE LOSSES ARE VERY HEAVY.

"The losses of the 11th and 12th Regiments were very great, but they are not exactly known.

"In the 11th the killed included Col. Laming and Lieut.-Cols. Domeli and Rafevsky. The 12th lost nine company commanders killed or wounded.

"The Second and Third Batteries of the Sixth Brigade having lost the greater number of their men and horses, were compelled to abandon their guns after rendering them useless. For the same reason six guns of Third Battery of the Third Brigade of Artillery and eight poutemmetes which could not be brought away, were also disabled. The mountainous nature of the country made it impossible to save the guns by means of drag ropes.

THE WOUNDED LOOKED AFTER.

"Up to the present 800 wounded, including fourteen officers, have been brought to the hospital at Feng-Wang-Cheng. Their eventual transportation elsewhere is fully assured.

"Japanese cavalry appeared to the southeast of Feng-Wang-Cheng, but but seeing two companies with two guns opposed to it did not venture to approach.

"The transportation of the wounded by hired Chinese bearers to Feng-Wang-Cheng was very difficult. Two wheeled carts and horses lent by the cavalry were also utilized for this purpose. Most of the wounded, however, arrived on foot, assisted by their comrades, and reached Feng-Wang-Cheng within 24 hours.

"Lieut.-General Zassulitch declared that the troops retained their morale, notwithstanding the heavy losses, and are ready for fresh engagements.

"The Japanese losses were very heavy at the passage of the Ihor river, at their positions at Turen-Cheng and on the hill occupied by the two battalions of the 11th Regiment.

"According to the statements of participants in the battle, at least 3000 to 4000 were killed."

JAPAN TO OCCUPY NEW POSITON IN A WEEK

When the Whole Russian Line of Operations in the Liao Valley to be Threatened

Tokio, May 6.—General Kuroki is expected to occupy Feng Huan Cheng within a week. His army is well advanced on the road to that town and his reserves are following from Antung and Hushan. Nothing is feared from any reinforcements that General Kuropatkin can put at the disposal of General Sassalitch on this side of Motien Pass. The course that Kuroki's army will take beyong Feng Huan Cheng will depend on circumstances. Five routes are open, any of which, it is said, will lead to a point where the invaders may begin an effective movement. Should Kuropatkin concentrate heavily on the main road to Liao Yang, Kuroki may deflect his army westward and threaten the whole Russian position in the Liao Valley and along the railway to Port Arthur. The Japanese commander is likely to act with great freedom because he feels that his communications at present are absolutely secure. This opinion is based on the necessity under which the Russians are believed to labor, of fighting on the defensive and on the fact that an ample force has been left in the rear to complete the occupation of the Yalu district.

Beyond all this, General Kuroki knows that Japanese troops are on the sea subject to call whenever developments disclose where they can be used to best advantage. The authorities here are in constant communication with Kuroki. That general is said to have destroyed all Russian means of telegraphing, thus keeping General Kuropatkin in ignorance of the location and condition of the Czar's defeated troops.

There is a disposition in some quarters to criticise the sinking of nine merchant ships at the entrance to Port Arthur as a piece of extravagance, nevertheless general confidence exists in the superior knowledge of the naval authorities possess which enables them to estimate the necessities of the situation. Anyhow, the complete bottling up of Port Arthur, at any cost, is of the most importance.

JAPS ARE ADVANCING.

London, May 6.—From the best advices available in this city, it appears that Gen. Kuroki's army is advancing against the Russian position at Feng Huang Cheng in four columns. The combined front of the Japanese army is between ten and fifteen miles in extent. The centre is composed of the Imperial guards. The right of the 12th division, and left of the second division and the van of a strong body of fresh troops specially reserved by General Kuroki for purposes of pursuit. It is not believed in military circles that the Russians will offer great resistance to the victorious army at Feng Huang Cheng. The retreating generals are considered not to be in a position to protect their flanks at that point.

RUSSIA WANTS COAL.

Paris, May 6.—As there has been published a statement to the effect that Russian chartered colliers are supplied with a secret charter as well as with a formal charter to be shown Japanese capturers should the Mikado's cruisers overhaul the colliers, the real truth concerning the Russian coal situation has leaked out here. M. Worms, one to the largest coal dealers in Europe, and M. Salles, a prominent shipbroker in Marseilles, both of whom are deeply concerned in the secret charter undertaking, supply the following facts to a newspaper correspondent: "Recognizing the impossibility of sending naval reinforcements to the Far East, unless its coal supplies should be greatly increased, the Russian government agreed to consider the secret charter question on condition that shipowners and coal dealers should take all risk. In return Russia was willing to agree to pay a price of $18 a ton for coal delivered either at Port Arthur or Vladivostok. The owners refused this one sided proposition, insurance being impossible, even if Russia's price had been acceptable.

"Reports to the effect that Russia chartered colliers ou its own responsibility are thus entirely untrue. Russia is waiting for the dealers to yield and the dealers are waiting for Russia's price to go up double or even treble its original offer. In any case the owners want a sufficient price to make the risk possible."

JAPAN HOLDS CHINA IN CHECK.

Pekin, May 6.—Japan is renewing its pressure on China to refrain from any act that might be construed into a breach of neutrality. The authorities are being assured that the Tokio Government hopes in a few months to restore the most important part, if not the whole of Manchuria, to China, provided the Chinese avoid any policy that might precipitate general complications. The Japanese say they have both the naval and military situations well in hand, while Russia cannot bring up reserves quick enough or in sufficient numbers to alter the balance unfavorably to the islanders. It is obvious that the Tokio Government's efforts to keep China neutral are timely and necessary. General Kuroki's victory is reverberating throughout the Orient, and the impression it has made in Pekin is profound. The war party are eager to share the laurels of the Japanese.

GRAPHIC STORY OF NAVEL BATTLE

Particulars of the Last Attempt to Cork Port Arthur

DESPERATE TACTICS USED

How the Japanese Went to Work to Effect Her Purpose

Port Arthur, May 6.—The Japanese attempt to block Port Arthur was begun a few minutes before one o'clock, when the first shot was fired, awakening the Town with their thunderous noise. The gunboats lying in the harbor joined in the cannonade, the firing gradually increasing in volume until there was a continuous crash of great guns.

Some of the enemy's torpedo boats were discovered, but they were finally swallowed up in the darkness, and the batteries and warships after forty minutes' activity, were again shrouded in the great gloom, till the flashing searchlights showed that the military were alive to the warning conveyed of the approach of Japanese ships.

Shortly after 2 o'clock, a searchlight played from the sea directly upon the entrance of the harbor, lighting it up to show the way for the fireships. The projector moved to the right from Liao Tshan to Golden Hill. For a quarter of an hour the light was watched with curiosity and then a second cannonade began, the heaviest fire being directed to the left of Golden Hill, where the fireships were located.

At about 4 o'clock the batteries ceased firing, save for an occasional shot.

Just about dawn the bark of the rapid-fire guns and the crackling of the mitrailleuse were heard from Golden Hill. Occasionally there were sounds of explosions as of mines going off. It was the enemy's ships striking on Russian torpedoes.

At this hour a magnificent sea picture was formed by the soft light of the waning moon, the orange flashes of the guns, the signal rockets and the purple fires on the steel colored sea which were alternately lighting up and going out.

The fireships were ten in number, each of about 3,000 tons each.

VERY SMALL VOTE POLLED

Sugar Company By-law Beaten by a Majority of 254 Votes—Institute By-law Carried

The result of the vote on the two by-laws yesterday is not a surprise. It was generally conceded that the by-law guaranteeing the bonds of the Peterborough Sugar Company was unlikely to pass, and that the Collegiate Institute by-law would pass. The vote was not large, considering the importance of the by-laws. The following is the vote:

A GOOD IDEA

Lord Strathcona a Wonderful Educational Factor

London, May 6.—Lord Strathcona is actively interesting himself in the extension of the system of exchange of letters between scholars in England and Canada. The system is proving a most successful means of enlightenment. A conference of headmasters to discuss this and kindred Anglo-Canadian questions is summoned for May 17th. Lord Strathcona will preside.

FIRED THE BIG GUN

Kingstonians Were Startled by Roar of Cannon

Kingston, May 6.—One of the cannon in Macdonald part, on the harbor front in the lower residential part of the city, was fired off at a quarter past ten o'clock last night by some mischievious persons the roar and tremendous shock rocking the ground and shaking every house in the city. Twenty-two large panes of glass in the residences of Henry Folger and James McFarland, on Emily street, one hundred feet from the cannon, were smashed. A large quantity of powder is missing from the Royal Military College, and it is presumed some of it was used for this frolic.

WARSAW.

—The cheese industry is now in full blast, and the farmers are rushing their automobiles to the factory daily. A very good year is expected.

—The weather is simply diving. The boys are coming out in white duck, and bicycling is becoming a popular pastime. Mr. Reg. G. Hendren is putting in a side line of bicycles, and has purchased a fine new vulcanizer. Satisfaction guaranteed.

—Dr. Mitchell now has his sister visiting him and his office will soon present an immaculate appearance.

—The Warsaw opera house is closed for the summer and the Dummer comedians will in future perform every evening at Quarry Lake pavillion. Cars leave Morgan hotel every fifteen minutes.

—A moose was seen at Choate's corner the other evening, but was captured alive for the Zoo. Now for a sea serpent in Indian River.

—One of the Scotch Line poets has a outbreak of spring fever, if we judge by the following;

We hear the coming of the crow
And see him northward winging.
By these and other signs we know
That gentle spring is springing.
First it frised hailed and blowed.
Then it snowed and then it thewed
Then there came a shower of rain
And then it frised and blewed again.

—An ice cream social will be given by the ladies of the Ladies' College in the Warsaw park on Monday evening next. Admission 10c. Members free.

—The following was handed your correspondent the other day: "A country doctor gave a dance to the farmers and tenants of his town, after supper he noticed a certain farmer's wife looking rather disconsolate. On being interrogated she replied: "Well sir, I never was so insulted in my life as I have been tonight." "Dear me," said the doctor, "What has happened?" "Happened," she replied, "Why a young chap comed up to me after supper, "I suppose your program is quite full," "and believe me, sir, I had nothing but the wing of a chicken."

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

NEW FISHERY REGULATIONS.

Minimum Size of Bass and Lunge to be Caught

Yesterday Mr. Thwaite, District Fishery Inspector, was in town, a guest at the Snowden House. To a Times reporter Mr. Thwaite stated that the fishery regulations for this year provided that no maskinonge under 24 inches in length shall be killed and no bass less than ten inches. A 24 inch lunge will weigh between three and four pounds, and a twelve inch bass about three pounds.

Last year the regulations protected maskinonge under 18 inches and bass under 10 inches.

It has also been decided to confiscate spears wherever found. Hereafter no man will have a right to possess a spear at all.

AFTER A LUNGE

Exciting Chase After a Big Fish in the Creek

Yesterday there was something doing in the creek at and near the point where it crosses Charlotte street. While a citizen was standing on the bridge looking over the railing into the water he was surprised to see a maskilonge, of probably ten or twelve pounds weight, quietly swimming about in a pool below. He at once gave the alarm, when a number of boys assembled and a red hot chase began. There is hardly enough water in the stream to enable the fish to navigate. A number of boys started in, regardless of wet feet, and tried to capture his fishship, probably forgetting thay they were violating the law in so doing. They ran the poor lunge up and down the stream, until finally it put on a spurt, flopped its tail in the air, and disappeared down stream.

WEDDING BELLS

Nuptials of Miss Lydia Ruth Rome and Mr. W. J. Bolton, of Toronto

A very pretty wedding took place at the residence of Mr. Isaac Herrington, Chemong Road, when Miss Lydia Ruth Rome, sister of Mrs. Herrington, was married to Mr. Walter John Bolton, of Toronto. Rev A H. Brace, of the Park Street Baptist church, performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate friends and relatives.

The bride was attired in a very pretty costume of pearl gray silk rimmed with allover lace and carried a lovely bouquet of white roses. Miss Maud Rome, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and was similarly attired. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. John Rome. The groom was assisted by Mr. J. W. Smith, of Peterborough.

A dainty wedding breakfast was served at the conclusion of the ceremony, after which a very pleasant evening was enjoyed by the guests. A number of handsome and costly presents were received by this popular young couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Bolton left yesterday morning for Toronto, where they will reside in future.

HAS ISSUED A WRIT.

A CASE OF MUCH LOCAL INTEREST NOW ON

Mrs. J. M. Irwin Takes Action to Protect Her Good Name

A writ has been issued at the instance of Mrs. Annie Irwin, of Toronto, formerly of Peterborough, against her husband, J. M. Irwin and his wife. It will be remembered that Mr. and Mrs. Irwin separated while residing in Peterborough, and it is said, that Mr. Irwin secured a divorce in Dakota. At the same time Mr. and Mrs. Sparkham Sheldrake, who resided in Lakefield, separated. Mrs. Sheldrake also, it is alleged, securing a divorce in the United States. Mr. Irwin and Mrs. Sheldrake subsequently were married.

In the writ just issued copyright in a husband's name, definition of bigamous intent, legality of Dakota divorce in Canada and other nice points of law are raised. Mrs. Irwin asks

"For an injunction restraining the defendant, Sherife Sheldrake, from representing herself to be Mrs. Jas. M. Irwin or the wife of the defendant James M. Irwin. Also from representing herself to be the plaintiff, who is the lawful wife of the defendand, James M. Irwin, and from representing Sherife Sheldrake to have been married to James M. Irwin.

"Also for damages sustained by the plaintiff, because of such representation and use."

James M. Irwin went to the land of the Dakotas, and after a considerable residence there became again united in matrimony. Bigamy cannot be alleged, as it would be necessary first of all to prove that he had a bigamous intent in proceeding to Dakota. The Crown does not interfere where intent cannot be shown.

McCarthy, Osler, Hoskin & Harcourt are acting for the plaintiff.

Our Typesetting Machines Being Thoroughly Overhauled

We ask the indulgence of our readers for a few days longer until the work of repairing our typesetting machines is completed. When this is done we will be in a position to greatly improve the appearance of the Times. We have one of our machines under repair for several weeks, and hope to have it completed and in operation by to-morrow. Our second machine will then be put through the mill. These two machines have for years been doing the work of four, as they have been running almost continuously day and night.

Later on we propose to instal a modern newspaper press, as a preliminary to the publication in Peterborough of a modern morning newspaper.

SASSULITCH CENSURED FOR RUSSIAN DISASTER DISGRACED REGIMENT

Understood That He Has Lost His Command --Echoes of Battle at Yalu-- The Losses.

St. Petersburg, May 6—Gen. Kuropatkin has gone to the front from Liao Yang to inspect the situation personally. Troops are being hurried forward from the Liao Yang and Mukden line to a junction near Feng Wang Cheng.

It is believed here that the Japanese plans for a concerted action have been embarrassed by their failure to block the entrance to Port Arthur Tuesday, and a repetition of the attack on the Russian Gibraltar is momentarily expected. Vice-Admiral Togo's fleet was sighted off Port Arthur last night, and indeed unconfirmed rumors say he attacked at daylight this morning and that fighting is now in progress there. At least the cutting off of Port Arthur, if not the fate of the fortress, depends, in the opinion of the general staff, upon Gen. Kuropatkin preventing a juncture of the Japanese forces.

It is understood here that General Sassulitch has already been relieved of his command for disobedience of orders.

A DISGRACED REGIMENT.

Under the old rules and traditions of the Russian army the second and third batteries of the Third Artillery Brigade and the third battery of the Third Brigade, which lost their guns at the battle of Kiu Lien Cheng, would be stricken from the army list forever. The names of batteries losing guns and those of regiments losing their colors or otherwise disgracing themselves, formerly disappeared from the list. This was the case of the celebrated Immortal Hussars in 1825, which participated in the conspiracy against Emperor Nicholas. Only a few years ago the regulation was rescinded.

THE LOSSES.

The Russians lost 2,000, and it is believed that the Japanese lost between 3,000 and 4,000 men. This is based upon reports of eye-witnesses. There has been absolutely no statement of the number of prisoners captured by the Japanese, but the general staff is inclined to admit that 300 men were captured, though the staff asserts that it has no actual means of knowing definitely how many prisoners are in the hands of the Japanese.

Not a single newspaper despatch has yet been received beyond the several colorless telegrams from the Russian headquarters at Liao Yang, which simply repeat the official news.

A correspondent of the Novosti, who was at the front was killed.

New York, May 6—A London special says it is semi officially announced at St. Petersburg, that the Japanese Third Army Corps has landed at New Chwang. The Japanese are therefore supposed to be in possession of the city.

The capture of New Chwang means the isolation of Port Arthur and its eventual capture or surrender.

Following the sinking of the fireships on Monday Admiral Togo bombarded the forts at Port Arthur. The bombardment was renewed Tuesday and continued yesterday.

London, May 6—The optimism gaining ground here that the Japanese have at last effectually blocked Port Arthur. No official Japanese report on the subject has yet been received, but the Tokio correspondents are very positive regarding the matter.

The Daily Telegraph's correspondent declared that the entrance to Port Arthur "is absolutely sealed," and adds the Japanese fleet, in effecting its purpose steamed to the entrance at full speed, and that the naval officers who made the two previous attempts begged permission to carry out the next attack by daylight, that being easier, and their request was granted. "So determined were they to succeed," adds the correspondent, "that they decided, if necessary, to lose half their men. The number of casualties sustained by the Japanese has not yet been announced."

In favor of the supposition of Japanese success in blocking Port Arthur it is pointed out that the previous attempts had left the channel so narrow that a couple of vessels sunk in the fairway would probably suffice to seal up the entrance, while there is a noticeable evasion and half-heartedness in the Russian denials of the enemy's success.

JAPS CELEBRATE ANYWAY.

Tokio, May 6—The unofficial reports which have been received here of the successful blocking of the entrance to Port Arthur harbor by the Japanese, coming on the heels of the news of the victory on the Yalu, started a popular demonstration, and last night thousands of men, carrying lanterns, swinging high from bamboo poles, paraded through the city. Half a dozen bands of music led the various processions. The officers of the War and Navy departments and of the general staff were the scenes of the greatest enthusiasm. The two Imperial Princes visited the Navy Department, and the assembled crowd welcomed them with cheers. Then the throng demanded Admiral Ito, chief of the general staff, and the hero of the fight on the Yalu during the China-Japanese war. He appeared in response to the calls of the people and saluted the crowd.

RUSSIA LOST OVER 2,000.

St. Petersburg, May 6—The Russian losses at the battle of the Yalu were 2,000 men and 40 officers, far greater than previous reports indicated.

This is the official estimate of Major-General Kashtelinsky, who directly commanded the division that suffered the brunt of the attack and whose report was yesterday received by the Emperor. Many are inclined to place the Russian losses even higher. General Kashtalinsky mentions also that more than seven hundred wounded had arrives at Fengwangcheng, and these may not be included in his calculations. He made no attempt to estimate the Japanese losses, merely stating that they must have been colossal.

The magnitude of the Russian losses had an almost stunning effect on the authorities and a second general grief mitigated only by satisfaction at the bravery displayed by the Russian troops.

RUSSIA WILL MAKE A STAND.

The idea has prevailed that the Russians would not make a stand at Fangwangcheng, but the fact that the Japanese occupation of that point would enable a movement to the southwest, thus cutting off the Liao-tung peninsula, which is taken into consideration by the authorities leads to the expectation that Gen. Kuropatkin will despatch strong reinforcements there and make a determined stand.

The activity of the Japanese, it is remarked here, is not only north of the Yalu, from which there is constant scouting but also off the Liao-tung peninsula, though the failure to seal Port Arthur may interfere with the operations they had been expected to carry out on the west coast of that peninsula.

BRITISH LOAN FOR FAST SERVICE

This Plan is Suggested by Canadian Secretary in London

LORD BRASSEY APPROVES

Mr. Griffith Founded Proposal on Loan by British Government to Cunards

Berlin, May 5.—Colonel Gadke, writing from Harbin to the Berliner Tageblatt, says he has come to the conclusion, which probably was shared by the Russian headquarters staff that the Japanese were going to content themselves with a defensive position in Korea. He supposed this would give the Russians time to complete their mobilization south of Mukden, where they had assembled nearly three army corps, and where they are beginning the formation of a fourth. Two cavalry divisions were advancing by road, while the second and third Siberian reserve divisions were arriving by rail.

Colonel Gerke calculated that weeks must elapse before these troops would be assembled, and he evidently anticipated the still longer delay in the Russian concentration, since General Kuropatkin wanted to have 300,000 men before assuming the offensive.

The letter gives interesting details of the improvised character of the Russian forces, and mentions that out of 124 battalions only forty-eight had been incorporated for nine months, while sixteen were sent from Europe, and all the remainder were new. Of these remaining sixty there were forty which had been hurriedly formed from troops of the most varied categories some ten weeks ago. The forty-eight older battalions, consisting of the Siberian reserves, were not believed to possess the qualities of seasoned troops, and the two Cossack divisions, which were largely commanded by Russian dragoon officers, were Cossacks only in name, since they were composed of ordinary peasants impressed and organized as Cossacks.

Detroit Specialist Discovers Something Entirely New for the Cure of Men's Diseases in Their Own Homes.

You Pay Only if Cured

He Accepts No Money Unless He Cures You—Method and Full Particulars Sent Free—Write For It This Very Day

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and boards, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes; so that there may be no doubt in the mind of any man that he has both the method and the ability to do as he says, Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic troubles, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation of parts, impotency, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but likewise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as many booklets on the subject, including the one that contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply

METHODISTS AND AMUSEMENTS

When the quadrennial Methodist general conference assembles on May 4 in Los Angeles there will probably occur the most solemn and remarkable discussion of the amusement question in the history of the church.

The Methodist church has always pledged its novitates against the use of any diversion that cannot be used in the name of the Lord Jesus," and eight years ago the American general conference interpreted this language to condemn these amusements in particular. These were the theater, card-playing and dancing

The authority of the conference, however, was not sufficient to silence all discussion and remove all differences of opinion concerning these amusements. On the contrary, the discussion has waxed warmer all the time, and it is a rare thing that any sort of Methodist body can get through its proper work without dipping into this controversy.

This subject will force itself on the Los Angeles conference in a most painful and embarrassing form in consequence of the Iroquois theater disaster. There is no form of amusement which the Methodist church has so uniformly and fiercely denounced as the theater, and yet in the Chicago holocaust two prominent Methodist ministers, one prominent and wealthy Methodist layman and, some say, no less than 100 members of the Methodist church and Sunday school lost their lives.

The unfortunate ministers were Rev. George H. Studley of the Ashbury church, and Rev. Charles L. Roberts of the Hamlin avenue church. The prominent layman was W. W. Cooper of Kenosha, Wis., who was a leading official of the Epworth league, the Methodist young people's organization which imposes on its members a special obligation to avoid the theater, the card table and the dance.

The inference from the Iroquois incident can only be that the Methodist laity and to some extent the Methodist preachers have broken loose from the standards of the church in regard to theatrical amusements. The character of the sentiment which upholds these standards was evinced by the Methodist preacher's meeting of Chicago, which indignantly refused to consider resolutions of regret and sympathy in regard to Rev. Mr. Studley and Rev. Mr. Roberts.

The general conference will have under consideration such other questions as the consolidation of charities, the consolidation of publishing interests, the restoration of the time limit on the pastorate, the placing of a time limit on the bishopric and the election of several new bishops, but it is safe to say that all of them together will not excite the feeling that will be aroused over the repeal or the reaffirmation of the rule in regard to amusements

RUSSIA AND PEACE TERMS

Despite the denial from Downing street that any proposals of mediation between Russia and Japan have been made either by the British Foreign Office or by King Edward personally, the authorative statement from St. Petersburg concerning Russia's attitude toward such proposals is highly significant. For one thing, it shows how calmly and confidently Russia is able to face a very black situation, and how little the nation's "nerve" has been affected by the series of disasters, or even greater calamity involved in the national unpreparedness which has been revealed.

Russia will fight, we are told, till "victory crowns her arms"; she will treat of peace in the end with Japan alone, and will not tolerate the interference of outside powers. She will disregard all previous propositions made to Japan, and will consider herself free to impose such terms of peace as she desires and is able."

All these declarations are very fine to make, but they must be regarded as almost meaningless unless Russia is able not merely to whip Japan thoroughly but to do it without seriously impairing her own fighting power. Even then she could hardly impose terms of peace that were seriously objected to by either England, France or Germany on the grounds of their own interests. Any terms that involved the practical establishment of Russian suzerainty at Pekin would, for instance, be a direct challenge to England to intervene, while they would allure France on to secure parallel privileges of their own. The mere occupation of Manchuria by Russia comes perilously near to being such suzerainty at Pekin, as experience has already shown.

How long the war will last if Russia at all times persists in refusing to consider mediation no man can tell. It is reported that Prince Khilkoff, the able Minister of Railroads, has prepared plans for double-tracking the Siberian Railroad, and that he declares he can accomplish this in eighteen months. Such an improvement would add immensely to Russia's ability to maintain a large fighting force in Manchuria, and it might conceivably be finished in the time specified, could the existing track be freely used for the transport of laborers and materials. But the track is considered inadequate for the transport of army supplies alone, to say nothing of additional troops. If Russia intends to wait on the completion of a double track for victory the war will certainly be one of many years' duration.

Learn The Art of Resting

Rest is a True Food for the Body and Strength for the Spirit. Almost a Lost Art Now.

The absence of rest accounts for much of the ill-health, irritability and despondency that we find everywhere about us. We can't eat our pudding and have it, nor can we go on wasting our energies without soon reaching the limit of our reserve power.

Better not let it go on this far. Much wiser to take Ferrozone when that tired enervated feeling is first noticed. Nervous collapse is avoided in this way. If you feel the need of rest, but can't get it because of overwrought nerves, nothing in the world will do you so much good as Ferrozone, which is noted for promptly restoring perfect health in just such cases as yours.

Perhaps you wonder how Ferrozone does this. The first result of Ferrozone is a better appetite. Everything you eat is digested and properly assimilated. The natural outcome of this is the formation of pure blood, the fundamental basis of health. When the body is given a new supply of blood the circulation is quickened. This gives the weak nerves something to feed upon. They quickly lose their sensitiveness, and your old irritable complaints become a help instead of a drawback. Pretty soon you begin to feel the vim and buoyancy that Ferrozone always brings. Your strength increases, you can work longer, toil harder, sleep better than ever before.

If half the pale, nervous people could only realize how beneficial Ferrozone is, there would be a lot more happiness in the world. No remedy applies so directly to the peculiar ills from which women suffer. It is a specific for anaemia and brings a ruddy glow of health to pale cheeks in a remarkably short time. In all diseases arising from impairment of blood or nerve tone, in cases where a tonic is needed to stimulate appetite and digestion, nothing is more helpful than Ferrozone. It replaces tiredness and lack of energy by a reserve of force, and maintains such a healthy condition of the system that sickness is impossible.

Every person, man, woman, or child who wants more strength, more color, stronger nerves, purer blood, should use Ferrozone. Price 50c. a box, or six boxes for $2.50, at druggists, or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

New York Man Who Can Eat Twenty Meals a Day, But Must Take His Nourishment Through a Tube.

Twenty hearty meals a day is the modest claim of an appetite recently on exhibition at the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York. Three hundred students sat spellbound for two hours watching a phenomenon discovered by Prof. W. T. Bull. "This wonderful man," explained Dr. Bull to expectant students, "has stenosis of the esophagus with esophageal diverticulum, or, in other words he can eat without end. He'll never have dyspepsia, as food never passes into his stomach by way of his throat. How much he enjoys eating we shall see later as he disposes of this food and drink we have here. His life is sustained by liquids administered through a gastric fistula of his stomach."

Whereupon the gastronomic marvel began devastating piles of food and buckets of drink. As he gorged the sack at the base of his neck began to bulge.

Prof. Bull explained that for economy's sake the patient ate only six

OLD DEED JUST RECORDED.

The Instrument Was Executed Eighty Years Ago and Disposed of Maine Lands.

A real estate deed 82 years old, which had never been recorded, was filed in the Cumberland (Me.) county registry the other day. It related to the conveyance of a large tract of land in Windham, sold by James Yetton, of New Gloucester, to Cyrus Wilson, of Cumberland, February 28, 1822, for $100. The land having passed from father to son and there having been no occasion for looking up the title of ownership, the fact that the instrument had not been recorded was not known by its present owner until the made the discovery, and hastened to comply with the important formality. All of the persons named in the deed, including the grantor, grantee, four witnesses and the justice of the peace before whom the oath was taken, have long been dead.

PUTS TORPEDO FIRST.

NAVAL OFFICER SAYS IT IS MORE ACCURATE THAN GUNS.

Lieutenant Commander Fletcher Tells of Great Execution Wrought in the Past by the War Machines.

Lieutenant Commander Frank Fletcher, commandant of the United States naval torpedo station at New York city, recognized as one of the ablest torpedo officers in the service, is an enthusiast in the matter of efficiency of torpedoes in warfare, and a lecture he delivered at the United States naval war college last summer is of especial interest just now. The lecture records every attack made in the world with torpedoes, from the time of the civil war through the Russo-Turkish campaigns, during which the old spar torpedo gave way to the present automobile, down to the very beginning of the present war in the far east. It is perhaps the only record of its kind in existence.

There are recorded 15 attacks with the spar torpedo, attached to fast launches by means of a spar, of which Lieutenant Commander Fletcher says a good percentage were successful. On boats engaged in these attacks 360 men participated. Nine per cent. of the boats were lost and three per cent. of the men were killed. On the other hand, six ships were sunk and three damaged, while 500 lives were lost. Sixteen torpedoes were exploded, 45 per cent. of which proved fatal to the ships attacked.

With the automobile torpedo nine attacks have been made, which Lieutenant Commander Fletcher summarized as follows: Five hundred men took part and the loss of life was only two per cent. Thirty-two torpedoes were discharged and nine of them made hits, sinking eight vessels, the percentage of hits being over 28 per cent.

"Thus," says Lieutenant Commander Fletcher, "the crucial test of war shows that the torpedo, within its range, is more accurate than the gun in battle."

THE GREAT WORK GOING ON IN MUSKOKA.

1,000 Patients Treated in the Two Muskoka Hospitals — the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Surprising Decrease of 25 Per Cent. in the Last Three Years in Deaths from Consumption.

Fifty-five Different Trades and Professions Represented by the Patients Admitted to the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Two Pavilions have had to be Closed Owing to Lack of Funds, and the Number of Patients Reduced from 75 to 50.

$25,000 Wanted this Year to Carry on this Great Work.

With a view of helping to bring to the attention of the public the needs of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, we have pleasure in publishing the following letter, in which an appeal is made for funds.

Dear Friend,—

It again becomes necessary to make an urgent appeal for funds for the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

A very heavy debt is pressing upon the trustees.

In addition to this, funds must be provided for the maintenance of patients. Last month there was a deficiency of nearly $1,600 over and above receipts from all sources.

The Free Hospital for Consumptives was opened eighteen months ago. 295 patients have been admitted.

No patient has ever been refused admission because of his or her poverty.

1,000 patients have been cared for in the two Muskoka Hospitals, the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

The majority of these have either been cured, or so helped that they have been enabled to again become bread-winners for the family.

The public are beginning to find evidence of our work.

Already there has been a decrease of nearly 25 per cent. in the death-rate from consumption in the Province of Ontario.

The last report of the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health shows that in the last three years the deaths from consumption in Ontario have decreased from 3,484 to 2,694, a decrease of 790, or nearly 25 per cent.

This is the more gratifying when we remember that for a number of years previously the same report showed a steadily increasing death-rate prior to 1899.

Who will doubt that the work of our two Hospitals in Muskoka, and the persistent educational campaign carried on, has not helped to secure this surprising result?

In what better way can your gifts bring so good a return?

We have no endowment, excepting the provision recently made by Canada Life, Confederation Life, and North American Life Insurance Companies for maintenance of 2 beds each for a year.

We can only rely on the philanthropy of our people and a knowledge of our needs.

Last year we asked $20,000 to reduce the debt and to pay for care of patients. We had a generous response, receiving $10,600, gifts coming from Halifax on the east and Yukon on the west. This year our needs are greater than ever. We will require $25,000.

The Bishop of Selkirk, Caribou Crossing, Yukon, sending $10.00, writes: "The trifling remittance I send is intended to express our sympathy for the sufferers in other parts, rather than to imply a special need for your institution here."

We are grateful for the large gift. We are grateful for the small gift; all gifts are helpful.

On account of our pressing needs, will you not make this your special charity?

During the year, for lack of funds, we had to close several pavilions, reducing the number of patients from 75 to 50.

The sorrowful part of our work is that nearly all of those in the Free Hospital are young men or women who were striving to make a place for themselves in the world. Many of them have wife, or child or husband anxiously watching the struggle for life.

Your gift will help to bring gladness to so many. Will you have the joy of giving?

Very truly yours,

W. J. Gage

High Class Investment

THE OREGON MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY

Offer to Canadian investors a limited amount of stock of the above company The property owned by the Company consists at the present time of about 500 acres, which are located in the Tarryall District and Park County, Colorado. This whole district has been known for years on account of its rich placer ground, and is now prominently before the public owing to the number of very good properties which have been opened up recently producing, principally, gold, and lately some that are producing Platinum. On the Oregon property there are a number of well known veins of low grade ore that will yield a profit by being treated on the ground of the company. The company have recently opened up a fine vein in the Hawkeye group and this vein shows not only good values but an immense amount of ore which alone would make the property very valuable. Assays from ore taken from various parts of this property range from a few dollars to $373 per ton in gold. We have very little silver, lead or copper in the district. The company have a shaft 240 feet deep, with a good shaft house thoroughly well equipped with all modern machinery to develop same. They are now driving a tunnel which is in about 700 feet and which will cut the Hawkeye vein about 300 feet deeper than where it is opened at present. There is enough ore exposed on the property of this company to keep them busy for a number of years and the reason for selling stock at the present time is to secure funds to build a mill. The company will probably join with the Almaden Company in building this mill. There is water enough to furnish water power and over 100 acres of fine spruce and pine timber. The affairs of the company have always been managed in a business-like economical manner and there are no officers' salaries. The monies received from the sale of stock go direct into the property.

I can heartily recommend this stock as safe, as well as an unusually good investment, because of the immense amount of ore which the company have already opened up. It is not a mere prospect, but the property has been developed by expense of a considerable amount of money and time.

The company is splendidly officered by men of integrity and high standing. The company has not pushed the sale of stock the last year owing to a delay in getting title to the ground from the Government, but now that has been satisfactorily adjusted and work will be pushed to a finish.

The number of exceedingly rich strikes which have been made during the last few weeks in the various camps in the State of Colorado is the best evidence of the prosperity of the mining business. Almost every camp in the state has opened up rich bodies of ore, and Park County is well in the lead in that line.

There are only $25,000 of stock for sale, at $1.00 per share. The company is capitalized at $200,000, and the advantage to the investor of selling the stock at par, is that every share is fully paid up and non-assessable.

Serious Disturbances in the Districts Asia Minor

TURKISH TROOPS BEATEN

Relations Between Porte and Greece May be Strained Thereby

Constantinople, May 5. — According to official advices there has been serious fighting in the Sassun district of Asia Minor between the troops and Armenian insurgents numbering 2,000. The troops lost twenty killed and twenty-three wounded. Twelve villages in the Talori district have been destroyed, but whether by insurgents or Kurds is not known.

There are 10,000 troops in the disturbed area.

Private advices say that the Kurds attacked two villages south of Sassun, losing twenty-six killed.

The Sassun district of Asia Minor became notorious in 1894 because of a series of massacres of Armenians in the neighboring districts of Bitlis and Mush.

Athens, May 5.—Advices have been received here to the effect that the Porte has communicated to the Greek minister at Constantinople M. Delyannis, the report of the vali of Smyrna concerning the affair between Turkish gendarmes and Greeks in Smyrna, in which M. Delyannis, secretary of the Greek consulate was slightly wounded, throwing the entire responsibility for the incident on the Greek consular agents.

Premier Theotokis has held a conference with King George on the subject. It is feared that the attitude of the porte will seriously result in seriously straining the relations between Greece and Turkey.

He was found drunk in Lambton County, near the fire, and farmers were about to lynch him when he was rescued. He had been in jail before for a similar crime. His hair is nearly white from sorrow and confinement. His wife, aged 65, keeps the house at Marine City, Mich., hoping for his return. He has been promised a speedy release. He was born as also his father, a mile from the penitentiary where he has suffered 16 years' imprisonment.

Old Hagar's Secret

BY MRS. M. J. HOLMES

Author of "For a Woman's Sake," "Love's Triumph," "Purified by Suffering," "A Grass Widow," "Woman Against Woman," Etc.

But Henry Warner was not trifling with her. He was only waiting a favorable opportunity for telling her the story of his love, and now, as they sit together in the moonlight, with the musical flow of the mill-stream falling on his ear, he essays to speak—to tell how she has grown into his heart, to ask her to go with him where he goes, to make his home, her home, and so be with him always, but ere the first word was uttered Maggie asked if Mr. Douglas had brought the picture of his sister.

"Why, yes," he answered. "I had forgotten it entirely. Here it is," and taking it from his pocket he passed it to her.

It was a face of almost ethereal loveliness which through the moonlight looked up to Maggie Miller, and again she experienced the same indefinable emotion, a mysterious, invisible something, drawing her toward the original of the beautiful likeness.

"It is strange how thoughts of Rose always affect me," she said, gazing earnestly upon the large eyes of blue, shadowed forth upon the picture. "It seems as though she must be nearer to me than an unknown friend."

"Seems she like a sister?" asked Henry Warner, coming so near that Maggie felt his warm breath upon her cheek.

"Yes, yes—that's it," she answered, with something of her olden frankness. "And had I somewhere in the world an unknown sister I should say it was Rose Warner!"

There were a few low, whispered words, and when the full moon, which for a time had hidden itself behind the clouds, again shone forth in all its glory, Henry had asked Maggie Miller to be the sister of Rose Warner, and Maggie had answered "Yes!"

That night, in Maggie's dreams, there was a strange commingling of thought—thought of Henry Warner, as he told her of his love—thoughts of the gentle girl whose eyes of blue had looked so lovingly upon her, as if between them there was indeed a common bond of sympathy—and stranger far than all, thoughts of the little grave beneath the pine, where slept the so-called child of Hester Hamilton—the child defrauded of its birthright, and who, in the misty vagaries of dreamland, seemed alone to stand between her and the beautiful Rose Warner!

CHAPTER VIII.

On the rude bench by her cabin door sat Hagar Warren, her black eyes peering out into the woods, and her quick ear turned to catch the first sound of bounding footsteps, which came at last, and Maggie Miller was sitting by her side.

"What is it, darling?" Hagar asked, and her shriveled hand smoothed caressingly the silken hair, as she looked into the glowing face of the young girl and half guessed what was written there.

To Theo, Mag had whispered the words, "I am engaged," and Theo had coldly answered, "Pshaw! Grandma will quickly break that up. Why, Henry Warner is comparatively poor. Mr. Douglas told me so, or rather I quizzed him until I found it out. He says, though, that Henry has rare business talents, and he could not do without him."

To the latter part of Theo's remark Maggie paid little heed, but the mention of her grandmother troubled her. She would oppose it, Mag was sure of that, and it was to talk on this very subject she had come to Hagar's cottage. "Just the way I 'spozed it would end," said Hagar, when Mag, with blushing, half-averted face, told the story of her engagement. "Just the way I s'posed 'twould end, but I didn't think 'twould be so quick."

"Two months and a half is a great while, and, then, we have been together so much," replied Maggie, at the same time asking if Hagar did not approve of her choice.

"Henry Warner's well enough," answered Hagar. "I've watched him close, and see no evil in him, but he isn't the one for you, nor are you the one for him. You are both too wild, too full of fun, and if yoked together will go to destruction. I know. You need somebody to hold you back, and so does he."

Involuntarily Maggie thought of Rose, mentally resolving to be, if possible, more like her.

"You are not angry with me?" said Hagar, observing Maggie's silence. "You asked my opinion, and I gave it to you. You are too young to know whom you like. Henry Warner is the first man you ever know, and, in two years' time, you'll tire of him."

"Tire of him, Hagar! Tire of Henry Warner!" cried Mag, a little indignantly. "You do not know me if you think I'll ever tire of him; and, then, too, did I tell you grandma keeps writing to me about a Mr. Carrollton, who she says is wealthy, fine-looking, highly educated, and very aristocratic, and that last makes me hate him! I've heard so much about aristocracy that I'm sick of it, and just for that reason I would not have this Mr. Carrollton if I knew he'd make me Queen of England. But grandma's heart is set upon it, I know, and she thinks, of course, he would marry me—says he is delighted with my daguerreotype—that awful one, too, with the staring eyes. In grandma's last letter he sent me a note. 'Twas beautifully written, and I dare say he is a fine young man, at least he talks common sense, but I shan't answer it—and, if you'll believe me, I used part of it in lighting Henry's cigar, and with the rest I shall light firecrackers on the Fourth of July. Henry has bought a lot of them, and we're going to have fun. How grandma would scold. But I shall marry Henry Warner, anyway. Do you think she will oppose me when she sees how determined I am?"

"Of course she will," answered Hagar. "I know these Carrolltons. They are a haughty race, and if your grandmother has one of them in view she'll turn you from her door sooner than see you married to another and an American, too."

There was a moment's silence, and then, with an unnatural gleam in her eye, old Hagar turned toward Mag, and grasping her shoulder, said: "If she does this thing, Maggie Miller—if she casts you off, will you take me for your grandmother? Will you let me live with you? I'll be your drudge, your slave. Say, Maggie, may I go with you? Will you call me grandmother? I'd willingly die if only once I could hear you speak to me thus, and know it was in love."

For a moment Mag looked at her in astonishment; then, thinking to herself, "She surely is half-crazed," she answered, laughingly: "Yes, Hagar, if grandma casts me off, you may go with me. I shall need your care, but I can't promise to call you grandma, because you know you are not."

The corners of Hagar's mouth worked nervously, but her teeth shut firmly over the thin, white lip, forcing back the wild words trembling there, and the secret was not told.

"Go home, Maggie Miller!" she said at last, rising slowly to her feet. "Go home now, and leave me alone. I am willing you should marry Henry Warner—nay, I wish you to do it; but you must remember your m[illegible]"

THE RUSSIAN FORCE

The Probable Location Of The Russians Armies

Paris, May 5.—It is believed here that the Russian forces are distributed as follows: First corps, commanded by General Stackelberg, is in Siberia (part lined up between Harbin and Vladivostok. It has one of its largest divisions located near Mukden. To Stackelberg belongs the column whose importance has been ignored up to the present and which is operating in Corea, between Yalu and the sea, having in front of it the independent cavalry division of General Rennenkampf. The fourth corps has been at Harbin since the beginning of April, with its two divisions of Siberian infantry and brigade of Cossacks. There is also near this town a division of Siberian Cossacks and a brigade from Caucasus. The second corps comprising the fifth and sixth divisions of Chasseurs, commanded by General Sassulitch, is near Mukden with certain detached parties near Yalu.

The third corps, formed of the third, fourth and ninth divisions of Chasseurs, has its headquarters at Liao Yang. The third division, under the orders of General Karchtalinski is posted on the Yalu and supports the brigade of Cossacks of General Mitschenko, which in turn is in touch with Rennekampf's division. The ninth division, commanded by General Kondratvich, is detached toward Niu Chwang to oppose Japanese landing. Each of the three first corps has besides its cavalry and infantry, a battery of machine guns composed of five officers, ninety-one men, thirty-six horses, eight guns, eith caissons and six waggons. Each gun is supplied with 5,850 rounds.

The Augusta Metal Mining Co.

Capitalized at $2,000,000.00. Par value $1.00. Full Paid and Non Assessable

At 75 Cents per Share

This company now owns the well-known Augusta mine and its extension for over 1000 feet in addition to other claims approximating a total acreage of 200 acres. This property has produced over $250,000 in gold, silver and lead ores and is a producer to-day. Has shipped ores of an average net value of $40 per ton for first class and $15 per ton for second class, all the past summer and the summer before, smelter and mill returns of which are on file in our office.

Has immense bodies of these grades of ore, which cannot be exhausted in five years, already opened up and its main working tunnel is nearing completion, cutting the apex of the vein at a depth of 1,600 feet.

This block of shares is offered to enable the Company to connect the above tunnel with its concentrating mill and projected terminus of railroad by tramway, a distance of 11,120 feet, thereby permitting shipments during the entire year.

A production of at least 125 tons daily will be maintained when these improvements are made, and if completed in the early summer, dividends can be paid from ore settlements before this fall.

We offer for a limited time only a SPECIAL BLOCK OF 50,000 SHARES OF THE TREASURY STOCK of these Companies.

We reserve the right to reject subscriptions over and above the 50,000 shares offered. Each subscription to be booked as received.

The Black Queen Gold Mining Co.

1,500,000 Shares. Par value $1.00. Full Paid and Non-Assessable.

Selling at 7½c a Share

Like its sister Company is today giving the best value for the money of any share offered.

This Company owns and controls over 300 acres of good mineral-producing ground, including the well-known Excelsior and Yankee Blade, which have produced upward of $175,000.

Tunnel B of the Black Queen Company is now going in at a rate of 195 feet per month, and early spring will see this work vieing with Tunnel A of the Augusta Company in its record of production.

Will cut known proven ore bodies 1100 feet from Apex, and open sufficient stoping ground to make an output of 100 tons daily.

Has already cut through a cross vein two feet in width of good marketable Galena ore, the point of intersection being 400 feet beneath the surface. We have 900 feet of this vein in length.

We can show you these facts and ask that you ask us to do so.

If your investment becomes profitable you will tell others; therefore it is much to our interest to have you make money on your investment.

2. Do you know that the stock is actually fully paid and non assessable, therefore no liability?
3. Do you know that our capital is only $150,000?
4. Do you know that 300,000 tons of ore are in sight? This is proof that you are investing in a mine.
5. Do you know—free milling and cyaniding ores are the choicest, and sought by the experienced men in treating ores?
6. Do you know, that we can prove in black and, white that our ore can be treated for $1.25 a ton and save 95 per cent. of its value.
7. Do you know that our neighbors produced last year $5,000,000.
8. Do you know that by their experience we profit, and can in one year be listed among them as a paying property.
9. Because of all these points, we rank second to no other prospect and by a continuation of development and erection of a Cyanide plant in the near future, we feel confident of success in the highest degree.

REOPENING OF THE CASE OF ALFRED DREYFUS.

TheCourt Held a That Sufficient Showing Had Been Made to Warrut a Reopening of case

Paris, May 2.—The Criminal Branch of the Court of Cassation a short time ago granted the appeal of Alfred Dreyfus for a revision of his trial at Rennes.

The court held that a sufficient showing had been made to warrant a reopening of the case and ordered a supplementary investigation for the purpose of establishing all the doubtful points which have been the basis for the present application.

The decision is another marked success for Dreyfus, although it is not yet final, owing to the extended supplementary investigation which must follow the court's decision.

BY MME. SEVERINE.

Paris, May 2.—I sought an interview with ex-Captain Dreyfus, whose trial at Rennes I reported, and who is now—as the daily despatches indicated—on the high road to vindication and reinstatement.

Dreyfus has greatly changed during the past year. Though his hair is thinner and whiter, he seems younger. He looks calm and confident. His voice has lost the unevenness and raucousness that were so painful to hear after his return from Devil's Island, though it retains its Alsatian accent. He has regained his normal tone during his five years of waiting for justice; both his physical and moral personality have been restored, reconstituted. Dreyfus said to me.

"No one suspected the state I was in before the Rennes Council of War. The newspapers talked about champagne repasts in prison; in reality I lived on kola and milk. I was burnt with fever and devoured with thirst. I could not sleep. It was pride that forced me to let nothing be seen; to stand before my judges erect and correct. This is my nature.

"I deserved to be pitied, but it would seem a weakness to do anything that should provoke pity. I desired only justice of the people, and though I maintained a passivity that was due to having lived so long outside the living world and in almost absolute silence.

LESSON IN SOLITUDE.

"I had lost the sense of listening, and the sound of voices reached my ears like the confused noise of the sea. After five minutes of attention the sense of what had been said escaped me. Gradually the struggle became fiercer, and before the great fatigue of the end I forced myself to render more frequent those brief periods of lucidity during which I fought step by step to defend my honor and become master of myself. My nerves, my will and my cerebral energies were sustained to this sole end—not to fall from the chair like a log, like a thing inert that a policeman should carry out amid the clamor of emotions or irony.

"No difference of religion did cause the initial trouble. Catholics, Protestants, Israelites and Atheists lived in perfect harmony in the schools and orthodox Buddhists and Mahometans would have been treated the same. The loss of money by the nobility in Union Generale was needed to rouse a feeling of anti-Semitism. Nevertheless I feel no hatred for my persecutors. When one has lived far from all and everything, and never heard anything but the wind and wave, on gets the impression of existing along side any and one learns to measure how little man is how little one sees in the great game of eternal forces.

GOOD FAITH OF FRIENDS.

"Certainly my friends, the most heroic and devoted, are saddened at my not attaining the end of my struggle more quickly and thus securing a recompense for their disinterested effort. Their haste is the greatest proof of their affection, yet I should like them to share in my patience and make them share in that endurance which is my reserve force.

"It is nearly ten years since my torment began and four years since that series of tortures which marked the abominable nightmare of Rennes. I can now study my dossier complete and I now understand that delay has been indispensable to enlighten me in my own cause and to enlighten others to bring about peace.

"I have suffered atrociously. I live under the blow of the most frightful imputation that can dishonor a man and a soldier. I have lived through sad and cruel moments, but never a shadow of discouragement has troubled my soul. That is confidence, not stoicism. I believe in the infinite supremacy of right and the inevitable triumph of reason and justice, but I fear the darkness dear to imposture to intrigue and equivocal machinations.

COMFORTED BY HIS SON.

"I have always had too exact a mind and my critical sense is too developed to accept without control such monuments of absurdities as those put into my dossier. I have a passion for exact logic; that is why I am so deeply interested in Heinach's history of 'l'Affaire Dreyfus.' I have also the faculty of exteriorization, and so Reinach's history appears to me to be an extraordinary romance so much was I a stranger to that which was woven around me that it seems like reading the history of a century ago by Michelet or Carlyle.

"My son is twelve and a half years old. He is a brave and serious little man. When he was ten years old we told him all. Until then my courageous wife succeeded, by prodigies, ingenuity and prudence in concealing the situation from him. Now he studies the affair in order later to teach it to his little sister, and he has loved me far more by reason of the affair.

"You know when my wife was at Rennes during the trial some wretches threatened to invade her house and drag her and the children out and throw into the water 'the Jewess and her little ones.'

"I expect everything from justice which must not be impeded nor yet unduly advanced. My cause should not be made to suffer from regrettable zeal or perfidious construction. What is most needed is goodness for goodness otherwise I would not be saved."

PORT ARTHUR CORKED

Tokio, May 5.—The Tokio correspondents of the Daily Telegraph and of the Daily Chronicle asserts that Port Arthur is effectively corked.

A CHINESE RISING NOW SAID TO BE IMMINENT

Her Neutrality Tottering Owing to the Vexatious Attitude of the Russians Towards the Manchus

London, May 4.—The Shan-Hai-Kwan correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says that an interview between Manchuria officials and the chiefs of the Outlaw hordes near Sin-Min-Ting elicited facts tending to show that China's neutrality is tottering owing to the vexatious attitude of the Russians towards the Manchus. The Tartar generals in the provinces of Kirin and Feng-Tien are urging the Pekin Government to adopt a strong policy against Russian aggression west of the Liao River. General Ma, who is at Choo-Yang with fifteen battalions, will be instructed to keep a careful watch and be ready to advance eastward. Everything points to China making a military demonstration against either belligerent fighting west of the Liao River. Several hundred Russian cavalry are scouting west of Kaopantze. Should Russia carry her present dominating policy across the Liao River she will invite hostilities with the Chinese troops. The Tartar generals are already against the Russians, and they are daily being driven to desperation. It is considered that a general rising will become imminent should the Japanese land at New-Chwang.

A despatch to the Standard from Tien-Tsin says that Admiral Alexieff has sent a lengthy despatch to General Ma, the Chinese commander, through the Tartar general in Feng-Tien, stating that it may be necessary for the Russians to increase their forces at Sin-Min-Ting and elsewhere, and requesting that the Chinese troops and police be immediately withdrawn. Admiral Alexieff added that he required an answer in three days.

Yuan-Shih-Kai, Viceroy of Chili, and Commander-in-Chief of the Chinese forces, has ordered the various viceroys in Mongolia to procure 2,000 horses for his troops immediately.

RETURNED TO GENSAN.

Tokio, May 4.—The following official telegram has been received.

"Admiral Kamimura's fleet arrived at Gensan on the 26th of April without having effected the intended bombardment of Vladivostock owing to the thick fog continually prevailing. Learning that the Kinsu Maru was overdue the fleet left Port on the 27th in search of the steamer, and again proceeded near to Vladivostock, but the incessant fog prevented any further operations and the fleet returned to Gensan.

THE ADMIRAL'S REPORT.

Tokio, May 4.—Vice-Admiral Kamimura, who is in command of the Japanese squadron which has been operating recently against Vladivostock, has sent in a report from Gensan, Corea, dated Sunday, in which he says that the impenetrable fog twice forced the abandonment of the attack on Vladivostock and twice spared the Russian squadron a sea fight.

While Kamimura was steaming north the first time he passed the Russian squadron, bound south on the raid to Gensan, which resulted in the sinking of the Japanese steamer Gensyo Maru and the transport Kinshiu Maru. The Japanese and Russian squadrons must have passed very close to each other, for the Japanese were conscious of the presence of the enemy.

TO CANADIAN INVESTORS

I desire to call the attention of investors to the

Smuggler Gold Mining Co.'s Proposition

of which I am the authorized agent

Investments in mining stocks where they can be purchased cheaply whose property contains merit and whose directors are men of unquestionable honor and integrity, and especially when sufficient work has been done to guarantee a producing mine and the leads have been demonstrated to be permanent, offer the greatest opportunity for large returns from modest investments.

The shrewdest capitalists of England and America are giving more attention to mining properties and putting more money into them than at any time in the past history of the world.

The Smuggler Group consists of five full sized claims, to-wit: The Smuggler, Gangon, Black Jack, Star and Bed Rock, located in the Greenhorn District of Eastern Oregon. Surrounding mines are Potosi, Pride of Pendleton, Bonanza and Rockefeller, developing work to the extent of 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifts and crosscuts have been made, exposing hundreds of tons of high grade ore, averaging from $25 to $45 per ton, based on smelter returns and for the purpose of equipping the mines a limited number of shares of Treasury Stock will be sold at 25 cents per share, the par value of which is $1.00.

HIGH CLASS INVESTMENT

LA ZACUALPA RUBBER PLANTATION COMPANY

Incorporated Under the Laws of the State of California.

La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation is situated in the best location in Mexico for the cultivation of rubber. It has been known for a great many years as a very choice strip of rubber land and subsequent experience has shown that it is equal to all that has been claimed for it. The affairs of the company are in the hands of men of undoubted integrity and high reputation as successful men of business. To those seeking a safe investment which will secure a good income for life, this proposition offers a favorable opportunity

Shares in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation are not capital stock of a corporation, and carry none of the responsibilities and obligations, or liability to assessment of capital stock; but represent an undivided interest in the plantation itself.

The twelve thousand acres comprising the plantation are divided into twelve thousand shares, each share representing one acre of land, and the holders of shares in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation are the actual owners of one undivided acre of land, for each share held, with a guarantee expressed upon the certificate by La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company, under its official seal, to plant two hundred or more rubber trees per acre for each share held, and to care for same for a period of five years, and at the expiration of that time to gather the first harvest and deliver the net proceeds thereof to the shareholder.

In other words, La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company sells to each shareholder one undivided acre of land in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation, with two hundred or more rubber trees five years old, and their profits for all time, for each share sold, and agrees to plant so that the first harvest belonging to the shareholder is the one to be gathered from La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation during the sixth year from the date of the certificate.

After the delivery of the first harvest La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company will care for the plantation, and harvest and market the crop for ten per cent. of the net proceeds therefrom. Out of this commission the Company agrees to pay all costs of administration, including maintenance of the home branch offices.

This plan gives the purchaser of shares an interest of definite acreage, and his proportionate share in the total yield of rubber from the entire plantation forever, making it absolutely certain that the interest of each shareholder will receive the same careful attention

Full particulars in every detail will be given to all to whom such a proposition may appeal, but please do not ask for them unless you really are interested, because you waste your own time and ours also.

Capital $1,000,000, 500,000 Shares in Treasury

Property includes two great mining estates—one gold, the other copper—both containing wide, deep, proven veins of high and low grade ore.

Development work has been systematically carried on, with results that more than justify every claim made by the company, and unquestionably proves the destiny of the property to equal that of the greatest successful mining companies of the world.

Above Statement Can be Easily Verified

The following two facts alone will give anyone familiar with mining, a rough idea of the great value of the property.

The Copper King Group contains one vein 30 feet wide, 8 feet of which runs from $10 to $100 per ton, and the Company owns 9,000 feet on this vein.

Ore running from $18 to $50 per ton is continually being shipped from the gold property, and 24 samples taken from widely different portions of the vein system averaged $25.25 per ton.

FACILITIES—The Company owns 1,720 acres of placer and timber land. Water power of 500 (minimum) horse power. No expensive shaft work necessary, Ore easily treated on Company's property, thus saving freight and smelter charges.

DIVIDENDS—To begin earning and paying large dividends it is only necessary to erect two 50 ton mills, one on each property. To obtain funds for this purpose a limited amount of stock is offered at

Man Who Married Woodstock Girl Goes to Prison

Woodstock, Ont., May 5.—W. Henry Smith, alias Wm. A GRAND PICTURE AT PORT ARTHUR

How Togo,s Latest Attack Was Frustrated

A SPECTATLE IN WAR

Russians SanK Ten Ships, and Admit the Magnificent Courage of the Enemy

Port Arthur, May 5.—The Japanese attempt to block Port Arthur was begun a few minutes before 1 o'clock when the first shots were fired, awakening the town with their thunderous noise. The gunboats lying at fire ships were located.

the cannonade, the firing gradually increasing in volume, until there was a continuous crash of great guns.

Some of the enemy's torpedo boats were discovered but they were finally swallowed up in the darkness and the batteries and warships after forty minutes' activity were again shrouded in gloom, though the flashing searchlights showed that the military were alive to the warning conveyed of the approach of the Japanese ships.

Shortly before 2 o'clock a searchlight played upon the sea directly upon the entrance of the harbor, lighting it up to show the wayfor the fire ships. The projector moved to the right from Liao-Tishan to Golden Hill. For a quarter of an hour the light was watched with curiosity, and then a second cannonade behe mouth of the harbor joined in gan, the heaviest fire being directed to the left of Golden Hill, where the

At about 4 o'clock the batteries ceased firing, save for an occasional shot. Just about dawn the bark of the rapid fire guns and the cracking of the ritralleuse were heard from Golden Hill. Occasionally there were sounds of explosions as of mines going off. It was the enemy's ships striking on Russian torpedoes.

A MAGNIFICENT SEA PICTURE.

At this hour a magnificent sea picture was formed by the soft light of the waning moon, the orange flashes of the guns, the signal rockets and the purple fire on the steel colored sea which were alternately lighting up and going down.

TEN SHIPS WERE SUNK.

The fire ships were ten in number and of about 3,000 tons each.

It is reported that two Japanese torpedo boats were sunk, the remainder wiothdrawing in a damaged condition.

Eight of the fire ships were sunk and very few of their crews were saved. Most of them were killed.

In the morning many dead bodies were seen floating about outside the harbor. These were collected by the Russians, who brought them ashore and buried them.

The vigilance of the men in the watchtowers and on the guardboats was astonishing. To their keen eyes wwas due the prompt sighting of the enemy

PRAISE FOR JAPANESE COURAGE

The Japanese attacked brilliantly without seeming to notice the murderous fire directed on them.

The Russians captured two officers and thirty men.

It is stated that the crews of the fire ships included a number of Japanese cadets, who showed extraordinary bravery, especially when the ships were sinking. Several of the crew stood at the mastheads firing revolvers, and then plunged into the sea. It is supposed that none of the cadets was saved.

The attempt to close the mouth of the harbor failed.

OFFICIAL REPORT.

St. Petersburg, May 6.—High Admiral Grand Duke Alexis has received the following official telegram from Viceroy Alexieff, reporting Japanese attempt to block Port Arthur early this morning.

"I respectfully report to your Highness that a fresh attack was made by the enemy last night, with the object of obstructing the entrance to the port and that it was successfully repulsed.

"At 1 o'clock this morning five torpedo boats were perceived near the coast from the easte n batteries. Under the fire of our warships and batteries they retreated southward.

"At 1.45 o'clock the first fire ship escorted by several torpedo boats was sighted and we opened fire upon it from the batteries and the warships. Three-quarters of an hour afterwards our searchlights revealed a number of fire ships making the entrance of the harbor from the east and southeast. The coast defence vessels, Otvashni and Gremiashchi, and the gun boat Giliak repulsed them by a well directed fire.

OUR VIGOROUS CANCNADE.

"Altogether eight ships were sunk by our vigorous cannonade, by Whitehead torpedoes, launched from our torpedo boats and by the explosion of several submarine mines. Further according to the reports of the officers commanding the batteries and the gun boat Giliak, two Japanese torpedo boats were destroyed.

"After 4 o'clock a.m. the batteries and warships ceased fire, subsequently firing only at intervals on the enemy's torpedo boats, which were visible on the horizon.

"All the fire ships carried quick-firing guns, with which they maintained a constant fire.

WE SUFFERED NO CASUALTIES.

"Up to the present thirty men, including two mortally wounded officers, who took refuge on a launch, have been rescued from the fire ships by us or picked up. The inspection of the roadstead and the work of saving the enemy's men were hindered by the heavy sea running. We suffered no casualties, with the exception of a seaman belonging to the torpedo boat destroyer Bovoi.

"On the appearance of the first fire-ship, accompanied by the enemy's torpedo boats, I boarded a launch and proceeded to the Otvashni to take immediate measures for repulsing the fire ships. With me were Lieut.-General Ziginski and Captain Eberhardt of the naval general staff.

Lieut.-General Stoessel was on the fortifications at the same time, and Gen. Loschinski, chief of the defence force of the forts, was on board the Giliak."

CRUISING IN LIAO-TUNG GULF

Ten Japanese Vessels Sighted on Sunday

St. Petersburg, May 5.—The general staff has received the following from Gen. Sakharoff, General Kouropatkin's chief of staff, the despatch being dated May 2.—

"Two vessels, apparently torpedo boats, approached on May 1 to within about six kilometres of the coast west of Sinia-Chen, which is west of Kai-Chau. Two steamers were then observed cruising near the coast, after which a squadron of ten vessels was sighted steaming to the northwest. None was seen in the neighborhood of Yin-Kow (New-Chwang).

A CHEFOO RUMOR.

London, May 5.—The Chefoo correspondent of the Chronicle says that the Japanese landed at Yin-Kow on May 1, and attacked and captured New-Chwang on the evening of May 2. The Russians are falling back to protect the railway.

The Shanghai correspondent of the Morning Post reports the foregoing as a rumor current at Chefoo.

The Daily Chronicle's report of capture of New-Chwang is not confirmed from any quarter and it is hardly likely to be true.

JAPAN'S HEEL IS VERY HEAVY

American Statesman says Russia's Humiliation will be Great

SEES WOE TO THE CZAR

Should Mikado win as Seems more than Probable at Present

Chicago, May 5.—That Russia will be offered harsh terms of peace if defeated by Japan and that interference from other nations will not be tolerated by the Island Empire in that contingency are probabilities, unless Japanese policy has greatly changed in the past ten years. These were the deductions to be drawn from a speech made last night by John W. Foster, former Secretary of State, before the Commercial Club in the uAditorium.

Mr. Foster gave a detailed account of his mission to China and Japan, when he went as a private individual at the request of the Chinese Emperor to aid in effecting a peace settlement during the China-Japanese war. He spoke to the subject: "Making of Peace Between China and Japan; a Personal Reminiscence."

Li Hung Chang and Mr. Foster for China and Marquis Ito for Japan were the chief persons through whom the peace negotiations were carried on.

DEMANDS WERE HEAVY.

"The first proposals submitted from Japan were severe in the extreme," said Mr. Foster, "but I have been quite prepared to find them of the harshest. They provided for an enormous war indemnity, twice the sum actually expended; for a cession of territory in Manchuria which could not fairly be demanded, and for certain commercial privileges not usually granted even to Great Britain, who has got the best terms in the far East."

Mr. Foster told how discouraged the Chinese were with the proposals, and how, by diplomacy, he managed to effect a vast reduction in the scope of the demands. How Japan showed her teeth to the world was thus described:

'Viceroy Li said that if the terms of peace involved the interests of any other country it would be well to proceed cautiously. "Why?" demanded Ito. 'Many difficulties may arise.' 'No,' declared Ito, 'this is entirely our affair. Other countries must not meddle with what does not concern them.'"

HOPED FOR ASIATIC UNION.

hTe Japanese statesmen also recognised clearly the possibilities of confederation by Asiatic powers and a battling of the yellow race against the white, was proved by the speakers recital of another conversation between Ito and Li.

"'Is it well that we should live at enmity?' demanded Li. 'We should prevent the yellow race from succumbing to the white race of Europe.' To that Ito replied: 'I indorse your excellency's views with all my heart.'"

Talking generally of the negotiations, Mr. Foster emphasized the fact, as a suggestive one, that the English language was generally used.

ENGLISH WAS SPOKEN.

"A notable feature was the use made of English," he said. "Ito and he Chinese secretaries spoke it freely, and in conference it was the language of communication. All the formal documents exchanged were accompanied by an English translation, and when haste required, English only was used."

Mr. Foster detailed the various phases of the negotiations and told how the peace was finally signed, on terms much easier for China and more soothing to her pride than were the first imperious demands of Japan. Mr. Foster indicated that it was largely Japan's desire to stand well in the eyes of the remainder of the world that aided in arranging a more favorable peace.

AID WAS RECOGNIZED.

In recognition of his services and of the tactful diplomacy he had used throughout the negotiations, Mr. Foster was tendered a banquet at Tokio, and he was also presented with a laudatory address from the Tokio Chamber of Commerce.

That the former Secretary of State may prepare an autobiography was hinted by him in his prefatory remarks.

"I am embarrassed in coming before you with personal reminiscences" he said, "but it will afford me a chance to see how you take them and I may be encouraged to add to them at some future time."

board the vessel to act as skipper. Harry Martin had his hand crushed in the gear, and Goldsmith went on

After the work was done Goldsmith was seen tampering with the gun powder, and was warned not to interfere with it.

He persisted, however, and asked the third hand for a flare. The man refused it, and Goldsmith said: "All right; I've got a match."

Then he placed the keg in a small boat and rowed away a short distance. Suddenly a loud report was heard. For a time Goldsmith's head shoulders were seen above the water but he soon sank, the boat disappearing at the same time.

No trace of the keg was left. It was plainly marked "Gunpowder" on the outside.

A BUSINESS MAN'S LETTER.

Wm. Thomson, Esq., of Orillia, Vice-President Standard Chemical Company of Toronto, Tells of a Visit to the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives.

GREATLY IMPRESSED WITH WORK BEING DONE.

Personally Raises Several Hundred Dollars to Help Lessen the Load of Debt.

There can be little doubt that the National Sanitarium Association is handicapped in its great work for Consumptives in the fact that its two institutions in Muskoka are far away from any large centre of population. Few people have an opportunity to see for themselves the magnificent work that is being done.

These hospitals are away from the public eye. Any, however, who do visit them, are united in their commendation of the splendid appointments of the place, and, best of all, of the real joy and hope that is being brought to many suffering ones.

We are glad to have the opportunity of publishing the following letter from Mr. Wm. Thomson, of Orillia, one of Canada's best known tumbermen, which tells what he has seen himself. It reads:

ORILLIA, Ont., November 2, 1903.

W. J. GAGE, Esq.,
Chairman Executive Committee
National Sanitarium Association,
Toronto, Ont.

My Dear Mr. Gage,—

I have much pleasure in enclosing herewith cheque for One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) from the Tudhope Carriage Company of Orillia, a donation to the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. Please acknowledge this to the Tudhope Carriage Company in the usual way.

I have written to a number of my friends, to try and get them interested in this good work. I hope to be able to send you further donations. I have written my friends a personal letter, something similar to the following:

"Last week I paid a visit to the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. I met some of the management there, and promised to try and interest some of my friends in this work.

"I might say there were 40 patients there last week, all poor people, most of them without a dollar in the world, and suffering from the dreadful disease, Consumption. There are many sad stories, and I know I have thought a great deal about the work of the institution ever since my visit there. I do believe it is worthy of assistance, and we who have health and the necessaries of life should encourage this work along.

"I understand the expenses lately have been double the income, and unless the management meet with more encouragement, I am afraid the work will have to be curtailed. I know you have many calls, but I do wish you would give this matter a thought, and, if possible, assist. I have written to two or three confidentially, and hope to be able to collect some more for this work. Should you not feel like contributing a donation, remember this request, and your reply is just between you and me, and strictly confidential.

"I might mention, to show that I have confidence in the work, I have already given a donation of $100.00 and two row boats to the Free Hospital this year, and intend to give another $100.00 before the end of the year."

Sincerely yours,

Wm Thomson

Sir Wm. R. Meredith, Kt., or Mr. W. J. Gage, Toronto, will receive and acknowledge any contributions made.

Industrial Economy.

A locomotive engineer on an eastern railroad said one day to his two firemen, "Suppose you fellows work as if you, and not the company, were paying the coal bills." During six months, merely by careful firing, the men caused a saving in coal, over the average consumption of the engine, equal to almost four times the amount of wages paid the men for that period. The engine was the same; the men worked differently.

He Had a Way With Him.

Jane Seymour was boasting to Anne Boleyn.

"Henry has just asked me for my hand," she remarked.

"That's nothing," retorted the queen, "he has just asked me for my head."

Subsequent events showed both ladies granted the request.

Not Proposing.

Maud—I'm afraid I intruded when I dropped in on you unexpectedly the other evening. Mr. Spoonamore looked as if he were proposing. Mabel—Well, he wasn't. He was only posing.

His Sense of Feeling.

"Are you sure that mule is blind?"

"Yes, suh—in his eyes he is, but you doe orter see him feel for you wid his heels."

THE TONAPAH CROWN MINING CO.

Incorporated under the laws of the Territory of Arizona.

All stock fully paid and non-assessable

No personal liability to stockholders.

CAPITAL $1,500,000

IN TREASURY, 856,000 SHARES

Par value of shares $1.00 each.

The attention of all mining men is attracted to Tonapah and vicinity. The great finds which have been discovered in Lone Mountain, only a few miles distant, are to the investor still more attractive. Here we have value from the start. The Tonapah Crown Mining Company's ledges are plainly in sight for a distance of over 3000 feet.

We are bounded by such properties as the "Tamblyn," which ore assays from $950 to $1500 to the ton: Lynch & Omsara's "Alpine," which is producing $30,000 per month; the "Lone Star" group and the "Princess Maud."

You Should Invest With Us

BECAUSE—The majority of the stock is in the treasury, 856,000 shares.

BECAUSE—The Company is managed by successful business men. They are Cyrus Wheeler, W. H. Routz, F. F. Heard, F. A. King and C. A. Messing, all of Los Angeles.

BECAUSE—No preferred stock: therefore every one is on an equal footing

BECAUSE—We are selling our stock at a low rate now so we can put a large force of men to work and make shipments of ore just as soon as the railroad, now building, shall have been completed. Thirty miles of this railroad is already graded and the road will be in operation by May 15.

THE COSTILLA GOLD MINING COMPANY

Has 10 Gold-bearing Veins Exposed

190 Acres in a Solid Block and All Patented

A Crosscut Driven 117 feet to the First Big Vein

A drift run on the vein 178 FEET IN ORE, the Gold value or contents running from 2 to 8 ounces, per ton, or from $40 to $160. This ore has not been stoped and will not be until main shoot is reached.

The breast of the drift is, only 52 feet, according to engineer's survey, from the first BIG vertical ore shoot, which, at the surface, 550 feet above, shows values of 2 to 7 ounces gold, per ton.

Slabs and feeders of gold ore are coming in freely in the drift.

This is a business proposition. It is the KIND AND QUALITY which makes for great and permanent success. It is worth an investment of 10c. on the dollar, per share, now. It will be worth par with development.

Powerful Healing Effective Cure

FOR COLDS, COUGHS, CATARRH BRONCHITIS AND ASTHMA

Simply Inhale Catarrhozone; it Cures Because it Goes where the Disease Actually Is.

These diseases cannot be cured by stomach medicines; they must be treated locally. Catarrhozone is inhaled to the very source of the trouble, and gives the diseased membranes local treatment with the strongest, most healing antiseptics known.

After one trial of Catarrhozone you will wonder how you ever lived without it. Nasty colds in the head it cures in an hour; coughs are stopped in two hours, and catarrh and bronchitis are relieved at once. Nothing could be simpler or more pleasant than to inhale the fragrant vapor of Catarrhozone. Nothing is half so certain to cure your trouble permanently.

Nor is proof of Catarrozone's merit lacking, for it is endorsed more strongly by the medical profession than any other remedy. Its superiority to-day is unquestioned, and its sale by far exceeds that of any other two remedies on the market. Why? Because it does what is claimed for it—cures permanently those who use it for any disease of the breathing organs.

Mr. S. F. MacAuley, the well-known attorney of Portland, endorses Catarrhozone in the following letter. "I am anxious to make known that after three years' suffering from weak throat and catarrh, I have been cured by Catarrhozone.' I was treated by many doctors of wide reputation. I have used scores of different remedies. I have suffered everything catarrh entails, and I am convinced that no medicine is so sure to cure as Catarrhozone, which did me untold good and completely eradicated this awful disease from my system.'

Complete outfit, guaranteed to cure costs $1, sample size 25c. At all druggists or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., or Hartford, Conn. U.S.A. Beware of substitutes and insist on getting Catarrhozone when you ask for it.

Threatened Strike

It is said that indications point to a strike of the telegraph operators on the Grand Trunk System, in accordance with the act passed at the last session of Parliament, the Department of Labor may interfere. One clause of this statute bearing on the present situation states that whenever a difference between railway employers and employes seems likely to cause an interruption in the regular and safe transportation of mails, passengers or freight, the Minister of Labor may cause an enquirt to be made. The government would be required to appoint a conciliation committee of three persons named according to the method of appointing arbitrators.

Wine in Medicine

Magistrate Flint, of Belleville, recently rendered judgment in a case of selling liquor to a minor. The judgment, it is said, establishes a precedent in one point. The party charged claimed that she had only sold port wine wine, not knowing the same to be intoxicating, it being guaranteed by the makers to be non-alcoholic. The magistrate held that the burden of knowing what he or she sells is thrown upon the defendant in any such case, and, continuing, said: "Nostrums are sold publicly as patent medicines by various names and some of these consist of a very large proportion of whisky or wine. If the proportion of whiskey or alcohol is so great in any preparation sold over the bar of an hotel or in an hotel so as to cause intoxication. I think such a preparation or liquor is intoxicating liquor, and the person who so sells it violates the Act, if the sale is made contrary to any of its provisions."

Didn't Want the Family.

He had at last summoned up sufficient courage to "ask papa," when, to his astonishment, the blustering parent demanded, "Are you capable of supporting a family, sir?"

"No, sir," he replied with great firmness. "My father tackled that job and has had his wife's family on his hands ever since. I only want your daughter, sir, not the family."

One Obstacle Only.

Scholar—Professor, your mnemonic system is wonderful, and I am sure that any one, after mastering the rules, can learn to remember anything. But I am handicapped by one difficulty. Professor—What is it? Scholar—I can't remember the rules.—Town and Country.

More Important.

"With your daughter as my wife, sir, I can conquer the world."

"But that isn't the question. Can you make enough money to keep yourself in clothes?"—Life.

India Rubber.

Few articles seem more strangely named than india rubber. It gets the "rubber" from the first use to which it was put—that of erasing pencil marks by rubbing. Nor should it be associated with India. The tree was first mentioned by an explorer among the Mexican Indians three centuries ago, and the first account of the substance occurs in connection with Columbus' visit to Haiti on his second voyage. Most of our present importation comes from Brazil. But Columbus and those explorers who followed him were searching for a short passage to India, and they supposed that the land they discovered was India. The name india rubber is therefore a permanent sign of their mistake.

The Indian and a Gas Furnace.

Just before gas began to be used in Pawhuska one of the Osage braves visited Bartlesville and got his first glimpse of a gas fire. All he could see in the stove was a pile of redhot bricks, through the crevices of which the blue flames were curling. He said nothing, but before starting home he went to the yard and bought a lot of brick and hauled them home. He burned up six boxes of matches and all the dry wood his wife had cut trying to get the bricks to burn and finally hauled them back to Bartlesville and told the yard man they were no good.

The Tibetans.

The Tibetans are not beautiful. How could they be when, by their own confession, the national ancestry runs back to the king of the monkeys and a hobgoblin? Bonvalot says of them, "The very bears are better looking." The type is midway between the Eskimo and the Chinese. Broad, flat noses, without visible bridge; no eyebrows, wide mouths, full lips, oily skins, hair as coarse and straight as horsehair, and short, square, ungainly figures—these are the elements of the unpleasing picture.

Talking English.

Here is a story that comes from London and illustrates the peculiarities of the American boy: The youngster was at the Hotel Cecil, and he listened intently to a group of English folks. Suddenly he looked up at his mother. "Say, ma, do these people talk English?" "Certainly they do, my child. What a question!" "Then we don't," said the cub.

An Old Testament Verse.

The twenty-first verse of the seventh chapter of Ezra in the Old Testament contains all the letters of the alphabet. "And I, even I Artaxerxes the king, do make a decree to all the treasurers which are beyond the river, that whatsoever Ezra, the priest, the scribe of the law of the God of heaven, shall require of you, it be done speedily."

Her Good Point.

Even the most impulsive women have their good traits.

An Irishman, mourning his late wife, tearfully remarked:

"Faith, she was a good woman. She always hit me wid de soft end av the broom."

Queer Drunken Mania.

An English sheriff who died some years since kept a record of the curious cases of drunkenness that came under his observation. Several habitual cases had developed odd manias. One woman who had been arrested 107 times for drunkenness in twenty-eight years, had a mania for breaking windows when she was intoxicated. An old soldier, suffering from a wound in the head, always stole Bibles when he was tipsy. Another man stole nothing but spades, while one woman's fancy ran to shawls and another's to shoes. A man named Grubb was imprisoned seven times for stealing tubs, although there was nothing in his line of life to make tubs particularly desirable to him.

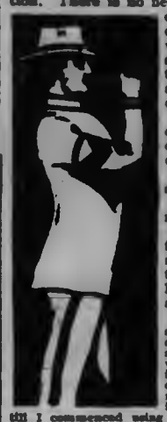
Mild Revenge.

She—I am going to give you back our engagement ring. I can never marry you; I love another. He—Give me his name and address. She—Do you want to kill him? He—No; I want to try to sell him the ring.

The usual fortune of complaint is to excite contempt more than pity.—Johnson.

THE BUGLER'S CHEST

Is well expanded. He uses his lungs to their fullest capacity. People in ordinary do not use much over half their lung power. The unused lung surface becomes inert, and offers unprepared ground for the attack of the germs of consumption. There is no need to warn people of the danger of consumption, but warning is constantly needed not to neglect the first symptoms of diseased lungs.



Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures obstinate coughs, bronchitis, bleeding lungs, and other conditions which, if neglected or unskilfully treated, find a fatal termination in consumption. It is entirely free from opiates and narcotics.

"About three years ago I was taken with a bad cough, vomiting and spitting blood," writes Mr. B. J. Robinson, of Spring Garden, W. Va. "I tried many remedies; nothing seemed to help me till I commenced using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. After using ten bottles and four vials of his 'Pleasant Pellets,' I commenced to improve. My case seemed to be almost a hopeless one. Doctors pronounced it ulcer of the lungs. I was sick nearly two years—part of the time bedfast. Was given up to die by all. I thought it would be impossible for me to live over night at one time. I haven't spit any blood now for more than twelve months, and worked on the farm all last summer. It was Dr. Pierce's medicines that cured me."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach.

The "Medical Adviser," in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

How to Hold Actors.

"It always makes me mad to talk to an actor. He pretends to listen politely, but his attention is wandering all the time. Ever notice it?"

"No; I always talk to them about themselves."

His Waterloo.

Hewitt—Gruet has lost all his money. Jewett—But I thought he was a Napoleon of finance. Hewitt—He was, but he met a Wellington

Snakeless Alaska.

Neither frogs nor snakes live in Alaska, but toads are frequently to be met with.

Head Heating Pillows.

It should be remembered that more blood, and hence more heat, goes to the head than to any other part of the body. Head heating pillows are against the wholesome maxim, "Keep the feet warm, but the head cool."

You may be busy, but if you have time to tell your troubles you are not busy enough.—Atchison Globe.

How the Japanese Landed--Bombarded Enemy's Patrol and Then Went Ashore

Two Admirals Tell Tokio How Easily They Got Their Men Ashore--Took Possession of a Range of Hills Without Firing a Shot

Tokio, May 7.—The report of Admiral Hosoya, received to-day, gives details of the landing of Japanese troops on the Liao Tung Peninsula, suppressing the location of the landing place. He says:

"Our second division, with torpedo boats and the Hong Kong Maru, and a Nippon Maru, arrived from the advance base off the Liao Tung Peninsula, at 5.30, May 5. Discovering a number of the enemy's patrols, we bombarded them for a short time and then a landing party of sailors, Captain Nomoto leading, was ordered ashore. It being low tide, it was impossible to use the boats, and the sailors plunged into the water, waded breast-deep for about a thousand yards, and reached the beach at 7.20 p.m. Immediately advancing they took possession of a range of hills without firing a shot, and planted our flag on the hills.

"The gunboats Amagi, Oshima, and Chokai, were employed to distract the enemy's attention. They discovered a hundred of the enemy, and shelled them, killing several.

"The first fleet of transports, on seeing our flag, displayed on an eminence, began landing troops at 8 p.m. The troops who were forced to wade ashore were in high spirits.

"In order to facilitate the further landing of troops, piers are being erected. Our division is assisting in the work."

ADMIRAL KATAOKA'S REPORT.

The report of Admiral Kataoka, commander of the third squadron, gives additional details of the landing. The Admiral reports that his squadron conveyed the first batch of the troops army to the Liao Tung base, and adds that the Kuga Maru grounded near the base at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. She was assisted by the protected cruisers, Akitsushima, which succeeded in floating the transport, which reached her destination safely at 5 o'clock the same evening.

Tokio, May 7.—General Kuroki, in reporting yesterday, tells of a bloody encounter during the Russian retreat on Sunday last when, according to information furnished by a native a body of infantry, two thousand strong, occupying a hill near Tengsberg Hong Matook for Japanese a detachment of their own infantry about 200 strong, retiring before the Japanese troops and fought among themselves. In the scuffle 110 were killed and 70 wounded and the Russian horses were stampeded, leaving their loads of store behind.

According to the story told by a captured Russian officer who participated in the battle on Sunday last only five or six battalions of Russian infantry and two battalions of artillery were able to retire in order. The other troops ran away in a state of entire confusion.

A HAND TO HAND AFFRAY.

General Kuroki says that a Japanese patrol consisting of fourteen men reached Teng-shang Hong on the third instant when a Russian patrol posted on a hill south of the village attacked them. The Japanese patrol thereupon turned and charged them and after an intrepid hand to hand affray the enemy was driven back in the direction of Feng Wan Chang. The Japanese patrol pursued them to a stream three miles southwest of Kaolin where Russian sentries were discovered posted on hills on both sides of this road.

St. Petersburg, May 7.—The Japanese landing at Pitsewo is expected to be followed almost immediately by the isolation of Port Arthur. Landings on the west coast of the peninsula are also anticipated. The Russian military authorities seem reconciled to the cutting off of their stronghold, but they are convinced that the fortress is impregnable against attacks by land or sea. Though the enemy may invest the place the authorities here do not believe the Japanese will undertake to storm the position.

It is believed the greater parts of the troops have been withdrawn, and that Lieutenant-General Stoessel's force, including the garrison of Port Arthur, does not exceed 23,000 men. The fortress is provisioned for a year. Further operations on the peninsula on a large scale are dependent upon the development of the campaign on the mainland.

TO BE DISMISSED.

It is reported that Gen. Kuropatkin has asked the Emperor to dismiss Lieut.-General Zassalitch for disobedience of orders. Such action would not be surprising.

THE NEWS AT WASHINGTON.

Washington, May 7.—The State Department has received a cablegram from United States Minister Griscom at Tokio, confirming the press report of the landing of the Japanese in the Liao Tung peninsula about 40 miles above Port Arthur. The location given in the Japanese despatch is Kinshan. This is the narrowest point on the peninsula, and, consequently, the Minister says, the railroad is practically closed, and the investment of Port Arthur has begun.

THEY HAVE A SCAPE GOAT

Kashtaliasky Foredoomed His Troops to Destruction -Should Have Moved in Night

St. Petersburg, May 6—The Russian papers are rather sparing in their comment on the battle of Kiu Lien Cheng, evidently awaiting more complete details but what they say contains no trace of discouragement.

The Novoe Vremya says the days of patience announced by General Kuropatkin have now begun and declares that the Japanese difficulties will increase as they advance. The paper believes the chief danger now is in the attitude of the Chinese and says:

"Our diplomats must make Pekin realise the danger of Chinese violation of neutrality. Russia must win, but with heavier sacrifices a heavier price will be extracted from her foes."

The Viedmosti remarks:—"It is a Japanese victory. Do not let us seek for a scapegoat. It is the fortune of war. Glory to the dead and to the survivors of the heroic fight against overwhelming odds. But the Japanese probably would gladly exchange their dearly bought victory for a successful bottling up of Port Arthur."

The Russky Invalid, the army organ, points to the fact that 5,00 Russians fought a rear guard battle against 30,000 at Shoengraben (Austria) in 1805 and a century later 8,000 Russians fought 40,000 Japanese at the Yalu.

"The Russians," the Russky Invalid adds, "are accustomed to lay down their lives when duty calls. The Japanese paid too dearly for their victory. It will take them days to recover."

A GENERAL'S BLUNDER.

The Novoe Vrmeya's expert says the report of Major-Gen. Kashtalinsky proves clearly that the Russians should have withdrawn during the night of April 30, and adds:

"Kashtalinsky foredoomed them to destruction. It was a miracle of heroism and fortitude that they escaped after staying and inglicting such tremendous losses on the enemy."

General Kuroi probably has eight divisions available for an immediate advance. This force will be joined by General Oku's army when the latter is landed. The Japanese have every reason to follow the southern road, where they will have the advantage of the co-operation of their ships. The roads are less difficult and mountainous through the Feng Wang Cheng district, but the Japanese must dispose of the Russian force at Feng Wang Cheng before they can cut off Liao Tung.

London, May 6.—Further enquiries show that a Japanese loan of $50,000,000 will be issued next week. It will take the form of seven-year six per cent. bonds, and the issue price probably will be 93 1-2, the security being a first charge on the Japanese customs. The loan will be issued simultaneously in New York and London, the only detail remaining to be determined being regarding the amount which shall be allotted to each city. It is anticipated that London will get $35,000,000 and New York $15,000,000.

M. Takahashio, the Japanese financial agent in London, says the money will not be sent to Japan but will be employed in paying the balance of trade. He adds that, in his opinion, no other loan will be required by Japan before the conclusion of the war.

SOCIETY WOMAN A THIEF

Steals a Casket Containing $10 000 Worthy of Jewelry

Paris, May 7.—After the death of the Duchess D'Albe at the Hotel Bristol last March it was found that a casket containing jewels valued at $20,000 was missing. The lost jewels included a diamond earring, teh wedding gift of Emperor Napoleon III to the Empress Eugenie, which later was presented by the Empress to her niece.

The Spanish Embassy communicated with the authorities concerning the missing casket and the police have now traced the theft to a prominent society woman who visited the duchess during her last illness.

The jewel have been recovered, and it is probable that the family of the duchess will refuse to prosecute the accused.

PORT ARTHUR WILL SOON BE INVESTED, IF NOT ALREADY CUT OFF--MANY RUSSIANS SLAUGHTERED.

One Russian Regiment Inflicts Heavy Loss on Another

LANDED ON WEST SIDE

Port Arthur is Well Supplied With Ammunition and Provisions

St. Petersburg, May 7.—The landing of the Japanese at Pitsewo, northeast of Port Arthur, is officially confirmed.

It is expected that the railway connecting Port Arthur with Mukden and Harbin will soon be cut.

The departure of Viceroy Alexieff and Grand Duke Boris from Port Arthur was yesterday by Imperial command, hurried owing to the possibility of the interruption of railway communication.

The Japanese landed in sufficient force to discourage the few hundred Russians watching at Pitsewo from offering any resistance.

TEN THOUSAND LANDED.

St. Petersburg, May 7.—The details of the Japanese landing at Pitsewo have just been received by the general staff. From information brought to Port Arthur by the Chinese 60 transports are disembarking two divisions, numbering altogether 30,000 men, of whom 10,000 were landed yesterday evening. No news has been received up to this hour of any other landing.

PERHAPS HE CAN'T GET OUT.

Strict orders have been given to Rear Admiral Wittsceft not to take out his warships from Port Arthur.

ARE COMMUNICATIONS CUT.

Paris, May 7.—A despatch to the Havas Agency from St. Petersburg says the Japanese troops who landed at Pitsewo yesterday have cut the land communications with Port Arthur.

PORT ARTHUR WELL SUPPLIED.

New Chwang, May 7.—It is reported here that the Japanese troops landed yesterday at Pitsewo, on the Liao Tung peninsula, numbered 10,000 men.

Port Arthur, according to reliable information, is well supplied with provisions.

RUSSIANS WERE OUTNUMBERED

Chefoo, May 7.—The expected landing of the Japanese on the Liao Tung peninsula commenced Thursday, according to reports received here from a reliable Japanese source. It is stated that the landing is being made on the eastern coast of the peninsula opposite the Elliott Islands. After a reconnaisance from Takushan south by naval detachments the Japanese concluded that a comparatively small force of Russian cavalry guarded the east coast.

LANDED ON THE WEST SIDE.

London, May 7.—A despatch to the Central News from St. Petersburg today says the Japanese landed at Port Adams, on the west coast of the Liao Tung Peninsula, as well as at Pitsewo.

(Port Adams is situated about fifty miles from Port Arthur at the head of Society Bay, and on the railway connecting Port Arthur with Mukden and Harbin. Consequently it may be inferred that if the report of a Japanese landing there is correct, communication with Port Arthur has been cut off. Pitsewo, on the east coast, where the Japanese have landed, is less than twenty miles from Port Adams, and is about seventy-five miles northwest of Port Arthur, and about 100 miles south of New Chwang. It is near the narrowest part of the peninsula along which passes the railroad connecting Port Arthur with Mukden and Harbin. A St. Petersburg despatch admits that by the occupation of Pitsewo the Japanese have secured an important advantage. From there radiate roads connecting with the railway at Yangtsiien directly west to south, with Sau Chellpan and Kinchou stations on the railway nearer Port Arthur, north with Kaiping and northeast through Takushan with Feng Wang Cheng. Furthermore, once the Japanese are across the railway, Port Arthur will be as good as besieged." A member of the general staff says that General Kuropatkin is well aware of these conditions. Even if the Japanese should succeed in cutting the railway, Port Arthur is now ready to depend on its own resources. London experts say that there are no means of ascertaining which Japanese army is off Pitsewo, but speculation favors the second army, under Gen. Oku. This includes the sixth or Kumamoto division, which was prominently engaged in the operations against Port Arthur in the Chinese-Japanese War, and whose officers know the ground thoroughly.

A RUMOR AT ROME.

Rome, May 7.—According to a telegram received here from Chefoo the garrison at Port Arthur has been reduced to 4,000 men, and all the important documents, money and field guns have been removed to Mukden.

TORONTO AND THE TRENT CANAL

Argument in Favor of the Port Hope Route

TRENTON ROUTE FAVORED

Erroneous Statements Calculated to Injure the Towns Along the Waterway

A staff correspondent of the Toronto Star visited Peterborough and interviewed a number of citizens regarding the Trent Valley Canal. The following report appeared in that paper:

A favorite argument of the Peterborough and Lakefield men who favor the Trent River route to Trenton from pre-interested reasons, is that by way of Trenton the Government will obtain a revenue of large proportions by the rental of water power privileges, established by the dams and other works necessary to the canal. By the Port Hope route the Government will get nothing in return.

J. M. Kilbourn, of Lakefield, the owner of the big Lakefield cement works, told the Royal Commission that the Dominion Government would get $200,000 a year from water power privileges if the canal were completed via Trenton. Such statements are on par with many of the arguments used in favor of the Trenton route. Any man who knows aught of the Trent River power situation knows that the whole river will not produce 100,000 horse-power — Mr. Kilbourn was figuring at $2 a horse power — if the Government had possession of all the privileges from end to end.

UNDER PRIVATE CONTROL.

As a matter of fact, not more than 30,000 horse-power could be developed in the entire river if the Government owned every concession. By the construction of the canal down the Trent River the Government will obtain less than 9,000 horse-power, and almost the entire head is controlled by private interests, and the men interested—half of them are Peterborough men, are working tooth and nail to make Trenton the outlet, so that the Government may either improve their powers or be compelled to pay damages for destroying or interfering with them. These are the men who are shouting that the Port Hopers are, to use a street gamin phrase, 'butting in,' and that they are delaying the route. These are the men, too, who are raising the cry that the country does not produce enough water for the purposes of the canal, and are petitioning the Government to spend $300,000 in conserving the water in the back country. They said that the present dams were rotten, and must be renewed right away, and made a great outcry, only to be told plainly and emphatically by the Government engineer that they were talking rot, and that the dams were in excellent shape, and that the water supply was abundant. They wanted more water for power schemes in which some of them were interested, and to get it at the expense of the general public, gave the Government a chance to droit the whole scheme on the ground that when it was built, all the country would have to show for the gigantic outlay was a moist ditch from Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario.

LOCAL AND GRAIN TRAFFIC.

And still they cry that Port Hope is delaying the canal. They did not wake up and do anything until they were stirred out last fall.

Some of these men, too, know that the Port Hope route is the route for the development of the back country, and that it will expedite, if anything, the barge grain trade from the West, yet they argue for the Trenton route. Port Hope men charge that they are out for their own ends, and care nothing for the public good.

Even Mr. D. Hughes-Champs, President of the Peterborough Board of Trade, admitted that the Port Hope route offered an attractive outlook for general trade.

"But then, you know, it would never do for a grain barge route," he argued. "This Trent Valley Canal was outlined as a great all-Canadian grain to the seaboard, and we must not lose sight of the fact. It is a cheap route and cheap rates will prevail. To handle the traffic cheap barges will be built. These barges will be built for about $5,000 apiece,, and they will not stand the open lake work."

"Why not build them substantial enough to stand the lake work?" he was asked. "It can be done. Rideau Canal barges ply across the lake to Oswego, and load coal, and a westerly storm knocks up a very nasty sea down there."

"That couhld not be done under the circumstances," was the reply. "Rates must be very low to handle wheat, and the rates which would doubtless prevail would not admit of the barge owner building expensive barges for lake work. By the Trenton route the barges would have protection practically all the way to Montreal. That Port Hope route is a most dangerous one, in my opinion, for barges. Why, I lived down there for several months, and had a good opportunity to judge fo the weather. In the fall, just when the grain barges would be going down in shoals, it storms nearly all the time. They could not stand the weather at all. I actually saw one barge founder right off Port Hope the time I was there in a storm, so you see I know whereof I speak. No, the Trenton route is the only route in my opinion."

"What about local traffic on Lake Ontario?"

TRAFFIC WOULD GO EAST.

"The outlet at Trenton would serve the district almost as well as that by Port Hope," was the reply. "We can get our coal in from across the lake just as well by Trenton as by Port Hope, I should think, and our local products can just as well go east as west. By way of Port Hope there might be some advantages to Toronto, and the western lake cities, but I do not believe that there would be nearly the amount of general traffic as the Port Hope advocates state.

Mr. A. H. Stratton, Vice-President of the Board of Trade, was unequivocally in favor of the Trenton route.

"I cannot see anything in favor of the Port Hope route at all," he said. "Trenton has always been regarded as the natural outlet, and Trenton is the natural outlet, and Trenton is the way it will go as soon as the unwarranted delay caused by the Port Hope agitation has taken place. The Port Hope men might as well cease worrying themselves. The canal is going to reach the lake by way of Trenton, and the sooner it is opened out the better for Peterborough and the entire district.

AS A GRAIN ROUTE.

Still another man who can see nothing in favor of the Port Hope route, and yet who admits that it would save his company about $3,000 a year in coal transportation, is Mr. A. G. Patterson, General Manager of the Canadian General Electrical Company works at Peterborough. He refers to engineering difficulties up on the Port Hope route which Hopers declare do not occur, and iterates the charge that Port Hope is delaying the completion of the canal.

"It is nonsense to talk of a deep canal from Port Hope to Peterborough," he exclaimed. "This canal will be completed on the basis it has already been enlarged to eight feet four inches. The sooner Port Hope gets out of the road of progress the better for this whole country. The canal is our great barge route to the sea, and it must be completed as originally outlined to be of any utility as a grain route."

"How about general traffic?"

"I don't think that there would be any general traffic to speak of if the route went by Port Hope," he remarked. ("In my opinion, there would be more traffic eastward with the canal outlet at Trenton. Engineers who have examined the Port Hope route tell us that the great ridge just south of Rice Lake will add enormously to the cost of constructing it to the lake that way."

Mr. Evans Bradburn, another prominent Peterborough man, argues in almost exactly the same strain. He dilates upon the danger of the open 28 miles from Port Hope to Presqu Isle Bay.

GRAND TRUNK TO ORGANIZE SURVEY

Engineers of this Company to Plan Eastern Section of

A NEW RAILWAY SCHEME

G. T. R, Rapidly Perfecting the Details of Part of Grand Trunk Pacific Surveys

Montreal, May 7.—The engineering department of the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada will organize the surveys for the eastern section of the Grand Trunk Pacific.

An announcement to this effect was made at the head office of the company in this city this morning.

In obtaining the passage of the national Transcontinental Railway bill through Parliament, the Government met with so much opposition even from friends of the party, to many of the provisions of the measure that it was thought better not to run any further risks of incurring additional trouble.

While the original intention had been to construct the eastern section exclusively as a Government undertaking, the decision has been reached to place the matter in practical hands. Hence the arrangement will the G.T.R. to do all the preliminary work.

The impression prevails that, in this way, the Government will, should unanticipated difficulties arise in the future, be in a position to lay the blame upon other shoulders.

In the meantime, the engineering department of the G.T.R. is rapidly perfecting the details of the work which they have been called upon to perform.

So soon as the bill has been assented to by the Governor-General, work upon the surveys west from Quebec will be immediately commenced, and that under the entire control of the G.T.R.

TO RAISE THE PRICE

Stated That Beer and Ale are to be Raised Next Monday

It is announced that the brewery syndicate will raise the price of beer and ale next Monday, and many hotelkeepers are filling up their cellars with ale in puncheons and bottles.

Beer is to be advanced from $5.50 to $6.50 a barrel, and ale will go from $12 to $15 a barrel. Bottled ale will be raised 10 cents a dozen.

Some of the Peterborough hotelmen are not pleased at the rise, in view of the price of beer being raised $1 a barrel some months ago. It is pointed out, however, that beer has been $7 a barrel in Toronto for a long time, and that the price here was lower than in any place in the country.

The hotelmen who have diamonds will cut about an inch off the top of the beer glasses, and some threaten to "cut out" schooners altogether.

The most important effect the rise will have, a hotelman said today, is that there will be no 5 cent glasses of bottled ale. Those who want bottled ale must buy a bottle, 10 cents.

AN ECHO OF THE BOER WAR

It was not left altogether to those who faced Boer bullets in the recent South African conflict to wait for time to heal their wounds; some financial piercing had also been going on at that time, the effects of which are only now being felt, and which may take longer to heal than a physical disorder. The alleged embezzlement of the managing director of the company is given, says a Toronto letter, as the reason for the financial embarrassment of the Canadian Export Company, Limited, this city, an application for the winding up of which was made at Osgoode Hall, a few days ago. The petitioner is the James A. McLean Produce Company, which has a claim against the Export Company for $344. In an affidavit filed Mr. McLean states that the Export Company was incorporated in October, 1902, to act as purchasing agent on a commission basis for houses in South Africa, Australia and Great Britain, and to conduct a general commission business in Canada. The nominal stock was $50,000, but only fifty shares were paid up. Alex. Maclaren was president, and J. S. King and J. P. Murray vice-presidents.

The business of the company was carried on till a few weeks ago when, Mr. McLean's affidavit states, J. W. Flanders, the managing director, left the country under auspicious circumstances, and is believed to have embezzled the company's money. This, it is claimed, is responsible for the embarrassment of the company, which, the affidavit says, is hopelessly insolvent. A meeting of the creditors was subsequently held when a statement was presented showing a deficit of $19,609. The direct liabilities are given as $56,257. Mr. Flanders, the managing director, was under a bond for $10,000, and petition asks, besides the winding up of the company and the appointment of a liquidator, that steps be taken to proceed for recovery under this bond.

RUSSIA'S DESPERATE NAVAL ENTERPRISE

It is impossible longer to doubt that Russia is determined to send her European fleet half way around the world to try to regain command of the sea in the East. This is the most desperate enterprise ever undertaken in the history of warfare. Russia is without a single coaling station from the time her ships leave the Baltic and Black sea. The enterprise is so flagrantly offensive that no neutral power will dare help her on her way. The pretext of giving a belligerent coal enough to reach the nearest home port will not serve to help ships steaming directly away from home. Russia will have to take colliers along with her fleet and coal at sea or in friendly harbors. Even in these she cannot stay more than twenty-four hours without violating the rules of war.

Russia is buying ships right and left with apparent recklessness, but she will need everything she can get to carry out this enterprise. Probably the German liners are intended to carry coal, and the Italian built Argentine cruisers as convoys. The torpedo boats she is said to be buying are more for patrol than for offensive purposes. This fleet will be exposed to sudden and secret attack as soon as it passes the Suez canal. Unarmored Japanese cruisers could hang safely about them, sowing mines in their path or dropping torpedo boats to send them to the bottom. The fleet cannot escape observation and must run the gauntlet of a thousand perils before it can come within striking distance of Japan.

Under the circumstances we doubt if the Japanese regard Russia's naval preparations with alarm. It may even be doubted if Japan has asked Great Britain to prevent the Black sea fleet from passing the Dardanelles. If Great Britain protests against that violation of the treaty of Berlin, she will do it probably on her own account and for her own purposes. She may be content with a merely formal protest, to serve as a precedent for the future. As far as the Black sea fleet is concerned we should suppose that Great Britain, as well as Japan, might be willing to allow it to take the Dardanelles as a stage on its passage to join the Eastern fleet in blockaded harbors or at the bottom of the sea.

JOY AT CLOSING OF PORT

No Official Confirmation of News as Yet—Russian General Praises Valor of Men at Vafu—Over 2,000 Killed

St. Petersburg, May 6.—The Emperor yesterday received the following despatch from Gen. Kuropatkin.

"Major-General Kashtalinsky reports as follows:

"I consider it my duty to report the circumstances of the grievous yet glorious battle fought by the troops under my command with the superior forces of the Japanese.

"Early in the morning of April 30 the Japanese began to oppress our left flank, having on the previous evening occupied the Khusan Heights after an attack, in consequence of which I ordered the 22nd Regiment, which had occupied Khusan, to retire across the Ai River to our position at Potietinsky.

"On the morning of the same day an extraordinary prolonged and violent bombardment of our whole position at Kiutiencheng commenced from Wiju. I foresaw that the Japanese after the bombardment in which over 2,00 projectiles were discharged, would take the offensive.

HE STOOD TIGHT.

"I received orders from Lieut.-Gen. Sassulitch to accept battle and to retain my position at the forts of Potietnisky.

"My left flank was defended by two battalions of the 22nd Regiment and the third battery of the sixth brigade.

"The Japanese took the offensive at 5 o'clock in the morning, despatching at least one division of infantry, which, advancing in column, sustained enormous losses but crossed the ford and attacked our position, which was exposed to the fire of 36 field guns and siege batteries.

"The Japanese advanced and occupied the position.

"Towards noon I ascertained that the Japanese had routed the battalion of the 22nd Regiment, posted as Chingow and were turning my left flank.

REINFORCEMENTS CAME.

"At 1 o'clock in the afternoon my left flank was reinforced by two battalions of the 11th Regiment and a battery commanded by Lieut.-Colonel Moravsky, which was sent from the reserve by Lieut.-General Sassulitch with orders to hold their ground until the departure of the 9th and 10th Regiments from Sakhodza. I ordered the 11th Regiment to occupy a commanding position in the rear, from which they could fire on the enemy from two sides.

"I held Lieut.-Colonel Moravsky's battery in reserve, and ordered the 12th Regiment, the third battery and the quick-firing guns to retire under cover of the 12th Regiment.

"My chief of staff led the rear-guard to its position.

"At 1 o'clock the Japanese approached so close to the position held by the 11th Regiment that the third battery could not pass along under the cross-firing, and took up a position a short distance from the Japanese during the remainder of the fight, losing its commander, Lieut.-Colonel Moravsky.

"A company with quick-fire guns was brought up from the rear guard and the officer commanding this, foreseeing the difficult situation of the Moravsky battery, took up the position on his own initiative. He lost half of his men and all his horses, and attempted to remove his guns by hand to the shelter of the hills under the Japanese cross-fire. The quick-firing pieces discharged 35,000 bullets.

BOTH SIDES LOST HEAVILY.

"The 12th Regiment cut its way through and saved its colors.

"The second battery of the Sixth Brigade, having attempted to rejoin the reserves by another route, could not accept the mountain slopes with only half its horses and retiring to its original position, received the Japanese attack.

"The 12th Regiment which held its ground for two hours more with heavy losses, forced a passage at the point of the bayonet, and crossed the ravinds with its colors. It lost its colonel commandant.

"We lost about forty officers and 2,000 non-commissioned officers and men.

"The Japanese losses must have been enormous.

"The Russians retired in good order on Fengwangcheng.

"The men of the third division maintained their excellent morale and over 700 wounded proceeded with these regiments to Fenfwengcheng."

Are You Nearing the Turn of Life?

Unmistakable signs of 'the change'—a Headache, Sleepless Nights, Nervousness, Hysteria and Melancholia—Watch for these Symptoms if past Forty five.

When the turn or change of life make its appearance you will notice severe pains shooting through the loins. As a rule the change is gradual. In most cases it is marked by irregularity of the menstrual flow. It is most important to maintain as high a degree of vigor as possible. All strength should be conserved, and Ferrozone should be taken three times daily until the crisis is past. Ferrozone not only acts on the blood giving it purity and richness, but acts directly on the womanly organs in such a way as to lessen the strain and severity of this trying time.

Mrs. Martha M. Macadam, of St. George, writes: "About two years ago I was greatly run down and felt as if I was going to die. I was in a nervous excited state, and had the most dreadful pains every month. Irregularities that I never had before commenced, and I didn't know what was wrong. I consulted the doctor and learned I was approaching a very critical time. I started on a course of Ferrozone, and took one tablet along with every meal for about six months. Ferrozone had a direct action, and helped me immensely. My nervousness went away, and so did all the other worrying symptoms. Ferrozone is a remedy that all women should use, because it insures regularity, freedom from pain and headache. It is a remarkable re-builder and tonic, and saw me safely through my trouble."

Ferrozone is exactly the remedy you need. Don't believe an unscrupulous dealer who may try to sell you a base substitute that affords him more profit. Insist on Ferrozone. Price 50c per box or six boxes for $2.50, at all druggists or by mail, from The Ferrozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

—If our local horse clipper does not try and be up with the times as far as reducing prices are concerned, that gentlemanly, barefaced gent from Caughnawaga will probably sidetrack him, as the Tip O'Slasher is taking the place of the "Sharp" in a great many cases already.

—"Parker day" was postponed till Friday owing to the chilly winds. Monday, the day which a good many mistook for it, was fairly attractive and drew up quite a crowd, being mostly representatives from Dummer and some far back places, where they could not readily hear the news. It was amusing to see them bringing barrels upon barrels and sacks of salt, thinking, perhaps, to have the largest share in it, and then with their temper at the highest possible pitch, have to return empty handed. Had it been a month earlier we could call it a good April fool trick for Bill, who felt so good over it.

High Class Investment

THE OREGON MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY

Offer to Canadian investors a limited amount of stock of the above company The property owned by the Company consists at the present time of about 500 acres, which are located in the Tarryall District and Park County, Colorado. This whole district has been known for years on account of its rich placer ground, and is now prominently before the public owing to the number of very good properties which have been opened up recently producing, principally, gold, and lately some that are producing Platinum. On the Oregon property there are a number of well known veins of low grade ore that will yield a profit by being treated on the ground of the company. The company have recently opened up a fine vein in the Hawkeye group and this vein shows not only good values but an immense amount of ore which alone would make the property very valuable. Assays from ore taken from various parts of this property range from a few dollars to $373 per ton in gold. We have very little silver, lead or copper in the district. The company have a shaft 240 feet deep, with a good shaft house thoroughly well equipped with all modern machinery to develop same. They are now driving a tunnel which is in about 700 feet and which will cut the Hawkeye vein about 300 feet deeper than where it is opened at present. There is enough ore exposed on the property of this company to keep them busy for a number of years and the reason for selling stock at the present time is to secure funds to build a mill. The company will probably join with the Almaden Company in building this mill. There is water enough to furnish water power and over 100 acres of fine spruce and pine timber. The affairs of the company have always been managed in a business-like economical manner and there are no officers' salaries. The monies received from the sale of stock go direct into the property.

I can heartily recommend this stock as safe, as well as an unusually good investment, because of the immense amount of ore which the company have already opened up. It is not a mere prospect, but the property has been developed by expense of a considerable amount of money and time.

The company is splendidly officered by men of integrity and high standing. The company has not pushed the sale of stock the last year owing to a delay in getting title to the ground from the Government, but now that has been satisfactorily adjusted and work will be pushed to a finish.

The number of exceedingly rich strikes which have been made during the last few weeks in the various camps in the State of Colorado is the best evidence of the prosperity of the mining business. Almost every camp in the state has opened up rich bodies of ore, and Park County is well in the lead in that line.

There are only $25,000 of stock for sale, at $1.00 per share. The company is capitalized at $200,000, and the advantage to the investor of selling the stock at par, is that every share is fully paid up and non-assessable.

HAS ISSUED A WRIT.

A CASE OF MUCH LOCAL INTEREST NOW ON.

Mrs. J. M. Irwin Takes Action to Protect Her Good Name

A writ has been issued at the instance of Mrs. Annie Irwin, of Toronto, formerly of Peterborough, against her husband, J. M. Irwin, and his wife. It will be remembered that Mr. and Mrs. Irwin separated while residing in Peterborough, and, it is said, that Mr. Irwin secured a divorce in Dakota. At the same time Mr. and Mrs. Markham Sheldrake, who resided in Lakefield, separated. Mrs. Sheldrake also, it is alleged, securing a divorce in the United States. Mr. Irwin and Mrs. Sheldrake subsequently were married.

In the writ just issued copyright in a husband's name, definition of bigamous intent, legality of Dakota divorce in Canada and other nice points of law are raised. Mrs. Irwin asks

"For an injunction restraining the defendant, Sherife Sheldrake, from representing herself to be Mrs. Jas. M. Irwin or the wife of the defendant James M. Irwin. Also from representing herself to be the plaintiff, who is the lawful wife of the defendand, James M. Irwin, and from representing Sherife Sheldrake to have been married to James M. Irwin.

"Also for damages sustained by the plaintiff, because of such representation and use."

James M. Irwin went to the land of the Dakotas, and after a considerable residence there became again united in matrimony. Bigamy cannot be alleged, as it would be necessary first of all to prove that he had a bigamous intent in proceeding to Dakota. The Crown does not interfere where intent cannot be shown.

McCarthy, Osler, Hoskin & Harcourt are acting for the plaintiff.

TO IMPROVE THE TIMES

Our Typesetting Machines Being Thoroughly Overhauled

We ask the indulgence of our readers for a few days longer until the work of repairing our typesetting machines is completed. When this is done we will be in a position to greatly improve the appearance of the Times. We have one of our machines under repair for several weeks, and hope to have it completed and in operation by to-morrow. Our second machine will then be put through the mill. These two machines have for years been doing the work of four, as they have been running almost continuously day and night.

Later on we propose to instal a modern newspaper press, as a preliminary to the production in Peterborough of a modern morning newspaper.

Old Hagar's Secret

BY MRS. M. J. HOLMES

Author of "For a Woman's Sake," "Love's Triumph," "Purified by Suffering," "A Grass Widow," "Woman Against Woman," Etc.

Maggie was about to answer, when her thoughts were directed to another channel by the sight of George Douglas and Theo, coming slowly down the shaded pathway, which led past Hagar's door. Old Hagar saw them, too, and, whispering to Maggie, said: "There's another marriage brewing or the signs do not tell true, and madam will sanction this one, too, for there's money there, and gold can purify any blood."

Ere Maggie could reply, Theo called out: "You here, Mag, as usual?" adding, aside to her companion, "She has the most unaccountable taste, so different from me, who cannot endure anything low and vulgar. Can you? But I need not ask," she continued, "for your associations have been of a refined nature."

George Douglas did not answer, for his thoughts were back in the brown farmhouse at the foot of the hill, where his boyhood was passed, and he wondered what the high-bred lady at his side would say if she could see the sunburnt man and plain old-fashioned woman who called him their son, George Washington. He would not confess that he was ashamed of his parentage, for he tried to be a kind and dutiful son, but he would a little rather that Theo Miller should not know how democratic had been his early training. So he made no answer, but addressing himself to Mag, asked "how she could find it in her heart to leave her patient so long?"

"I'm going back directly," she said, and donning her hat she started for home, thinking she had gained but little satisfaction from Hagar, who, as Douglas and Theo passed on, resumed her seat by the door, and, listening to the sound of Margaret's retreating footsteps, muttered: "The old lightheartedness is gone. There are shadows gathering round her, for, once in love, she'll never be as free and joyous again. But it can't be helped; it's the destiny of women, and I only hope this Warner is worthy of her, but he ain't. He's too wild—too full of what Hagar Warren calls bedevilments. And Mag does everything he tells her to do. Not content with tearing down his bed-curtains, which have hung there full twenty years, she's set all things cornerwise, because the folks do so in Worcester, and has turned the parlor into a smoking room, till all the air of Hillsdale can't take away that tobacco scent. Why, it almost knocks me down!" And the old lady groaned aloud, as she recounted to herself the recent innovations upon the time-honored habits of her mistress' house.

Henry Warner was, indeed, rather a fast young man, but it needed the suggestive presence of George Douglas to bring out his true character, and for the four days succeeding the arrival of the latter there were rare doings at the old stone house, where the astonished and rather delighted servants looked on in amazement, while the young men sang their jovial songs and drank of the rare old wine which Mag, utterly fearless of what her grandmother might say, brought from the cellar below. But when, on the morning of the Fourth, Henry Warner suggested that they have a celebration, or at least, hang out the American flag by way of showing their patriotism, there were signs of rebellion in the kitchen, while even Mrs. Jeffrey, who had long since ceased to interfere, felt it her duty to remonstrate. Accordingly she descended to the parlor, where she found George Douglas and Mag dancing to the tune of "Yankee Doodle," which Theo played upon the piano, while Henry Warner whistled a most stirring accompaniment! To be heard above that din was impossible, and involuntarily patting her own slippered feet to the lively strain, the distressed little lady went back to her room, wondering what Madam Conway would say if she knew her house was being desecrated.

But Madam Conway did not know. She was three thousand miles away, and with this distance between them Maggie dared do anything; so when the flag was again mentioned she answered apologetically, as if it were something of which they ought to be ashamed: "We never had any, but we can soon make one, I know. 'Twill be fun to see it float from the housetop!" and flying up the stairs to the dusty garret, she drew from a huge camp chest a scarlet coat, which had belonged to the former owner of the place, who little thought, as he sat in state, that his favorite coat would one day furnish materials for the emblem of American freedom!

No such thought as this, however, obtruded itself upon Mag as she bent over the chest. "The coat is of no use," she said, and, gathering it up, she ran back to the parlor, where, throwing it across Henry's lap, she told how it had belonged to her great-great-grandfather, who, at the time of the Revolution, went home to England. The young men exchanged a meaning look, and then burst into a laugh, but the cause of their merriment they did not explain, lest the prejudices of the girls should be aroused.

"This is just the thing," said Henry, entering heart and soul into the spirit of the fun. "This is grand. Can't you find some blue for the ground-work of the stars?"

Mag thought a moment, and then exclaimed: "Oh, yes, I have it—grandma has a blue satin bodice, which she wore when she was a young lady. She once gave me a part of the back for my dolly's dress. She won't care if I cut up the rest for a banner."

"Of course not," answered George Douglas. "She'll be glad to have it used for such a laudable purpose," and walking to the window he laughed heartily as he saw in fancy the wrath of the proud English woman when she learned the use to which her satin bodice had been appropriated.

The waist was brought in a twinkling, and then, when Henry asked for some white, Mag cried: "I must run to see the three-cornered piece of grandma's small linen ones. It won't hurt a bit," she added, as she saw a shadow on Theo's brow, and, mounting to the top of the high chest of drawers, she brought out a sheet of finest linen, which, with rose leaves and fragrant herbs, had been carefully packed away.

It was a long, delightful process, the making of that banner, and Maggie's voice rang out loud and clear as she saw how cleverly Henry Warner managed the shears, cutting the red coat into stripes. The arrangement of the satin fell to Maggie's lot, and while George Douglas made the stars, Theo looked on, a little doubtfully, not that her nationality was in any way affected, what George Douglas sanctioned was by this time right with her, but she felt some misgiving as to what her grandmother might say, and, thinking if she did nothing but look on and laugh, the blame would fall on Mag she stood aloof, making occasionally a suggestion, and seeming as pleased as any one when at last the flag was done. A quilting frame served as a flagstaff, and Mag was chosen to plant it upon the top of the house, where was a cupola, or miniature tower, overlooking the surrounding country. Leading to this tower was a narrow staircase, and up these stairs Mag bore the flag, assisted by one of the servant girls, whose bobtail was green Erin, and whose broad, good-humored face shone with delight as she fastened the pole securely in its place, and then shook aloft her checked apron in answer to the cheer which came up from below when first the American banner waved over the old stone house.

Attracted by the noise, and wondering what fresh mischief they were doing, Mrs. Jeffrey went out into the yard just in time to see the flag of freedom as it shook itself out in the summer breeze.

"Heaven help me!" she ejaculated. "Stars and Stripes on Madam Conway's house!" and resolutely shutting her eyes, lest they should look again on what to her seemed sacrilege, she groped her way back to the house, and retiring to her room, wrote to Madam Conway an exaggerated account of the proceedings, bidding her hasten home or Mag and Theo would be ruined.

The letter being written, the good lady felt better—so much better, indeed, that after an hour's deliberation she concluded not to send it, inasmuch as it contained many complaints against the young lady Margaret, who she knew was sure in the end to find favor in her grandmother's eyes. This was the first time Mrs. Jeffrey had attempted a letter to her employer, for Maggie had been the chosen correspondent, Theo affecting to dislike anything like letter-writing. On the day previous to Henry Warner's arrival at the stone house, Mag had written to her grandmother, and ere the time came for her to write again she had concluded to keep his presents there a secret, so Madam Conway was, as yet, ignorant of his existence, and while in the homes of the English nobility she bore herself like a royal princess, talking to young Arthur Carrollton of her beautiful granddaughter, she little dreamed of the real state of affairs at home.

But it was not for Mrs. Jeffrey to enlighten her, and tearing her letter in pieces the governess sat down in her easy chair by the window, mentally congratulating herself upon the fact that "the two young savages," as she styled Douglas and Warner, were to leave on the morrow. This last act of theirs, the hoisting of the banner, had been the culminating point, and, too indignant to sit with them at the same table, she resolutely kept her room throughout the entire day, poring intently over "Baxter's Saint's Rest," her favorite volume when at all flurried or excited. Occasionally, too, she would stop her ears with jeweler's cotton to shut out the sound of "Hail, Columbia!" as it came up to her from the parlor below, where the young men were doing their best to show their patriotism.

Toward evening, alarmed by a whizzing sound, which seemed to be often repeated, and wishing to know the cause, she stole half-way down the stairs, when the mischievous Mag greeted her with a "serpent," which, hissing beneath her feet, sent her quickly back to her room, from which she did not venture again. Mrs. Jeffrey was very good-natured, and reflecting that "young folks must have fun," she became at last comparatively calm, and at an early hour sought her pillow. But thoughts of "Stars and Stripes" waving directly over her head, as she knew they were, made her nervous, and the long clock struck the hour of two while she was yet restless and wakeful.

"Maybe the 'Saint's Rest' will quiet me a trifle," she thought, and, striking a light, she attempted to read, but in vain, for every word was a "star," every line a "stripe" and every leaf a "flag." Shutting the book and hurriedly pacing the floor, she exclaimed: "It's of no use trying to sleep, or meditate either. Baxter himself couldn't do it with that thing over his head, and I mean to take it down. It's a duty I owe to King George's memory and to Madam Conway." And stealing from her room she groped her way up the dark, narrow stairway, until, emerging into the bright moonlight, she stood directly beneath the American banner, waving so gracefully in the night wind. "It's a clever enough device," she said, gazing rather admiringly at it. "And I'd let it be if I s'posed I could sleep a wink; but I can't. It's worse for my nerves, than strong green tea, and I'll not lie awake for all the Yankee flags in Christendom." So saying, the resolute little woman tugged at the quilt frame until she loosened it from its fastenings, and then started to return.

But, alas! the way was narrow and dark, the banner was large and cumbersome, while the lady that bore it was nervous and weak. It is not strange, then, that Maggie, who slept at no great distance, was awakened by a tremendous clash, as

IN DOLLARS AND CENTS

No two other mines in Colorado can show as much actual value in ore as can the well known

AUGUSTA

—AND—

BLACK QUEEN

These Mines are Located near Pittsburg, Colorado.

The Augusta Metal Mining Co.

Capitalized at $2,000,000.00. Par value $1.00. Full Paid and non-Assessable

At 75 Cents per Share

This company now owns the well-known Augusta mine and its extension for over 7000 feet in addition to other claims approximating a total acreage of 300 acres. This property has produced over $250,000 in gold, silver and lead ores and is a producer to-day. Has shipped ores of an average net value of $40 per ton, for first class and $18 per ton for second class, all the past summer and the summer before smelter and mill returns of which are on file in our office.

Has immense bodies of these grades of ore which cannot be exhausted in five years already opened up and its main working tunnel is nearing completion, cutting the apex of the vein at a depth of 1,600 feet.

This block of shares is offered to enable the Company to connect the above tunnel with its concentrating mill and projected terminus of railroad by tramway, a distance of 11,120 feet, thereby permitting shipments during the entire year.

A production of at least 125 tons daily will be maintained when these improvements are made, and if completed in the early summer, dividends can be paid from ore settlements before this fall.

We offer for a limited time only a SPECIAL BLOCK OF 50,000 SHARES OF THE TREASURY STOCK of these Companies.

We reserve the right to reject subscriptions over and above the 50,000 shares offered. Each subscription to be booked as received.

Investigate to your heart's content, and quickly, then let us hear from you.

The Black Queen Gold Mining Co.

1,500,000 Shares. Par value $1.00. Full Paid and Non-Assessable.

Selling at 7 Cents a Share

Like its sister Company is today giving the best value for the money of any share offered.

This Company owns and controls over 300 acres of good mineral-producing ground, including the well-known Excelsior and Yankee Blade, which have produced upward of $175,000.

Tunnel B of the Black Queen Company is now going in at a rate of 175 feet per month, and early spring will see this work vieing with Tunnel A of the Augusta Company in its record of production.

Will cut known proven ore bodies 1100 feet from Apex, and open sufficient stoping ground to make an output of 100 tons daily.

Has already cut through a cross vein two feet in width of good marketable galena ore, the point of intersection being 400 feet beneath the surface. We have 900 feet of this vein in length.

We can show you these facts and ask that you ask us to do so.

If your investment becomes profitable you will tell others; therefore it is much to our interest to have you make money on your investment.

JAPANESE KNOW NOT FEAR--CHEERED AS THEY WENT DOWN.

Remarkable Heroism was Displayed in the Blocking of Port Arthur Harbor-- Desperate Courage

Port Arthur, May 6.—The Japanese displayed desperate courage in their fireship attack on the night of Tuesday. The ships as they approached were divided into three groups, all heading straight for the entrance of the harbor. While still far from the shore they ran on the Russian mines and they were under a murderous fire from the Russian batteries. Three torpedo boats followed the fireships to pick up the crews of the latter. When the first ship foundered the crew clambored up the mast, cheering for the Emperor of Japan as they went down. From the masthead of the second vessel, as she began to indicate her course to those astern, their small boats, though soon riddled, did not raise the white flag.

A Japanese sailor who came ashore at Electric Hill, when summoned to surrender sprang forward with a revolver in his hand and died fighting.

Another Japanese sailor, who was pulled out of the water tried to throttle himself with his necktie.

One of the Russian row boats which approached a sinking ship for the purpose of saving her crew, was met by a small arm fire.

The Russian sailors showed every consideration for the captured Japanese, wrapping them up in their own coats and carrying them ashore. One of the Japanese officers suicided by disembowelling himself, declaring he would rather die than go home in disgrace.

SASSULITCH CENSURED FOR RUSSIAN DISASTER DISGRACED REGIMENT

Understood That He Has Lost His Command --Echoes of Battle at Yalu-- The Losses.

St. Petersburg, May 6—Gen Kuropatkin has gone to the front from Liao Yang to inspect the situation personally. Troops are being hurried forward from the Liao Yang and Mukden line to a position near Feng Wang Cheng.

It is believed here that the Japanese gains in the recent action have been unimportant by their failure to block the entrance to Port Arthur. Tuesday, and a repetition of the attack on the Russian Gibraltar is momentarily expected. Vice-Admiral Togo's fleet was sighted off Port Arthur last night, and indeed unconfirmed rumors say he attacked at daylight this morning and that fighting is now in progress there. At least the cutting out of Port Arthur, if not the fate of the fortress, depends, in the opinion of the general staff, upon Gen. Kuropatkin preventing a juncture of the Japanese forces.

It is understood here that General Sassulitch has already been relieved of his command for disobedience of orders.

A DISGRACED REGIMENT.

Under the old rules and traditions of the Russian army the second and third batteries of the Third Artillery Brigade and the third battery of the Third Brigade, which lost their guns at the battle of Kiu Lien Cheng, would be stricken from the army list forever. The names of batteries losing guns and those of regiments losing their colors or otherwise disgracing themselves, formerly disappeared from the list. This was the case of the celebrated Immortal Hussars in 1825, which participated in the conspiracy against Emperor Nicholas. Only a few years ago the regulation was rescinded.

THE LOSSES.

The Russians lost 2,000, and it is believed that the Japanese lost between 3,000 and 4,000 men. This is based upon reports of eye-witnesses. There has been absolutely no statement of the number of prisoners captured by the Japanese, but the general staff is inclined to admit that 300 men were captured, though the staff asserts that it has no actual means of knowing definitely how many prisoners are in the hands of the Japanese.

Not a single newspaper dispatch has yet been received beyond the several colorless telegrams from the Russian headquarters at Liao Yang, which simply repeat the official news.

A correspondent of the Novosti, who was at the front was killed.

New York, May 6—A London special says it is semi officially announced at St. Petersburg, that the Japanese Third Army Corps has landed at New Chwang. The Japanese are therefore supposed to be in possession of the city.

The capture of New Chwang means the isolation of Port Arthur and its eventual capture or surrender.

Following the sinking of the fireships on Monday Admiral Togo bombarded the forts at Port Arthur. The bombardment was renewed Tuesday and continued yesterday.

London, May 6—The opinion gains ground here that the Japanese have at last effectually blocked Port Arthur. No official Japanese report on the subject has yet been received but the Tokio correspondents are very positive regarding this matter.

The Daily Telegraph's correspondent declared that the entrance to Port Arthur "is absolutely sealed," and adds the Japanese fleet, in effecting its purpose steamed to the entrance at full speed, and that the naval officers who made the two previous attempts begged permission to carry out the last attack by daylight, that being easier, and their request was granted. "So determined were they to succeed," adds the correspondent, "that they decided, if necessary, to lose half their men. The number of casualties sustained by the Japanese has not yet been announced."

In favor of the supposition of Japanese success in blocking Port Arthur it is pointed out that the previous attempts had left the channel so narrow that a couple of vessels sunk in the fairway would probably suffice to seal up the entrance, while there is a noticeable evasion and half-heartedness in the Russian denials of the enemy's success.

JAPS CELEBRATE ANYWAY.

Tokio, May 6—The unofficial reports which have been received here of the successful blocking of the entrance to Port Arthur harbor by the Japanese, coming on the heels of the news of the victory on the Yalu, stirred Tokio to another popular demonstration, and last night thousands of men, carrying lanterns, swinging high from bamboo poles, paraded through the city. Half a dozen bands of music led the various processions. The officers of the War and Navy departments and of the general staff were the scenes of the greatest enthusiasm. The two Imperial Princes visited the Navy Department, and the assembled crowd welcomed them with cheers. Then the throng demanded Admiral Ito, chief of the general staff, and the hero of the fight on the Yalu during the Clino-Japanese war. He appeared in response to the calls of the people and saluted the crowd.

RUSSIA LOST OVER 2,000.

St. Petersburg, May 6—The Russian losses at the battle of the Yalu were 2,000 men and 40 officers, far greater than previous reports indicated.

This is the official estimate of Major-General Kashtalinsky, who directly commanded the division that suffered the brunt of the attack and whose report was yesterday received by the Emperor. Many are inclined to place the Russian losses even higher. General Kashtalinsky mentions also that more than seven hundred wounded had arrive at Fengwangcheng, and these may not be included in his calculations. He made no attempt to estimate the Japanese losses, merely stating that they must have been colossal.

The magnitude of the Russian losses had an almost stunning effect on the authorities and aroused general grief mitigated only by satisfaction at the bravery displayed by the Russian troops.

RUSSIA WILL MAKE A STAND.

The idea has prevailed that the Russians would not make a stand at Fengwangcheng, but the fact that the Japanese occupation of that point would enable a movement to the southwest, thus cutting off the Liaotung peninsula, which is taken into consideration by the authorities leads to the expectation that Gen. Kuropatkin will despatch strong reinforcements there and make a determined stand.

The activity of the Japanese, it is remarked here, is not only north of the Yalu, from which there is constant scouting but also off the Liaotung peninsula, though the failure to seal Port Arthur may interfere with the operations they had been expected to carry out on the west coast of that peninsula.

WEDDING BELLS

Nuptials of Miss Lydia Ruth Rome and Mr. W. J. Bolton, of Toronto

A very pretty wedding took place at the residence of Mr. Isaac Herrington, Otonnong Road, when Miss Lydia Ruth Rome, sister of Mrs. Herrington, was married to Mr. Walter John Bolton, of Toronto. Rev. A. H. Brace, of the Park Street Baptist church, performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate friends and relatives.

The bride was attired in a very pretty costume of pearl grey silk trimmed with allover lace and carried a lovely bouquet of white roses. Miss Maud Rome, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and was similarly attired. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. John Rome. The groom was assisted by Mr. J. W. Smith, of Peterborough.

A dainty wedding breakfast was served at the conclusion of the ceremony, after which a very pleasant evening was enjoyed by the guests. A number of handsome and costly presents were received by this popular young couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Bolton left yesterday morning for Toronto, where they will reside in future.

TO CANADIAN INVESTORS

I desire to call the attention of investors to the

Smuggler Gold Mining Co.'s Proposition

of which I am the authorized agent

Investments in mining stocks where they can be purchased cheaply whose property contains merit and whose directors are men of unquestionable honor and integrity, and especially when sufficient work has been done to guarantee a producing mine and the leads have been demonstrated to be permanent, offer the greatest opportunity for large returns from modest investments.

The shrewdest capitalists of England and America are giving more attention to mining properties and putting more money into them than at any time in the past history of the world.

The Smuggler Group consists of five full sized claims, to-wit: The Smuggler, Gangon, Black Jack, Star and Bed Rock, located in the Greenhorn District of Eastern Oregon. Surrounding mines are Potosi, Pride of Pendleton, Bonanza and Rockefeller, developing work to the extent of 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifts and crosscuts have been made, exposing hundreds of tons of high grade ore, averaging from $25 to $45 per ton, based on smelter returns, and for the purpose of equipping the mines a limited number of shares of Treasury Stock will be sold at 25 cents per share, the par value of which is $1.00.

HIGH CLASS INVESTMENT

LA ZACUALPA RUBBER PLANTATION COMPANY

Incorporated Under the Laws of the State of California.

La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation is situated in the best location in Mexico for the cultivation of rubber. It has been known for a great many years as a very choice strip of rubber land and subsequent experience has shown that it is equal to all that has been claimed for it. The affairs of the company are in the hands of men of undoubted integrity and high reputation as successful men of business. To those seeking a safe investment which will secure a good income for life, this proposition offers a favorable opportunity

Shares in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation are not capital stock of a corporation, and carry none of the responsibilities and obligations, or liability to assessment of capital stock; but represent an undivided interest in the plantation itself.

The twelve thousand acres comprising the plantation are divided into twelve thousand shares, each share representing one acre of land, and the holders of shares in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation are the actual owners of one undivided acre of land, for each share held, with a guarantee expressed upon the certificate by La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company, under its official seal, to plant two hundred or more rubber trees per acre for each share sold, and to care for same for a period of five years, and at the expiration of that time to gather the first harvest and deliver the net proceeds thereof to the shareholder.

In other words, La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company sells to each shareholder one undivided acre of land in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation, with two hundred or more rubber trees five years old, and their profits for all time, for each share sold, and agrees to plant so that the first harvest belonging to the shareholder is the one to be gathered from La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation during the sixth year from the date of the certificate.

After the delivery of the first harvest La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company will care for the plantation, and harvest and market the crop for ten per cent. of the net proceeds therefrom. Out of this commission the Company agrees to pay all costs of administration, including maintenance of its home and branch offices.

This plan gives the purchaser of shares an interest of definite acreage, and his proportionate share in the total yield of rubber from the entire plantation forever, making it absolutely certain that the interest of each shareholder will receive the same care and attention forever, making it absolutely co-ordinate, no matter how large or small, for the success of the plantation will be the mutual gain of all.

The foregoing state of facts makes it impossible for any person or persons to combine against or injure the individual interest of the smallest shareholder in the plantation, or to encumber the same, and it can be readily seen that the success of one means the success of all

All persons have some money, but more time. A little money and five years of time, if applied to the cultivation of rubber, will produce large profits.

Full information will be supplied on application to Mr. Roland Kidd, Fiscal Agent for Ontario, or to

Capital $1,000,000, 500,000 Shares in Treasury

Property includes two great mining estates—one gold, the other copper—both containing wide, deep, proven veins of high and low grade ore.

Development work has been systematically carried on, with results that more than justify every claim made by the company, and unquestionably proves the destiny of the property to equal that of the greatest successful mining companies of the world.

Above Statement Can be Easily Verified

The following two facts alone will give anyone familiar with mining a rough idea of the great value of the property.

The Copper King Group contains one vein 30 feet wide, 8 feet of which runs from $10 to $100 per ton, and the Company owns 9,000 feet on this vein.

Ore running from $18 to $50 per ton is continually being shipped from the gold property, and 24 samples taken from widely different portions of the vein system averaged $28.25 per ton.

GRAPHIC STORY OF NAVEL BATTLE

Particulars of the Last Attempt to Cork Port Arthur

DESPERATE TACTICS USED

How the Japanese Went to Work to Effect Her Purpose

Port Arthur, May 6.—The Japanese attempt to block Port Arthur was begun a few minutes before one o'clock, when the first shot was fired, awakening the town with their thunderous noise. The gunboats lying in the harbor joined in the cannonade, the firing gradually increasing in volume until there was a continuous crash of great guns.

Some of the enemy's torpedo boats were discovered, but they were finally swallowed up in the darkness, and the batteries and warships after forty minutes' activity, were again shrouded in the great gloom, till the flashing searchlights showed that the military were alive to the warning conveyed of the approach of Japanese ships.

Shortly after 2 o'clock, a searchlight played from the sea directly upon the entrance of the harbor, lighting it up to show the way for the fireships. The projector moved to the right from Liao Tshan to Golden Hill. For a quarter of an hour the light was watched with curiosity and then a second cannonade began, the heaviest fire being directed to the left of Golden Hill, where the fireships were located.

At about 4 o'clock the batteries ceased firing, save for an occasional shot.

Just about dawn the bark of the rapid-fire guns and the crackling of the mitrailleuse were heard from Golden Hill. Occasionally there were sounds of explosions as of mines going off. It was the enemy's ships striking on Russian torpedoes.

At this hour a magnificent sea picture was formed by the soft light of the waning moon, the orange flashes of the guns, the signal rockets and the purple fires on the steel colored sea which were alternately lighting up and going out.

The fireships were ten in number, and of about 3,000 tons each.

It is reported that two Japanese torpedo boats were sunk, the remainder withdrawing in a damaged condition.

Eight fireships were sunk and very few of the crews were saved. Most of them were killed.

In the morning many dead bodies were seen floating about outside the harbor. These were collected by the Russians, who brought them ashore and buried them.

The vigilance of the men in the watch towers and on the guard boats was astonishing. To their keen eyes was due to the prompt sighting of the enemy.

The Japanese attacked brilliantly without seeming to notice the murderous fire directed on them.

The Russians captured two officers and thirty men.

It is stated that the crews of the fire ships included a number of Japanese cadets, who showed extraordinary bravery, especially when the ships were sinking. Several of the crew stood at the masthands firing revolvers and then plunged into the sea. It is supposed that none of the cadets were saved.

The attempt to close the mouth of the harbor failed.

There has been no developments since the attack on Port Arthur on May 3.

During the bombardment the big guns of the Russian ships and batteries fired 2,500 shots, while the machine guns of the gunboat Gilak fired 3,000 shots.

WHY THE RUSSIANS RETIRED.

"Finally all the supports were brought up into the firing line, but owing to the great distance from our main reserves it was impossible for them to reach the advanced force in time, and our men retired from the principal position to another position in the rear of Tunchen, followed by a concentrated fire of the Japanese, who could not make up their minds to descend from the crest they occupied and face the fire of our batteries and tactics and goulommetes. They dug fresh trenches and opened a heavy artillery fire on our new position and began to turn our left flank toward Chingow.

"Two battalions of the 11th Regiment and the 33rd Battery of the Third Brigade of Artillery, belonging to the main reserve, were ordered to Laofumhou. They occupied a position with a double firing line, thus permitting our advanced line, which had suffered heavily, and our wounded, to retire.

THE ELEVENTH DID NOBLY.

"A battalion of the 11th Regiment both flanks of which were repeatedly turned by the enemy, advanced with fixed bayonets, preceded by buglers, to clear a passage. The Japanese, however, declined a hand-to-hand conflict and receded.

"In front of the regiment a chaplain, bearing a cross, was struck by two bullets.

"It was only by advancing on the Japanese with the bayonet that the 77th Regiment was able to retire.

"On the arrival of the battalion of the 10th Regiment all the troops were able to beat a retreat.

THE LOSSES ARE VERY HEAVY.

"The losses of the 11th and 12th Regiments were very great, but they are not exactly known.

"In the 11th the killed included Col. Luming and Lieut.-Cols. Domeli and Rakevsky. The 12th lost nine company commanders killed or wounded.

"The Second and Third Batteries of the Sixth Brigade having lost the greater number of their men and horses, were compelled to abandon their guns after rendering them useless. For the same reason six guns of Third Battery of the Third Brigade of Artillery and eight goulommetes which could not be brought away, were also disabled. The mountainous nature of the country made it impossible to save the guns by means of drag ropes.

THE WOUNDED LOOKED AFTER.

"Up to the present 800 wounded, including fourteen officers, have been brought to the hospital at Feng-Wang-Cheng. Their eventual transportation elsewhere is fully assured.

"Japanese cavalry appeared to the southeast of Feng-Wang-Cheng, but not seeing two companies with two guns opposed to it did not venture to approach.

"The transportation of the wounded by hired Chinese bearers to Feng-Wang-Cheng was very difficult. Two wheeled carts and horses sent by the cavalry were also utilized for this purpose. Most of the wounded, however, arrived on foot, assisted by their comrades, and reached Feng-Wang-Cheng within 24 hours.

"Lieut.-General Zassalitch declared that the troops retained their morale, notwithstanding the heavy losses, and are ready for fresh engagements.

"The Japanese losses were very heavy at the passage of the Ho river, at their positions at Turen-Cheng and on the hill occupied by the two battalions of the 11th Regiment.

"According to the statements of participants in the battle, at least 3000 to 4000 were killed."

On Tour of Inspection

Messrs. H. P. Timmerman, General Superintendent, and Mr. George Spencer, Superintendent, Canadian Pacific Railway, were in town yesterday and inspected the Company's property here. They arrived on the early morning train from the east yesterday morning, and left for the west at ten a.m., attaching their car to a west going freight. They found the station and grounds in first class shape.

The Spartan Japanese Father.

The Spartan character of the Japanese father may be gathered from two facts mentioned by Consul Daigoro Goh in the admirable address on family relations in Japan which he delivered before the Japan society. The Japanese child calls its father "Gempu" and its mother "Jibo"—which mean "strict father" and "benevolent mother"—and Mr. Goh quoted a Japanese boy who classified the Japanese father as one of the "four fearful things of the world—earthquake, thunder, conflagration and father."—London Truth.

Macaronic Verse.

Macaronic verse is verse written in more than one language or one language twisted to appear like another. For example, a long poem on wine, dating from early in the sixteenth century, begins:

The best tree, if ye take intent,
Inter ligna fructifera,
Is the vine tree by good argument,
Dulcis ferens pondera.

Another example of the second kind mentioned is Dean Swift's imitation Latin poem beginning "Mollis abuti, hasan acuti," which in English reads, "Molly's a beauty, has an acute eye."

Queer Drunken Maniac.

An English sheriff who died some years since kept a record of the curious cases of drunkenness that came under his observation. Several habitual cases had developed odd manias. One woman who had been arrested 167 times for drunkenness in twenty-eight years, had a mania for breaking windows when she was intoxicated. An old soldier, suffering from a wound in the head, always stole Bibles when he was tipsy. Another man stole nothing but spades, while one woman's fancy ran to shawls and another's to shoes. A man named Grubb was imprisoned seven times for stealing tubs, although there was nothing in his line of life to make tubs particularly desirable to him.

How to Hold Actors.

"It always makes me mad to talk to an actor. He pretends to listen politely, but his attention is wandering all the time. Ever notice it?"

"No; I always talk to them about themselves."

Snakeless Alaska.

Neither frogs nor snakes live in Alaska, but toads are frequently to be met with.

Head Heating Pillows.

It should be remembered that more blood, and hence more heat, goes to the head than to any other part of the body. Head heating pillows are against the wholesome maxim, "Keep the feet warm, but the head cool."

India Rubber.

Few articles seem more strangely named than india rubber. It gets the "rubber" from the first use to which it was put—that of erasing pencil marks by rubbing. Nor should it be associated with India. The tree was first mentioned by an explorer among the Mexican Indians three centuries ago, and the first account of the substance occurs in connection with Columbus' visit to Haiti on his second voyage. Most of our present importation comes from Brazil. But Columbus and those explorers who followed him were searching for a short passage to India, and they supposed that the land they discovered was India. The name india rubber is therefore a permanent sign of their mistake.

The Indian and a Gas Furnace.

Just before gas began to be used in Pawhuska one of the Osage braves visited Bartlesville and got his first glimpse of a gas fire. All he could see in the stove was a pile of redhot bricks, through the crevices of which the blue flames were curling. He said nothing, but before starting home he went to the yard and bought a lot of brick and hauled them home. He burned up six boxes of matches and all the dry wood his wife had cut trying to get the bricks to burn and finally hauled them back to Bartlesville and told the yard man they were no good.

The Tibetans.

The Tibetans are not beautiful. How could they be when, by their own confession, the national ancestry runs back to the king of the monkeys and a hobgoblin? Bonvalot says of them, "The very bears are better looking." The type is midway between the Eskimo and the Chinese. Broad, flat noses, without visible bridge; no eyebrows, wide mouths, full lips, oily skins, hair as coarse and straight as horsehair, and short, square, ungainly figures—these are the elements of the unpleasing picture.

Talking English.

Here is a story that comes from London and illustrates the peculiarities of the American boy: The youngster was at the Hotel Cecil, and he listened intently to a group of English folks. Suddenly he looked up at his mother. "Say, ma, do these people talk English?" "Certainly they do, my child. What a question!" "Then we don't," said the cub.

An Old Testament Verse.

The twenty-first verse of the seventh chapter of Ezra in the Old Testament contains all the letters of the alphabet. "And I, even I Artaxerxes the king, do make a decree to all the treasurers which are beyond the river, that whatsoever Ezra, the priest, the scribe of the law of the God of heaven, shall require of you, it be done speedily."

A BUSINESS MAN'S LETTER.

Wm. Thomson, Esq., of Orillia, Vice-President Standard Chemical Company of Toronto, Tells of a Visit to the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives.

GREATLY IMPRESSED WITH WORK BEING DONE.

Personally Raises Several Hundred Dollars to Help Lessen the Load of Debt.

There can be little doubt that the National Sanitarium Association is handicapped in its great work for Consumptives in the fact that its two institutions in Muskoka are far away from any large centre of population. Few people have an opportunity to see for themselves the magnificent work that is being done.

These hospitals are away from the public eye. Any, however, who do visit them, are united in their commendation of the splendid appointments of the place, and, best of all, of the real joy and hope that is being brought to many suffering ones.

We are glad to have the opportunity of publishing the following letter from Mr. Wm. Thomson, of Orillia, one of Canada's best known lumbermen, which tells what he has seen himself. It reads:

Orillia, Ont., November 2, 1903.

W. J. Gage, Esq.,
Chairman Executive Committee
National Sanitarium Association,
Toronto, Ont.

My Dear Mr. Gage,—

I have much pleasure in enclosing herewith cheque for One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) from the Tudhope Carriage Company of Orillia, a donation to the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. Please acknowledge this to the Tudhope Carriage Company in the usual way.

I have written to a number of my friends, to try and get them interested in this good work. I hope to be able to send you further donations. I have written my friends a personal letter, something similar to the following:

"Last week I paid a visit to the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. I met some of the management there, and promised to try and interest some of my friends in this work.

"I might say there were 49 patients there last week, all poor people, most of them without a dollar in the world, and suffering from the dreadful disease, Consumption. There are many sad stories, and I know I have thought a great deal about the work of the institution ever since my visit there. I do believe it is worthy of assistance, and we who have health and the necessaries of life should encourage this work along.

"I understand the expenses lately have been double the income, and unless the management meet with more encouragement, I am afraid the work will have to be curtailed. I know you have many calls, but I do wish you would give this matter a thought, and, if possible, assist. I have written to two or three confidentially, and hope to be able to collect some more for this work. Should you not feel like contributing a donation, remember this request, and your reply is just between you and me, and strictly confidential.

"I might mention, to show that I have confidence in the work, I have already given a donation of $100.00 and two row boats to the Free Hospital this year, and intend to give another $100.00 before the end of the year."

Sincerely yours,

Wm Thomson

Sir Wm. R. Meredith, Kt., or Mr. W. J. Gage, Toronto, will receive and acknowledge any contributions made.

Industrial Economy.

A locomotive engineer on an eastern railroad said one day to his two firemen, "Suppose you fellows work as if you, and not the company, were paying the coal bills." During six months, merely by careful firing, the men caused a saving in coal, over the average consumption of the engine, equal to almost four times the amount of wages paid the men for that period. The engine was the same; the men worked differently.

He Had a War With Him.

Jane Seymour was boasting to Anne Boleyn.

"Henry has just asked me for my hand," she remarked.

"That's nothing," retorted the queen, "he has just asked me for my head."

Subsequent events showed both ladies granted the request.

Not Proposing.

Maud—I'm afraid I intruded when I dropped in on you unexpectedly the other evening. Mr. Spoonamore looked as if he were proposing. Mabel—Well, he wasn't. He was only posing.

His Sense of Feeling.

"Are you sure that mule is blind?"

"Yes, suh—in his eyes he is, but you doe orter see him feel for you wid his heels."

IN TREASURY, 856,000 SHARES

Par value of shares $1.00 each.

The attention of all mining men is attracted to Tonapah and vicinity. The great finds which have been discovered on Lone Mountain, only a few miles distant, are to the investor still more attractive. Here we have value from the start. The Tonapah Crown Mining Company's ledges are plainly in sight for a distance of over 3000 feet.

We are bounded by such properties as the "Tambiya," which ore assays from $950 to $1500 to the ton: Lynch & Omeara's "Alpine," which is producing $30,000 per month; the "Lone Star" group and the "Princess Maud."

You Should Invest With Us

BECAUSE—The majority of the stock is in the treasury, 856,000 shares.

BECAUSE—The Company is managed by successful business men. They are Cyrus Wheeler, W. H. Routz, F. F. Hoard, F. A. King and C. A. Menning, all of Los Angeles.

BECAUSE — No preferred stock therefore every one is on an equal footing

BECAUSE—We are selling our stock at a low rate now so we can put a large force of men to work and make shipments of ore just as soon as the railroad; now building, shall have been completed.

Thirty miles of this railroad is already graded and the road will be in operation by May 15.

Deadly "La Grippe"

Or Epidemic Influenza is Caused by an Air Germ. The Most Scientific Remedy is Catarrhozone.

Two years ago, the medical journals commented widely on the marvellous success of Catarrhozone, which assisted very largely in stamping out the epidemic raging at that time. Cases that had resisted all other treatment were at once relieved and through the great healing powers of Catarrhozone further progress of the malady was arrested. It is doubtful whether in the whole range of medicine a more lasting cure can be found. If a patient has any warning of the approach of La Grippe he has only to inhale the germ killing vapor of Catarrhozone a few times daily and escape entirely.

Even as a preventive of colds and catarrh it is a wise precaution to always carry a Catarrhozone Inhaler in your pocket. At the first shiver or sneeze you can ward off an impending attack by merely inhaling a few breaths of Catarrhozone. Fatal consequences can often be avoided in this way. The Inhaler is beautifully finished and made entirely of hard rubber. It can be conveniently carried in the vest pocket ready for use in church, at work, in the theatre, street car, anywhere, at any time. The complete Catarrhozone outfit contains a large bottle of inhalant, sufficient to keep recharging the inhaler for two months. It costs $1.00 and is guaranteed to cure. Sold by all druggists or sent direct to your home by mail if the price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., or Hartford, Conn. U.S.A.

Trout Fishing Party

Last night a party composed of Messrs. J. M. Brooks, W. H. Meldrum, Ald. Stuart, (Toronto), Mr. Tooley, Arthur Hall and one or two others left on the local C. P. R. for Havelock, from which point they will drive to Bancroft, where there is said to be the finest trout stream in the country. They will return on Tuesday.

Speckled Beauties

Our thanks are due some person or persons unknown for a half dozen speckled trout, which were left at this office, addressed to the editor. This great family journal is profoundly impressed with the modesty which characterizes this disciple of Izaak Walton, a virtue not generally found in fishermen, above all others. Fish is regarded as brain food and this g.f.j. may be expected to make a spurt in the near future as a result.

Many Englishmen Arriving

Several well dressed, intelligent looking Englishmen have arrived in town during the past few days, in search of employment. They are all expert mechanics, and have come to Canada to locate permanently. Two carpenters, with full kit of tools, called at the Times office yesterday and stated that they had found work but had great difficulty in obtaining board. It is said that large numbers of mechanics will arrive from England this year.

May Lose an Eye

The many friends of Mr. J. Hanrahan, in town, will sympathize with him in the accident which befel him on Wednesday last, while at work in the C.G.E. shops, when some particles of iron rust got into one of his eyes. Dr. Coughlan and Dr. McCullough were summoned and the latter physician now has him under his care. The rust, or as much as possible of it, has been removed from the eye, but it is feared that some still remains, and the young man's sight is endangered.

Honoring Mr. O'Toole

On Tuesday night the members of St. Peter's T.A.S. will banquet Mr. John O'Toole, contractor, who has finished his work here in connection with the Canal Company's dam. A good toast list has been prepared, and it is expected several prominent citizens will grace the banquet by their presence. The members of the committee who have the matter in hand are: Messrs. Argus, J. Hickey, A. Doris, T. J. Begley, or the secretary at the rooms. As the event will partake of a social character, the gentlemen attending may bring their lady friends.

Afraid of Peterborough

Globe of Wednesday: Chief Engineer Rogers, of the Trent Valley Canal, headed a Peterborough deputation which waited upon Hon. F. R. Latchford, Tuesday. They urged that the locks and storage dams at the head of the canal be transferred from the jurisdiction of the Provincial Department of Public Works to that of the Dominion. In our opinion this step would not be in the interests of Lindsay power users and boatmen, and should be opposed. It smacks too much of a Peterborough scheme to get control of our waters for the benefit of Peterborough industries.

WANT THE LAW ENFORCED

The Licensed Holders Association to Enforce the Law

Messrs. J. M. Brooks, W. H. Meldrum, Ald. Stuart, (Toronto), presided at a meeting of the hotelmen yesterday, in which it was decided to enforce the law against selling during prohibited hours. Several of the prominent hotelmen are determined to see that the law is carried out, and offenders punished. As only eight of the license holders were present, the meeting adjourned until Friday next, when a definite line of action will be taken.

EXHIBITION OF STALLIONS

Fine Horse Show at Windsor Hotel Yards Today

There will be an exhibition of stallions at the yards of the Little Windsor Hotel, today, nine of the best horses being exhibited. Some of these animals are of a very high class, and well worth seeing.

Mr. Rountree informed the Times last night that the show would begin in the morning and continue throughout the day.

LIGHT AND DARK.

Day and night, sunshine and shadow are not more different from each other than a healthful from a sickly woman. The healthful woman carries light and sunshine with her wherever she goes.

The woman who suffers from ill-health casts a shadow on her own happiness and the happiness of others. She cannot help it. Those who suffer cannot smile and sing. Ill-health in woman is generally traceable to disease of the delicate womanly organism. Many women have been restored to happiness by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. If there is an invalid woman, suffering from female weakness, prolapsus, or falling of womb, or from leucorrhœa who has used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription without complete success Dr. Pierce would like to hear from such person—and it will be to her advantage to write as he offers, in perfect good faith, a reward of $500 for any case of the above maladies which he cannot cure.

"I feel it my duty to inform you that I had been a sufferer for many years from weakness with all its symptoms and complications," writes Mrs. G. H. Fisher, of 488 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. "I was constantly going to see a physician. I was induced to try Dr. Pierce's advice. I then took five bottles of 'Favorite Prescription.' I am cured now—am well, robust, and I have a good color in my face. I have also gained about ten pounds in weight and am blessed with comfort, for I am a free woman once more."

The dealer who offers a substitute for "Favorite Prescription" does so to gain the little more profit paid on the sale of less meritorious medicines.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps for the paper-covered book, or 31 stamps for the cloth bound. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"I had often heard of Peruna as an excellent tonic, so I bought a bottle to see what it would do for me, and it certainly took hold of my system and rejuvenated me, and in less than two months I was in perfect health, and now when I feel worn out and tired a dose or two of Peruna is all that I need."—Mrs. J. MR. GARVIN SPEAKS

Has Now no Hope of Completing the Sugar Factory

Mr. J. W. Garvin has made the following statement regarding the defeat of the Sugar Company's by-law:

"As the Sugar Company by-law has been defeated, I have no longer any hope of completing the factory. It took me months to induce Mr. Gordon and his associates to make their proposal to Peterborough, never doubting that our property owners would carry the by-law. About two weeks ago I happened to be on the floor of the Legislative Assembly, when Premier Ross, seeing me, was good enough to call me to his side. He remarked 'Well, Garvin, I suppose you will have no difficulty in carrying that Sugar Company By-law.' I replied to the effect that in my opinion it would carry. He further said, 'As you are not asking for a bonus, simply requesting a guarantee of your bonds and giving ample security, the by-law should have little opposition.' That was the opinion of the Premier and Treasurer of the Province.

"Last evening when I telephoned to Mr. Gordon that the by-law had been defeated he thought I was joking. He had arranged to send a noted sugar expert of Detroit to Holland to dismantle and ship the machinery, and was about to take the train for that city to complete the financial arrangements. Already he has been requested to make a similar offer to a town farther east in Ontario.

"My personal loss is very heavy but that gives me less concern than the losses which may be sustained by others. My gratitude to those who so heartily supported the by-law is strong, and I am sorry indeed for their sake that my efforts and of those associated with me to establish this great industry in Peterborough have been futile."

Anniversary Service in Both Churches to be Held To-morrow

To-morrow both Presbyterian churches in town will celebrate their anniversary. Rev. Principal Gordon, of Queen's University, Kingston, will preach in St. Andrew's in the morning and in St. Paul's in the evening. The Rev. Dr. John Neil, of Westminster, Toronto, will occupy the pulpit in St. Paul's in the morning, and in St. Andrew's in the evening. Both congregations are looking forward to church renovation during the summer and expect liberal collections on Sunday next.

Special collection for the Church Debt and the Renovating Fund will be taken at all the services, and a liberal response is looked for.

St. Paul's Mission services, both morning and evening, have been withdrawn for that day, so that all may have an opportunity of hearing these strong men of the church. Sabbath school, however, will be held as usual in the Mission.

The following despatch from Ottawa to the Toronto Globe confirms the statements that the Lift Lock will not be opened until June:

Ottawa, May 5th — It has been determined to open to navigation that section of the Trent Valley Canal between Lakefield and Peterborough about June 1st, as it is expected that the new hydraulic lift lock near Peterborough will be ready to operate about the same time. The completion of the Lakefield-Peterborough link of the Trent Valley System will afford continuous navigation from Balsam Lake to below Hastings. Hon. Mr. Emmerson intends to make the opening of the magnificent new lock an event of considerable ceremony and intends to go up from here accompanied by a large number of members. The arrangements are now being made.

KUROKI'S FORCE MOVING--FIGHT AT FENG-WANGCHENG EXPECTED

It is Believed in St. Petersburg That Port Arthur's Harbor is Sealed--Discredit Kinchau Story

Port Arthur is now completely invested by the Japanese. Communications were cut yesterday afternoon, and the Russians now admit that they are unable to communicate with the fortress. The last message through brought the text of a speech by General Stoessel, the commander, exhorting the garrison to brave deeds. Admiral Togo reports officially that the cork is in at last in Port Arthur harbor. It was accomplished without the loss of a Japanese war vessel, but the cost in human life was "considerable." There are unconfirmed reports of the capture of Feng Wang Cheng by the Japanese but these are probably premature, though St. Petersburg expects heavy fighting there at any moment, as at last advices General Koruki was within ten miles of that place.

Tokio, May 7.--Vice-Admiral Togo reports that the entrance to Port Arthur is blocked completely to all vessels except small boats. He adds that the Japanese has not lost a single war vessel, although the attack resulted in considerable loss of life.

PORT ARTHUR IS ISOLATED.

St. Petersburg, May 7.—The Russian capital has now been without news from Port Arthur for almost twenty-four hours. The last telegram received was filed at 6 o'clock last night and read as follows;

Port Arthur, May 6.—Six of the enemy's cruisers are continually in sight off Port Arthur. A parade of the garrison here was held in honor of the Empress' name day. Lieut.-General Stoessel in a speech to the troops said;

"On April 20 and May 1, the enemy crossed the Yalu River in force and our troops fell back to positions which had been previously selected.

"Yesterday they effected an important landing on the Liao Tung Peninsula south of Pitsewo and in the vicinity of Kin Chou Bay. Now our work is beginning. Naturally, the enemy will destroy the railway communication and endeavor to drive our troops back to Port Arthur and besiege this fortress. Russia's bulwark in the Far East. We will defend it until the arrival of the troops that are coming to relieve us.

"I consider it my duty to call upon you to display unceasing vigilance and caution, and you must be ready at all times to concern yourselves towards your general with the dignity and order becoming the glorious troops of Russia. No matter what happens you must not lose your heads, but remember that everything is possible in war, and that we shall be able with God's help to cope with the arduous task imposed upon us.

The General's advice was received with cheers from the assembled soldiers and sailors.

LINE CUT NEAR PORT ADAMS.

It is believed that the spot where the Japanese cut the railway and telegraph line is near Port Adams opposite Pitsewo.

No news of other landings on the Liao Tung Peninsula has reached the General Staff, beyond that contained in this telegram from Major-General Pflug, Chief of the Military Staf;

"According to the information I have received, seven of the enemy's transports, and afterwards about 40, appeared opposite Pitsewo on the evening of May 4.

"On the morning of May 5 the Japanese began to land at Pitsewo, and on the coast near Cape Jaminal (about fifteen miles southwest of Pitsewo), under cover of an artillery fire.

"At this moment about 60 transports were observed bearing down upon the whole front, and our posts retired from the shore.

"All papers in the post-office at Pitsewo were removed and the Russian inhabitants abandoned the town.

"According to Chinese reports, by the evening of May 5 about 10,000 of the enemy's troops had landed and taken up quarters in the Chinese villages near the point od debarcation.

The enemy sent two columns of about one regiment each, one in a westerly direction and the other to the southward.

"On May 6 a passenger train from Port Arthur was fired upon, a mile and a quarter outside Polandien (about 40 miles north of Port Arthur), by a hundred Japanese infantrymen occupying the heights east of the railway. The train carried many passengers, and 200 sick occupying an ambulance carriage flying the Red Cross flag. Two of the sick were wounded. The train succeeded in reaching Pentandien.

"Tranquility prevails in the maritime province and in Yinkow."

THIS NEEDS CONFIRMATION.

Shoul, May 7.—A despatch from Antung says it is rumored there that the Japanese captured Feng Wang Cheng May 4, after fierce fighting, and that the losses on both sides were very heavy.

[Fighting has been reported near Feng Wang Cheng, but neither Japanese or Russian advices have announced an engagement there. It is unlikely therefore, that the rumor current at Antung is correct.]

EXPECTS NEWS.

St. Petersburg, May 7.—Important developments are hourly expected from Feng Wang Cheng. News of heavy fighting there is anticipated shortly.

A telegram from Gen. Kouropatkin says that Gen. Kuroki's army is advancing upon the Russian position in two divisions. The enemy, with artillery, he reports, has reached Kao Li Meun, called the "Gate of Corea," which is within ten miles of Feng Wang Cheng.

A current report that Russia purposed sending troops to Shan Hai Kwan was officially denied today. The Russian Government has made no such request of China, and has not contemplated taking such action.

FESTIVITIES AT SEOUL.

Seoul Korea, May 7.—The Japanese residents of this city had service today, both in celebration of the victory on the Yalu and in commemoration of those of their countrymen who fell in battle. After the memorial service luncheon was served in the old East Palace. The forenoon and evening was given over to sports and fireworks. Many Corean officials attended the exercises.

WITH RUSSIAN REINFORCEMENTS.

Mukden, May 7.—Still no foreign newspaper correspondents are allowed at Liao Yang, where all the foreign attaches are detained. The men on the troop trains passing through Mukden on their way to the front are in excellent spirits and express confidence in Russia's eventual success. They ask their officers when they may expect to reach Japan, and already want to know the Japanese names for tobacco, tea and other articles.

Picturesque scenes are often witnessed at the wayside stations, where the troops frequently remain over night. The soldiers are drawn up on the platforms, the bugles sound and all uncover as the priest utters the evening prayer. The troops in each car, led by a tenor voice, break into folk songs. The Chinese villagers, with whom the soldiers quickly make friends, gather about, listening to the songs, which are mostly plaintive airs. The men, many of whom have been forty days on trains on their way from the interior of Russia, are always cheerful and joke heartily in the songs.

The same good humor is shown by the troops after tiring marches through blinding dust storms and in the heat which is daily becoming more intense.

TOTAL EXEMPTION IS THE REMEDY.

That there is danger in the precedent established by the passage of the Sturgeon Falls Bill at the recent session of the Legislature is recognized by all classes of the population. It is said on competent authority that the Government has at last come to a realization of the possible results, and that at the next session a measure will be introduced which will make further dissension impossible.

This measure will meet the difficulty by enacting, that companies granted an exemption from taxation by any municipality shall not be required to pay even the school tax. If there is no school tax paid there can be no discussion or arrangement legal or illegal as to its disposition.

According to the present law, R. S.O., Cap. 2 92 Sec. 73, no bylaw for exempting any portion of rateable property from taxation, in whole or in part, shall be held or construed to exempt such property from school rates of any kind whatever. Also in Section 591 of the Municipal Act, it is enacted that nothing in the Act shall be deamed to authorize any exemption either partial or total from taxation for school purposes.

Under ordinary cases every incorporated company is regarded as a Public School supporter, unless notice is given by the company to the contrary. In cases where a company is composed of Catholic and Protestant shareholders, and the required notice has been given asking that the taxes be divided between the Public and Separate Schools, the law says, Sec. 54 of the Separate School Act:

"The shares or portion of the real property and business or other assessments of any municipality for Separate School purposes under the provisions of this section, shall bear the same ratio and proportion to the whole of the assessment of real property, business or other assessments of the company within the municipality, as the amount or proportion of the shares of the company, so far as the same are paid, or partly paid-up, and are held and possessed by persons who are Roman Catholics, bears to the whole amount of such paid or partly paid-up shares or stock of the company."

TAKE MANY PRISONERS

Russian Infantry Surrounded and Captured by the Japanese

Kiulien-Cheng, May 9.—This town was stormed in brilliant fashion, but after much bloodshed, by frontal attack. The Russians outmanouvered the Japanese and retreated in a body. Their infantry, with twenty-eight guns was surrounded and after a spirited and obstinate defence many were captured. The endurance of the soldiers are amazing. The Russian losses are very heavy. The Japanese are now advancing northward from Kiulien-Cheng.

LORD BRASSEY MAKES A PROTEST

Against Ritualistic Practices in the Church of England

EMIGRATION DURING APRIL

Russian Emigrants hear of Russo-Japanes War when Sailing

London, May 8.—At a Church of England League meeting Lord Brassey said that while the members of the League were large in their views, the protected against the action of those who while remaining members of a Protestant communion were introducing into the church ritual which offended, and justly offended, the views of those who conscientiously believed in the necessity of the Reformation. If these ceremonies had any deep meaning, they implied acceptance of the doctrine of the Roman Catholic church. If they had not that meaning, they gratuitously and unnecessarily gave offense.

EMIGRATION RETURNS.

The following are the emigration returns for the month of April; English, 7699; Irish, 487; Scotch, 2280; foreigners, 2280. These returns include the first class passengers. The rush to Canada continues. The steamship companies are now advertising that many steamers to sail have a full passenger list.

EMIGRANTS WERE SLOW.

Some Russians emigrants, on the point of departure for Canada heard for the first time that their country was at war.

Mr. James Thompson, who just arrived from England, has something to say regarding the conditions in rural England. He was of the opinion that agriculture in the counties of the old land was a thing of the past owing to the difficulty in keeping the young men at work on the farms. The big manufacturing centers were drawing the youth of the country to them and while the cities were crowded rural England was given over to the aged and infirm. This had been going on for years with the result that in the country districts it was almost next to impossible to secure help to work on the farms.

Mr. Thompson said that the problem of regulating the rural districts was agitating the minds of the public men of the country, but no satisfactory solution of that problem had yet been arrived at. It was not to be expected that the young Englishman would stay on a farm and work for twelve shillings a week, when he could double that money by going to the manufacturing centres.

The great impetus that had been given to Canadian immigration of late years was due to the fact that the young men of the country were determined to cut loose from the old rut and launch out for themselves. Rural England today was deserted. Canada and the large cities were taking the cream of England's youth and the future of the agriculture of the old land was not one of favorable prospect.

Sydney, C.B., May 9.— Newfoundland advices give details of the Knowling expedition's journey from St. George to Gleanwood by way of Cormack's track, as one equalling the terrible experience of the Hubbard party in Labrador.

From the beginning of the journey the party trudged through mountains of snow, sinking at every step to a great depth, notwithstanding that each member of the party wore snowshoes.

Thus they travelled for weeks. Their dogs gave out frequently. Food ran short after the first ten days, and it was seldom that anything could be shot to sustain and hungry men and dogs. Owing to continuous snow storms the guides were unable to get their bearing and frequently wished to be allowed to retrace their steps.

Mr. Knowling would not turn back. Then came those awful signs of approaching starvation. Driven to desperation the Indian guides killed one of their dogs and ravenously ate the meat.

The supply of tea ran short and in the trip, so the party had to drink a mixture made from steeped bark and leaves.

After three weeks of terrible privations Mr. M. O. Whiter, who accompanied Mr. Knowling, discovered that they were at the head of Gander River. By that time the members of the party were so exhausted that leaving their outfits behind they made a dash to Glenwood. They were met by woodsmen who gave them assistance and food. They could not have stood the hunger and distress many hours longer. On arrival at Greenwood the party were soon restored to their usual health.

London, May 6—It is hoped here that official action will be taken upon a suggestion which Mr. Griffith, the Canadian Government secretary, made at yesterday's meeting of the Society of Arts, at which Lord Brassey presided. Mr. Griffith reminded the meeting that the British Government was lending the Cunard Company £2,600,000 sterling at 2 33-4 per cent. for a fast Atlantic service. The reasons were, he added, equally as strong why a similar loan should be made to Canada or some authoritative Canadian corporation for an Anglo-Canadian fast service comparable with the Cunard line.

Lord Brassey strongly supported the suggestion from the naval standpoint.

Mr. Griffith also urged the desirability in the interests of the Empire, that the British Government give state transportation to the Colonies of such British unemployed as the Colonial Governments accept as suitable.

KEEP CRIMES ACT IN FORCE

British Legislators Refuse to Repeal Law Affecting Ireland

London, May 9.—The House of Commons tonight, by a vote of 197 to 124, rejected a resolution in favor of the repeal of the Irish Crimes Act. George Wyndham, chief secretary to Ireland, in opposing the motion, confessed that nothing could justify the anticipation of a recrudescence of social disorders in Ireland, but he said that the repeal of the crimes act could only do harm by reviving the angry passions now laid at rest.

John Redmond, leader of the Irish party, expressed extreme dissatisfaction with Secretary Wyndham's statement, which, he declared, would lead the Irish people, if they had the means, into open rebellion.

THIBETANS BALK THE BRITISH

Strongly Intrenched Foe Fires on English Soldiers

Line of Communication with Khangma is Threatened by Recruits

London, May 9.—Thibetans are reported to be intrenched in a strong position on the farther side of Karo pass on the direct road to Lhassa. According to a dispatch to the Times from Gyang-Tse fort some of the Thibetans were drawn from the late garrison of Gyang-Tse fort.

The British reconnoitering party, after crossing the summit of the pass and descending a short way, saw the road barred by a wall, and suddenly a heavy fire from Jingals and European rifles was opened, bullets striking the ground all round, but causing no casualties.

The number of Thibetans is estimated at 1,500 and their position may threaten the British line of communication with Khangma. No reply was made to the Thibetans except two or three shots to keep down the enemy's fire during the retirement.

This action of the Thibetans finally disposes of the possibility of any useful purpose being served by the visit of the Amban, from whom Colonel Younghusband has received no further communication. It suggests, indeed, that the only object of the visit was to gain further time for the defence of Lhassa road and probably for the arrival of expected help from the north.

—A local hotelkeeper is summoned to appear before Police Magistrate Dumble tomorrow charged with selling liquor to two boys.

THIBETANS ARL LEVYING TROOPS

Have Determined to Oppose the British Expedition

FURTHER FIGHTING SOON

A Thibetan Force is Seeking to Menace Colonel Younghusband's Communications

Rio Janeiro, May 9.—It is rumored that orders have been issued for the mobilization of Brazilian troops and for the concentration of all the forces in the first military district at points on the frontier where Peruvian troops are reported to have crossed into Brazil.

[The Peruvian troops, in spite of repeated demands, have refused to evacuate territory on the frontier regarded as belonging to Brazil. The territory in dispute includes the Juruá and Purus valleys.]

Gyangtse, Thibet, May 9.—The officials at Lhassa seemed to be determined to defy the British Thibetan expedition. A strong reconnoitering force has left Gyangtse to dislodge a Thibetan army on the further side of Kharola pass, where it menaces the British communications. The presence of this army there has been known for a long time, but it was lately learned that its strength is being daily increased. The Lhassan authorities are levying recruits in all directions. It is expected that there will be further fighting shortly.

WOMAN KILLS A MERCHANT

Slayer Visits Store and Without Word Shoot Illinois Man Dead

Vienna, Ill., May 9.—Sam R. McCall, a merchant of West Vienna, was shot and killed by Mrs. Walter Brummitt today. The woman went to his place of business and without a word of explanation shot him dead.

JAPAN WOMEN ARE SOLDIERS

Contractor Says 10 Per cent of Czar's Foes in Are Female

Victoria, B.C., May 9.—Richard Chester, of Tanegashima Island, Japan, a contractor to the Japanese Government, is in this city en route to the Orient. He says that at least 10 per cent of the Japanese soldiers in the field are disguised as men. He declares that the average Japanese woman of the coolie class is as strong if not stronger than the men.

Mr. Chester asserts that prior to last December Japan had landed 120,000 men in the vicinity of Ping Yang, Corea, from which point they were quietly distributed through the country. These men were all fully armed and prepared to keep the field for an indefinite period.

ASKS OF BUILDING WARSHIPS

New Socialist Weekly Speaks of Germans Making Russian Boats

Berlin, May 9.—Eduard Bernstein, a member of the Reichstag, begins the publication today of a new Socialistic weekly entitled Das Neue Montangsblatt, wherein he advocates the revision of the socialist creed so that it shall be less idealistic and more a program of practical reform. Herr Bernstein prefaces his editorial column with the following questions:

"Is it known to the German Government that torpedo-boats and destroyers for the Russian Government are being built at one of the largest German shipyards?

"Is it known to the Government that in order to disguise this breach of neutrality the several parts of the vessels are exported as half-finished manufactures and put together in Libau, Russia? Is it known finally that the building of these war vessels is so urgent that work proceeds from 5 a.m. to 9 p.m."

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

A THIRD JAPA. ARMY OF 50,000 OR 60,000 MEN READY

And will Undoubtedly Soon Make Its Appearance at Some Point in Manchuria

Heavy fighting is expected, according to St. Petersburg reports, to take place within the next day or so at Feng Wang Cheng, to which place General Sassulitch's force retreated after its defeat on the Yalu last Sunday. The Japanese army, under General Kuroki, is slowly nearing the place, and the Russians, it is reported, have received heavy reinforcements. Kuroki's force numbers at least 80,000 men. A third Japanese army of 50,000 to 60,000 men is under arms, and will undoubtedly soon make its appearance at some point in Manchuria not yet mentioned. Thus the Japanese army of invasion will number about 190,000 to 200,000 men. It is very doubtful if General Kuropatkin, for the present at least, can muster at any point a superior force to any one of these three armies.

London, May 7.—Today the military correspondent of The Times says;—The Japanese are following very closely the precedent of 1894 (the war with China), and have once more chosen Pitsewo as the point of landing of an army destined to attack Port Arthur. The first objective of the army which has been landed will certainly be Dalny and Talienwan Bay, since a more uninviting base than Pitsewo would be difficult to find, and the second army requires before anything else, a harbor where stores, heavy guns, and transport supplies can be landed in security. Talienwan was the base in 1894 before the army moved forward for the attack of Port Arthur, and history is likely to repeat itself up to a certain point. Port Arthur, for all practical purposes, is already invested, and Viceroy Alexieff, like Sir John French at Ladysmith, appears to have made his exit by the last train.

A HARD NUT TO CRACK.

At the outbreak of the war Port Arthur was in a very poor state for defence. Many of the land forts were unfinished and unarmed, and probably the sailors had been allowed to fall to a very low ebb. During the long period since hostilities began these conditions must have entirely changed, and if Port Arthur does not prove an excessively hard nut to crack the Russian War Office should put up its shtters and retire from business. Although the Russians now tell us there is only a very small garrison at Port Arthur, the numbers should soon be accurately known to the Japanese. It seems probable there are at least 15,000 troops in the town, besides 10,000 sailors, many of whom could be used ashore for the defence of this eastern Sebastopol.

WHAT OF THE SUPPLIES?

None but the Russian War Office can know the exact quantity of supplies, but the assurance that there is a year's supplies may not be very far from the truth. Nearly all the Chinese coolies have been evicted or have fled, and a good part of the civil population has followed their example. There remains only the garrison, and the number of railway trains required to bring up supplies for 25,000 men for a year is by no means considerable.

WILL THERE BE AN ASSAULT?

The chances are that Port Arthur will not fall by famine this year, and the question that remains open is whether the Japanese will resort to an investment, a regular siege, or a bombardment followed by an assault. A great deal will depend upon the course of operations elsewhere, particularly the action of the Baltic squadron, but in any case it seems certain that once the garrison is driven in upon its works and shut up it can be held fast by a relatively small force, leaving a good part of the second army available for operations elsewhere. The second army may reckon itself relatively secure from offensive return on the part of the Russian army in the Liao valley.

THE JAPANESE STRENGTH.

There are two Japanese armies still unaccounted for, and Newchwang still waits and trembles. General Kuropatkin already has his hands full to repair the disaster on the Yalu, and to march down the Liaotung peninsula, with two Japanese armies still hovering over the high road of the sea, will offer no sort of allurement whatsoever. Even with the second Japanese army landed, there are still seven active divisions thirsting for action, and behind them the reserve field armies, the composition of which in time of war is the closest secret of the general staff. No doubt the organization of the reserve armies plays a very important part in the Japanese organization, but the pundits disagree as to the exact shape these formations will assume. In any case, it is certain that not half of the Japanese active army has yet entered the field, and that even when it has there will still remain the power of placing fresh troops in the field for any purpose the course of the campaign may dictate.

CZAR PAINED AND ASTONISHED.

London, May 7.—The Times has the following from Vienna;—In Russophile quarters here it is reported that the painful astonishment of the Czar at the Russian defeat on the Yalu was the greater owing to the assurances received from General Kuropatkin a few days previously that the imminent engagements on land would prove the Russian positions impregnable. It is supposed that the despatch to Viceroy Alexieff from Port Arthur to Mukden is due to the desire of the Czar to possess a complete report of the military situation and the causes of the defeat.

Times Latest War Despatches

THE RUSSIANS MEET WITH ANOTHER DEFEAT

Special to The Times:

Cheffoo, May 8.—A private telegram has been received here confirming the report that the Japanese have occupied Feng Wang Cheng. The date of the occupation is given as May 8th. Everything quiet here today.

Shen Hai Kwan, May 8.—It is reported here that there has been severe fighting at Feng Wang Cheng, in which the Japanese were successful. They took the main position. The Russians are retiring towards Hai Cheng, 31 miles east of Cheng Wang Cheng, and are evacuating the western side of the Liao Tung River. On Thursday and Saturday of last week the Japanese landed 10,000 men at Ken Chan, and 17,000 at Sit Suma. They occupied the towns of Wa Sung Tien and Tulan Tien, and destroyed several miles of the railroad. Heavy fighting has been heard in the direction of Kai Chan, where the Japanese troops have been seen recently. The blocking of Port Arthur is complete. Sixteen Japanese warships protected the landing of troops at Kin Chan Bay, directing a sweeping fire over the narrow isthmus before the soldiers disembarked. Seventy-five Russians were wounded in this. It is reported that food is scarce at Mukden. The troops there are eating bean cake. The Russians are preparing to evacuate New Chwang and that city is in a turmoil of horrid fright.

Tokio, May 8.—Every supplemental report received from Gen. Kuroki, commander of the 1st Japanese army, increases the Russian casualties in last Sunday's battle at Obin Chang on the Yalu River. The Japanese have buried about 1,400 Russians, and have 600 of enemies wounded in the field hospital. They estimate that total casualties reach 2,500. Over 300 prisoners are en route to Matsuyanee, where they are expected to arrive on Wednesday.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

Anniversary services were held yesterday in St. Paul's and St. Andrew's churches, Rev. John Neil, D.D. of Westminster church, Toronto, preached in the morning at St. Paul's, and in the evening at St. Andrew's, and Rev. Principal Gordon, of Queen's University, Kingston, took the evening service at St. Paul's and the morning service at St. Andrew's.

Large congregations attended the services, the seating capacity of both churches being taxed to the utmost. The fame of the preachers, as eloquent and forcible speakers, was fully sustained.

The collections were for the reduction of the debt of the churches.

In connection with the St. Paul's services the choir sang Spohr's "As Pants the Heart," from the Crucifixion," with solos and obligato by Miss Davies, and Schnecker's excellent setting of "Hark! Hark! My Soul," with incidental solos by Mr. Jas. Dawson, Miss Lillian Moore and Miss Davies. Two solo numbers were given by Miss Davies, "Come unto Him," Corzen, and "Abide with Me," by Davies.

Detroit Specialist Discovers Something Entirely New for the Cure of Men's Diseases in Their Own Homes.

You Pay Only if Cured

He Accepts No Money Unless He Cures Your Method and Full Particulars Sent Free —Write For It This Very Day

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and boards, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes; so that there need be no doubt in the mind of any man that he can

DR. S. GOLDBERG,
The Possessor of 14 Diplomas and Certificates Who Wants No Money That He Does Not Earn.

both be cured and the ability to do so he says. Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic troubles, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation of parts, impotence, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but likewise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as many booklets on the subject, including the one that contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply

Dr. S. Goldberg, 268 Woodward Ave., Room
Detroit, Mich., and it will all immediately be sent you free.

This is something entirely new and well worth knowing more about. Write at once.

AMERICANS QUICK TO ACT

No sooner has the triumph of the open door in the far east been partly accomplished by the success of the Japanese army this week than the United States rushes a representative to Antung, to fill a Consulate in that pylace. This action is in line with every procedure since the days of Blaine, when that statesman contended for a consul system so wide and energetic as to make its influence felt every hour of the day on the commerce of the Republic. Through their consuls our neighbors have their finger on the pulse of trade in every portion of the civilized world. The authorities at Washington will brook no shirking of duties by a representative of the service. They demand eternal vigilance upon the part of the agents, to the end that the United States exporter may advance his interests in the foreign field. The mass of information that is sent daily by American consuls to the State Department at Washington is eagerly digested and put into shape to direct the attention of exporters to the trend of things in the outside world. While many British representatives abroad pursue the life of gentlemen of leisure, deigning not to turn aside to pick up "pointers" for the manufacturer at home, the Yankee agent is ever on the alert and his Government appreciates his alertness and rewards him for his vigilance. The latest move of our neighbors to be first on the field is characteristic. They are watching events in the East with an eagle eye and fully understands what the situation there is likely to be with Japan on top.

SOME EFFECTS OF THE WAR

The hellishness of war is making itself felt in Siberia. In Transbaikalia the calling out the reserves has had the effect of depriving the rural districts of most of their laborers. The residents of Irkutck are without domestic servants, as female domestics have had to return to the country to take the place of brothers and husbands who had gone to the front. In the Kurnets district, where all those capable of bearing arms have been called upon to serve, and no one is left to till the ground, there is serious danger of famine. The stores of provisions are diminishing, Prices are rising, and, in consequence of the bad harvest two years ago, the supply of seed corn is exhausted. In the Cossack settlements the position is even more serious, as the Cossack is compelled to provide his own uniform and to take his best horse to the war. This distressing state of things is quoted to prove the necessity of introducing the zemstvo in to Siberia. Any relief that might be afforded, it is suggested, would fail to reach its destination for want of public bodies to administer it. A Russian journal points out that the municipalities and zemstvos in Russia are suffering seriously from the financial strain caused by the war. It remarks that the contributions of these public bodies to the war fund should be covered by the imposition of special taxes. If, it is argued, the population understands the object of such taxes they will be viewed as voluntary offerings.

Thus does war press on many who do not have to fight, except to get their daily bread.

THE SECOND SIEGE OF PORT ARTHUR

The weakness of Port Arthur and Vladivostock is that each of these fortresses is at the tip of a peninsula. All an enemy in command of the sea need do is to land in force at the isthmus, cut the peninsula off from its land communications, and await the inevitable surrender.

In 1894 the Japanese landed near Pitsewo, moved down to Talienwan, captured the isthmus and then had Port Arthur "in a bag," to use their own expression. It was a matter of detail to advance into the peninsula itself, and storm the horse-shoe of hills which encircles the town. The Japanese so far have duplicated their moves of 1894 with astonishing closeness. They crossed the Yalu almost at the points where they crossed when forcing the Chinese into Manchuria. Now they have landed to attack Port Port Arthur at the very point on the coast line which they selected nine years and a half ago. This time, however, they are in greater force. This time, also, they have a fleet of transports ready to land troops on the western side of the Liao Tung peninsula as well. The enveloping movement is of formidable dimensions.

The importance of the west coast of the peninsula is that it is skirted by the railway which feeds Port Arthur. Once let the Japanese make good footing on the shore, and the railway is interrupted and Port Arthur is blockaded. Once let the two Japanese armies settle down on the isthmus, and they cannot be ejected by the Russians. They will have warships to guard each flank, their assailants' line of communications can be raided from the sea, and the line of fortifications which they must guard will be short, will crown heavy hills, and will rest securely on the sea. It then will be a matter of seeing how well Port Arthur is provisioned. It is too much to expect the Japanese to repeat their direct attack of October, 1894. The Russians are stubborn in holding entrenchments, and they have been burrowing for years, adding fort to fort on the hills around the arsenal. The defences of the town itself have a perimeter of about forty miles, and in addition there are believed to be numerous forts and batteries on the hills near the isthmus.

There is one factor to be considered. Is the Russian torpedo flotilla locked up in harbor. If it is not, the Japanese are incurring great risks, for there must be some darlin' lieutenant in Port Arthur who can get a destroyer among one or other of the two flocks of anchored transports. It will not be easy, for on the east coast a string of rocky bits of land, the Elliott Islands, interposes between the port and Pitsewo. They form excellent watching places, and it would be hard to get past them. As for the western coast the promontory of Liao Shan must be doubled, and a long roundabout journey made to reach Kinchau, or any other landing place. Still, there will be dark nights and foggy days, and the boats should take the risk. It is much more likely, however, that the Port Arthur fairway at last is blocked, and that the destroyers cannot get out to do mischief.

In 1894 the besieging force numbered about 27,000, and it took about a fortnight to get men, animals and stores landed. This time the expeditionary army will number at least 60,000, and it will be tedious work to get them, their horses, their guns and their stores disembarked in cramped and shallow little harbors like Pitsewo. We must expect a further period of silence while the landing is completed. Then there probably will be a long and tedious siege, with few newspaper readers, but which mean incidents of the sort which interest the wholesale sacrifice of human life.

Cured Painful Irregularities

Strong Testimony From a Lady Resident of Clarksburg, Proving that Ferrozone Surpasses All Other Remedies For Diseases Peculiar to Women.

If the thousands of women who silently suffer from functional derangements were to tell their sad story, it would make a book of countless pages. The health of many women is constantly imperilled through failure of certain organs to work according to nature's requirements. Where this condition occurs there is no safer remedy to employ than Ferrozone, which has a specific action in female troubles. Not only does it act directly on the organs, ensuring regularity and freedom from pain, but by forming rich, red blood, fortifies the system against weakening drains.

Every young girl and woman will find a true friend in Ferrozone. It is a specific remedy for their troubles that offsets the deadening influence of ill health by restoring order and regularity. Ferrozone possesses a volume of merit to [illegible] in this ordinary medicine and its superiority is proclaimed by thousands of women it has restored to vigorous health. From Mrs. F. G. Caldwell comes the following endorsement, written from her home in Clarksburg. "I went through a most trying experience with what is commonly known as "Female Trouble." It isn't necessary to state my symptoms but I suffered a great deal. My health was well nigh ruined, and I got into such a condition that I couldn't even sleep. I was dreadfully nervous, weak and pale. Different prescriptions were recommended, and I tried them. But Ferrozone was the first to help. I improved steadily under Ferrozone and normal conditions were finally established. I gained weight, my color and spirits improved, and my former health was restored. Ferrozone cured me, and with a full heart I recommend this good medicine to all other women.

No greater blessing ever came to suffering women than Ferrozone. It deserves a trial because it is the best medicine, tonic and rebuilder money can buy. Beware of imitations. Don't allow a druggist to palm off anything else for Ferrozone, which costs 50c. per cent or six boxes for $2.50, at druggists or by mail from The Ferrozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

FERROZONE MAKES STRONG WOMEN

AN APPEAL TO THE FASHIONABLE SET IN CANADA.

"Lally Bernard," the Well-known Toronto Journalist, Writes from England of the Battle Against Consumption in Muskoka.

Lally Bernard, of the editorial staff of the Toronto Globe, writing to that paper from London, England, where she is now a resident, shows most clearly that the battle against the great white plague is one that should interest all classes of the community. It will be remembered that this writer entered incog..as a patient in the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, and afterwards in the Globe told of real life in that institution. In her present article she says:

"To-day I have found a letter at the club which nearly missed me, having been addressed 'Lally Bernard.' May I express to my unknown correspondent my warmest thanks for the kindly appreciation for the little I have been able to do in the battle being waged against tuberculosis in Canada. The need of sympathy and interest is a tremendous one, and I am always puzzled when I find really well educated and intelligent people in Canada so criminally ignorant of the extent of the danger, and the means which are being taken to combat it.

"It may be of some interest to those who feel as I do in regard to the responsibility which rests upon each and all to aid in this fight against a most insidious foe, when I tell them, that here in London, where I have been for only a few days, I have already come across the dread enemy four times. First of all, in the back garden of our humble quarters in Kensington I espied, when morning dawned, a tent with two beds in it. I enquired of our landlord why the tent was there, and was told a long story about the coronation and quarters for some boys coming up from the country, and that he, the landlord, had subsequently found it more agreeable to sleep in the tent than in the basement bedroom he had formerly occupied. A little later, in conversation with the lady who secured the lodgings, I learned that the landlord's son was obliged to sleep in a tent! Comment was needless.

"In looking for quarters I found a charming home of a young doctor and his wife, where extraordinarily moderate terms were asked for really exceptionally good accommodation. The doctor in question had been 'ordered south,' and his wife had to keep the house going by accepting 'paying guests.'

"Yet again, in the third place, I found that the lady who was at the head of the establishment had not only lost her husband from the dread disease, but had managed one of the most fashionable sanitariums in England, and her knowledge of the treatment and the extent of the problem in England showed me how tremendous was the need for care and watchfulness in our own country.

"May I ask my correspondent to use all possible influence to make the question of combating tuberculosis one of interest in the 'fashionable set' to which she evidently belongs. I know full well, from the little experience I have had, how tremendously a little genuine interest and help might lighten the burden now resting on the shoulders of the authorities of the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. It is, of course, far away from wealthy centres, and out of sight is to be out of mind.

"I can quite understand that until people have seen forty or fifty patients together in different stages of consumption they do not realise what an immense amount of aid might be given by those who are fortunate enough to be free from the disease and by those who have little else to do than to invent or learn some new form of recreation.

"Mrs. Torrington has kindly promised me to try and get musical societies and people interested in music to provide a pianola for the Hospital, and I feel sure it will be of immense benefit to the patients. Surely my correspondent who evinces such sympathy with the cause could make that sympathy take a practical form and organize a hospital library where books worth reading might be supplied, with some system similar to that of the Aberdeen Association, which has done such excellent work."

[Note.—Readers—and may their number be many—who desire to assist in the work of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives may send their gifts to Sir Wm. R. Meredith, Kt., Vice-President, National Sanitarium Association, Toronto, or Mr. W. J. Gage, Chairman of the Executive Committee.]

A SAD CASE.

The following letter, addressed to the Secretary of the National Sanitarium Association, Toronto, from the Rectory, Norwood, Ont., and signed by Rev. J. McKee McLennan, a well-known Anglican minister of the province, needs no comment of ours. It reads: "I desire to secure the admission into the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst of a young woman, a member of my parish. The case is a very sad one, and if help can at once be given, a promising life can be saved. Three years ago the mother died of consumption. Since that time it has been my painful duty to bury two of the sons with the same disease. Now Annie, aged about seventeen, and a boy of fourteen, are all that remain of the family. The poor girl has been in Muskoka, boarding at a private house, waiting to be admitted. She returned home last week, and within twenty-four hours of her return her father dropped dead in his buggy while driving into Norwood. The case is surely one that must appeal to the sympathies of everyone, and yet, I fear, only one of the many that are constantly coming under your notice."

[Note.—Readers—and may their number be many—who desire to assist in this worthy work may send their gifts to Sir Wm. R. Meredith, Kt., Vice-President, National Sanitarium Association, Toronto, or Mr. W. J. Gage, Chairman of the Executive Committee, Toronto.]

High Class Investment

THE OREGON MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY

Offer to Canadian investors a limited amount of stock of the above company The property owned by the Company consists at the present time of about 500 acres, which are located in the Tarryall District and Park County, Colorado. This whole district has been known for years on account of its rich placer ground, and is now prominently before the public owing to the number of very good properties which have been opened up recently producing, principally, gold, and lately some that are producing Platinum. On the Oregon property there are a number of well known veins of low grade ore that will yield a profit by being treated on the ground of the company. The company have recently opened up a fine vein in the Hawkeye group and this vein shows not only good values but an immense amount of ore which alone would make the property very valuable. Assays from ore taken from various parts of this property range from a few dollars to $373 per ton in gold. We have very little silver, lead or copper in the district. The company have a shaft 240 feet deep, with a good shaft house thoroughly well equipped with all modern machinery to develop same. They are now driving a tunnel which is in about 700 feet and which will cut the Hawkeye vein about 300 feet deeper than where it is opened at present. There is enough ore exposed on the property of this company to keep them busy for a number of years and the reason for selling stock at the present time is to secure funds to build a mill. The company will probably join with the Almaden Company in building this mill. There is water enough to furnish water power and over 100 acres of fine spruce and pine timber. The affairs of the company have always been managed in a business-like economical manner and there are no officers' salaries. The monies received from the sale of stock go direct into the property.

I can heartily recommend this stock as a safe, as well as an unusually good investment, because of the immense amount of ore which the company have already opened up. It is not a mere prospect, but the property has been developed by expense of a considerable amount of money and time.

The company is splendidly officered by men of integrity and high standing. The company has not pushed the sale of stock the last year owing to a delay in getting title to the ground from the Government, but now that has been satisfactorily adjusted and work will be pushed to a finish.

The number of exceedingly rich strikes which have been made during the last few weeks in the various camps in the State of Colorado is the best evidence of the prosperity of the mining business. Almost every camp in the state has opened up rich bodies of ore, and Park County is well in the lead in that line.

There are only $25,000 of stock for sale, at $1.00 per share. The company is capitalized at $200,000, and the advantage to the investor of selling the stock at par, is that every share is fully paid up and non-assessable.

A CLERGYMAN'S APPEAL.

The Rev. W. F. Brownlee, Ridgetown, Anglican minister, has written the following letter to the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives:—

Dear Sir,—I fell in with a case to-day in my parish, a young woman very ill with consumption and I promised I would write you regarding her entrance into the hospital for consumptives in Muskoka. The case is one of great necessity and charity. The applicant is about 18 years of age. She is practically without a home, staying at present with a relative. She is bright and amiable, and would like to live. As I understand, you reject none on account of poverty. I commend the case to you as one most needy, and if you can send me instructions or papers for application to the hospital, I will see to raising necessary means for her transportation and have her sent at once, as I imagine she is not beyond receiving benefit.

[Note by Editor.—Sir Wm. R. Meredith, Kt., Vice-President of the National Sanitarium Association, or Mr. W. J. Gage, Chairman of the Executive Committee, Toronto, will gladly receive contributions for this and several other equally piteous cases calling for help.]

TORONTO AND THE TRENT CANAL

Argument in Favor of the Port Hope Route

TRENTON ROUTE FAVORED

Erroneous Statements Calculated to Injure the Towns Along the Waterway

A staff correspondent of the Toronto Star visited Peterborough and interviewed a number of citizens regarding the Trent Valley Canal. The following report appeared in that paper:

A favorite argument of the Peterborough and Lakefield men who favor the Trent River route to Trenton from pre-interested reasons is that by way of Trenton the Government will obtain a revenue of large proportions by the rental of water power privileges, established by the dams and other works necessary to the canal. By the Port Hope route the Government will get nothing in return.

J. M. Kilbourn, of Lakefield, the owner of the big Lakefield cement works, told the Royal Commission that the Dominion Government would get $200,000 a year from water power privileges if the canal were completed via Trenton. Such statements are on par with many of the arguments used in favor of the Trenton route. Any man who knows aught of the Trent River power situation knows that the whole river will not produce 100,000 horse-power — Mr. Kilbourn was figuring at $2 a horse power — if the Government had possession of all the privileges from end to end.

UNDER PRIVATE CNNTROL.

As a matter of fact, not more than 30,000 horse-power could be developed in the entire river if the Government owned every concession. By the construction of the canal down the Trent River the Government will obtain less than 9,000 horse-power, and almost the entire head is controlled by private interests, and the men interested—half of them are Peterborough men, are working tooth and nail to make Trenton the outlet, so that the Government may either improve their powers or be compelled to pay damages for destroying or interfering with them. These are the men who are shouting that the Port Hopers are, to use a street gamin phrase, 'butting in,' and that they are delaying the route. These are the men, too, who are raising the cry that the country does not produce enough water for the purposes of the canal, and are petitioning the Government to spend $300,000 in conserving the water in the back country. They said that the present dams were rotten, and must be renewed right away, and made a great outcry, only to be told plainly and emphatically by the Government engineer that they were talking rot, and that the dams were in excellent shape, and that the water supply was abundant. They wanted more water for power schemes in which some of them were interested, and to get it at the expense of the general public, gave the Government a chance to drop the whole scheme on the ground that when it was built, all the country would have to show for the gigantic outlay was a moist ditch from Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario.

LOCAL AND GRAIN TRAFFIC.

And still they cry that Port Hope is delaying the canal. They did not wake up and do anything until they were stirred out last fall.

Some of these men, too, know that the Port Hope route is the route for the development of the back country, and that it will expedite, if anything, the large grain trade from the West, yet they argue for the Trenton route. Port Hope men charge that they are out for their own ends, and care nothing for the public good.

Even Mr. D. Hughes-Chartes, President of the Peterborough Board of Trade, admitted that the Port Hope route offered an attractive outlook for general trade.

"But then, you know, it would never do for a grain barge route," he argued. "This Trent Valley Canal was outlined as a great all-Canadian grain to the seaboard, and we must not lose sight of the fact. It is a cheap route and cheap rates will prevail. To handle the traffic cheap barges will be built. These barges will be built for about $5,000 apiece, and they will not stand the open lake work."

"Why not build them substantial enough to stand the lake work?" he was asked. "It can be done. Rideau Canal barges ply across the lake to Oswego, and load coal, and a westerly storm knocks up a very nasty sea down there."

"That could not be done under the circumstances," was the reply. "Rates must be very low to handle wheat, and the rates which would doubtless prevail would not admit of the barge owner building expensive barges for lake work. By the Trenton route the barges would have protection practically all the way to Montreal. That Port Hope route is a most dangerous one, in my opinion, for barges. Why, I lived down there for several months, and had a good opportunity to judge of the weather. In the fall, just when the grain barges would be going down in shoals, it storms nearly all the time. They could not stand the weather at all. I actually saw one barge founder right off Port Hope the time I was there in a storm, so you see I know whereof I speak. No, the Trenton route is the only route in my opinion."

"What about local traffic to Lake Ontario?"

TRAFFIC WOULD GO EAST.

"The outlet at Trenton would serve the district almost as well as that by Port Hope," was the reply. "We can get our coal in from across the lake just as well by Trenton as by Port Hope, I should think, and our local products can just as well go east as west. By way of Port Hope there might be some advantages to Toronto, and the western lake cities, but I do not believe that these would be nearly the amount of general traffic as the Port Hope advocates state."

Mr. A. M. Stratton, Vice-President of the Board of Trade, was unequivocally in favor of the Trenton route. "I cannot see anything in favor of the Port Hope route at all," he said. "Trenton has always been regarded as the natural outlet, and Trenton is the natural outlet, and Trenton is the way it will go as soon as the unwarranted delay caused by the Port Hope agitation has taken place. The Port Hope men might as well cease worrying themselves. The canal is going to reach the lake by way of Trenton, and the sooner it is opened out the better for Peterborough and the entire district.

AS A GRAIN ROUTE.

Still another man who can see nothing in favor of the Port Hope route, and yet who admits that it would save his company about $2,000 a year in coal transportation, is Mr. A. G. Patterson, General Manager of the Canadian General Electrical Company works at Peterborough. He refers to engineering difficulties upon the Port Hope route which Port Hopers declare do not occur, and reiterates the charge that Port Hope is delaying the completion of the canal.

"It is nonsense to talk of a deep canal from Port Hope to Peterborough," he exclaimed. "This canal will be completed on the basis it has already been enlarged to eight feet four inches. The sooner Port Hope gets out of the road of progress the better for this whole country. The canal is our great barge route to the sea, and it must be completed as originally outlined to be of any utility as a grain route."

"How about general traffic?"

"I don't think that there would be any general traffic to speak of if the route went by Port Hope," he remarked. ("In my opinion, there would be more traffic eastward with the canal outlet at Trenton. Engineers who have examined the Port Hope route tell us that the great ridge just south of Rice Lake will add enormously to the cost of constructing it to the lake that way."

Mr. Evans Bradburn, another prominent Peterborough man, argues in almost exactly the same strain. He dilates upon the danger of the 28 miles from Port Hope to Presque Isle Bay.

THEY HAVE A SCAPE GOAT

Kashtalinsky Foredoomed His Troops to Destruction -Should Have Moved in Night

St. Petersburg, May 6—The Russian papers are rather sparing in their comment on the battle of Kin Lien Cheng, evidently awaiting more complete details but what they say contains no trace of discouragement.

The Novoe Vremya says the days of jubilation announced by General Kuropatkin have now begun and assures that the Japanese difficulties will increase as they advance. The paper believes the chief danger now is in the attitude of the Chinese and says:

"Our diplomats must make Japan realize the danger of Chinese violation of neutrality. Russia must win, but with heavier sacrifices a heavier price will be extracted from her foes."

The Viedmosti remarks:—"It is a Japanese victory. Do not let us seek for a scapegoat. It is the fortune of war. Glory to the dead and to the survivors of the heroic fight against overwhelming odds. But the Japanese probably would gladly exchange their dearly bought victory for a successful bottling up of Port Arthur."

The Russky Invalid, the army organ, points to the fact that 5,000 Russians fought a rear guard battle against 30,000 at Schoengraben (Austria) in 1805 and a century later 8,000 Russians fought 40,000 Japanese at the Yalu.

"The Russians," the Russky Invalid adds, "are accustomed to lay down their lives when duty calls. The Japanese paid too dearly for their victory. It will take them days to recover."

A GENERAL'S BLUNDER.

The Novoe Vremeya's expert says the report of Major-Gen. Kashtalinsky proves clearly that the Russians should have withdrawn during the night of April 30, and adds:

"Kashtalinsky foredoomed them to destruction. It was a miracle of heroism and fortitude that they escaped after staying and inflicting such tremendous losses on the enemy."

General Kuroki probably has eight divisions available for an immediate advance. This force will be joined by General Oku's army when the latter is landed. The Japanese have every reason to follow the southern road, where they will have the advantage of the co-operation of their ships. The roads are less difficult and mountainous through the Feng Wang Cheng district, but the Japanese must dispose of the Russian force at Feng Wang Cheng before they can cut off Liao Tung.

London, May 6.—Further enquiries show that a Japanese loan of $50,000,000 will be issued next week. It will take the form of seven-year six per cent. bonds, and the issue price probably will be 93 1-2, the security being a first charge on the Japanese customs. The loan will be issued simultaneously in New York and London, the only detail remaining to be determined being regarding the amount which shall be allotted to each city. It is anticipated that London will get $35,000,000 and New York $15,000,000.

M. Takahashio, the Japanese financial agent in London, says the money will not be sent to Japan but will be employed in paying the balance of trade. He adds that, in his opinion, no other loan will be required by Japan before the conclusion of the war.

SOCIETY WOMAN A THIEF

Stole a Casket Containing $20,000 Worth of Jewelry

Paris, May 7.—After the death of the Duchess D'Alba at the Hotel Bristol last March it was found that a casket containing jewels valued at $20,000 was missing. The lost jewels included a diamond earring, teh wedding gift of Emperor Napoleon III to the Empress Eugenie, which later was presented by the Empress to her niece.

The Spanish Embassy communicated with the authorities concerning the missing casket and the police have now traced the theft to a prominent society woman who visited the duchess during her last illness.

The jewels have been recovered, and it is probable that the family of the duchess will refuse to prosecute the accused.

I desire to call the attention of investors to the

Smuggler Gold Mining Co.'s Proposition

of which I am the authorized agent

Investments in mining stocks where they can be purchased cheaply whose property contains merit and whose directors are men of unquestionable honor and integrity, and especially when sufficient work has been done to guarantee a producing mine and the leads have been demonstrated to be permanent, offer the greatest opportunity for large returns from modest investments.

The shrewdest capitalists of England and America are giving more attention to mining properties and putting more money into them than at any time in the past history of the world.

The Smuggler Group consists of five full sized claims; to wit: The Smuggler, Gangon, Black Jack, Star and Bed Rock, located in the Greenhorn District of Eastern Oregon. Surrounding mines are Potosi, Pride of Pendleton, Bonanza and Rockefeller, developing work to the extent of 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifts and crosscuts have been made, exposing hundreds of tons of high grade ore, averaging from $25 to $45 per ton, based on smelter returns and for the purpose of equipping the mines a limited number of shares of Treasury Stock will be sold at 25 cents per share, the par value of which is $1.00.

HIGH CLASS INVESTMENT

LA ZACUALPA RUBBER PLANTATION COMPANY

Incorporated Under the Laws of the State of California.

La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation is situated in the best location in Mexico for the cultivation of rubber. It has been known for a great many years as a very choice strip of rubber land and subsequent experience has shown that it is equal to all that has been claimed for it. The affairs of the company are in the hands of men of undoubted integrity and high reputation as successful men of business. To those seeking a safe investment which will secure a good income for life, this proposition offers a favorable opportunity

Shares in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation are not capital stock of a corporation, and carry none of the responsibilities and obligations, or liability to assessment of capital stock; but represent an undivided interest in the plantation itself.

The twelve thousand acres comprising the plantation are divided into twelve thousand shares, each share representing one acre of land, and the holders of shares in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation are the actual owners of one undivided acre of land, for each share held, with a guarantee expressed upon the certificate by La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company, under its official seal, to plant two hundred or more rubber trees per acre for each share sold, and to care for same for a period of five years, and at the expiration of that time to gather the first harvest and deliver the net proceeds thereof to the shareholder.

In other words, La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company sells to each shareholder one undivided acre of land in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation, with two hundred or more rubber trees five years old, and their profits for all time, for each share sold, and agrees to plant so that the first harvest belonging to the shareholder is the one to be gathered from La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation during the sixth year from the date of the certificate.

After the delivery of the first harvest La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company will care for the plantation, and harvest and market the crop for ten per cent. of the net proceeds therefrom. Out of this commission the Company agrees to pay all costs of administration, including maintenance of its home and branch offices.

This plan gives the purchaser of shares an interest of definite acreage, and his proportionate share in the total yield of rubber from the entire plantation forever, making it absolutely certain that the interest of each shareholder will receive the same care and attention

GRAND TRUNK TO ORGANIZE SURVEY

Engineers of this Company to Plan Eastern Section of

A NEW RAILWAY SCHEME

G. T. R, Rapidly Perfecting the Details of Part of Grand Trunk Pacific Surveys

Montreal, May 7.—The engineering department of the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada will organize the surveys for the eastern section of the Grand Trunk Pacific.

An announcement to this effect was made at the head office of the company in this city this morning.

In obtaining the passage of the National Transcontinental Railway bill through Parliament, the Government met with so much opposition even from friends of the party, to many of the provisions of the measure that it was thought better not to run any further risks of incurring additional trouble.

While the original intention had been to construct the eastern section exclusively as a Government undertaking, the decision has been reached to place the matter in practical hands. Hence the arrangement wit the G.T.R. to do all the preliminary work.

The impression prevails that, in this way, the Government will, should unanticipated difficulties arise in the future, be in a position to lay the blame upon other shoulders.

In the meantime, the engineering department of the G.T.R. is rapidly perfecting the details of the work which they have been called upon to perform.

So soon as the bill has been assented to by the Governor-General, work upon the surveys west from Quebec will be immediately commenced, and that under the entire control of the G.T.R.

Old Hagar's Secret

BY MRS. M. J. HOLMES

Author of "For a Woman's Sake," "Love's Triumph," "Purified by Suffering," "A Grass Widow," "Woman Against Woman," Etc.

of some one falling the entire length of the tower stairs, while a voice, frightened and faint, called out: "Help me, Margaret, do! I am dead! I know I am!"

Striking a light, Maggie hurried to the spot, while her merry laugh aroused the servants, who came together in a body. Stretched upon the floor, with one foot thrust entirely through the banner, which was folded about her so that the quilt frame lay upon her bosom, was Mrs. Jeffrey, the broad frill of her cap standing up erect, and herself asserting with every breath that "she was dead and buried, she knew she was."

"Wrapped in a winding sheet, I'll admit," said Maggie, "but not quite dead, I trust." And putting down her light, she attempted to extricate her governess, who continued to apologize for what she had done. "Not that I cared so much about your celebrating America, but I couldn't sleep with the thing over my head. I was going to put it back in the morning before you were up. There! there! careful! It's broken short off!" she screamed, as Maggie tried to release her foot from the rent in the linen sheet, a rent which the frightened woman persisted in saying "she could darn as good as new," while at the same time she implored of Maggie to handle carefully her ankle, which had been sprained by the fall.

Forcing back her merriment, which in spite of herself would occasionally burst forth, Maggie made her teacher as comfortable as possible and then staid with her until morning, when, leaving her in charge of a servant, she went below to say farewell to her guests. Between George Douglas and Theo there were a few low-spoken words, she granting him permission to write, while he promised to visit her again in the early autumn. He had not yet talked to her of love, for Rose Warner had still a home in his heart, and she must be dislodged ere another could take her place. But this affection for h was growing gradually less. Theo ited him well, her family suited him better, and when at parting he took her hand in his he resolved to ask her for it when next he came to Hilldale.

Meanwhile between Henry Warner and Maggie there was a far more affectionate farewell, he whispered to her of a time not far distant when he would claim her as his own and she should go with him. He would write to her every week, he said, and Rose should write, too. He would see her in a few days, and tell her of his engagement, which he knew would please her.

"Let me send her a line," said Maggie, and on a tiny bit of paper she wrote "Dear Rose—Are you willing I should be your sister Maggie?"

Half an hour later and Hagar Warren, coming through the garden gate, looked after the carriage which bore the gentlemen to the depot, muttering to herself. "I'm glad the high bucks have gone. A riddance to them both."

In her disorderly chamber, too, Mrs. Jeffrey hobbled on one foot to the window, where, with a deep sigh of relief, she sent after the young men a not very complimentary adieu which was echoed in part by the servants below, while Theo, on the piazza, exclaimed against "the lonesome old house, which was never so lonesome before," and Maggie seated herself upon the stairs and cried.

CHAPTER IX.

Nestled among the tall old trees which skirt the borders of Leominster village, was the bird's-nest of a cottage, which Rose Warner called her home, and which, with its wealth of roses, its trailing vines and flowering shrubs, seemed fitted for the abode of one like her. Slight as a child twelve summers old, and fair as the white pond lily, when first to the morning sun it unfolds its delicate petals, she seemed too frail for earth, and both her aunt and he whom she called brother watched carefully lest the cold north wind should blow too rudely on the golden curls which shaded her childish brow. Very, very beautiful was little Rose, and yet few ever looked upon her without a feeling of sadness, for in the deep blue of her eyes there was a mournful dreamy look, as if the shadow of some great sorrow were resting thus early upon her.

And Rose Warner had a sorrow, too, a grief which none save one had ever suspected. To him it had come with the words, "I cannot be your wife, for I love another, one who will never know how dear he is to me."

The words were involuntarily spoken, and George Douglas, looking down upon her, guessed rightly that he "who would never know how much he was beloved," was Henry Warner. To her the knowledge that Henry was something dearer than a brother had come slowly, filling her heart with pain, for she well knew that whether he clasped her to his bosom, as he often did, or pressed his lips upon her brow, he thought of her only as a brother thinks of a beautiful and idolized sister. It had heretofore been some consolation to know that his affections were untrammelled with thoughts of another; that she alone was the object of his love, and hope had sometimes faintly whispered of what, perchance, might be, but from that dream she was waking now, and her face grew whiter still, as there came to her from time to time letters fraught with praises of Margaret Miller; and if in Rose Warner's nature there had been a particle of bitterness it would have been called forth toward one whom, she foresaw, would be her rival. But Rose knew no malice, and she felt that she would sooner die than do aught to mar the happiness of Maggie Miller.

For nearly two weeks she had not heard from Henry, and she was beginning to feel very anxious, when one morning, two or three days succeeding the memorable Hilldale celebration, as she sat in a small corner of Hidale evergreen with the Michigan rose as to render her invisible at a little distance, she was startled by hearing him call her name, as he came in quest of her down the garden walk. The next moment he held her in his arms, kissing her forehead, her lips, her cheek, then holding her off, he looked to see if there had been in her aught of a change since last they met.

"You are paler than you were, Rose, darling," he said, "and your eyes look as if they had of late been used to tears. What is it, dearest? What troubles you?"

Rose could not answer immediately, for his sudden coming had taken away her breath, and as he saw a faint blush stealing over her face, he continued: "Can it be my little sister has been falling in love during my absence?"

Never before had he spoken to her thus; but a change had come over him, his heart was full of a beautiful image, and fancying Rose might have followed his example, he asked her the question he did, without, however, expecting or receiving a definite answer.

"I am so lonely, Henry, when you are gone and do not write to me!" she said; and in the tones of her voice there was a slight reproof, which Henry felt so keenly.

He had been so engrossed with Maggie Miller, and the free, joyous life he led in the Hillsdale woods, that for a time he had neglected Rose, who, in his absence, depended so much on his letters for comfort.

"I have been very selfish, I know," he said, "but I was so happy that for a time I forget everything save Maggie Miller."

An involuntary shudder ran through Rose's slender form, but conquering her emotion, she answered calmly, "What of this Maggie Miller? Tell me of her, will you?"

Winding his arm around her waist, and drawing her closely to his side, Henry Warner rested her head upon his bosom, where it had often lain, and smoothing her golden curls, told her of Maggie Miller, of her queenly beauty, of her dashing, independent spirit; her frank, ingenuous manner; her kindness of heart, and, last of all, bending very low, lest the vine leaves and the fair blossoms of the rose should hear, he told her of his love, and Rose, the fairest flower of all which bloomed around the bower, clasped her hand upon her heart, lest he should know its wild throbbings, and forcing back the tears which moistened her long eyelashes, listened to the knell of all her hopes. Henceforth her love for him must be an idle mockery, and the time would come when to love him as she loved him then would be a sin, a wrong to him, and a wrong to Maggie Miller.

"You are surely not asleep," he said at last, as she made him no reply, and, bending forward, he saw the teardrops resting on her cheek. "Not asleep, but weeping!" he exclaimed. "What is it, darling? What troubles you?" And lifting up her head, Rose Warner answered, "I was thinking how this new love of yours would take you from me and I should be alone."

"No, not alone," he said, wiping her tears away. "Maggie and I have arranged that matter. You are to live with us, and instead of losing me, you are to gain another—a sister, Rose. You have often wished you had one, and you could surely find none worthier than Maggie Miller."

"Will she watch over you, Henry? Will she be to you what your wife should be?" asked Rose, and Henry answered, "She is not at all like you, my little sister. She relies implicitly upon my judgment, so you see I shall need your blessed influence all the same, to make me what your brother and Maggie's husband ought to be."

"Did she send me no message?" asked Rose, and taking out the tiny note, Henry passed it to her, just as his aunt called to him from the house, whither he went, leaving her alone.

There were blinding tears in Rose's eyes as she read the few lines, and involuntarily she pressed her lips to the paper, which she knew had been touched by Maggie Miller's hands.

"My sister—sister Maggie," she repeated, and at the sound of that name her fast-beating heart grew still, for they seemed very sweet to her, those words, "my sister," thrilling her with a new and strange emotion, and awakening within her a germ of the deep, undying love she was yet to feel for her who had traced those words, and asked to be her sister, "I will do right," she thought, "I will conquer this foolish heart of mine or break it in the struggle, and Henry Warner shall never know how sorely it was wrung."

The resolution gave her strength, and rising up, she, too, sought the house, where, retiring to her room, she penned a hasty note to Maggie, growing calmer with each word she wrote.

"I grant your request," she said, "and take you for a sister well beloved. I had a half-sister once they say, but she died when a little babe. I never looked upon her face, and connected with her birth there was too much sorrow and humiliation for me to think much of her, save as of one who, under other circumstances, might have been dear to me. And yet, as I grow older, I often find myself wishing she had lived, for my father's blood was in her veins. But I do not even know where her grave was made, for we only heard one winter morning years ago, that she was dead, with the mother who bore her. Forgive me, Maggie dear, for saying so much about that little child. Thoughts of you, who are to be my sister, make me think of her, who, had she lived, would have been a young lady now, nearly your own age. So in the place of her, whom, knowing, I would have loved, I adopt you, sweet Maggie Miller, my sister and my friend. May Heaven's choicest blessings rest on you forever, and no shadow come between you and the one you have chosen for your husband. To my marital even he is (to be continued.)

This block of shares is offered to enable the Company to connect the above tunnel with its concentrating mill and projected terminus of railroad by tramway, a distance of 11,130 feet, thereby permitting shipments during the entire year.

A production of at least 12½ tons daily will be maintained when these improvements are made, and if completed in the early summer, dividends can be paid from ore settlements before this fall.

We offer for a limited time only a SPECIAL BLOCK OF 50,000 SHARES OF THE TREASURY STOCK of these Companies.

We reserve the right to reject subscriptions over and above the 50,000 shares offered. Each subscription to be booked as received.

LACROSSE.

The grouping of the intermediate and junior clubs in the Canadian Lacrosse Association was decided Thursday. Elora was continued in the intermediates as first drawn. Peterborough is grouped with Orillia I. Lindsay, Athletics of Peterborough, Oshawa, Port Hope.

An Owen Sound despatch states:—The lineup of the Owen Sound Greys will include Young, Quinn, Sinclair (Gravenhurst), Cuthbertson. Paddy Kelly Blain, Fred and Frank Moran, W. McDonough, Miles, Melean, Hammond, and possibly Staples. There are a half dozen other probabilities including Matthewson and Wilkinson.

Secretary Hall, of the O.L.A. has sent out four hundred senior certificates, one thousand intermediate and the same number of junior, but this will not be enough for the latter.

LANDED ON WEST SIDE

Port Arthur is Well Supplied With Ammunition and Provisions

St. Petersburg, May 7.—The landing of the Japanese at Pitsewo, northeast of Port Arthur, is officially confirmed.

It is expected that the railway connecting Port Arthur with Mukden and Harbin will soon be cut.

The departure of Viceroy Alexieff and Grand Duke Boris from Port Arthur was yesterday by Imperial command, hurried owing to the possibility of the interruption of railway communication.

The Japanese landed in sufficient force to discourage the few hundred Russians watching at Pitsewo from offering any resistance.

TEN THOUSAND LANDED.

St. Petersburg, May 7.—The details of the Japanese landing at Pitsewo have just been received by the general staff. From information brought to Port Arthur by the Chinese 60 transports are disembarking two divisions, numbering altogether 30,000 men, of whom 10,000 were landed yesterday evening. No news has been received up to this hour of any other landing.

PERHAPS HE CAN'T GET OUT.

Strict orders have been given to Rear Admiral Wittsceft not to take out his warships from Port Arthur.

ARE COMMUNICATIONS CUT.

Paris, May 7.—A despatch to the Havas Agency from St. Petersburg says the Japanese troops who landed at Pitsewo yesterday have cut the land communications with Port Arthur.

PORT ARTHUR WELL SUPPLIED.

New Chwang, May 7.—It is reported here that the Japanese troops landed yesterday at Pitsewo, on the Liao Tung peninsula, numbered 30,000 men.

Port Arthur, according to reliable information, is well supplied with provisions.

RUSSIANS WERE OUTNUMBERED

Chefoo, May 7.—The expected landing of the Japanese on the LiaoTung peninsula commenced Thursday, according to reports received here from a reliable Japanese source. It is stated that the landing is being made on the eastern coast of the peninsula opposite the Elliott Islands. After a reconnaissance from Takushan south by naval detachments the Japanese concluded that a comparatively small force of Russian cavalry guarded the east coast.

LANDED ON THE WEST SIDE.

London, May 7.—A despatch to the Central News from St. Petersburg to-day says the Japanese landed at Port Adams, on the west coast of the Liao Tung Peninsula, as well as at Pitsewo.

[Port Adams is situated about fifty miles from Port Arthur at the head of Society Bay, and on the railway connecting Port Arthur with Mukden and Harbion. Consequently it may be inferred that if the report of a Japanese landing there is correct, communication with Port Arthur has been cut off. Pitsewo, on the east coast, where the Japanese have landed, is less than twenty miles from Port Adams, and is about seventy-five miles northwest of Port Arthur, and about 100 miles south of New Chwang. It is near the narrowest part of the peninsula along which passes the railroad connecting Port Arthur with Mukden and Harbin. A St. Petersburg despatch admits that, by the occupation of Pitsewo the Japanese have secured an important advantage. From there radiate roads connecting with the railway at Yangtitlien directly west to south, with Sian Chelipan and Kinchou stations on the railway nearer Port Arthur, north with Kaiping and northeast through Takushan with Feng Wang Cheng. Furthermore, once the Japanese are across the railway, Port Arthur will be as good as besieged." A member of the general staff says that General Kuropatkin is well aware of these conditions. Even if the Japanese should succeed in cutting the railway, Port Arthur is now ready to defend on its own resources. London experts say that there are no means of ascertaining which Japanese army is off Pitsewo but speculation favors the second army, under Gen Oku. This includes the sixth or Kumamoto division which was prominently engaged in the operations against Port Arthur in the Chinese Japanese War, and whose officers know the ground thoroughly.

A RUMOR AT ROME.

Rome, May 7.—According to a telegram received here from Chefoo, the garrison at Port Arthur has been reduced to 4,000 men, and all the important documents, money and field guns have been removed to Mukden.

TO RAISE THE PRICE

Stated That Beer and Ale are to be Raised Next Monday

It is assumed that the brewery syndicate will raise the price of beer and ale next Monday, and many hotelkeepers are filling up their cellars with ale in jamcheons and bottles.

Beer is to be advanced from $5.50 to $6.50 a barrel, and ale will go from $12 to $14 a barrel. Bottled ale will be raised 10 cents a dozen.

Some of the Peterborough hotelmen are not pleased at the rise, in view of the price of beer being raised $1 a barrel some months ago. It is pointed out, however, that beer has been $7 a barrel in Toronto for a long time, and that the price here was lower than in any place in the country.

The hotelmen who have diamonds will cut about an inch off the top of the beer glasses, and some threaten to "cut out" schooners altogether.

The most important effect the rise will have, a hotelman said today, is that there will be no 5 cent glasses of bottled ale. Those who want bottled ale must buy a bottle, 10 cents.

EXHIBITION OF STALLIONS

Fine Horse Show at Windsor Hotel Yards To-day

There will be an exhibition of stallions at the yards of the LittleWindsor Hotel to-day, nine of the best horses being expected. Some of these animals are of a very high class, and well worth seeing.

Mr. Roumtree informed the Times last night that the show would begin in the morning and continue throughout the day.

WANT THE LAW ENFORCED

The License Holders Association to Enforce the Law

Messrs. J. M. Brooks, W. H. Melcome Holders' Association presided at a meeting of the hotelmen yesterday, in which it was decided to enforce the law against selling during prohibited hours. Several of the prominent hotelmen are determined to see that the law is carried out, and offenders punished. As only eight of the license holders were present, the meeting adjourned until Friday next, when a definite line of action will be taken.

MOHAMMEDANS AND DOGS.

They Take Particular Pains Not to Come in Contact.

In Egypt dogs are never permitted to enter the dwelling of a Mohammedan, and if one is found in a mosque he is immediately put to death.

In consequence of this excommunication from the society which this animal seems so instinctively disposed to cultivate, Egyptian dogs live, for the most part, in the open air, feeding upon garbage and any other filth that chance throws in their way. Yet they are found to be faithful protectors of the property and even persons of the very men by whom they are thus despitefully treated, although, Soniel remarks, it is extremely curious to see the pains taken by a Musulman and a dog when they happen to meet to avoid coming in contact with each other. Notwithstanding this state of persecution, dogs are remarkably numerous in the towns of Egypt. The species is a large one, about the size and make of the greyhound. As a proof of the Mohammedan prejudice against this useful animal, it is sufficient to state that they regard the terms Christian and dog as synonymous—both, of course, in the most opprobrious sense.

As a singular contrast for their dislike for dogs, the Egyptians have ever held cats in greatest veneration, and in ancient time even worshiped them. And historians tell us that Bubastis and Atribes, two towns in Egypt, the former a votary of cats and the latter of mice, contracted on that account so strong an antipathy to each other that the inhabitants were never known to intermarry, although only a few miles asunder. In some parts of India, too, we are told, they have a similar reverence for grimalkin, as the only crimes punished capitally there are the murder of a man and a cat.

TRIALS OF DIPLOMATS.

They Were Many in the Early Days of American History.

There exists a popular tendency to overrate the delights and to underrate the hardships of the diplomatic life; but, however much opinions may differ on this point, there can be no doubt that the office of an American diplomatist in the days of the Revolution was no holiday pastime.

If he was not already in Europe, his journey to his post was beset with perils graver than those of the ocean. In the eyes of the British law American revolutionists were simply "rebels," the reprobation of whose conduct was likely to be proportionate to their prominence and activity, and the seas were scoured by British cruisers, the dreaded embodiment of England's maritime supremacy. Deane went abroad secretly before independence was declared, but when his presence in France became known the British government asked that he be seized and delivered up into its custody. Franklin sailed for France on a small vessel of war belonging to congress, called the Reprisal. On the way over she took two prizes, and more than once, on descrying a suspicious sail cleared for action. Had she been captured by the British, Franklin would have had an opportunity to test the truth of his remark to his associates in congress that they must "either hang together or hang separately." John Adams, on his first journey, took passage on an American vessel; on his second he embarked on the French frigate Sensible and landed at Ferrol, in Spain. Jay committed his fate to the American man-of-war Confederacy and, like Adams and Franklin reached his destination.

A Great Composer.

"It was a mistake to ask that man if he thought America would ever produce a great composer. I am afraid you hurt his feelings."

"I don't see why," responded the musical young woman.

"He is the inventor of a soothing syrup."

Sheer Waste.

Wife—John, is there any poison in the house? Husband—Yes. But why do you ask? Wife—I want to sprinkle some on this piece of angel cake and put it where the mice will get it. Wouldn't that kill them? Husband—Sure; but it isn't necessary to waste the poison.

Wanted Details.

"It was like this," said the private citizen. "Just as the three burglars crawled in at the kitchen window the clock struck 1, and"—

"Excuse me," said the great detective, "but which one of the three did the clock strike?"

Impartial.

"Mr. Singleton prides himself on being strictly impartial."

"Yes," answered the unamiable man; "I once went shooting with him. He didn't seem to care whether he hit the rabbit, the dog or one of his friends."—London Tit-Bits.

Lofty Mountain Lakes.

The most lofty lakes are found among the Himalaya mountains in Tibet. Their altitudes do not, however, seem to have been very accurately gauged, for different authorities give widely different figures regarding them. According to some, Lake Manasarowar, one of the sacred lakes of Tibet, is between 19,000 and 20,000 feet above the level of the sea, and if this is so it is undoubtedly the loftiest in the world.

Two other Tibetan lakes, those of Chatamoo and Surakol, are said to be 17,000 and 15,400 feet in altitude respectively. For a long time it was supposed that Lake Titicaca, in South America, was the loftiest in the world. It covers about 4,500 square miles, is 924 feet in its greatest depth and is 12,000 feet above the sea. In spite of inexactitude with regard to the measurements of the elevation of the Tibetan lakes they are no doubt considerably higher than this or any other.

A BUSINESS MAN'S LETTER.

Wm. Thomson, Esq., of Orillia, Vice-President Standard Chemical Company of Toronto, Tells of a Visit to the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives.

GREATLY IMPRESSED WITH WORK BEING DONE.

Personally Raises Several Hundred Dollars to Help Lessen the Load of Debt.

There can be little doubt that the National Sanitarium Association is handicapped in its great work for Consumptives in the fact that its two institutions in Muskoka are far away from any large centre of population. Few people have an opportunity to see for themselves the magnificent work that is being done.

These hospitals are away from the public eye. Any, however, who do visit them, are united in their commendation of the splendid appointments of the place, and, best of all, of the real joy and hope that is being brought to many suffering ones.

We are glad to have the opportunity of publishing the following letter from Mr. Wm. Thomson, of Orillia, one of Canada's best known lumbermen, which tells what he has seen himself. It reads:

Orillia, Ont., November 2, 1903.

W. J. Gage, Esq.,
Chairman Executive Committee
National Sanitarium Association,
Toronto, Ont.

My Dear Mr. Gage,—

I have much pleasure in enclosing herewith cheque for One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) from the Tudhope Carriage Company of Orillia, a donation to the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. Please acknowledge this to the Tudhope Carriage Company in the usual way.

I have written to a number of my friends, to try and get them interested in this good work. I hope to be able to send you further donations. I have written my friends a personal letter, something similar to the following:

"Last week I paid a visit to the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. I met some of the management there, and promised to try and interest some of my friends in this work.

"I might say there were 40 patients there last week, all poor people, most of them without a dollar in the world, and suffering from the dreadful disease, Consumption. There are many sad stories, and I know I have thought a great deal about the work of the institution ever since my visit there. I do believe it is worthy of assistance, and we who have health and the necessaries of life should encourage this work along.

"I understand the expenses lately have been double the income, and unless the management meet with more encouragement, I am afraid the work will have to be curtailed. I know you have many calls, but I do wish you would give this matter a thought, and, if possible, assist. I have written to two or three confidentially, and hope to be able to collect some more for this work. Should you not feel like contributing a donation, remember this request, and your reply is just between you and me, and strictly confidential.

"I might mention, to show that I have confidence in the work, I have already given a donation of $100.00 and two row boats to the Free Hospital this year, and intend to give another $100.00 before the end of the year."

Sincerely yours,

Wm Thomson

Sir Wm. R. Meredith, Kt., or Mr. W. J. Gage, Toronto, will receive and acknowledge any contributions made.

Good Reason.

A school inspector, explaining to his class that the land of the world was not continuous, said to the boy who happened to be standing nearest to him:

"Now, could your father walk round the world?"

"No, sir," was the prompt reply.

"Why not?"

"Because he's broken his leg," was the altogether unlooked for response.—Chums.

On the Other Hand.

Lawyer—Your case would have been stronger, Mr. McGuire, if you had acted only on the defensive, but you struck first. If you had let him strike you first you would have had the law on your side. Mr. McGuire—Yis, Oi'd had th' law on my soide, but Oi'd 'a' had him on my chest a-poundin' th' loife out av me.

Very Versatile.

Stage Manager—I think you are a trifle too stout to play Romeo. Heavy Tragedian—Why, my good man, I could play the part of an infant in arms! Art has no limitations, sir.

Physicians are constantly discovering some popular pastime or mode of attire that injures health. But the average of human life remains about the same.—Washington Star.

You Take It Mixed With Air

A Powerful Destroyer of Disease Germs Which Cures Every Type of Catarrh Bronchitis and Throat Trouble.

Ever since Adam the air of the Pine woods has been known to possess marvellous healing properties. In fact doctors claim that people living in the balsamic atmosphere of the woods never contract consumption or catarrh.

A new remedy that embraces all the healing curative powers of the pine woods has at last been realized. It contains the balsams, the ozone and many other antiseptics that make it an absolute cure for all catarrhal diseases.

For years doctors have been looking for just such a remedy and claim the newly discovered Catarrhozone is the most effectual, the most scientific cure for catarrh, bronchitis and winter ills, they have ever met.

So powerfully healing is Catarrhozone that simple colds in the head and coughs can be cured in less than an hour. Chronic catarrh is erradicated from the system in the most thorough manner. It doesn't matter whether the catarrh affects the nose, throat or stomach, it can be completely driven from the system by using fragrant healing Catarrhozone.

The remotest parts of the lungs and air passages often contain germs of catarrh and consumption which cannot be reached by ordinary treatments. But the searching vapor of Catarrhozone carries its antiseptic healing power direct to those isolated spots. So thoroughly does Catarrhozone reach all diseased surfaces that it cures for all time, and no relapse need ever be feared.

"My nose was so stuffed up from catarrh that I could not breathe except through my mouth," writes John D. Perkins, a well known merchant in Hamburg. "My breath was horribly offensive and my digestion was completely knocked out. I used Catarrhozone and was cured in two weeks. I wouldn't take five thousand dollars for the benefit and good health I received from Catarrhozone which I can recommend as a certain, absolute cure for catarrh."

Two months treatment costs $1.00; sample size, 25c. At druggists or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford Conn., U.S.A. and Kingston, Ont. Catarrhozone always cures—refuse a substitute, and insist on getting Catarrhozone when you ask for it.

A Slaughter of Fish

It is reported that there has been a great slaughter of fish in Lake Scugog during the past winter, owing largely, it is thought, to the severity of the weather. Early in the season the water became very low and when the cold weather came the lake froze to the bottom. Naturally, this killed the fish, and when the ice melted a few weeks ago the dead fish, many of them muskinonge, rose to the surface, and have since created a nuisance. The Provincial Fisheries Department have been notified and officials are now making an investigation.

Dwelling Houses wanted

What with a number of new houses being built, and many transfers of properties under way, we might say that Peterborough is experiencing somewhat of a boom in real estate. A suggestion thrown out some time ago in these columns as to the advisability of some of our men of means using some of their surplus wealth in building residences is being acted upon, but not nearly to the extent that the town requirements demand. Suitable houses are not to be had for rental at any price. the man who invests his money in buildings that will bring a monthly rental of from ten to twelve dollars per month is using his means in a manner that can not fail to bring him good results, and those seeking suitable homes will will look on such a person as being a public benefactor.

Died in Cobourg

The death occurred at Cobourg on Friday night of Mrs. Patrick O'Brien, who for many years was a resident of Peterborough. She was 75 years of age. Her husband, who predeceased her by nine years, for many years carried on a carriage shop on Hunter street on the site where the Oriental Hotel now stands. The late Mrs. O'Brien leaves six sons and two daughters, William, of Yainita, Indian Territory; David, of Rochester; J. L. and Bruce, of Cobourg; Frank and Herbert, of Chicago; Mrs. Hanna and Miss Minnie, of Toronto. The funeral will take place from the G.T.R. station on the arrival of the 8.20 train this morning, and proceed to St. Peter's cathedral, thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery for interment. Mr. R. N. Roddy, of town, and Mr. Wm. Roddy, of Virden, Man., are brothers of the late Mrs. O'Brien.

Many a child has been fooled by the story of the pot of gold which is to be found just at the foot of the rainbow, and has started out to gather riches full of happy dreams.

Many a man and woman have been deceived by the tale that there was health to be found out beyond the sunset, and they have started out dreaming of a healthful future, never to be realized.

People who have tried change of climate in vain for the cure of weak lungs have been perfectly and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures deep-seated coughs, bronchitis, bleeding lungs, emaciation, and other conditions which, if neglected or unskilfully treated, find a fatal end in consumption.

"Last spring I had a severe attack of pneumonia which left me with a very bad cough, and also left my lungs in a very bad condition," writes John M. Russell, Esq., of Brent, Cherokee Nat., Ind. Ty. "I had no appetite and was so weak I could scarcely walk. My breast was all sore with running sores. I got two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which I believe saved my life. I cannot express my gratitude to you. I am able now to do very good work."

Any substitute offered as "just as good" as "Golden Medical Discovery" is a shadow of that medicine. There are cures behind every claim made for the "Discovery," which no "just as good" medicine can show.

DEMOLISHED DUMP CART

Lakefield Train Meets with Mishap Saturday Morning

The morning train from Lakefield on Saturday on nearing the Cement works in that village, demolished a dump cart which was taking away cement outside the factory. The man and horse had a narrow escape, being knocked over on a heap of unground cement at side of track, and both shafts broken short off, which released the horse. The train at once came to a stop, and the debris was removed by employees of the Cement works.

The passengers were naturally much interested in the proceedings.

BASEBALL.

The T.A.S. and a team got together by Manager Whitcroft, consisting of a number of the Peterborough ball team and a few likely looking ball players, held a practice game on the Murray street grounds Saturday afternoon. Flaherty did the twirling for the Peterboroughs, and young Quinlan, who is fast coming to the front as a pitcher, was in the box for the T.A.S.

Manager Whitcroft has his eye on a number of baseball recruits that with a little coaching will develop into great ball players.

FOOTBALL.

The Quaker football team played their initial game in the Midland League at Keene on Saturday afternoon, playing a draw game with the "husky" eleven of that place. The visitors were considerably handicapped owing to the small grounds, which prevented the forwards from getting in much combination work. Their defence is very strong, being almost impregnable, and time after time intercepted attacks made on the goal by their opponent's forwards. The Quakers were the first to score, after about ten minutes' play, J. Guerin putting the ball through. At this stage of the game Keene began to mix it up, using rough tactics to prevent the visitors from scoring, and as a result four of the Quakers forwards were Qinjured, which weakened them considerably for the remainder of the game. It looked like a win for the Local boys, but two minutes before time Keene tallied the last goal, making the score a tie, 1—1.

The following players were on the Quakerlin e-up;

Goal E. Bringham; backs, J. Doris, B. Simpson; half-backs, P. Fitzgerald, M. Guerin, W. Patton; forwards, W. Perdue (captain), J. Guerin, I Moore, E. Renton, C. Fitzgerald; spare men, H. Quinn, L. Brooks

Referee, J. W Kelly, Bridgenorth.

Timekeepers, J. Sullivan and H. Quinn.

Goal umpires, E. Shortell and T. Wallace.

NOTES.

The Quakers appeared on the field in their new uniforms, which is one of the prettiest in the league.

The forward line of the visitors was too fast for the Keene bunch, who administered no small amount of roughness to them to prevent scoring.

The next game will be played on Wednesday evening with Caughnawaga on Nicholls Oval. All the players are requested to turn out for practice tonight at 6.45.

Bridgenorth defeated the O.C.W. at the Driving Park on Saturday evening.

Don't fail to see the Quakers vs. Caughnawaga match on Wednesday evening next.

JAPS WILL COMPEL RUSSIANS TO EVACUATE NEWCHWANG OR FIGHT.

Japs Steadily Closing In on the Russians at All Positions

How the Harbor of Port Arthur was Closed by Japs

Viceroy Alexieff Reported to Have Been Wounded

Washington, May 9.—The Japanese Legation has received the following official despatch, dated Tokio May 9. "General Kuroki, commandant of the first army corps, reports that on May 6 our cavalry detachment dispersed the enemy at Fengwangcheng, which was immediately occupied by our infantry detachment. The enemy burnt ammunition before evacuating the stronghold. Refugees of the enemy, who have been hiding in the adjoining forests and villages, continue to come in and surrender.

"Natives say that the number of Russians who were carried on litters through Fengwangcheng on May 2 amounted to 800. It is believed that the total casualties of the enemy exceeded 3,000.

INVESTING PORT ARTHUR.

"Our army, which landed on Liautung, reports that a detachment, after repulsing a small body of the enemy, occupied Pulantien on May 5 and destroyed the railway and cut off telegraphic communication with Port Arthur.—

SASSULITCH REPORTS.

St. Petersburg, May 9—General Kuropatkin has sent the following telegram, under date of May 7: "Lieut.-Gen. Sassulitch to-day reports that the enemy's cavalry and units of their advanced guard occupied Fengwangcheng to-day.

"Two companies and two squadrons of their fo es proceeded towards Dafandiapanse. Our cavalry and units withdrew towards Schiendjanse.

"Scouts from Fengwangcheng report that two Japanese divisions advanced May 6th towards Fengwangcheng by the grain road from Pianmin. A third division advancing by the valley of the Iho River occupied a position near Khuandiapuse and posted batteries to fire upon Fengwangcheng, counting upon finding our troops there.

"The Japanese advanced slowly and very cautiously upon Fengwangcheng."

IMPORTANCE OF FENGWANGCHENG.

St. Petersburg, May 8.—It is not at all unlikely that another Japanese army will be landed upon the Liaotung peninsula, which will move northward along the railroad line. The Japanese army marching northward along the railroad, once past Kaiping, can compel the Russians to evacuate Newchwang or else undergo a battle or a state of siege. If the march is prosecuted as far as Kaicheng, where the Japanese defeated the Chinese army in 1894, General Kuropatkin will have to abandon the Motien Pass, in consequence of the strategic weakness of the position. The possession of Fengwangcheng is of the highest importance, as it places under the control of the Japanese, without further opposition, a large strip of Manchurian territory bordering upon the Bay of Corea, and the road connecting Liaoyang, Haicheng, Newchwang and Pitsewo. The command of the road to Pitsewo will enable this army to establish communication with the Japanese operating in the Liaotung peninsula.

INCREASING THE DEPRESSION.

St. Petersburg, May 9.—Two official despatches calculated to increase the depression existing among all circles in Russia were given out last night. From the point of view of the progress of the campaign the most important is that regarding the capture by the Japanese without opposition of Fengwangcheng on May 6. The second gives details concerning the killed, wounded and missing among the troops under the command of Lieut.-Gen. Sassulitch, as the result of the fighting on the Yalu, the number of which totals 2,-997 officers and men.

BURIED 1,400 RUSSIAN DEAD.

Tokio, May 9.—Every supplemental report received from General Kuroki increases the Russian's casualties in Sunday's battle at Chiutiencheng, on the Yalu River. The Japanese have buried about 1,400 Russians and have 568 of the enemy's wounded in the field hospitals. It is estimated that the total Russian casualties exceed 2,000. Over 300 Russian prisoners are en route to Matsuyama where they are expected to arrive on Wednesday.

A TERRRIBLE DEATH ROLL.

St. Petersburg, May 9.—The Emperor has received a despatch from Gen. Kuropatkin, giving the report of Lieut.-General Sassulitch on the Russian losses in the battle of Kiuliencheng. The report states that Major-General Kashtalinsky was injured in the head by a stone. The brunt of the fighting, General Sassulitch says, was borne by the 11th and 12th Regiments. General Sassulitch confirms the reports of the enormous mortality among the artillery horses, and concludes his report:

"Our losses on April 30 and May 1 altogether amounted to 70 superior and subaltern officers and 2,324 men killed, wounded or taken prisoners. Of this total 1,081 were left on the battlefield, but it is not known whether they were killed or wounded.

"In consequence of the heavy losses in men and battery horses, and the difficulties encountered in the roadless country, it was absolutely impossible to bring away the guns and machine guns."

GERMANY MAY SOON GET INTO THE FIGHT

China's Attitude Likely to Lead to Grave International Complications

Berlin, May 10.—The Emperor's intimation that Germany may be called upon to intervene in the Far East is believed to forecast a probability of China being involved in the war. High officials express this opinion without reserve. The idea suggested in some quarters that the Emperor fears war with France is wide of the mark. With Russia and Japan alone contesting for the supremacy it is not thought that the German government would take sides with either, no matter what turn affairs might take, but the entrance of China into the struggle would change the aspect of the whole situation. In fact such an event would give a more serious turn to the troublesome Eastern question than did the Boxer uprising, and the attempt to expel foreigners from China. Defeat for China would mean dismemberment—nothing short of it—and Germany could not afford to have Russia or France step in and grab the lion's share of the Flowery Kingdom.

Consequently, when China takes up arms against Russia, which she is considered sure to do, Germany will stretch forth her mailed fist and declare the conflict must cease. In this stupendous undertaking Great Britain is expected to support Germany. Some overt act on the part of China's troops is looked for at any moment, hence a crisis is near and the war may be brought to a speedy close on the lines indicated. The integrity of China will be preserved, not by herself, but by the intervention of Great Britain and Germany.

It is well understood here that King Edward has made the position of England clear and unambiguous. He has minced no words in his communications to the Czar and Kaiser and there can be no doubt that, despite the growls of Russia a halt will be called on her pretensions in the east and that Corea will be left free from her influence. Japan can then develop her resources and resume the march of her improvement as a nation.

PORT ARTHUR MUST FALL

British Experts Say that the Stronghold Must Capitulate.

London, May 9.—Within a few days and perhaps a few hours the garrison of Port Arthur will be cut off by land and sea from communication with the outside world, and one of the most dramatic sieges in the whole history will have begun. There is a general disposition to believe that the Japanese landing on Liau Tung peninsula will be accomplished with success. It is pointed out that there are few instances in history of a powerful army backed by a fleet commanding the sea being unable to effect a landing. A military expert writing in the Daily Mail says: "It is not probable that the Russians have many troops apart from the Port Arthur garrison at Pitsewo, nor is it probable that the Russian garrison at Port Arthur will be able to spare many men to harrass the Japs. The garrisons at Port Arthur and Dalny are variously stated at from 10,000 to 50,000 men. Probably the actual force is about 20,000 men. The town must now be well provisioned as Russians have had three months to move food into it, but coal supply is now running short and if their communications are cut, the warships in the harbor will be a grave embarrassment. If blockaded Port Arthur must in the end fall. In modern war armies and not places are the objects of offensive action. The storming of Port Arthur might, however, give the Japs the remnant of the Russian fleet and for such a prize great risks might be run." The London Telegraph's expert says: "Once the ring of hostile steel has been riveted around the Russian arsenal, we do not believe any human power can avert its ultimate Yates Kuropatkin could not march south to the rescue in any considerable strength without exposing himself to risk of finding another Sedan."

EVACUATING NEWCHWANG.

Newchwang, May 8.—There is every indication that the Russians have decided to evacuate Newchwang. Troops have been leaving here all day long. The forts have been dismantled and all the artillery has been placed on board trains. All the local transportation has been commandeered by the Russian authorities. There is current here a native rumor that Japanese troops are in Foochau Bay (on the west side of the Liaotung peninsula and about 60 miles north of Port Arthur), but this report lacks confirmation.

KAISER'S COLONY IN BRAZIL FAILS

Plan to Create German Nation in South America Unavailing

BREAK TIE TO FATHERLAND

Emigrants Forget Loyalty---Children of Mixed Marriages Speak Portuguese

Berlin, May 10—Disquieting tidings reach Berlin from Southern Brazil where hopes have long been cherished of planting the seeds of an over-sea Germany. Settlers sent there by the thousand to colonize cities and farming districts and to "remain German" are adopting Brazilian citizenship, names and customs so extensively that "Deutschthum"—the preservation of German identity and ideals—is undergoing complete disintegration. To appreciate the disappointment these facts contain, the extent of the German colonial scheme in Brazil requires mention.

EXPECTED MUCH OF COLONY.

According to a recent computation, Germans own more than 15,000 square miles of territory in southern Brazil, an area larger than Saxony and Alsace-Lorraine combined. About 50,000 Germans, either natives or Brazilian-born, children of natives, are residents in the republic in communities where the German element has become most preponderant. Over 1 German colonial government has been set up, with German as the official language of schools, churches and town councils.

Until now it has been supposed that the Germanizing process was going ahead steadily and thoroughly, and numerous colonial agitations and pamphleteers have engendered the belief that the way was at last prepared for a realization of the celebrated Prediction of Prof. Schmoller, of the University of Berlin, that the world would witness within the next 100 years "the rise of a German nation of 20,000,000 to 30,000,000 souls in south Brazil."

BLASTS EXPANSION HOPE.

A communication to the National Zeitung of Berlin from the state of Rio Grande de Sul, the centre of the German movement in Brazil, has blasted the hopes of the South American expansion party. How the Germans there are proceeding to break home ties is described as follows: "the motion has long been propagated in Germany that conditions for the maintenance of 'Deutschthum' are more favorable in South Brazil than in European countries or in the United States. This is true in isolated farming settlements, but not in the cities where the vast bulk of the German element is concentrated. It is puzzling how little power of resistance Germans in Brazil are able to bring to bear against the racial assimilation of the Latin, negro and Indian elements with which they come in contact. The most disturbing feature is that this submission manifests itself not only among the working classes, but in the middle and upper classes.

SECOND GENERATION BRAZILIAN

"Frequent into marriages with Brazilian women have strengthened the preference for the adopted country. The education of the children being left to the mothers, it happens frequently that the German language is not spoken in families with German heads. Even in cases where both parents are German or of German extraction their children regard themselves with few exceptions as Brazilians, in accordance with the law which ondders every native of the republic a Brazilian citizen. Most German immigrants change their names into Portuguese. Wilhelms have become Guilhermes; Friedricks calls themselves Fredericos, and the Karls, Carlos.

MILITARY TITLES ATTRACT.

"The Brazilian government has, of course, not been blind to such opportunities of increasing the estrangement between these 'Germans' and their fatherland. Seeing the trend of events, it has made still easier the obtaining of Brazilian citizenship by permitting a man, if he wishes, to retain his German citizenship. The government has already understood how to cater to the average German by making workingmen eligible to the office-staff of the local militia. Many naturalized Germans proceed to acquire officers' positions notwithstanding that their importance usually is confined to the privilege of tacking 'captain' or 'major' onto their names.

"Many private schools, conducted by former Germans along typically Brazilian lines, are adding fuel to the German man-killing fire. The German schools receiving subsidy from the Berlin government are unfortunately not yet in a position to neutralize the effects of these pseudo-German schools. The German newspapers in Brazil also do little or nothing to stem the Brazilianization movement.

SHOW LITTLE PATRIOTISM

"While American, English, Swiss and other nationalities represented in Brazil hoist upon their national holidays the flag of their respective countries and no other a large percentage of the so-called Germans may fly no flags, hang the German standard next to the Brazilian flag or else hoist Hamburg, Bremen or other local territorial emblems—a performance not calculated to impress either Brazilians or other nations with German unity."

This recital goes to show that the German emigrant, apparently, whether he settles in Brazil or in the United States, becomes sooner or later an assimilated, loyal citizen of his adopted country. The significant fact is that Germany has counted in vain upon transplanting to Brazil great communities of Germans, willing to remain loyal subjects of Kaiser and Empire for whatever purpose the future might make them useful.

VICTORIOUS JAPANESE SQUADRON TO ATTACK RUSSIA AT HOME

Admiral Togo Said to Contemplate a Coup that Will Astonish the World

MAY PROCEED TO THE BALTIC SEA

Where the Destruction of the Russian's Fleet Would be Sure to follow.

London, May 10.—Russia having determined to allow none of her remaining ships in the Far East to leave port, English naval men are discussing how Japan will employ her large and victorious fleet. That the Japanese commanders will be willing to swing quietly at anchor for the remainder of the war is not believed. Of course, some work remains in the guarding of Port Arthur and Vladivostock and the reduction of the fortifications of those places, but this is of only secondary importance, and besides would not necessarily employ all of the Japanese vessels. The suggestion, therefore, is that Admiral Togo will bring his fleet of battleships and cruisers to western waters.

Russia has still two fleets, neither of which she has at present any intention of pitting against the Japanese. The Black Sea fleet is prevented by treaty from passing the Dardanelles. The same treaty would prevent the Japanese from entering the Dardanelles to get at the Russians.

There remains also the Russian Baltic fleet. The Baltic is not a closed sea and the straits between Denmark and Sweden are not fortified. Admiral Togo, having once made the long voyage westward, would have no trouble in approaching within cannon range of Libau, Helsingfors and other important Russian ports and even threatening St. Petersburg itself.

The Russian Baltic fleet is composed of out-of-date ironclads, and would make no match for the Japanese. By carrying the war into Europe and inflicting even one blow almost within sight of the Winter Palace, Japan would do more to bring about peace than a dozen victories in Asia. Of course, such a proceeding would make some of the other powers extremely nervous, particularly Germany, but they would have no real ground for interference.

"Petropavlosk" will always stand for a Japanese victory, but, curiously enough, it was chosen as the name of a Russian battleship to commemorate a British defeat. During the Crimean war half a dozen vessels—three British and three French—attacked the capital of Kamschatka, a place called Petropavlovsk Russia's chief foothold in the Pacific Ocean. A landing party of 700 men was ambushed and forced to retire with heavy loss, while the ships fell back to their base, leaving the honors of the day with the Russians, who have not forgotten the incident.

The China Zaibikalec, the chief organ of the Lake Baikal district in Siberia, publishes accounts of Russian brutalities towards the Chinese at Irkutsk. Schoolboys and men meet and jeer and throw stones at the Chinese as brick hands coming from their lunch. The Chinese's faces sometimes stream with blood and the crowd only laughs. The Zaibaikalec says that hitherto the Chinese have suffered passively, but if one were to raise his hand a general massacre by Russian workmen would follow.

The Russ correspondent at Port Arthur has interviewed in Manchuria a person very near to the Corean Emperor, and who, he says, left Corea in disgust at the revolutionary actions of Japan, despite the latter's alliance with England.

"All intelligent Coreans," said this party, "foresee a repetition of the history of India, and our only hope is in the Russian victory, in which we believe. We think that the Japanese are drawn to Corea, not from lack of space at home, but from political motives to satisfy their vanity in becoming a continental power and economical motives to profit by our natural riches and get a new market. The first menace Corea's importance and the second threatens industrial slavery to the totalitarian. The Emperor and all thinking Coreans have reason to sympathize with the Russians and because of their loyalty the Coreans are going to work in the Amur district."

FEAR CANNIBALS HAVE HIM

Exposition Officials Alarmed Concern ing Commissioner to South Africa.

St. Louis, Mo., May 10.—S. P. Verner, a former missionary, who went to the heart of Africa for members of the tribe of pigmies for the world's fair, was last heard of Feb. 28 the date of his arrival in Congo. Because no letter has been received from him since that time grave fears are felt by exposition officials that he has been captured by cannibals.

COUNTRY OF CONFLAGRATIONS

London Economist Discusses Fire Insurance in Canada

London, May 10.—The Economist in an editorial on fire insurance in Canada, says: "As a rule profit, even at the high premiums charged, can only, with great difficulty, be extracted out of Canadian fire risks. Large as the profits have been in 1902 and 1903 they have been not much more than enough to cover the losses in Toronto, Canada, like the United States, is a country of conflagrations."

TROUBIE NOT ALL OVER YET

Lord Lansdowne's Ominous Words Re Macedonia Create Alarm

DANGERS OF THE FUTURE.

If Russian is Defeated by Japan Imperialists will Seek New Fields of Ambition.

London, May 10.—For the time being high politics in Europe is concerned almost entirely with the East Asian question. Lord Lansdowne's ominous words in the House of Lords concerning Macedonia are fundamentally referrable to the Russo-Japanese war. His Lordship declared that the Balkan situation warranted the deepest anxiety, and added that Great Britain was doing more than any other power to hasten the enforcement of reforms. Diplomatists in Lord Lansdowne's confidence know that while he earnestly desires changes in Macedonia for humanitarian reasons, he has been moved to assume the practical leadership of the reform movement for political considerations. He understands the deep-rooted desire of Russia to dominate the Balkans and looks forward to a Japanese triumph in the Far East and a consequent heavy Russian recoil. Lord Lansdowne expects that when peace has been signed and the limits of the Czar's dominion placed south of the Amur the Muscovite Imperialists will undertake exploits nearer the base of the national strength. He thinks that the Balkan peninsula will be the scene of the exploitation of these ambitions, and that Europe may be forced to face a general war or permit the Russians to occupy Constantinople.

The British Foreign Secretary is determined to do his utmost to promote a solution of the Macedonian question before Russia is prepared to make that province the ground of an Imperialist adventure.

ANXIETY JUSTIFIED.

Sofia, May 10.—Lord Lansdowne's anxiety about Macedonia is thoroughly justified. There is great distress throughout the disturbed vilayets. The young and strong are emigrating. Five thousand emigrants have left Monastir alone for the United States within two months. Notwithstanding the Sultan's amnesty, fugitives are afraid to return to their villages. The Turkish officials are not inspiring confidence.

TO CURE CONSUMPTION

Climate of Greenland Said to be Death to Tuberculosis.

Washington, May 10.—Dr. Frederick Sohon, of this city, will conduct a ship to the Fjords of Greenland this summer and test the treatment of tuberculosis in that climate. This is the outcome of Commander Peary's operations, and Dr. Sohon, who has accompanied two expeditions, observing the phenomenally rapid cure of one of the party, who was a consumptive.

He carefully studied the hygienic conditions of the north and the possibility of utilizing these regions in the treatment of tuberculosis and nervous exhaustion.

His conclusions resulted in the proposed novel experiment of a colony of invalids enjoying a Greenland summer.

ANTI-JEWISH RIOTS

Hardly a House in Jewish Quarter Escaped —The Synagogue was Attacked.

Vienna, May 10.—During the recent anti-Semitic riots in Lom-Palanka, Bulgaria, the authorities had to telegraph to Sofia for permission to interfere. The mere intimation that the troops would be ordered to fire among the mob unless it withdrew quietly was enough to restore order; but the work it had come to do was already done.

Hardly a house had escaped in the whole quarter of the Jews, and every window pane remained unbroken. In the synagogue alone the damage is estimated at 11,000 francs ($2,123.)

A government commission has been appointed to fix the amount of the loss and to take measures for the temporary relief of the victims, among whom the destitute is extreme. Many Jewish families have left the town for good.

Site Wanted For The New Collegiate Institute

School Board Appoint a Committee to Look After the Matter and to Revise Plans if Found Necessary

The Board of Education met in special session last night, when there were present: Chairman J. J. Hartley, and Trustees W. H. Hill, V. Eastwood, H. Morgan, F. J. Jameson, J. J. McBain, John Crane, Robt. Fair, Wm. Fringle, Jas. Stevenson, L. M. Hayes, H. P. Kennedy and W. H. Wrighton.

Chairman Hartley explained that the object of the meeting was to discuss the advisability of securing immediately an option on some appropriate land on which to build the new Collegiate Institute.

Mr. W. H. Hill replied that he understood that two offers had been made, directly or indirectly, the Separate school grounds and the Nicholls property.

Mr. Eastwood thought that offers of lots should be advertised for immediately.

Mr. L. M. Hayes suggested that a conference between the Town Council and this Board be called.

Mr. R. Fair acquiesced in this, as by this means, he said, property might be secured which could be used by the Town and Board jointly.

Mr. W. H. Hill moved, seconded by Mr. H. Morgan, that Messrs. H. P. Kennedy, R. B. Rogers, Wm. Ferguson, L. M. Hayes and John Crane, together with the chairman, be a committee to look after a site and to revise the plans if found necessary, and that these plans of the new Institute be sent to the Deputy Minister and the two High School Inspectors for their approval.

Mr. Jas. Stevenson moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. V. Eastwood, That Messrs. J. J. McBain, Robert Fair and John Crane be the committee. He said there always seemed to be a select committee picked for matters of this kind, which he objected to. There should be no choice, therefore he proposed the gentlemen named, who sat first in order around the Board.

Mr. V. Eastwood moved that the committee advertise for sites, with sketches and length and breadth of lots not less than one acre, together with price of same.

Messrs. Jamieson and McBain thought the better way would be to have one committee look after a site and another attend to the plans.

Mr. Hill said he would be willing to add to his resolution that the committee be empowered to advertise for a site as advocated by Mr. Eastwood. This was agreed to.

There was a slight deadlock here over the personnel of the committee, which Mr. Fair unsuccessfully endeavored to break by moving in amendment that Mr. McBain's name be added to the committee. Mr. McBain had been specially mentioned by Mr. Stevenson as being peculiarly qualified for the important functions of the committee in question.

Mr. B. J. Jameson did not think there was room for any more amendments, but he would move that the committee named by Mr. Stevenson and that by Mr. Hill be a Joint committee to act in on the lines of the latter's motion. This was not taken seriously.

Mr. Stevenson remarked that the Board had better accept the committee named by him, and they would be sure of satisfactory results.

Mr. Hill's motion was finally carried, only three members voting for Mr. Stevenson's amendment.

Messrs. H. P. Kennedy, R. B. Rogers, Wm. Ferguson, L. M. Hayes, John Crane, and the Chairman are therefore a committee to revise the present plans for a new Collegiate Institute, if necessary, and submit same to the Deputy Minister and the two High School Inspectors. They, will also advertise for a site.

A PASSAGE AT ARMS.

At this juncture Messrs. Hill and Stevenson indulged in a brief passage at arms. Mr. Hill said that no matter what is moved of an important nature at this Board some reflection is cast upon the measure in question. Tonight Mr. Stevenson said that if his committee were appointed things would go all right, which was tantamount to saying that things would go all wrong in the hands of the committee named by him (Mr. Hill). He objected to this sort of action which casts a reflection on the mover and seconder of the resolution and also on the committee named in that resolution. He had every confidence in the committee named by Mr. Stevenson, but was surely entitled to stand by his own resolution.

Mr. Eastwood, as seconder of Mr. Stevenson's amendment, said he considered the gentlemen named by Mr. Hill quite competent to undertake the duties required of them, and worthy the Board's confidence in every respect, but the Board meets to discuss the business before them, and each member has a perfect right to take an active interest in the proceedings and to his own individual opinions.

TAX DODGERS

When one hears of a multi-millionaire, Russell Sage for instance, arranging to establish his ostensible residence outside of New York in order to escape taxes, one gets a vivid idea of the possible meanness of a money-grubber.

Sage is taxed in New York on $2,000,000. He is worth $50,000,000 or more by current report, most of it in stocks or bonds which are untaxed But he grudges to pay taxation on a small part of his wealth in New York city, although it has been to the opportunities of business which that city provides that his wealth is largely due in so far as it is due to anything outside his own brains And of course such a reservation applies to whatever any man may make.

Civilization, human progress, even mere making of wealth, is possible only through the human co-operation of which taxation is one feature, and an essential feature in some shape or other. The well-to-do man who desires to dodge his fair proportionate share of taxation is pretty likely a narrow-minded cur, worthless to his day and generation in any essential respect.

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF "BOTTLING"

Many persons as they have read of the repeated "bottling" expeditions at Port Arthur, have doubtless asked themselves why it was worth Admiral Togo's while to sacrifice good ships by the dozens and brave seamen by the score or hundred for such a purpose. Especially do such questions occur now, when the Russian fleet is reduced to a state of complete impotence as against the powerful blockading fleet of Japan;

The answer is one that involves military rather than naval factors. The Russian ships had to be "bottled" for the protection of the fleet of transports which Japan may want at any time to send to some point on the Gulf of Pechili or the Gulf of Corea.

Admiral Togo's blockade at Port Arthur has been of an entirely different nature from that which Admiral Sampson maintained at Santiago. Owing to the bad weather and the frequent dense fogs, Togo has kept his ships concealed at an inland base fifty miles or more from Port Arthur in the intervals between attacks. For one thing he would have been only too glad to have the Russian vessels come out to meet him on the open sea, and for another he could not afford to take the risks of Russian torpedo boats attacks had he remained in the offing.

Now, while this condition continues the Russian ships might conceivably inflict some very severe injury on Japanese transports by a sudden dash if the transports ventured to pass through the narrow channel to the south of Port Arthur. This is a possibility rather than a probability of injury, but a possibility that might mean the loss of Japanese soldiers by the thousands without any compensating achievement.

"Bottling" Port Arthur means, therefore an end to all such fears and a free sea for Japanese army movements. It should be added that it means also that any junction between the Port Arthur fleet and other Russian squadrons becomes impossible, and that in consequence one more cause of anxiety is removed from Admiral Togo's shoulders.

If the latest successful "bottling" expedition should result in distinctly accelerating the progress of events in the war.

SOCIALISM AND PRAYER

The socialist party of the United States closed its national convention a few days ago in Chicago, after nailing to its masthead as its presidential ticket Eugene V. Debs for president and Benjamin Hanford for vice-president. The nominations were not of much interest or importance as a long-drawn debate in which the convention indulged in regard to trade unions.

After wrangling over it for hours the convention finally adopted a resolution something like the following. "The labor union movement is a weapon to protect the class interests of labor under the capitalistic system. The socialistic party is the political party of the working class. It is imperative for labor unions to equip their members with socialistic doctrine in order to prepare for the overthrow of the wage system."

From the resolution and the debate it appears that the convention was disposed to patronize the labor unions as socialistic neophytes and to encourage the uninstructed workingmen to study socialism and to come under the protecting aegis of the socialistic party. Anyone would suppose from listening to the Chicago orators that they had a corner on socialism, but were willing to give the poor workingman a show

The labor unionist who does not realize whither he is drifting can get his definite bearings from a recent speech of Eugene Debs, who may be said in this matter to speak ex cathedra. "It was through unionism that I became a socialist," proudly declared the ex-labor leader, and here of Woodstock jail.

MOTHER OF FOUR CHILDREN.

The trustees, secretary, and other officers of the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Muskoka are daily in receipt of many piteous letters.

A few days since Mr. W. J. Gage, of Toronto, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the National Sanitarium Association, received a letter from a resident of Quebec, pleading for the admission of a victim of the dread white plague, living about a hundred miles south-east of Montreal, and asking if it were not possible to admit her into the Free Hospital. The writer says: "The applicant is a Mrs. Wm. Paterson, the mother of four children and the wife of a farmer in a place called Goshen, in the township of Windsor. The doctor says that her left lung only is troubled. She is able to go about, but her appetite is very bad. I believe if she could be admitted into the Free Hospital for Consumptives she might be cured. She could not pay much, if anything. Kindly let me know if you could receive her."

We are told by Mr. Gage that applications for admission to the Free Hospital reach the secretary from all points in the Dominion, and patients have been received from Prince Edward Island on the east to Alberta on the west. Two hundred and twenty-five patients have been admitted in eighteen months, and not a single patient has been refused because of his or her poverty.

We can hardly think of any charity that appeals more pathetically for the support of the Canadian people.

Miss Nellie Balsalous Gives Interesting Interview

Tells How she Was Cured of Kidney Disease After Doctors Failed—Ferrozone Alone Responsible For Her Cure—It Cured Permanently.

Miss Nellie M. Barsalous is well known in her native city of Wilmington, where every doctor of reputation tried to cure her. But they didn't succeed. This proves conclusively that Ferrozone must certainly be an absolute cure for kidney trouble.

"Six months ago I noticed tameness and dragging pains across the small of my back," writes Miss Barsalous, "I felt weary and completely worn out. It wasn't work that made me so tired, nothing but defective kidneys. I took the doctors' treatment, and used dozens of articles I read of for the kidneys. But in spite of this I kept getting worse. Then I used Ferrozone. It was three weeks before I was perfectly satisfied it was helping me, but after that I improved steadily and got well. I know of no better remedy than Ferrozone only and saved me from Bright's Disease only and saved me from Bright's Disease."

Next to consumption, kidney disease is the most fatal. Many a life has been lost simply because the unfortunate victim of deranged kidneys wasn't aware of his perilous condition in time.

Here is a simple test. Put some urine in a glass and let it stand for twenty-four hours. If it shows germs floating about, looks milky or cloudy, if it contains any sediment, your kidneys are diseased. Don't risk your life with doubtful remedies, use Ferrozone, which doctors admit is the quickest and most certain cure. Ferrozone contains in scientific combination the most valuable agents known for the kidneys. This explains its marvelous cures and universal success. Ferrozone is guaranteed and sold at 50c per box, or six boxes for $2.50, by all druggists. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

AN APPEAL TO THE PASSION-ATELY SET IN CANADA.

"Lally Bernard," the Well-Known Toronto Journalist, Writes from England of the Battle Against Consumption in Muskoka.

Lally Bernard, of the editorial staff of the Toronto Globe, writing to that paper from London, England, where she is now a resident, shows most clearly that the battle against the great white plague is one that should interest all classes of the community. It will be remembered that this writer entered incog. as a patient in the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, and afterwards in the Globe told of real life in that institution. In her present article she says:

"To-day I have found a letter at the club which nearly missed me, having been addressed 'Lally Bernard.' May I express to my unknown correspondent my warmest thanks for the kindly appreciation for the little I have been able to do in the battle being waged against tuberculosis in Canada. The need of sympathy and interest is a tremendous one, and I am always puzzled when I find really well educated and intelligent people in Canada so criminally ignorant of the extent of the danger, and the means which are being taken to combat it.

"It may be of some interest to those who feel as I do in regard to the responsibility which rests upon each and all to aid in this fight against a most insidious foe, when I tell them, that here in London, where I have been for only a few days, I have already come across the dread enemy four times. First of all, in the back garden of our humble quarters in Kensington I espied, when morning dawned, a tent with two beds in it. I enquired of our landlord why the tent was there, and was told a long story about the coronation and quarters for some boys coming up from the country, and that he, the landlord, had subsequently found it more agreeable to sleep in the tent than in the basement bedroom he had formerly occupied. A little later, in conversation with the lady who secured the lodgings, I learned that the landlord's son was obliged to sleep in a tent! Comment was needless.

"In looking for quarters I found a charming home of a young doctor and his wife, where extraordinarily moderate terms were asked for really exceptionally good accommodation. The doctor in question had been 'ordered south,' and his wife had to keep the house going by accepting 'paying guests.'

"Yet again, in the third place, I found that the lady who was at the head of the establishment had not only lost her husband from the dread disease, but had managed one of the most fashionable sanitariums in England, and her knowledge of the treatment and the extent of the problem in England showed me how tremendous was the need for care and watchfulness in our own country.

"May I ask my correspondent to use all possible influence to make the question of combating tuberculosis one of interest in the 'fashionable set' to which she evidently belongs. I know full well, from the little experience I have had, how tremendously a little genuine interest and help might lighten the burden now resting on the shoulders of the authorities of the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. It is, of course, far away from wealthy centres, and out of sight is to be out of mind.

"I can quite understand that until people have seen forty or fifty patients together in different stages of consumption they do not realise what an immense amount of aid might be given by those who are fortunate enough to be free from the disease and by those who have little else to do than to invent or learn some new form of recreation.

"Mrs. Torrington has kindly promised me to try and get musical societies and people interested in music to provide a pianola for the Hospital, and I feel sure it will be of immense benefit to the patients. Surely my correspondent who evinces such sympathy with the cause could make that sympathy take a practical form and organize a hospital library where books worth reading might be supplied, with some system similar to that of the Aberdeen Association, which has done such excellent work."

A SAD CASE.

The following letter, addressed to the Secretary of the National Sanitarium Association, Toronto, from the Rectory, Norwood, Ont., and signed by Rev. J. McKee MacLennan, a well-known Anglican minister of the province, needs no comment of ours. It reads: "I desire to secure the admission into the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst of a young woman, a member of my parish. The case is a very sad one, and if help can at once be given, a promising life can be saved. Three years ago the mother died of consumption. Since that time it has been my painful duty to bury two of the sons with the same disease. Now Annie, aged about seventeen, and a boy of fourteen, are all that remain of the family. The poor girl has been in Muskoka, boarding at a private house, waiting to be admitted. She returned home last week, and within twenty-four hours of her return her father dropped dead in his buggy while driving into Norwood. The case is surely one that must appeal to the sympathies of everyone, and yet, I fear, only one of the many that are constantly coming under your notice."

[Note.—Readers—and may their number be many—who desire to assist in this worthy work may send their gifts to Sir Wm. R. Meredith, Kt., Vice-President, National Sanitarium Association, Toronto, or Mr. W. J. Gage, Chairman of the Executive Committee, Toronto.]

The Really Clever Poss.

There is much more intellectual cleverness among the girls of today than there was fifty years ago. A flippant cousin says: "It does not pay for a girl to be clever. Men are afraid of you if you are, and the other girls hate you." But between a pedantic prig and a well educated woman there is a vast difference. The really clever woman are those who disguise their learning and pose as amiable and charming idiots.—Ladies' Field.

Carefulness In Toilet.

Nothing is a more positive sign of a careless woman than torn gloves and untidy shoes, waistbands that sever connections or collars that part company with the shirt waist. Try not to be one of them. You defeat your own ends and neither look well nor feel comfortable. Dress carefully and aim at plainness and neatness rather than a more showy style of costume.

High Class Investment

THE OREGON MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY

Offer to Canadian investors a limited amount of stock of the above company The property owned by the Company consists at the present time of about 500 acres, which are located in the Tarryall District and Park County, Colorado. This whole district has been known for years on account of its rich placer ground, and is now prominently before the public owing to the number of very good properties which have been opened up recently producing, principally, gold, and lately some that are producing Platinum. On the Oregon property there are a number of well known veins of low grade ore that will yield a profit by being treated on the ground of the company. The company have recently opened up a fine vein in the Hawkeye group and this vein shows not only good values but an immense amount of ore which alone would make the property very valuable. Assays from ore taken from various parts of this property range from a few dollars to $373 per ton in gold. We have very little silver, lead or copper in the district. The company have a shaft 240 feet deep, with a good shaft house thoroughly well equipped with all modern machinery to develop same. They are now driving a tunnel which is in about 700 feet and which will cut the Hawkeye vein about 300 feet deeper than where it is opened at present. There is enough ore exposed on the property of this company to keep them busy for a number of years and the reason for selling stock at the present time is to secure funds to build a mill. The company will probably join with the Almaden Company in building this mill. There is water enough to furnish water power and over 100 acres of fine spruce and pine timber. The affairs of the company have always been managed in a business-like economical manner and there are no officers' salaries. The monies received from the sale of stock go direct into the property.

I can heartily recommend this stock as a safe, as well as an unusually good investment, because of the immense amount of ore which the company have already opened up. It is not a mere prospect, but the property has been developed by expense of a considerable amount of money and time.

The company is splendidly officered by men of integrity and high standing. The company has not pushed the sale of stock the last year owing to a delay in getting title to the ground from the Government, but now that has been satisfactorily adjusted and work will be pushed to a finish.

The number of exceedingly rich strikes which have been made during the last few weeks in the various camps in the State of Colorado is the best evidence of the prosperity of the mining business. Almost every camp in the state has opened up rich bodies of ore, and Park County is well in the lead in that line.

There are only $25,000 of stock for sale, at $1.00 per share. The company is capitalized at $200,000, and the advantage to the investor of selling the stock at par, is that every share is fully paid up and non-assessable.

A CLERGYMAN'S APPEAL.

The Rev. W. F. Browalee, Ridgetown, Anglican minister, has written the following letter to the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives:—

Dear Sir,—I fell in with a case to-day in my parish, a young woman very ill with consumption and I promised I would write you regarding her entrance into the hospital for consumptives in Muskoka. The case is one of great necessity and charity. The applicant is about 18 years of age. She is practically without a home, staying at present with a relative. She is bright and amiable, and would like to live. As I understand, you reject none on account of poverty. I commend the case to you as one most needy, and if you can send me instructions or papers for application to the hospital, I will see to raising necessary means for her transportation and have her sent at once, as I imagine she is not beyond receiving benefit.

[Note by Editor.—Sir Wm. R. Meredith, Kt., Vice-President of the National Sanitarium Association, or Mr. W. J. Gage, Chairman of the Executive Committee, Toronto, will gladly receive contributions for this and several other equally piteous cases calling for help.]

Died in Cobourg

The death occurred at Cobourg on Friday night of Mrs. Patrick O'Brien, who for many years was a resident of Peterborough. She was 75 years of age. Her husband, who predeceased her by nine years, for many years carried on a carriage shop on Hunter street on the site where the Oriental Hotel now stands. The late Mrs. O'Brien leaves six sons and two daughters, William, of Valnita, Indian Territory; David, of Rochester; J. L. and Bruce, of Cobourg; Frank and Herbert, of Chicago; Mrs. Hanna and Miss Minnie, of Toronto. The funeral will take place from the G.T.R. station on the arrival of the 8.20 train this morning, and proceed to St. Peter's cathedral, thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery for interment. Mr. R. N. Roddy, of Cobourg, and Mr. Wm. Roddy, of Virden, Man., are brothers of the late Mrs. O'Brien.

A THIRD JAPANESE ARMY OF 50,000 OR 60,000 MEN READY

And will Undoubtedly Soon Make Its Appearance at Some Point in Manchuria

Heavy fighting is expected, according to St. Petersburg reports, to take place within the next day or so at Feng Wang Cheng, to which place General Sosulitch's force retrated after its defeat on the Yalu last Sunday. The Japanese army, under General Kuroki, is slowly nearing the place, and the Russians, it is reported, have received heavy reinforcements. Kuroki's force numbers at least 80,000 men. A third Japanese army of 50,000 to 60,000 men is under arms, and will undoubtedly soon make its appearance at some point in Manchuria not yet mentioned. Thus the Japanese army of invasion will number about 190,000 to 200,000 men. It is very doubtful if General Kuropatkin, for the present at least, can muster at any point a superior force to any one of these three armies.

London, May 7.—Today the military correspondent of The Times says:—The Japanese are following very closely the precedent of 1894 (the war with China), and have once more chosen Pitsewo as the point of landing of an army destined to attack Port Arthur. The first objective of the army which has been landed will certainly be Dalny and Talienwan Bay, since a more uninviting base than Pitsewo would be difficult to find, and the second army requires before anything else, a harbor where stores, heavy guns, and transport supplies can be landed in security. Talienwan was the base in 1894 before the army moved forward for the attack of Port Arthur, and history is likely to repeat itself up to a certain point. Port Arthur, for all practical purposes, is already invested, and Viceroy Alexieff, like Sir John French at Ladysmith, appears to have made his exit by the last train.

A HARD NUT TO CRACK.

At the outbreak of the war Port Arthur was in a very poor state for defence. Many of the land forts were unfinished and unarmed, and probably the supplies had been allowed to fall to a very low ebb. During the long period since hostilities began these conditions must have entirely changed, and if Port Arthur does not prove an excessively hard nut to crack the Russian War Office should put up its shutters and retire from business. Although the Russians now tell us there is only a very small garrison at Port Arthur, the numbers should soon be accurately known to the Japanese. It seems probable there are at least 15,000 troops in the town, besides 10,000 sailors, many of whom could be used ashore for the defence of this eastern Sebastopol.

WHAT OF THE SUPPLIES?

None but the Russian War Office can know the exact quantity of supplies, but the assurance that there is a year's supplies may not be very far from the truth. Nearly all the Chinese coolies have been evicted or have fled, and a good part of the civil population has followed their example. There remains only the garrison, and the number of railway trains required to bring up supplies for 25,000 men for a year is by no means considerable.

WILL THERE BE AN ASSAULT?

The chances are that Port Arthur will not fall by famine this year, and the question that remains open is whether the Japanese will resort to an investment, a regular siege, or a bombardment followed by an assault. A great deal will depend upon the course of operations elsewhere, particularly the action of the Baltic squadron, but in any case it seems certain that once the garrison is driven in upon its works and shut up it can be held fast by a relatively small force, leaving a good part of the second army available for operations elsewhere. The second army may reckon itself relatively secure from offensive return on the part of the Russian army in the Liao valley.

THE JAPANESE STRENGTH.

There are two Japanese armies still unaccounted for, and Newchwang still waits and troubles. General Kuropatkin already has his hands full to repair the disaster on the Yalu, and to march down the Liaotung peninsula, with two Japanese armies still hovering over the high road of the sea, will offer no sort of allurement whatsoever. Even with the second Japanese army landed, there are still seven active divisions thirsting for action, and behind them the reserve field armies, the composition of which in time of war is the closest secret of the general staff. No doubt the organization of the reserve armies plays a very important part in the Japanese organization, but the pundits disagree as to the exact shape these formations will assume. In any case, it is certain that not half of the Japanese active army has yet entered the field, and that even when it has there will still remain the power of placing fresh troops in the field for any purpose the course of the campaign may dictate.

CZAR PAINED AND ASTONISHED.

London, May 7.—The Times has the following from Vienna;—In Russophile quarters here it is reported that the painful astonishment of the Czar at the Russian defeat on the Yalu was the greater owing to the assurances received from General Kuropatkin a few days previously that the imminent engagements on land would prove the Russian positions impregnable. It is supposed that the despatch to Viceroy Alexieff from Port Arthur to Mukden is due to the desire of the Czar to possess a complete report of the military situation and the causes of the defeat.

THE RUSSIANS MEET WITH ANOTHER DEFEAT

Special to The Times:

Chefoo, May 8.—A private telegram has been received here confirming the report that the Japanese have occupied Feng Wang Cheng. The date of the occupation is given as May 8th. Everything quiet here today.

Shen Hai Kwan, May 8.—It is reported here that there has been severe fighting at Feng Wang Cheng, in which the Japanese were successful. They took the main position. The Russians are retiring towards Hai Cheng, 31 miles east of Cheng Wang Cheng, and are evacuating the western side of the Liao Tung River. On Thursday and Saturday of last week the Japanese landed 10,000 men at Ken Chau, and 17,000 at Sit Suma. They occupied the towns of Wa Sung Tien and Tulun Tien, and destroyed several miles of the railroad. Heavy fighting has been heard in the direction of Kai Chau, where the Japanese troops have been seen recently. The blocking of Port Arthur is complete. Sixteen Japanese warships protected the landing of troops at Kin Chau Bay, directing a sweeping fire over the narrow isthmus before the soldiers disembarked. Seventy-five Russians were wounded in this. It is reported that food is scarce at Mukden. The troops there are eating bean cake. The Russians are preparing to evacuate New Chwang and that city is in a turmoil of horrid fright.

Tokio, May 8.—Every supplemental report received from Gen. Kuroki, commander of the 1st Japanese army, increases the Russian casualties in last Sunday's battle at Chin Chang on the Yalu River. The Japanese have buried about 1,400 Russians, and have 500 of enemies wounded in the field hospital. They estimate that total casualties reach 2,500. Over 300 prisoners are en route to Matsuyance, where they are expected to arrive on Wednesday.

TAKE MANY PRISONERS

Russian Infantry Surrounded and Captured by the Japanese

Kiulien-Cheng, May 9.—This town was stormed in brilliant fashion, but after much bloodshed, by frontal attack. The Russians outmaneuvered the Japanese and retreated in a body. Their infantry, with twenty-eight guns was surrounded and after a spirited and obstinate defense many were captured. The endurance of the soldiers are amazing. The Russian losses are very heavy. The Japanese are now advancing northward from Kiulian-Cheng.

THIBETANS ARE LEVYING TROOPS

Have Determined to Oppose the British Expedition

FURTHER FIGHTING SOON

A Thibetan Force is Seeking to Menace Colonel Younghusband's Communications

Rio Janeiro, May 9.—It is rumored that orders have been issued for the mobilization of Brazilian troops and for the concentration of all the forces in the first military district at points on the frontier where Peruvian troops are reported to have crossed into Brazil.

[The Peruvian troops, in spite of repeated demands, have refused to evacuate territory on the frontier regarded as belonging to Brazil. The territory in dispute includes the Jurua and Purus valleys.]

Gyangtse, Thibet, May 9.—The officials at Lhassa seemed to be determined to defy the British Thibetan expedition. A strong reconnoitering force has left Gyangtse to dislodge a Thibetan army on the further side of Khafola pass, where it menaces the British communications. The presence of this army there has been known for a long time, but it was lately learned that its strength is being daily increased. The Lhassan authorities are levying recruits in all directions. It is expected that there will be further fighting shortly.

Smuggler Gold Mining Co.'s Proposition

of which I am the authorized agent

Investments in mining stocks where they can be purchased cheaply whose property contains merit and whose directors are men of unquestionable honor and integrity, and especially when sufficient work has been done to guarantee a producing mine and the leads have been demonstrated to be permanent, offer the greatest opportunity for large returns from modern investments.

The shrewdest capitalists of England and America are giving more attention to mining properties and putting more money into them than at any time in the past history of the world.

The Smuggler Group consists of five full sized claims, to-wit:- The Smuggler, Gangon, Black Jack, Star and Bed Rock, located in the Greenhorn District of Eastern Oregon. Surrounding mines are Potosi, Pride of Pendleton, Bonanza and Rockefeller, developing work to the extent of 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifts and crosscuts have been made, exposing hundreds of tons of high grade ore, averaging from $25 to $45 per ton, based on smelter returns, and for the purpose of equipping the mines a limited number of shares of Treasury Stock will be sold at 25 cents per share, the par value of which is $1.00.

HIGH CLASS INVESTMENT

LA ZACUALPA RUBBER PLANTATION COMPANY

Incorporated Under the Laws of the State of California.

La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation is situated in the best location in Mexico for the cultivation of rubber. It has been known for a great many years as a very choice strip of rubber land and subsequent experience has shown that it is equal to all that has been claimed for it. The affairs of the company are in the hands of men of undoubted integrity and high reputation as successful men of business. To those seeking a safe investment which will secure a good income for life, this proposition offers a favorable opportunity

Shares in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation are not capital stock of a corporation, and carry none of the responsibilities and obligations, or liability to assessment of capital stock; but represent an undivided interest in the plantation itself.

The twelve thousand acres comprising the plantation are divided into twelve thousand shares, each share representing one acre of land, and the holders of shares in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation are the actual owners of one undivided acre of land, for each share held, with a guarantee expressed upon the certificate by La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company, under its official seal, to plant two hundred or more rubber trees per acre for each share sold, and to care for same for a period of five years, and at the expiration of that time to gather the first harvest and deliver the net proceeds thereof to the shareholder.

In other words, La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company sells to each shareholder one undivided acre of land in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation, with two hundred or more rubber trees five years old, and their profits for all time, for each share sold, and agrees to plant so that the first harvest belonging to (a shareholder is the one to be gathered from La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation during the sixth year from the date of the certificate,

After the delivery of the first harvest La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company will care for the plantation, and harvest and market the crop for ten per cent. of the net proceeds therefrom. Out of this commission the Company agrees to pay all costs of administration, including maintenance of its home and branch offices.

This plan gives the purchaser of shares an interest of definite acreage, and his proportionate share in the total yield of rubber from the entire plantation forever, making it absolutely certain that the interest of each shareholder will receive the same careful attention

THIBETANS BALK THE BRITISH

Strongly Intrenched Foe Fires on English Soldiers

Line of Communication with Khangma is Threatened by Recruits

London, May 9.—Thibetans are reported to be intrenched in a strong position on the farther side of Karo pass on the direct road to Lhassa. According to a dispatch to the Times from Gyang-Tse fort some of the Thibetans were drawn from the Jutu garrison of Gyang-Tse fort.

The British reconnoitering party, after crossing the summit of the pass and descending a short way, saw the road barred by a wall, and suddenly a heavy fire from Jingals and European rifles was opened, bullets striking the ground all round, but causing no casualties.

The number of Thibetans is estimated at 1,500 and their position may threaten the British line of communication with Khangma. No reply was made to the Thibetans except two or three shots to keep down the enemy's fire during the retirement.

This action of the Thibetans finally disposes of the possibility of any useful purpose being served by the visit of the Amban, from whom Colonel Younghusband has received no further communication. It suggests, indeed, that the only object of the visit was to gain further time for the defense of Lhassa road and probably for the arrival of expected help from the north.

ASKS OF BUILDING WARSHIPS

New Socialist Weekly Speaks of Germans Making Russian Boats

Berlin, May 9.—Eduard Bernstein, a member of the Reichstag, begins the publication today of a new Socialistic weekly entitled Das Neue Montagsblatt, wherein he advocates the revision of the socialist creed so that it shall be less idealistic and more a program of practical reform. Herr Bernstein prefaces his editorial column with the following questions:

"Is it known to the German Government that torpedo-boats and destroyers for the Russian Government are being built at one of the largest German shipyards?

"Is it known to the Government that in order to disguise this breach of neutrality the several parts of the vessels are exported as half-finished manufactures and put together in Libau, Russia? Is it known finally that the building of these war vessels is so urgent that work proceeds from 5 a.m. to 9 p.m."

Old Hagar's Secret

BY MRS. M. J. HOLMES

Author of "For a Woman's Sake," "Love's Triumph," "Purified by Suffering," "A Grass Widow," "Woman Against Woman," Etc.

worthy of you, Maggie, royal in bearing and queenly in form though you be, and that you may be happy with him will be the daily prayer of

"ROSE."

The letter was finished, and Rose gave it to her brother, who, after its perusal, kissed her, saying: "It is right, my darling. I will send it to-morrow with mine, and now for a ride. I will see what a little exercise can do for you. I do not like the color of your face."

But neither the fragrant summer air, nor yet the presence of Henry Warner, who tarried several days, could rouse the drooping Rose, and when at last she was left alone, she sought her bed, where for many weeks she hovered between life and death, while her brother and her aunt hung over her pillow, and Maggie, from her woodland home, sent many an anxious inquiry and message of love to the sick girl. In the close atmosphere of his counting-room, George Douglas, too, again battled manfully with his olden love, listening each day to hear that she was dead. But not thus early was Rose to die, and with the waning summer days she came slowly back to life. More beautiful than ever, because more ethereal and fair, she walked the earth, like one who having struggled with a mighty sorrow, had won the victory at last; and Henry Warner, when he looked on her sweet, placid face, and listened to her plans for the future, when "Maggie would be his wife," dreamed not of the grave hidden in the deep recesses of her heart, where grew no flower of hope or semblance of earthly joy.

Thus little know mankind of each other!

CHAPTER X.

On the Hillsdale hills the October sun was shining, and the forest trees were donning their robes of scarlet and brown, when again the old stone house presented an air of joyous expectancy. The large, dark parlors were thrown open, the best chambers were aired, the bright, autumnal flowers were gathered and in tastefully arranged bouquets adorned the mantels, while Theo and Maggie, in their best attire, flitted uneasily from room to room, running sometimes to the gate to look down the grassy road which led from the highway, and again mounting the tower stairs to obtain a more extended view.

In her pleasant apartment, where last we left her with a sprained ankle, Mrs. Jeffrey, too, fidgeted about, half sympathizing with her pupils in their happiness and half regretting the cause of that happiness, which was the expected arrival of George Douglas and Henry Warner, who, true to their promise, were coming again "to try for a week the Hillsdale air, and retrieve their character as fast young men." So, at least, they told Mrs. Jeffrey, who, mindful of her exploit with the banner, and wishing to make some amends, met them alone on the threshold, Maggie having at the last moment "ran away," while Theo sat in a state of dignified perturbation upon the sofa.

A few days prior to their arrival, letters had been received from Madam Conway saying she should probably remain in England two or three weeks longer, and thus the house was again clear to the young men, who, forgetting to receive their characters, fairly outdid all they had done before. The weather was remarkably clear and bracing, and the greater part of each day was spent in the open air, either in fishing, riding or hunting, Maggie teaching Henry Warner how to ride and leap, while he in turn taught her to shoot a bird upon the wing, until the pupil was equal to her master! In these out-door excursions, George Douglas and Theo did not always join, for he had something to say which he would rather tell her in the silent parlor, and which, when told, furnished food for many a quiet conversation. So Henry and Maggie rode oftentimes alone, and old Hagar, when she saw them dashing past her door, Maggie usually taking the lead, would shake her hand and mutter to herself: "'Twill never do—that match. He ought to hold her back, instead of leading her on. I wish Madam Conway would come home and end it."

Mrs. Jeffrey wished so, too, as night after night her slumbers were disturbed by the sounds of merriment which came up to her from the parlor below, where the young people were "enjoying themselves," as Maggie said when reproved for the noisy revel. The day previous to the one set for their departure chanced to be Henry Warner's twenty-seventh birthday, and this Maggie resolved to honor with an extra supper, which was served at an unusually late hour in the dining-room, the door of which opened out upon a closely latticed piazza.

"I wish we could think of something new to do," said Maggie, as she presided at the table; "something real funny." Then, as her eyes fell upon the dark piazza, where a single light was burning dimly, she exclaimed: "Why can't we get up tableaux? There are heaps of the queerest clothes in the big oaken chest in the garret. The servants can be audience, and they need some recreation!"

The suggestion was at once approved, and in half an hour's time the floor was strewn with garments of every conceivable fashion, from long stockings and small-clothes to scarlet cloaks and gored skirts, the latter of which were immediately donned by Henry Warner, to the infinite delight of the servants, who enjoyed seeing the grotesque costumes, even if they did not exactly understand what the tableaux were intended to represent. The banner, too, was brought out, and after bearing a conspicuous part in the performance, was placed at the end of the dining-room, where it would be the first thing visible to a person opening the door opposite. At a late hour the servants retired, and then George Douglas, who took kindly to the luscious old wine which Maggie again had brought from her grandmother's choicest store, filled a goblet to the brim, and pledging first the health of the young girls, drank to "the old lady across the water," with whose goods they were thus making free!

Henry Warner rarely tasted wine, for though miles away from Rose, her influence was around him; so, filling his glass with water, he, too, drank to the wish that "the lady across the sea would remain there yet awhile, or at all events not stumble upon us to-night!"

"What if she should!" thought Maggie, glancing around at the different articles scattered all over the floor, and laughing as she saw in fancy her grandmother's look of dismay should she by any possible chance obtain a view of the room, where perfect order and quiet had been wont to reign.

But the good lady was undoubtedly taking her morning nap on the shores of old England. There was no danger to be apprehended from her unexpected arrival, they thought; and just as the clock struck one the young men sought their rooms, greatly to the relief of Mrs. Jeffrey, who, in her long night robes, with streaming candle in hand, had more than a dozen times leaned over the banister, wondering "if the carouse would ever end."

It did end at last, and tired and sleepy, Theo went directly to her chamber, while Maggie staid below, thinking to arrange matters a little, for their guests were to leave on the first train, and she had ordered an early breakfast. But it was a hopeless task, the putting of that room to rights; and trusting much to the good nature of the housekeeper, she finally gave it up and went to bed, forgetting in her drowsiness to fasten the outer door, or yet to extinguish the lamp which burned upon the sideboard.

CHAPTER XI.

At the delightful country seat of Arthur Carrollton, Madam Conway had passed many pleasant days, and was fully intending to while away several more, when an unexpected summons from his father made it necessary for the young man to go immediately to London, and as an American steamer was about to leave the port of Liverpool, Madam Conway determined to start for home at once. Accordingly she wrote for Anna Jeffrey, whom she had promised to take with her, to meet her in Liverpool, and a few days previous to the arrival of George Douglas and Henry Warner at Hillsdale, the two ladies embarked with an endless variety of luggage, to say nothing of Miss Anna's guitar-case, bird-cage and favorite lap-dog "Lottie."

Once fairly on the sea, Madam Conway became exceedingly impatient and disagreeable, complaining both of fare and speed, and at length came on deck one morning with the firm belief that something dreadful had happened to Maggie. She was dangerously sick, she knew, for never but once before had she been visited with a like presentiment, and that was just before her daughter died. Then it came to her just as this had done, in her sleep, and very nervously the lady paced the vessel's deck, counting the days as they passed, and almost weeping for joy when told Boston was in sight. Immediately after landing, she made inquiries as to when the next train passing Hillsdale station would leave the city, and though it was midnight, she resolved at all hazards to go on, for if Maggie were really ill there was no time to be lost!

Accordingly, when at four o'clock a. m. Maggie, who was partially awake, heard in the distance the shrill scream of the engine, as the night express thundered through the town, she little dreamed of the boxes, bundles, trunks and bags, which lined the platform of Hillsdale station, nor yet of the resolute woman in brown, who persevered until a rude one-horse wagon was found in which to transport herself and her baggage to the old stone house. The driver of the vehicle in which, under ordinary circumstances, Madam Conway would have scorned to ride, was a long, lean, half-witted fellow, utterly unfitted for his business. Still, he managed quite well until they turned into the grassy by-road, and Madam Conway saw through the darkness the light which Maggie had inadvertently left within the dining-room!

There was no longer a shadow of uncertainty; "Margaret was dead," and the lank Tim was ordered to drive faster, or the excited woman, perched on one of her traveling trunks, would be obliged to foot it! A few vigorous strokes of the whip set the sorrel horse into a canter, and as the night was dark, and the road wound round among the trees, it is not at all surprising that Madam Conway, with her eye still on the beacon light, found herself rather unceremoniously in the midst of a brush heap, her good and chattels rolling promiscuously around her; while, lying across a log, her right hand clutching at the bird-cage, and her left grasping the shaggy hide of Lottie, who yelled most furiously, was Anna Jeffrey, half blinded with mud, and bitterly denouncing American drivers and Yankee roads! To gather themselves together was not an easy matter, but the ten pieces were at last all told, and then, holding up her skirts, bedraggled with dew, Madam Conway resumed her seat in the wagon, which was this time driven in safety to her door. Giving orders for her numerous boxes to be safely bestowed she hastened forward and soon stood upon the threshold.

"Great Heaven!" she exclaimed, starting backward so suddenly that she trod upon the foot of Lottie, who again sent forth an outcry, which Anna Jeffrey managed to choke down! "Is this bedlam or what?" and stepping out upon the piazza, she looked to see if the blustering driver had made a mistake. But no, it was the same old gray stone house she had left some

This company now owns the well-known Augusta mine and its extension for over 1000 feet in addition to other claims approximating a total acreage of 200 acres. This property has produced over $350,000 in gold, silver and lead ores and is a producer to-day. Has shipped ores of an average net value of $40 per ton for first class and $18 per ton for second class, all the past summer and the summer before smelter and mill returns of which are on file in our office.

Has immense bodies of these grades of ore which cannot be exhausted in five years. Already opened up and its main working tunnel is nearing completion, cutting the apex of the vein at a depth of 1,600 feet.

This block of shares is offered to enable the Company to connect the above tunnel with its concentrating mill and projected terminus of railroad by tramway, a distance of 11,120 feet, thereby permitting shipments during the entire year.

A production of at least 125 tons daily will be maintained when these improvements are made, and if completed in the early summer, dividends can be paid from ore settlements before this fall.

We offer for a limited time only a SPECIAL BLOCK OF 50,000 SHARES OF THE TREASURY STOCK of these Companies.

We reserve the right to reject subscriptions over and above the 50,000 shares offered. Each subscription to be booked as received.

This Company owns and controls over 200 acres of good mineral-producing ground, including the well-known Excelsior and Yankee Blade, which have produced upward of $175,000.

Tunnel B of the Black Queen Company is now going in at a rate of 176 feet per month, and early spring will see this work vieing with Tunnel A of the Augusta Company in its record of production.

Will cut known proven ore bodies 1100 feet from Apex, and open sufficient stoping ground to make an output of 100 tons daily.

Has already cut through a cross vein two feet in width of good marketable Galena ore, the point of intersection being 400 feet beneath the surface. We have 800 feet of this vein in length.

We can show you these facts and ask that you ask us to do so.

If your investment becomes profitable you will tell others; therefore it is much to our interest to have you make money on your investment.

Nine out of every ten men have been guilty of transgression against nature in their youth. Nature never accuses, no matter how young, thoughtless or ignorant he may be. The punishment and suffering corresponds with the crime. The only means from its ruinous results is proper scientific treatment to counteract its effects.

The DRAINS, either by nightly losses, or secretly through the urine, must be stopped—the NERVES must be built up and invigorated, the blood must be purified, the SEXUAL ORGANS must be vitalized and developed, the BRAIN must be nourished. Our New Method Treatment provides all these requirements. Under its influence the brain becomes active, the blood purified so that all pimples, blotches and ulcers disappear; the nerves become strong as steel, so that nervousness, bashfulness and despondency disappear; the eyes become bright, the face full and clear, energy returns to the body, and the moral, physical and sexual systems are invigorated; all drains cease—no more vital waste from the system. The Monarch Consolidated Gold & Copper Mining and Smelting Company

of BOULDER, COLORADO

Solicits the co-operation of reputable men in providing means for the thorough and rapid development of two large gold and copper mining claims, which are second to none in intrinsic value, and to this end extends every opportunity for determination as to whether or not any statements made by the company are true or false.

The proposition, when developed will pay no less than 50 per cent. per annum on the investment, and it behooves anyone who wishes to better his financial condition, to give immediate attention to this.

Full particulars in every detail will be given to all to whom such a proposition may appeal, but please do not ask for them unless you really are interested, because we waste your own time and ours also.

Capital $1,000,000, 500,000 Shares in Treasury

Property includes two great mining estates—one gold, the other copper—both containing wide, deep, proven veins of high and low grade ore.

Development work has been systematically carried on, with results that more than justify every claim made by the company, and unquestionably proves the destiny of the property to equal that of the greatest successful mining companies of the world.

Above Statement Can be Easily Verified

The following two facts alone will give anyone familiar with mining a rough idea of the great value of the property.

The Copper King Group contains one vein 30 feet wide, 8 feet of which runs from $10 to $100 per ton, and the Company owns 9,000 feet on this vein.

Ore running from $18 to $50 per ton is continually being shipped from the gold property, and 94 samples taken from widely different portions of the vein system averaged $38.25 per ton.

FACILITIES—The Company owns 1,720 acres of placer and timber land, water power of 50 (minimum) horse power. No expensive shaft work necessary. Ore easily treated on Company's property, thus saving freight and smelter charges.

DIVIDENDS—To begin earning and paying large dividends it is only necessary to erect two 50 ton mills, one on each property. To obtain funds for this purpose a limited amount of stock is offered at

LORD BRASSEY MAKES A PROTEST

Against Ritualistic Practices in the Church of England

EMIGRATION DURING APRIL

Russian Emigrants hear of Russo-Japanes War when Sailing

London, May 8.—At a Church of England League meeting Lord Brassey said that while the members of the League were large in their views, the protested against the action of those who while remaining members of a Protestant communion were introducing into the church ritual which offended, and justly offended, the views of those who conscientiously believed in the necessity of the Reformation. If these ceremonies had any deep meaning, they implied acceptance of the doctrine of the Roman Catholic church. If they had not that meaning, they gratuitously and unnecessarily gave offense.

EMIGRATION RETURNS.

The following are the emigration returns for the month of April: English, 7699; Irish, 487; Scotch, 2280; foreigners, 2380. These returns include the first class passengers. The rush to Canada continues. The steamship companies are now advertising that many steamers to sail have a full passenger list.

EMIGRANTS WERE SLOW.

Some Russians emigrants, on the point of departure for Canada heard for the first time that their country was at war.

Mr. James Thompson, who just arrived from England, has something to say regarding the conditions in rural England. He was of the opinion that agriculture in the counties of the old land was a thing of the past owing to the difficulty in keeping the young men at work on the farms. The big manufacturing centers were drawing the youth of the country to them and while the cities were crowded rural England was given over to the aged and infirm. This had been going on for years with the result that in the country districts it was almost next to impossible to secure help to work on the farms.

Mr. Thompson said that the problem of repopulating the rural districts was agitating the minds of the public men of the country, but no satisfactory solution of that problem had yet been arrived at. It was not to be expected that the young Englishman would stay on a farm and work for twelve shillings a week, when he could double that money by going to the manufacturing centres.

The great impetus that had been given to Canadian immigration of late years was due to the fact that the young men of the country were determined to cut loose from the old rut and launch out for themselves. Rural England today was deserted. Canada and the large cities were taking the cream of England's youth and the future of the agriculture of the old land was not one of favorable prospect.

Sydney, C.B., May 9.—Newfoundland advices give details of the Knowling expedition's journey from St. George to Gleanwood by way of Cormack's track, as one equalling the terrible experience of the Hubbard party in Labrador.

From the beginning of the journey the party trudged through mountains of snow, sinking at every step to a great depth, notwithstanding that each member of the party wore snowshoes.

Thus they traveled for weeks. Their dogs gave out frequently. Food ran short after the first ten days, and it was seldom that anything could be shot to sustain and hungry men and dogs. Owing to continuous snow storms the guides were unable to get their bearing and frequently wished to be allowed to retrace their steps.

Mr. Knowling would not turn back. Then came those awful signs of approaching starvation. Driven to desperation the Indian guides killed one of their dogs and ravenously ate the meat.

The supply of tea ran short early in the trip, so the party had to drink a mixture made from steeped bark and leaves.

After three weeks of terrible privations Mr. M. C Whirter, who accompanied Mr. Knowling, discovered that they were at the head of Gander River. By that time the members of the party were so exhausted that leaving their outfits behind they made a dash to Glenwood. They were met by woodsmen who gave them assistance and food. They could not have stood the hunger and distress many hours longer. On arrival at Greenwood the party were soon restored to their usual health.

London, May 6—It is hoped here that official action will be taken upon a suggestion which Mr. Griffith, the Canadian Government secretary, made at yesterday's meeting of the Society of Arts at which Lord Brassey presided. Mr. Griffith reminded the meeting that the British Government was lending the Cunard Company £2,600,000 sterling at 2 3-4 per cent. for a fast Atlantic service. The reasons were, he added, equally as strong why a similar loan should be made to Canada or some authoritative Canadian corporation for an Anglo-Canadian fast service comparable with the Cunard line.

Lord Brassey strongly supported the suggestion from the naval standpoint.

Mr. Griffith also urged the desirability in the interests of the Empire, that the British Government give state transportation to the Colonies of such British unemployed as the Colonial Governments accept as suitable.

KEEP CRIMES ACT IN FORCE

British Legislators Refuse to Repeal Law Affecting Ireland

London, May 9.—The House of Commons tonight, by a vote of 197 to 124, rejected a resolution in favor of the repeal of the Irish Crimes Act. George Wyndham, chief secretary to Ireland, in opposing the motion, confessed that nothing could justify the anticipation of a recrudescence of social disorders in Ireland, but he said that the repeal of the crimes act could only do harm by reviving the angry passions now laid at rest.

John Redmond, leader of the Irish party, expressed extreme dissatisfaction with Secretary Wyndham's statement, which, he declared, would lead the Irish people, if they had the means, into open rebellion.

NEW YORK STREETS.

HOW SOME OF THE OLD ONES GAINED THEIR NAMES.

Trinity Church Had More to Do With Bestowing Them Than All Other Authorities Combined—The Reason Broadway Killed Hudson Street.

The churchwardens of old Trinity church had more to do with naming the streets in the lower part of old New York than all other authorities combined. To be sure, the quaint burgomasters, before the first Trinity church was built, after hearing the pros and cons of landowners, found names for many streets significant of certain established facts, for streets and byways below Maiden lane on the easterly side of the Meere straat, afterward changed to Great George street, in honor of King George, by the authorities of Trinity. Then our patriots ignored the name and called it Bloomingdale road and then the Broad way, simplified into Broadway.

The present Trinity church, at the head of Wall street, is the third edifice of that name, the two preceding structures erected upon the same ground having been burned, but the first was one of the first churches erected in this city, and Trinity has always been the wealthiest corporation, patronized by the richest and most influential families for ages. The churchwardens of this church had their own way about naming the streets from the church to what is now Twenty-third street, west of Broadway, along the Hudson river front, because they owned that immense property.

In the olden time Queen Anne of England owned what was known as the Queen's farm, which covered the land commencing at St. Paul's church and extending to what is now Twenty-third street, bounded by Broadway on the east and the Hudson river on the west.

Vestry street was so styled by Trinity because the church had a vestry in that street between Hudson and Greenwich streets. Church street was so called because it bounded the west side of St. Paul's churchyard. Rector street was honored by the residence of the rector of Trinity. Barclay and Vesey streets were named after two clergymen of the church.

Trinity's officers determined that the main artery of the city should run through its land, and, grounded in their belief in their ability to carry out their intention, Hudson street was laid out. St. John's park and many other improvements were offered as inducements to purchasers of land, and St John's chapel was erected and finished in 1808, one of the handsomest pieces of church architecture in the city. Trinity counted without an expression of the majority of the people and failed in its endeavor.

The arrogance of the church fretted the good people, and more to spite the churchwardens than because Broadway was nearer the center of the city Broadway acquired the preference, and the glory of Hudson street departed, never to return.

It has been remarked that the streets laid out by Trinity on the farm are all perfectly straight, while many in the lower part of the city are wonderfully crooked. The explanation of this lies in the fact that scarcely a small hill existed on the farm, while below there crooked lanes and byways, to say nothing of cow paths, were turned into streets, which ran in devious ways around hills, valleys and swamps. Many streets were named after the owners of property adjacent to or through which the ways were laid.

Moore street was originally the line of the first wharf erected in the city. Colonel Moore was formerly a large owner of the lots when first built upon. John street was named after John Harpending, who resided in Broadway, and John street when first laid out passed through his garden. Cortlandt, Dey and Beekman streets were carried through the property of the men after whom they were named. Ann street was named after Ann Beekman. Vandewater, Roosevelt, Rutgers, Gouverneur, Harrison, Lispenard, Bayard, De Lancey, Rivington and Willet streets were so designated because they passed through the property of people bearing these names.

Hester street was named after one of the Bayard family and Catharine after Catharine Rutgers. Henry street was named after a son of the Rutgers family, and Jacob street bounded the Jacob Leisler estate. Frankfort street was also a boundary of the same estate. Leisler was a native of Frankfurt. James street was named after a member of the De Lancey family; as was also Oliver street. Batavia lane was so called because the Roosevelt estate, through which this street was run, was called New Batavia.

Division street was originally the division line between the De Lancey and Rutgers farms. Leonard street was named after one of the Lispenards, and Orchard street was cut through the orchard of the De Lancey farm. Sheriff street was called after Sheriff Willett, through whose estate it was carried. Mangin and Goerck streets were named after the two city surveyors who laid out the river line.

The first mayor of New York after the Revolution, a true patriot, was James Duane, who was honored by the naming of Duane street after him.

Elm, Orange and Mulberry streets were laid out through public property in the vicinity of the Collect pond and owe their names to the peculiarities they suggest. Cherry street was originally run through "the road by the cherry trees" and named accordingly.

Rogues differ little. Each began as a disobedient son.—Chinese Proverb.

She—I am going to give you back our engagement ring. I can never marry you; I love another. He—Give me his name and address. She—Do you want to kill him? He—No; I want to try to sell him the ring.

A BUSINESS MAN'S LETTER.

Wm. Thomson, Esq., of Orillia, Vice-President Standard Chemical Company of Toronto, Tells of a Visit to the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives.

GREATLY IMPRESSED WITH WORK BEING DONE.

Personally Raises Several Hundred Dollars to Help Lessen the Load of Debt.

There can be little doubt that the National Sanitarium Association is handicapped in its great work for Consumptives in the fact that its two institutions in Muskoka are far away from any large centre of population. Few people have an opportunity to see for themselves the magnificent work that is being done.

These hospitals are away from the public eye. Any, however, who do visit them, are united in their commendation of the splendid appointments of the place, and, best of all, of the real joy and hope that is being brought to many suffering ones.

We are glad to have the opportunity of publishing the following letter from Mr. Wm. Thomson, of Orillia, one of Canada's best known lumbermen, which tells what he has seen himself. It reads:

Orillia, Ont., November 2, 1906.

W. J. Gage, Esq.,
Chairman Executive Committee
National Sanitarium Association,
Toronto, Ont.

My Dear Mr. Gage,—

I have much pleasure in enclosing herewith cheque for One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) from the Tudhope Carriage Company of Orillia, a donation to the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. Please acknowledge this to the Tudhope Carriage Company in the usual way.

I have written to a number of my friends, to try and get them interested in this good work. I hope to be able to send you further donations. I have written my friends a personal letter, something similar to the following:

"Last week I paid a visit to the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. I met some of the management there, and promised to try and interest some of my friends in this work.

"I might say there were 49 patients there last week, all poor people, most of them without a dollar in the world, and suffering from the dreadful disease, Consumption. There are many sad stories, and I know I have thought a great deal about the work of the institution ever since my visit there. I do believe it is worthy of assistance, and we who have health and the necessaries of life should encourage this work along.

"I understand the expenses lately have been double the income, and unless the management meet with more encouragement, I am afraid the work will have to be curtailed. I know you have many calls, but I do wish you would give this matter a thought, and, if possible, assist. I have written to two or three confidentially, and hope to be able to collect some more for this work. Should you not feel like contributing a donation, remember this request, and your reply is just between you and me, and strictly confidential.

"I might mention, to show that I have confidence in the work, I have already given a donation of $100.00 and two row boats to the Free Hospital this year, and intend to give another $100.00 before the end of the year."

Sincerely yours,

Wm Thomson

Sir Wm. R. Meredith, Kt., or Mr. W. J. Gage, Toronto, will receive and acknowledge any contributions made.

Good Reason.

A school inspector, explaining to his class that the land of the world was not continuous, said to the boy who happened to be standing nearest to him:

"Now, could your father walk round the world?"

"No, sir," was the prompt reply.

"Why not?"

"Because he's broken his leg," was the altogether unlooked for response.—Chums.

On the Other Hand.

Lawyer—Your case would have been stronger, Mr. McGuire, if you had acted only on the defensive, but you struck first. If you had let him strike you first you would have had the law on your side. Mr. McGuire—Yis, Oi'd had th' law on my soide, but Oi'd 'a' had him on my chest a-poundin' th' loife out av me.

Very Versatile.

Stage Manager—I think you are a trifle too stout to play Romeo. Heavy Tragedian—Why, my good man, I could play the part of an infant in arms! Art has no limitations, sir.

Physicians are constantly discovering some popular pastime or mode of attire that injures health. But the average of human life remains about the same.—Washington Star.

THE TONAPAH CROWN MINING CO.

Incorporated under the laws of the Territory of Arizona.

All stock fully paid and non-assessable

No personal liability to stockholders.

CAPITAL $1,500,000

IN TREASURY, 856,000 SHARES

Par value of shares $1.00 each.

The attention of all mining men is attracted to Tonapah and vicinity. The great finds which have been discovered in Lone Mountain, only a few miles distant, are to the investor still more attractive. Here we have value from the start. The Tonapah Crown Mining Company's ledges are plainly in sight for a distance of over 3000 feet.

We are bounded by such properties as the "Tamblyn," which ore assays from $950 to $1500 to the ton: Lynch & Omeara's "Alpine," which is producing $30,000 per month; the "Lone Star" group and the "Princess Maud."

You Should Invest With Us

BECAUSE—The majority of the stock is in the treasury, 856,000 shares.

BECAUSE—The Company is managed by successful business men. They are Cyrus Wheeler, W. H. Routz, F. F. Hoard, F. A. King and C. A. Messing, all of Los Angeles.

BECAUSE—No preferred stock: therefore every one is on an equal footing

BECAUSE—We are selling our stock at a low rate now so we can put a large force of men to work and make shipments of ore just as soon as the railroad; now building, shall have been completed.

Thirty miles of this railroad is already graded and the road will be in operation by May 15.

A Gold Mining Co. Stock in a Gold Mine at 10 Cents per Share Par Value $1.00 per Share

THE COSTILLA GOLD MINING COMPANY

Has 10 Gold-bearing Veins Exposed

90 Acres in a Solid Block and All Patented

Crosscut Driven 117 feet to the First Big Vein

A drift run on the vein 178 FEET IN ORE, the Gold value or contents running from 2 to 8 ounces, per ton, or from $40 to $160. This ore has not been stoped and will not be until the main shoot is reached.

The breast of the drift is, only 52 feet, according to engineer's survey, from the first BIG vertical ore shoot, which, at the surface, 550 feet above, shows values of 2 to 7 ounces gold, per ton.

Slabs and feeders of gold ore are coming in freely in the drift.

This is a business proposition. It is the KIND AND QUALITY which makes for great and permanent success. It is worth an investment of 10c. on the dollar, per share, now. It will be worth par with development.

Lung, Throat and Catarrhal Troubles

Cold in the Head Cured Quickly if You Breathe Fragrant, Healing

Catarrhozone

The ordinary method of treating catarrh by the stomach is a very indirect way and, as experience has demonstrated, a very useless method to employ.

Fragrant, healing Catarrhozone, is breathed the air, laden with minute particles of this healing balsamic liquid, spreads itself over the whole area of inflammation.

It reaches the very root of disease instantly destroying by its antiseptic properties the germ life which excites and maintains the disease. Its soothing and healing action is at once apparent to the whole diseased surfaces. It cures quickly and it cures permanently.

We affirm that no proprietory medicine has ever brought forth from the people as many voluntary testimonials as Catarrhozone has received.

MRS. M. J. WHITNEY, Clay Street, Topeka, Kan., was cured of nasal catarrh, and say, "I owe Catarrhozone an immense debt of gratitude. It cured me of the most disagreeable catarrh after many doctors had pronounced my case incurable. I do not cough any more, my breath is sweet, and my respiration regular since using Catarrhozone.'

MRS. JAMES TWEEDIE, of Jay Bridge, says; "For years my daughter doctored for catarrh. She had dropping in the throat, hawking, nausea, and could not sleep at night. The first days use of Catarrhozone benefitted and it cured so the catarrh never returned.'

MR. R. SHELDON, of Leamington, Ont., says; "For two years I unsuccessfully sought a remedy to cure my son of catarrh but permanent results were not attained until Catarrhozone was used. It cured my little boy like magic and he has been quite free from catarrh ever since.'

REV. D. R. SMITH, of Whitehead, N.S., says; "Catarrhozone permanently cured me of chrollic catarrh of the nose and throat from which I suffered for many years, I heartily recommend Catarrhozone.'

MR. R. McCALLUM, of Spring Brook, Ont., says; "A sample of Catarrhozone benefitted me more than years of treatment with doctors, and by using the dollar outfit I was completely cured in a few weeks. I recommend Catarrhozone as the most satisfactory cure for catarrh on the market. Every word said for it is true.'

MR. S. T. WRIGHT of Skeads Mills Ont., says; "I had a bad attack of sore throat, with inflamed tonsils and sore chest. I inhaled Catarrhozone and it cured my trouble. I greatly admire its pleasant and soothing effect.'

MR. JAMES FERGUSON, of Perth, Ont., writes;—"I have used Catarrhozone for sore throat and cold in the head and find it is a good remedy. I highly recommend it.'

MISS CLARA B. COLBY, of London, Ont., writes;—"I had a continuous cold in the head for years, and never used anything giving such quick results as Catarrhozone. I am delighted at last to find a remedy that positively cures colds. I strongly advocate Catarrhozone; it cures every time.'

Catarrhozone cures without drugs and disagreeable medicine. It is Nature's cure—soothing, healing and pleasant to use. You simply inhale the medicated vapor of Catarrhozone through a Catarrhozone Inabler and get cured quickly. Two months treatment costs only one dollar. It can be sent by mail and used right at home any time during the night or day. Sold by druggists or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., or Hartford, Conn, U.S.A.

Brown, of Silverton, Colo., who is paying a flying visit to the Peterborough office of this progressive company, of which Mr. Brown is the head. Mr. Brown leaves today for the west, accompanied as far as Toronto by Mr. Robert Harrison, agent of the company in Canada.

Almost Finished

The new wing to Mount St. Joseph the mother house of the Community of St. Joseph, is now about finished. The new chapel is now at present being used for the Community services, and the formal opening will take place at an early date. It is understood that it is the intention of each of the Catholic societies in town to place a window in the new structure, which promises, when fully completed to be a credit not only to the diocese, but the good Sisters in charge.

Leased Jubilee Point

Mr. J. J. Gilman, Jr., of Rochester, has leased Jubilee Point Hotel for the season. Mr. and Mrs. Gilman go down tomorrow to take possession. Mr. Gilman was a former resident of this place, but has been living in Rochester, where both he and his wife acquired considerable knowledge catering to the public in the boarding house business. Their friends in town will be pleased to visit them as host and hostess of the popular Jubilee Point Hotel and summer resort.

Want Industries

The Petrie Manufacturing Co. of Guelph, are looking for a site. Their proposition is to issue bonds for $60,000 bearing 4 per cent. interest and to run for a period of 20 years. These bonds are to be first on the entire plant that they shall erect, and they ask the corporation to guarantee payment of these bonds and interest. They are also asking them to pay the interest on the bonds for five years, to give exemption from taxes and free water for ten years and to fix the assessment for another ten years. After five years they would pay the interest on the bonds, and also pay $4000 each year on the principal, so that when the bonds matured they would all be paid.

Have 50 Islands for Sale

Barring Stony Lake, very few islands are scattered along the Kawartha chain of waters, and most of them are already the property of private individuals. What is probably the last opportunity to secure one of the few remaining spots where a man may, if he so chooses, imitate Alexander Selkirk, and "Be monarch of all he surveys," is afforded in the public notice issued by the Department of Indian Affairs, Ottawa, announcing that tenders will be received until Wednesday, May 18th, for the following islands situate in Peterborough County; Nos. 74 and 108 in Stony Lake, Dummer Township; Nos. 2 and 3, in Pigeon Lake, situated in Harvey Township; No. 7, Buckhorn Lake, Harvey Township. Wm. McFarlane, Indian agent, Keene, will furnish information. There should be brisk competition, the supply being limited.

ONE GOOD REASON

Why the Trenton Route Should Be Chosen for Canal.

The following from the Cobourg Post shows the dangers of navigation between Port Hope eastward, and is one of the reasons why the canal should be at Trenton:

Saturday last a heavy fog hung on the lake which caused navigation to be very dangerous. The steamer Corsican came in early in the morning and after discharging a quantity of freight proceeded on down the lake. About half an hour after the Corsican returned and remained until late in the afternoon when another attempt was made to proceed down the lake, but about six o'clock the captain again returned to port.

The distracting headaches from which so many women suffer make life a daily purgatory. If men suffered with headache as women do, business would be almost at a standstill. Does not the fact that men do not suffer from these severe headaches suggest that there must be a womanly cause for them?

When the womanly organism is diseased, headache, backache, nervousness and sleeplessness are consequences which are sure to follow.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures headaches and other aches and pains by curing their cause. It establishes regularity, dries unhealthy drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It soothes pain and builds up the nerves. It transforms weak, sickly, nervous invalids into happy, healthy women. Thousands have testified to its marvelous merits.

"I took two bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' and two of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and am feeling well," writes Mrs. Dan McKenzie, of Lorway Mines, Cape Breton Co., Nova Scotia. "I had uterine trouble, pain in the side and headache. After taking your medicines I got well. You may publish this or use it in any way you think best, as I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Pierce and his medicines."

"Favorite Prescription" has the testimony of thousands of women to its complete cure of womanly diseases. Do not accept an unknown and unproved substitute in its place.

FREE. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay for customs and mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 50 stamps for the cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

THREE SWELL RIGS

Added to the Equipment of Mr. F. L. Robinson's Livery Stable

A handsome addition has been made to the finely-equipped livery stables of Dr. F. L. Robinson. On Saturday he received two magnificent hacks and a Victoria, and the addition has made his livery stable complete, and is one of the finest in the city. The hacks were made by Matthew Guy, of Toronto, and are perfect in every particular. The interiors are beautifully upholstered. The finishings are of brass, and the body is painted black, with a carmine stripe. The Victoria, which was made by Mr. John Dickson, of Toronto, is elegantly finished inside with Morocco leather and silver finishings. The body is black with a carmine stripe. All the vehicles have rubber tired wheels, and are finished with the idea of giving the greatest comfort to the occupants.

Dr. Robinson is a very energetic liveryman and intends to have none but the best in his business.

NEW CHURCHES IN PROSPECT

One at North Bay and Another at Verner in New Ontario

Bobcaygeon Independent: Bishop O'Connor, of Peterborough, is evidently looking after the Catholic interests of New Ontario, and is not short of funds for church work. A new church is in course of erection in North Bay, which will cost when completed over $50,000; a new Catholic school will be built in the same town this season, the cost and equipment of which will amount to at least $13,000. His lordship considered recently the tenders for a new church at Verner, which will cost $30,000, and which will be built this summer. The Catholics of Sudbury intend building a new parish hall and meeting place of societies. New churches are also to be built at Powassen and South River, and the churches at Warren and Blind River are to be enlarged and improved.

NOT AN IMPROVEMENT

To the Editor of The Times:

Sir,—I notice the carpet has been removed from the ladies' waiting room at the C.P.R. station, and the floor painted instead. I, like many other Peterborough citizens, have always had a feeling of pride in the way the C.P.R. station has been kept. Mr. Dodd, the efficient local agent of the company, has destroyed the handsome ladies' parlor by removing the carpet. Of course the floor has been painted, which gives it the appearance of a kitchen, and makes it no better than the men's waiting room at the other end of the building.

Now, Mr. Editor, I would like, through you paper, to suggest to Mr. Dodd that the carpet be relaid, so as to preserve the good appearance of the room.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I remain

Yours, &c.,
CITIZEN.

The anniversary gathering in St. Andrew's church last night was of special interest, and drew a large audience.

A splendid program of music was rendered by the choir, under the capable leadership of Mr. Alf. E. Young.

CARRIAGE SHOP GUTTED

Fitzgerald & Co., Carriage Builders, Meet With Loss

Shortly after four o'clock yesterday morning a fire broke out in the carriage works of Messrs. Fitzgerald & Co., Brock street. The fire was discovered by the man in Mr. R. H. Leary's livery, and he sent out an alarm. The blaze was then bursting through the windows, and had obtained a good foothold. Upon the arrival of the brigade three streams were turned on, and it was by a close shave that the Canadian Canoe Company's premises were saved from devastation. The destruction in the carriage shop is almost complete, especially on the ground floor. Some rigs in the warerooom adjoining the workshop were badly scorched before they could be removed, and some new tops, cushions and trimmings were damaged. The blacksmith shop was hardly touched, but on the second floor a large number of new carriage wheels have been destroyed. Fortunately the show room was separated from the factory by a fire-proof door beyond which the fire did not go.

No positive proof is evident, as to the origin of the fire, but Mr. George Fitzgerald states that it is of incendiary. He was in the shop at three o'clock on Sunday afternoon, and there was not a spark of fire on the premises. He had $2,000 insurance on the part destroyed, but states that this will not cover his loss.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

WHOSE WIRE-PULLING

Mr. Stevenson replied that there would not be so much of this sort of thing were there not a good deal of wire-pulling. The Board meets to discuss some important measure, and immediately some one produces from his pocket a resolution already prepared, which he expects to be carried forthwith. He did not approve of that way of doing business.

WHAT WILL IT COST.

Chairman J. J. Hartley thought the committee should ascertain the cost of the building before submitting plans to the department. Mr. Belcher had fixed the approximate cost of a building from the present plans at $38,000.

Mr. Fair—"An approximate figure is a very wide one. We should get a fairly accurate price set before going any further."

Mr. Stevenson—"The Board should decide first whether they are satisfied with the present plans. They look all right from one point of view, showing the two wings, they appear squatty." He did not think a building from these plans could be erected for less than $50,000; in fact one contractor had told him it could not be constructed for even that sum.

The Board adjourned it being understood that the committee will get estimates on the proposed building before submitting the plans to the Department.

Untold Suffering for the Entire Population of Manchuria

London, May 11.—Port Arthur is evidently left to take care of itself, for the Russian troops are retreating northward. They have been driven out of Feng Wang Cheng and are hurriedly evacuating New Chwang without waiting to be driven out. Meanwhile the two Japanese forces landed on the peninsula are rapidly nearing Port Arthur, and on Saturday captured Dalny, which is a new town of considerable importance, only about twenty-five miles from the Russian stronghold. Completely isolated by land and sea, "the Gibraltar of the Far East" might as well be non-existent for all the use it now is to Russia. The authorities at St. Petersburg have evidently arrived at the conclusion that the army in Manchuria is not equal to the task demanded of it, for an order has been issued for the mobilization of the reserves. It will probably turn out much easier to send reinforcements to Manchuria than to feed them when they are there. The native population is threatened with famine this summer, and it is even stated that food is scarce at the Russian base Mukden, where the troops are living on bean cakes. A big battle is expected to take place at Liao Yang, and it is said that if General Kuropatkin is beaten there, "the war will be interminable, because Russia will send her last man and spend her last kopeck to recover her lost prestige." This sounds rather imposing, but if famine conditions prevail in Manchuria in summer what will be the state of affairs in winter with a vastly increased army in the field and the whole population, native and Russian, civil and military, dependent upon a single railway track for all their supplies, and that railway track in constant danger of obstruction?

Sir Henry M. Stanley Dead

Famous African Explorer Succumbs to Pleurisy in London, England

London, May 10.—Sir Henry M. Stanley, the African explorer, passed away peacefully shortly after six o'clock this morning. He was quite conscious to the last, and able to recognize his wife.

Before he died, Sir Henry expressed a wish to be buried at his country seat, Furze Hill, Firbright. The question, however, is being discussed of burying him beside Livingstone.

MILESTONES IN HIS LIFE.

Adopted by Mr. Stanley, whose name he took, 1859.

Fought in Confederate Army and taken prisoner at Pittsburg, April, 1862.

Began work for New York Herald as war correspondent, 1867.

Reached Zanzibar on his search for Dr. Livingstone, January 6, 1871.

DALNY STILL HELD BY THE RUSSIANS

Shan-Hai-Kwan, May 10.—It is reported that the first Japanese army corps, having followed the Russians retreating from the Yalu River, overtook them twenty miles south of Liao-Yang yesterday, and a severe engagement ensued. The Japanese dragged their guns up hills believed to be insurmountable. The Russians thereupon continued to retreat north.

A division of the first corps is approaching New Chwang, which is now garrisoned by a handful of Russians. Japanese scouts have been seen six miles from New-Chwang.

REPORT DENIED.

St. Petersburg, May 10.—A semi-official despatch from Mukden today denies the reports that the Japanese have captured Port Dalny.

Mukden, May 9.—Japanese patrols from Feng-Wang-Cheng, have been observed in the direction of Yangyo.

A small Japanese detachment of infantry and cavalry has occupied Kwan-Tien-Shen.

The railway station at Ba-Fian-Diam has been occupied by Russian troops.

THE RAILWAY REPAIRED.

St. Petersburg, May 10.—Although it is hardly credited here, (as it is known that General Kuropatkin is withdrawing his advance posts along the Manchuria littoral on Liao-Yang) it is announced this morning from Mukden that the railway between Port Arthur and Liao-Yang has been repaired, and is working.

STILL HOLD NEW-CHWANG.

Hai-Cheng, north of New-Chwang, is already reported to have been evacuated, but there is nothing official on this point. The Russian garrison still remains at New-Chwang, but the abandonment of that place is only considered to be a question of days.

The army organ assumes that the Russians are retiring from Liao-Yang, leaving "temporarily" the defence of Port Arthur to the naval squadron and garrison. The organ also assumes that the Japanese have already landed at Taku-Shen (west of the Yalu River), thus assuring a junction between Gen. Kuroki's army and the Japanese forces on the peninsula.

BELIEVE IN KUROPATKIN.

There is a complete absence of official information. The authorities are as silent as the grave concerning Gen. Kuropatkin's plans, only declaring that his tactics will be vindicated.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN STILL THE FACTOR

His Influnce in British Politics Continous to be dominant

REASONS FOR HIS HOLIDAY

He Retired From the Field to Allow the Premier a Free Hand

London, May 11—Mr. Chamberlain's presence is perceptibly quickening English politics. When first he announced his postponement until the autumn of many political speeches caused it to be bruited abroad that he was really a broken man, disheartened by the difficulties of displacing free trade, and physically unable to bear the strain of political campaigning. "Chamberlain is as good as dead," was the comment of his enemies, and even his friends felt depressed. But it has been evident enough this week that Chamberlain is very much alive and that Mr. Chamberlain himself is as egotistically active as ever, though for tactical reasons he leaves the front of the stage clear for Mr. Balfour.

REASON FOR THE HOLIDAY.

Indeed it is safe to say that politics far more than health was the reason of Mr. Chamberlain's two months' absolute divorce from public life. He needed a holiday, certainly, after nine years in harness, but even more did he desire to remove from the political arena the one element, namely, himself, which split Unionism sunder, and placed the ministry of Balfour and his son, Austin, in daily peril of dissolution. Hence the holiday. With Mr. Chamberlain absent other problems, such as the Chinese labor question, education, the budget and even Home Rule supplanted the fiscal question in the public thought, and brought the great body of Ministerialists into line again.

ITS RESULTS.

Yesterday, Mr. Balfour, in addressing the Primrose League, was able to boast complacently over recent dissolution feats. Mr. Chamberlain's holiday saved the ministry. Now that he has come back he means business. Already three-fourths of the ministerialists are Chamberlainites, who are supporting Mr. Balfour as a temporary partiment, as indeed does Mr. Chamberlain himself. The hesitating one-fourth will receive no quarter. Free Traders, Mr. Chamberlain knows Radicals he knows, but he tells his friends that he will neither know nor make terms with free food unionists.

He and his powerful electoral organization will fight them unsparingly. In his own words, he has got out to purge the Unionist party, that is to rid it of its Winston Churchills, its Hugh Cecils, its Ritchies, and even its Devonshires. It is a big undertaking, but one in which Mr. Balfour will, when the time comes, co-operate, and if the result be success Mr. Balfour and not Mr. Chamberlain, will be Prime Minister, that is quite settled.

GRAVE DANGER IN CHINA

Russian Authorities Fear That Outbreak May Be Precipitated

St. Petersburg, May 10—The effect of the disaster to Russian arms on the Yalu upon the Chinese is being watched with keen interest and considerable apprehension. The Russian government appears to be satisfied with the situation for the moment, and Paul Lessar, the Russian minister at Pekin, is making daily reports to the foreign office. The report received from the minister to-day contained nothing disquieting.

The Pekin government, according to Russian report, seems to be acting in perfect good faith and insists that it is intent upon preserving neutrality. It is turning a deaf ear to to appeals of anti-Russian leaders, who want China to throw in her lot with Japan, and is doing all possible to suppress anti-foreign agitation among the people.

Nevertheless the Russian authorities regard China as a powder magazine. They realize the danger inherent in the situation and the necessity for constant pressure on the Pekin government.

The danger of an anti-foreign movement throughout the Chinese empire exists not only for Russia but for all the powers, and Russia has at least three times since the outbreak of subject, the last time being less subject, the last time being less than ten days ago. The answers received uniformly show a full appreciation of the need of exercising a restraining influence on Pekin and all the powers are co-operating to this end.

London, May 11—Englishmen slowly are bringing themselves to realize the possibly stupendous meaning of the Japanese victory on the Yalu. The Spectator classes it with the events which are marking the points of time. It says: "It provides precisely the concrete evidence to dissipate the pride of the white continent which three centuries of history seemed to justify. An Asiatic power now has arisen, which besides defeating a European war fleet is proving itself able to use three great armies of invasion, each sixty thousand strong, with careful provision and strategical skill, clinching the courage of armies directed by great masters of European warfare. This momentous fact diminishes the safety of every white power, including America, whose Philippines will be less defensible. What if Japan, a prey to ambition, and pressed by the inadequacy of her landed estate to her growing population, should inform France that Saimen must remain a dependency of China, or Germany, that Kiaochow had better be evacuated."

S o the Spectator spreads fears of a new yellow peril, more formidable to the white races than aything hitherto imagined. Bearing upon these alarms comes the significant announcement that the Chinese Dowager Empress has consented to be photographed. Her people may now worship the Imperial image as in Japan. A Japanese photographer has received orders to attend at the palace for this purpose. "Does not this," asks one writer, "indicate what the result of a Japanese victory will be, namely, the practical alliance of Japan and China? If we do not call this a yellow peril, at all events it will be a very serious and momentous change in the balance of power in Asia."

THIBETAN TROOPS TWICE DEFEATED

Col. Branders Dislodged Column of 1500 From Karo Pass

THIBETAN LOSS WAS HEAVY

Another Fight Took Place at Gyangtee British Loss in Both Slight

British Camp, Karo Pass, Thibet, May 11—A stiff fight Friday to drive the Thibetans from their positions two miles below the pass lasted six hours. The Thibetans, numbering 1,500, held their position with great tenacity and lost nearly 200 before they were expelled. The British losses were Captain Bethune and three men killed and 21 wounded. A snowstorm prevailed throughout the fight.

The British force was under the command of Colonel Branders and consisted of 300 rifles, the object being to dislodge the Thibetan party from a pass on the British line of supplies.

The force which Col. Branders had to dislodge had built strong defences in the hills, whence they were prepared to repel the attacking column with rocks. Col. Branders ordered a column of Ghurkas to outflank the force while the pioneers made a direct attack. The enemy resisted for two hours in spite of a heavy fire, and were at length driven out by a small body of pioneers who scaled the cliffs, which were twelve hundred feet high.

THE WORLDS GREAT NAVIES

Jeps Have Set New Standard for Naval Warfare

Naval Scrutiny Is Spirited and Higher Ideals Will Be Maintained

London, May 11—It is acknowledged here that the work of the Japanese navy in closing Port Arthur harbor culminated in a demonstration of heroism almost unrivalled in history. The glorious character of the achievement is acknowledged at the Russian Embassy as freely as at the British Admiralty. "Such deeds," said a high official of the Czar to a Daily Star correspondent, "transcends national and racial horizons and must be regarded as enriching the idealism of mankind." "Such deeds multiplied many times," is the verdict of British sailors. It is felt that the Japanese have set a new standard before the navies of the world. The prediction is heard that these acts will stimulate the officers and men of all the sea powers and tend to elevate naval warfare in the future to a plane of energy and daring hitherto rarely attained. It is pointed out that no element was looking to add to the peril and dramatic splendor of the blocking operations of the Japanese. They steamed at full speed into the face of mines, booms, machine guns, batteries and torpedoes in the midst of a raging sea. Behind, Admiral Togo was signalling the blocking detachment to abandon the task owing to the great odds against its success, but the men entrusted with the work never looked back. These deeds are causing those who prate of the "yellow peril," to speak more loudly than ever, but the average Briton seems to hold that the Japanese deserves to beat the slav because he has demonstrated his superiority in politics, social integrity, morals and brains.

BOARD OF HEALTH

A Short Meeting Was Held Yesterday Morning

A short meeting of the Board of Health was held yesterday morning in the Town Clerk's office. Messrs. W. Eyres, Dr. McNulty, G. Schneider and A. Parker were in attendance.

Owing to the absence of the chairman, Mr. Eyres was voted to the chair.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Dr. Bingham, M.H.O., reported that a cesspool has broken out on the surface of the ground near the House of Providence in Ashburnham, and that it was flowing down the field towards the street. The neighbors had complained of the nuisance, and he had no hesitation in saying that he considered it a very dangerous nuisance to the public and to the inmates of St. Joseph's Hospital.

Dr. McNulty said that the sisters secretary be instructed to write the Town Council regarding this nuisance, and a motion to this effect was made by Messrs. Eyres and Parker.

Mr. Eyres also suggested that a committee be appointed to look into the matter.

It was moved by Mr. Parker and seconded by Mr. Schneider, that a committee consisting of Mr. Eyres, Dr. McNulty and the Medical Health Officer, be appointed to go over and view the nuisance and take such steps as they deem necessary.

Several accounts were presented, but were laid over until the next meeting.

The Board then adjourned to meet at the call of the chairman.

HIGHER THAN FOR YEARS

The Assiniboine River on the Rampage at Brandon Manitoba.

BRIDGES ARE WEAKENED

People of Winnipeg Fear a Flood When the Water Reaches That Point

Winnipeg, Man., May 11—Considerable alarm has been occasioned in the city by the rapid rise of the water in the Assiniboine, coupled with the report that the Little Saskatchewan near Brandon, has changed its course and has made a channel from near Wheat Lands, reaching the Assiniboine in a turbulent fury at Minnie instead of following the usual circuitous course.

AT BRANDON.

Brandon, May 11—Not in twenty years has the Assiniboine been as high as now. It rose over three feet in 12 hours and is still rising steadily and rapidly. Already forty buildings are under water. The roadways on First and Eighteenth streets leading from the north side of the river are under water, and fears are entertained that the bridges on both highways will be washed away. Men employed by the city are on both bridges keeping the river clear of driftwood. Three of the leading butchers have feeding barns on the flats. The barns are now under water almost to the roofs. Knight & Fairar had fifty hogs and fifteen sheep washed away. Burchill & Howley succeeded in liberating their imprisoned stock, while Jas. Donaldson has nearly 150 hogs and sheep in the loft of his barn. They are safe as long as the barn stands, but the water is running at a terrific rate and the building may be lifted from its foundations at any time.

All residents—principally Galatians—living in what was considered the danger area were removed out of their houses, but the water rose higher, and early to-day others had to make hasty retreats. The banks of the river were lined with household goods. In some instances everything had to be left, and some of the people had to take to the roofs of their dwellings.

BRIDGES IN DANGER.

The bridge which crosses the Assiniboine is so weakened that trains cannot cross. In Hanbury's saw-mill were piled high heaps of slabs. These have all been washed away as has the summer supply of wood gathered by poor foreigners who lived on the flats. Many old settlers predict that the worst is not yet. Hundreds along the bank of the river are watching the rapid rise of the water. The water has risen so high that the waterworks pump is out of business, and the city is without fire protection.

A SUNDAY SPENT IN MONTREAL

Five Thousand Attended "Bullfight" in East End

BUT BULL WAS "DOPED."

And Thunders of Church and Civil Power were Not Needed at a Gigantic "Fake."

Montreal, May 9.—If Archbishop Bruchesi would have seen what a scoundrel fake the great Sunday bull-fight at the National lacrosse grounds was to be, and how admirably his parishioners would preserve their good humor and part with their good money, he would doubtless not have bothered to lament the archiepiscopal condemnation against those who attended it. Nor, could they have had the same fore-knowledge, of Provincial Police, McCaskell, that would the Citizens' League have wired Attorney-General Archambault that they would like to have the law observed — without specifying what the law was. Nor would the Attorney-General have wired to Chief he had received such a request, and that Chief of Police McCaskell would please do his duty—without at all specifying what that duty was. Nor would the S.P.C.A. have sent four plain-clothes officers to decide when the bull was being rendered uncomfortable. Nor very possibly, would 5,000 ladies and gentlemen of Montreal have gone, as they did go, to witness what they thought would be an injudicious imitation of the national sport of Spain.

THE BULL WAS OVER-DOPED.

For the ferocious beast was overdoped. Medical and surgical methods and red rage alike failed to restore him to an active interest in life and he regarded all things alike, as one dazed. The audience broke down the barriers, and one small boy reaped illimitable joy by twisting his tail. Finally the noble animal fell asleep on a large red ensign that had been used in an endeavor to rouse him to anger, and had to be prodded up and led away. Nemorous, the toreador, was at no moment in danger of anything worse than rotten eggs and the audience preserved the most extraordinary cheerfulness.

JAPANESE INTEND TO CAPTURE PORT ARTHUR IF POSSIBLE

Tokio, May 11—The general retreat of the Russians confirms Japanese opinion as to the dimensions of Kuropatkin's army in Manchuria. The Military Council has watched the mobilization of the Czar's forces unremittingly and in its opinion the Russian commander is not prepared to act actively with more than 100,000 men. It is stated that Alexieff up to the very last sought to intimidate the Japanese by throwing a line of troops over a vast reach of country and pretending that this deployment was supported by strong reserves, the number of which was hourly increasing.

The Mikado's advisers, however, preferred to accept the version of affairs supplied by its own Intelligence Department and laid its plans accordingly. There is a feeling growing in official quarters that the Russians intended to retire all along if they found the Japanese worthy antagonists. The fact that the Russian general awaited the demonstration of the mettle of the Mikado's land forces is regarded as a happy circumstance for the Japanese since it puts the Russians in the light of retreating compulsorily before the Islanders instead of falling back in accordance with a preconceived strategic scheme.

This aspect of the case helps the Japanese in Pekin and throughout Asia. It also aids them financially and politically.

Che Foo, May 11.—Returning from a cruise through the northern part of the Leothingdao channel a Daily Star correspondent is able to report that Port Arthur is now effectively blocked by twelve sunken vessels. The gallant flotilla which accomplished this feat advanced in three divisions under the direction of Commander Hayashi. Transports probably coming from Chinampo where they are believed to have been lying during the past fortnight began landing the second Japanese army, May 4, at Pitsewo, on the Kwan coast, about 50 miles north of Dalny. The naval brigade waded breast deep for 1,000 yards. The gun boats threatened the shore and shelled all the likely positions where Russian troops might have been concealed. The body of troops was landed and entrenched on the hills in remarkably quick time. Only 1,000 Russian soldiers were dis-retreated without making any resistance. About 10,000 men have already disembarked and 50,000 more will follow before May 15. Fighting is going forward daily on the peninsula and a successful attempt has been made to cut the railway near Port Adams.

Port Arthur is narrowly watched by a cordon of Japanese torpedo boats and an outer line of battleships. Other Japanese ships are patrolling the east coast for the purpose of protecting the transports. There is also a squadron in Society Bay which will co-operate with the land forces. The fall of Dalny is expected daily. The collapse of Port Arthur cannot be far off.

Apparently, the Japanese forces that crossed the Yalu and fought the battle of Chiu Ling Cheng are well inland for the Star correspondent was unable to discover any signs of activity from the mouth of the river in the vicinity of Tatungkao, where the despatch boat anchored. It is thought that the land and naval forces will join in a grand attack on Port Arthur within two weeks.

RUSSIAN FORCE SCATTERED.

St. Petersburg, May 11—Russians on every hand are asking despairingly what has become of their main army. The defeat on the Yalu, with its appalling casualty list, the evacuation of Feng Wang Cheng, the investment of Port Arthur and the streaming of the Japanese from the sea into Liao Tung Peninsula and Manchuria produces stupefaction. It is known that General Kuropatkin commands an active army of between 100,000 and 200,000 men. Intelligent Russians wonder why he does not use it. It is feared that he has foolishly scattered his forces over a great extent of territory, thus inviting the Japanese to cut up these small bodies and that concentration is now necessary to his salvation.

London, May 5.—Both Japanese and Russians officially announce the capture of the important junction point of Feng Wang Cheng. The despatch from Tokio is dated May 8 and is as follows:

"Gen. Kuroki, commandant of the first army corps, reports that on May 6th our cavalry detachment dispersed the enemy at Feng Wang Cheng, which was immediately occupied by our infantry detachment. The enemy burnt ammunition before evacuating the stronghold. Refugees of the enemy who have been hiding in the adjoining forest and villages, continue to come in and surrender.

"Natives say that the number of Russians who were carried on litters through Feng Wang Cheng on May 2 amounted to 500. It is believed that the total casualties of the enemy exceeded 3,000."

A St. Petersburg despatch states that General Kuropatkin has sent the following telegram, under date of May 7:

"Lieut.-General Sassulitch today reports that the enemy's cavalry and units of their advanced guard occupied Feng Wang Cheng today.

"Two companies and two squadrons of their force proceeded towards Dalnaiputzen. Our cavalry and units withdrew towards Schiendjisne.

"Scouts from Feng Wang Cheng report that two Japanese divisions advanced May 6 towards Feng Wang Cheng by the main road from Pianmin. A third division advancing by the valley of the Tho River occupied a position near Khundintutze and erected batteries to fire upon Feng Wang Cheng counting upon finding our troops there.

"The Japanese advanced slowly and very cautiously upon Feng Wang Cheng."

OPINIONS ON THE CANAL

The Belleville Intelligencer comments very sensibly upon the Trent Valley Canal and its prospective benefit as an avenue of commerce. Our contemporary has in mind the contribution that the canal promises to be of some advantage to the cities of western Canada, as well as the harbors on the southeastern side of Lake Ontario, and remarks:

"The canal was designed to be furnish a cheap route to tide water for grain grown in the great Northwest. Therefore, the nearer the outlet is to the St. Lawrence the better, and the smoother the water that the barges encounter the better. If Hamilton or Toronto received or despatched any freight via the Trent Canal a difference of some thirty-five miles would make little difference and the additional cost of transportation would be more than offset by the benefit which would accrue to the country through the generation of practically unlimited electric power on the Trent River were Trenton to be the terminus. That is the point in which Belleville and several other places are vitally interested. As to the trade with Oswego, Cape Vincent, or any of the American ports on the east half of the lake, they would find little, if any difference in transportation charges between Port Hope and Trenton, and, anyway, we are not doing much weeping about Yankee towns. They have a happy faculty of being able to look after themselves."

STILL THE BAYONET

The fighting on the Yalu was signalized by the reappearance of the bayonet, which in modern warfare has come to be considered as useful as an intrenching tool or a culinary utensil, but of little use as a weapon. Gen. Kuropatkin reports that the Japanese infantry "under our fire made continual bayonet attacks on our troops." He also reports that a battalion of the Eleventh (Russian) Regiment, "advanced with fixed bayonets, preceded by buglers, to clear a passage," and that "the Japanese declined a hand-to-hand conflict and recoiled," adding that "it was only by advancing on the Japanese with the bayonet that the regiment was able to retire."

These are strange tales to be told of modern warfare but they are neither incredible nor inconsistent. The General had already explained that the Russian infantry had abandoned the battery upon which the Japanese charged. The cannoneers were doubtless unarmed, and to attack them with the bayonet was the most obvious thing to do when once the assailants had come up close to the guns. A bayonet can "repeat much faster and oftener even than a modern magazine rifle. Bayoneting the gunners was an equivalent operation, for infantry, to "sabring the gunners" in Tennyson's account of the charge of the Light Brigade at Balaklava. Also it is compatible with the "recoil of other Japanese when the Russian battalion advanced upon them with fixed bayonets. A bayonet charge, like a cavalry charge, is an affair of momentum. The Russians being bigger and heavier men than the Japanese would have the advantage in this, and the Japanese would naturally decline a hand-to-hand conflict," preferring to "retire and pepper the advancing column with musketry fire. All the same, a man hurt in modern war so seldom sees his enemy or knows what hits him that these hand-to-hand conflicts have an old-fashioned, almost a Homeric effect in the recital.

SECURING PURE MILK

The Hamilton Board of Health has under consideration the delivery of milk in bottles. Very properly the medical health officer called attention to the fact that absolute cleanliness could no be even then secured unless the bottles were submitted to a very careful treatment. The Hamilton proposal is all right if it can be fully carried out. The bottles, however, should be thoroughly cleansed each time they are used and sterilized. Otherwise they may be the means of carrying disease as, in a bacteriological sense, they can be as offensive and as communicative of disease as dirty cans and jugs. There is only one way of protecting the people. The milk should be frequently inspected and analyzed, and the results published for the public's information. The milk that is low in butter fat, that indicates an absence of solids, and that is tainted and impure, should not be in such demand, and it will not be if the consumer has any regard for his health.

KILLED ON THE RAILROADS

Men, Women and Children Stricken Down by Thousands as a Result of Carelessness.

It is hard to understand the complacency with which the American people tolerate the reckless disregard of life that may fairly be said to characterise the railroads of this country, says Leslie's Monthly. Each year the collected statistics of the dead and wounded rival the harvest of a war between great nations. In 1902 the injured numbered 64,662, and the killed 8,500. Think of it. Men, women and children, enough to people such a city as Wilmington, stricken down because somebody makes a mistake. In 1895 passenger travel was only five-sixths as heavy as it is to-day, but the list of killed and wounded was little more than half so great as the holocaust of last year. With each accident the neighboring community is aroused. When an attempt is made to indict directors or a president, the public smiles, and the cynicism is justified. Yet in nine cases out of ten the fault is due to incompetency tolerated, if not countenanced, by those in authority.

When an army meets with disaster the general may blame his subordinates, but the nation holds him to account. In railroading, as in war, inefficiency is a crime, and as the general is absolutely responsible for his command, the president and directors must be made to answer to the public. The conviction of a single $25,000-a-year man might send a shudder round every directors' table in the country, but also it might cut down railroad accidents by a third.

Caution.

"Willie, did you thank Mr. Speedway for taking you to drive?" said the mother of a small boy, solicitously. No answer. The question was repeated. Still no answer.

"Willie! Do you hear me? Did you thank Mr. Speedway for taking you to drive?"

"Yes," whispered Willie, "but he told me not to mention it."—Office Cat.

Was He Asking Time?

"I wonder what time Mary's young man left last night," said mamma.

"It must 'a' been exactly one o'clock, ma," said the younger brother.

"The idea! How do you know?"

"Why, just as he was leavin' I heard him ask Mary some questions, and she said: 'Just one, only one.'"—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Awful Distress of Irritable Nerves

Can be Overcome by Enriching and Nourishing the Blood, Thereby Rebuilding the Nerve Cells.

Any failure of the nervous system to do its work properly inevitably causes other troubles. Weakened nerve force is almost sure to bring on gloom and depression. Life loses its attractiveness, worry and care quickly furrow the brow of the sufferer who keeps up a brave heart as long as possible, and then completely breaks down.

Nervous wrecks are very sad, pitiful, indeed, when a certain cure like Ferrosone is within easy reach. The success of this great nerve restorer has been demonstrated in many cases where other treatment completely failed, so sufferers can with unbounded confidence rely on a lasting recovery if Ferrosone is used.

Hosts of well known people have found health through Ferrosone. Among these might be mentioned Mrs. E. D. Emmerson, of Centreville, who says: "I am glad to think that there is at least one honest remedy for nervous people. No one can imagine what I suffered with my nerves, and I sometimes wonder at the number of useless prescriptions and medicines that I took. But Ferrosone acted differently from all the rest. It built up my system and gradually this irritability left my nerves and I got well. Ferrosone cured me by removing the cause of my trouble and by giving me enough additional strength to overthrow the attack of nervousness. I can recommend Ferrosone strongly."

No expectations are too high to be fulfilled if Ferrosone is used. Many others have been cured of troubles worse than yours. Try Ferrosone. It completely rebuilds the nervous system and establishes a healthy condition throughout the entire body.

AN APPEAL TO THE FASHIONABLE SET IN CANADA.

"Lally Bernard," the Well-known Toronto Journalist, Writes from England of the Battle Against Consumption in Muskoka.

Lally Bernard, of the editorial staff of the Toronto Globe, writing to that paper from London, England, where she is now a resident, shows most clearly that the battle against the great white plague is one that should interest all classes of the community. It will be remembered that this writer entered incog. as a patient in the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, and afterwards in the Globe told of real life in that institution. In her present article she says:

"To-day I have found a letter at the club which nearly missed me, having been addressed 'Lally Bernard.' May I express to my unknown correspondent my warmest thanks for the kindly appreciation for the little I have been able to do in the battle being waged against tuberculosis in Canada. The need of sympathy and interest is a tremendous one, and I am always puzzled when I find really well educated and intelligent people in Canada so criminally ignorant of the extent of the danger, and the means which are being taken to combat it.

"It may be of some interest to those who feel as I do in regard to the responsibility which rests upon each and all to aid in this fight against a most insidious foe, when I tell them, that here in London, where I have been for only a few days, I have already come across the dread enemy four times. First of all, in the back garden of our humble quarters in Kensington I espied, when morning dawned, a tent with two beds in it. I enquired of our landlord why the tent was there, and was told a long story about the coronation and quarters for some boys coming up from the country, and that he, the landlord, had subsequently found it more agreeable to sleep in the tent than in the basement bedroom he had formerly occupied. A little later, in conversation with the lady who secured the lodgings, I learned that the landlord's son was obliged to sleep in a tent! Comment was needless.

"In looking for quarters I found a charming home of a young doctor and his wife, where extraordinarily moderate terms were asked for really exceptionally good accommodation. The doctor in question had been 'ordered south,' and his wife had to keep the house going by accepting 'paying guests.'

"Yet again, in the third place, I found that the lady who was at the head of the establishment had not only lost her husband from the dread disease, but had managed one of the most fashionable sanitariums in England, and her knowledge of the treatment and the extent of the problem in England showed me how tremendous was the need for care and watchfulness in our own country.

"May I ask my correspondent to use all possible influence to make the question of combating tuberculosis one of interest in the 'fashionable set' to which she evidently belongs. I know full well, from the little experience I have had, how tremendously a little genuine interest and help might lighten the burden now resting on the shoulders of the authorities of the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. It is, of course, far away from wealthy centres, and out of sight is to be out of mind.

"I can quite understand that until people have seen forty or fifty patients together in different stages of consumption they do not realise what an immense amount of aid might be given by those who are fortunate enough to be free from the disease and by those who have little else to do than to invent or learn some new form of recreation.

"Mrs. Torrington has kindly promised me to try and get musical societies and people interested in music to provide a pianola for the Hospital, and I feel sure it will be of immense benefit to the patients. Surely my correspondent who evinces such sympathy with the cause could make that sympathy take a practical form and organise a hospital library where books worth reading might be supplied, with some system similar to that of the Aberdeen Association, which has done such excellent work."

[Note.—Readers—and may their number be many—who desire to assist in the work of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives may send their gifts to Sir Wm. R. Meredith, Kt., Vice-President, National Sanitarium Association, Toronto, or Mr. W. J. Gage, Chairman of the Executive Committee.]

MOTHER OF FOUR CHILDREN.

The trustees, secretary, and other officers of the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Muskoka are daily in receipt of many piteous letters.

A few days since Mr. W. J. Gage, of Toronto, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the National Sanitarium Association, received a letter from a resident of Quebec, pleading for the admission of a victim of the dread white plague, living about a hundred miles south-east of Montreal, and asking if it were not possible to admit her into the Free Hospital. The writer says: "The applicant is a Mrs. Wm. Paterson, the mother of four children and the wife of a farmer in a place called Goshen, in the township of Windsor. The doctor says that her left lung only is troubled. She is able to go about, but her appetite is very bad. I believe if she could be admitted into the Free Hospital for Consumptives she might be cured. She could not pay much, if anything. Kindly let me know if you could receive her."

We are told by Mr. Gage that applications for admission to the Free Hospital reach the secretary from all points in the Dominion, and patients have been received from Prince Edward Island on the east to Alberta on the west. Two hundred and twenty-five patients have been admitted in eighteen months, and not a single patient has been refused because of his or her poverty.

We can hardly think of any charity that appeals more pathetically for the support of the Canadian people.

Subscriptions may be sent to Sir Wm. R. Meredith, Kt., Vice-President of the National Sanitarium Association, or to Mr. W. J. Gage.

Kawartha Islands for Sale

Barring Stony Lake, very few islands are scattered along the Kawartha chain of waters, and most of them are already the property of private individuals. What is probably the last opportunity to secure one of the few remaining spots where a man may, if he so chooses, imitate Alexander Selkirk, and "Be monarch of all he surveys," is afforded in the public notice issued by the Department of Indian Affairs, Ottawa, announcing that tenders will be received until Wednesday, May 18th, for the following islands situate in Peterborough County: Nos. 74 and 108 in Stony Lake, Dummer Township; Nos. 2 and 3, in Pigeon Lake, situated in Harvey Township; No. 7, Buckhorn Lake, Harvey Township. Wm. McFarlane, Indian agent, Keene, will furnish information. There should be brisk competition, the supply being limited.

High Class Investment

THE OREGON MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY

Offer to Canadian investors a limited amount of stock of the above company The property owned by the Company consists at the present time of about 500 acres, which are located in the Tarryall District and Park County, Colorado. This whole district has been known for years on account of its rich placer ground, and is now prominently before the public owing to the number of very good properties which have been opened up recently producing, principally, gold, and lately some that are producing Platinum. On the Oregon property there are a number of well known veins of low grade ore that will yield a profit by being located on the ground of the company. The company have recently opened up a fine vein in the Hawkeye group and this vein shows not only good values but an immense amount of ore which alone would make the property very valuable. Assays from ore taken from various parts of this property range from a few dollars to $373 per ton in gold. We have very little silver, lead or copper in the district. The company have a shaft 240 feet deep, with a good shaft house thoroughly well equipped with all modern machinery to develop same. They are now driving a tunnel which is in about 700 feet and which will cut the Hawkeye vein about 300 feet deeper than where it is opened at present. There is enough ore exposed on the property of this company to keep them busy for a number of years and the reason for selling stock at the present time is to secure funds to build a mill. The company will probably join with the Almaden Company in building this mill. There is water enough to furnish water power and over 100 acres of fine spruce and pine timber. The affairs of the company have always been managed in a business-like economical manner and there are no officers' salaries. The monies received from the sale of stock go direct into the property.

I can heartily recommend this stock as safe, as well as an unusually good investment, because of the immense amount of ore which the company have already opened up. It is not a mere prospect, but the property has been developed by expense of a considerable amount of money and time.

The company is splendidly officered by men of integrity and high standing. The company has not pushed the sale of stock the last year owing to a delay in getting title to the ground from the Government, but now that has been satisfactorily adjusted and work will be pushed to a finish.

The number of exceedingly rich strikes which have been made during the last few weeks in the various camps in the State of Colorado is the best evidence of the prosperity of the mining business. Almost every camp in the state has opened up rich bodies of ore, and Park County is well in the lead in that line.

There are only $25,000 of stock for sale, at $1.00 per share. The company is capitalized at $200,000, and the advantage to the investor of selling the stock at par, is that every share is fully paid up and non-assessable.

A CLERGYMAN'S APPEAL.

The Rev. W. F. Brownlee, Ridgetown, Anglican minister, has written the following letter to the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives:—

Dear Sir,—I fell in with a case to-day in my parish, a young woman very ill with consumption and I promised I would write you regarding her entrance into the hospital for consumptives in Muskoka. The case is one of great necessity and charity. The applicant is about 18 years of age. She is practically without a home, staying at present with a relative. She is bright and amiable, and would like to live. As I understand, you reject none on account of poverty. I commend the case to you as one most needy, and if you can send me instructions or papers for application to the hospital, I will see to raising necessary means for her transportation and have her sent at once, as I imagine she is not beyond receiving benefit.

[Note by Editor.—Sir Wm. R. Meredith, Kt., Vice-President of the National Sanitarium Association, or Mr. W. J. Gage, Chairman of the Executive Committee, Toronto, will gladly receive contributions for this and several other equally piteous cases calling for help.]

TROUBLE NOT ALL OVER YET

Lord Lansdowne's Ominous Words Re Macedonia Create Alarm

DANGERS OF THE FUTURE.

If Russian is Defeated by Japan Imperialists will Seek New Fields of Ambition.

London, May 10.—For the time being high politics in Europe is concerned almost entirely with the East Asian question. Lord Lansdowne's ominous words in the House of Lords concerning Macedonia are fundamentally referable to the Russo-Japanese war. His Lordship declared that the Balkan situation warranted the deepest anxiety, and added that Great Britain was doing more than any other power to hasten the enforcement of reforms. Diplomatists in Lord Lansdowne's confidence know that while he earnestly desires changes in Macedonia for humanitarian reasons, he has been moved to assume the practical leadership of the reform movement for political considerations. He understands the deep-rooted desire of Russia to dominate the Balkans and looks forward to a Japanese triumph in the Far East and a consequent heavy Russian recoil. Lord Lansdowne expects that when peace has been signed and the limits of the Czar's dominion placed south of the Amur the Muscovite Imperialists will undertake exploits nearer the base of the national strength. He thinks that the Balkan peninsula will be the scene of the exploitation of these ambitions, and that Europe may be forced to face a general war or permit the Russians to occupy Constantinople.

The British Foreign Secretary is determined to do his utmost to promote a solution of the Macedonian question before Russia is prepared to make that province the ground of an Imperialist adventure.

ANXIETY JUSTIFIED.

Sofia, May 10.—Lord Lansdowne's anxiety about Macedonia is thoroughly justified. There is great distress throughout the disturbed vilayets. The young and strong are emigrating. Five thousand emigrants have left Monastir alone for the United States within two months. Notwithstanding the Sultan's amnesty, fugitives are afraid to return to their villages. The Turkish officials are not inspiring confidence.

Old Hagar's Secret

BY MRS. M. J. HOLMES

Author of "For a Woman's Sake," "Love's Triumph," "Purified by Suffering," "A Grass Widow," "Woman Against Woman," Etc.

months before; and again pressing boldly forward, she took the lamp from the sideboard and commenced to reconnoitre. "My mother's wedding dress, as I live! and her scarlet broadcloth, too!" she cried, holding to view the garments which Henry Warner had thrown upon the arm of the long settee. A turban or cushion, which she recognized as belonging to her grandmother, next caught her view, together with the small-clothes of her sire.

"The entire contents of the oaken chest," she continued, in a tone far from being calm and cool. "What can have happened? It's some of that crazy Hagar's work, I know. I'll have her put in the——" But, whatever the evil was which threatened Hagar Warren, it was not defined by words, for at that moment the indignant lady caught sight of an empty bottle, which she instantly recognized as having held her very oldest, choicest wine. "The Lord help me!" she cried, "I've been robbed;" and grasping the bottle by the neck, she leaned up against the banner which she had not yet descried.

"In the name of wonder, what's this?" she almost screamed, as the full blaze of the lamp fell upon the flag, revealing the truth at once, and partially stopping her breath.

Robbery was nothing to insult, and forgetting entirely the wine, she gasped, "Stars and stripes in this house! In the house of my grandfather, as loyal a subject as King George ever boasted! What can Margaret be doing to suffer a thing like this?"

A few steps further on, and Margaret herself might have been seen peering out into the darkened upper hall, and listening anxiously to her grandmother's voice. The sound of the rattling old wagon had aroused her, and curious to know who was stirring at this early hour, she had cautiously opened her window, which overlooked the piazza, and to her great dismay had recognized her grandmother as she gave orders concerning her baggage. Flying back to her room, she awoke her sister, who, springing up in bed, whispered faintly, "Will she kill us dead, Maggie? Will she kill us dead?"

"Pshaw! no," answered Maggie, her own courage rising with Theo's fears. "She'll have to scold a spell, I suppose, but I can coax her, I know!"

By this time the old lady was ascending the stairs, and closing the door, Maggie applied her eye to the key-hole, listening breathlessly for what might follow. George Douglas and Henry Warner occupied separate rooms, and their boots were now standing outside their doors, ready for the chore boy, Jim, who thus earned a quarter every day. Stumbling first upon the pair belonging to George Douglas, the lady took them up, ejaculating, "Boots! boots! Yes, men's boots, as I'm a living woman! The like was never seen by me before in this hall. Another pair!" she continued, as her eye fell on those of Henry Warner. "Another pair, and in the best chamber, too! What will come next?" And setting down her light, she wiped the drops of perspiration from her face, at the same time looking around in some alarm, lest the owners of said boots should come forth.

Just at that moment Mrs. Jeffrey appeared. Alarmed by the unusual noise, and fancying the young gentlemen might be robbing the house, as a farewell performance, she had donned a calico wrapper, and tying a black silk handkerchief over her cap, had taken her scissors, the only weapon of defence she could find, and thus equipped for battle she had sallied forth. She was prepared for burglars—nay she would not have been disappointed had she found the young men busily engaged in removing the ponderous furniture from their rooms; but the sight of Madam Conway at that unseasonable hour, was wholly unexpected, and in her fright she dropped the lamp which she had lighted in place of her candle, and which was broken in fragments, deluging the carpet with oil, and eliciting a fresh groan from Madam Conway.

"Jeffray! Jeffrey!" she gasped, "what have you done?"

"Great goodness!" ejaculated Mrs. Jeffrey, remembering her adventure when once before she left her room in the night. "I certainly am the most unfortunate of mortals. Catch me out of bed again, let what will happen;" and turning, she was about to leave the hall, when Madam Conway, anxious to know what had been done, called her back, saying rather indignantly, "I'd like to know whose house I am in?"

"A body would suppose 'twas Miss Margaret's, the way she's conducted," answered Mrs. Jeffrey; and Madam Conway continued, pointing to the boots: "Who have we here? These are not Margaret's, surely?"

"No, ma'am, they belong to the young men, who have set the house topsy-turvey, with their tableaux, their Revolution celebration, their banner, and carousing generally," said Mrs. Jeffrey, rather pleased than otherwise at being the first to tell the news.

"Young men!" repeated Madam Conway, "What young men? Where did they come from, and why are they here?"

"They are Douglas & Warner," said Mrs. Jeffrey, rather pleased than grieved as there are this side of Old Bailey—that's what they are. They came from Worcester, and if I've any discernment, they are after your girls, and your girls are after them."

"After my girls! After Maggie! It can't be possible!" gasped Madam Conway, thinking of Arthur Carrollton.

"It's the very truth, though," returned Mrs. Jeffrey. "Henry Warner, who, in my opinion, is the worst of the two got to chasing Margaret in the woods, as long ago as last April; she jumped Gritty across the gorge, and he, like a fool, jumped after, breaking his leg——"

"Pity it hadn't been his neck," interrupted Madam Conway, and Mrs. Jeffrey continued: "Of course, he was brought here, and Margaret took care of him. After a while, his comrade Douglas came out, and of all the carousals you ever thought of, I reckon they had the worst. 'Twas the fourth of July, and if you'll believe it, they made a banner, and Maggie planted it herself on the housetop. They went off next morning, but now they've come again, and last night the row beat all. I never got a wink of sleep till after two o'clock."

Here, entirely out of breath, the old lady paused, and going to her room, brought out a basin of water and a towel, with which she tried to wipe off the oil. But Madam Conway paid little heed to the spoiled carpet, so engrossed was she with what she had heard.

"I'm astonished at Margaret's want of discretion," said she, "and I depended so much upon her, too."

"I always knew you were deceived by her," said Mrs. Jeffrey, still bending over the oil; "but it wasn't for me to say so, for you are blinded toward that girl. She's got some of the queerest notions, and then she's so high strung. She won't listen to reason. But I did my country good service once. I went up in the dead of the night to take down the flag, and I don't regret it, either, even if it did pitch me to the bottom of the stairs and sprained my ankle."

"Served you right," interposed Madam Conway, who, not at all pleased at hearing Margaret thus censured, now turned the full force of her wrath upon the poor little governess, blaming her for having suffered such proceedings. "What did Margaret and Theo know, young things as they were? and what was Mrs. Jeffrey there for if not to keep them circumspect? But instead of doing this, she had undoubtedly encouraged them in their folly and then charged it upon Margaret."

It was in vain that the greatly distressed and astonished lady protested her innocence, pleading her sleepless nights and lame ankle as proofs of having done her duty. Madam Conway would not listen. "Somebody was, of course, to blame," and as it is a long-established rule that a part of every teacher's duty is to be responsible for the faults of the pupils, so Madam Conway now continued to chide Mrs. Jeffrey as the prime mover of everything, until that lady, overwhelmed with the sense of injustice done her, left the oil and retired to her room, saying as she closed the door: "I was never so injured in all my life—never! To think that after all my trouble, she should charge it to me! It will break my heart, I know. Where shall I go for comfort or rest?"

This last word was opportune and suggestive. If rest could not be found in "Baxter's Saints' Rest," it was not by her to be found at all; and, sitting down by the window, in the grey dawn of the morning, she strove to draw comfort from the words of the good divine, but in vain. It had never failed her before, but never before had she been so deeply injured, and closing the volume at last she paced the floor in a very perturbed state of mind.

Meantime Madam Conway had sought her granddaughter's chamber, where Theo, in her fright, had taken refuge under the bed, while Maggie feigned a deep, sound sleep. A few vigorous shakes, however, aroused her, when greatly to the amazement of her grandmother, she burst into a merry laugh, and winding her arms around the highly scandalized lady's neck, said: "Forgive us, grandma. I've been awake ever since you came home. I did not mean to leave the dining-room in such disorder, but I was so tired, and we had such fun—hear me out," she continued, laying her hand over the mouth of her grandmother, who attempted to speak. "Mrs. Jeffrey told you how Mr. Warner broke his leg, and was brought here. He is a real nice young man, and so is Mr. Douglas, who came our to see him. They are partners in the firm of Douglas & Co., Worcester."

"Henry Warner is nothing but the Co., though Mr. Douglas owns the store, and is worth two hundred thousand dollars!" cried a smothered voice from under the bed, and Theo emerged into view, with a feather or two ornamenting her hair and herself looking a little uneasy and frightened.

The two hundred thousand dollars produced a magical effect upon the old lady, exonerating George Douglas at once from all blame. But toward Henry Warner she was not thus lenient; for, coward-like, Theo charged him with having suggested everything, even to the cutting up of the red coat for a banner!

"What!" fairly screamed Madam Conway, who in her hasty glance at the flag had not observed the material. "Not taken my grandfather's coat for a banner!"

"Yes, he did," said Theo, "and Maggie cut up your blue satin bodice for stars, and took one of your fine linen sheets for the foundation."

"The wretch!" exclaimed Madam Conway, stamping her foot in her wrath, and thinking only of Henry Warner. "I'll turn him from my door instantly. My blue satin bodice, indeed!"

"'Twas I, grandma—'twas I," interrupted Maggie, looking reproachfully at Theo. "'Twas I who cut up the bodice. I who brought down the scarlet coat."

"And I didn't do a thing but look on," said Theo. "I knew you'd be angry, and I tried to make Maggie behave, but she wouldn't."

"I don't know as it is anything to you what Maggie does, and I think it would look quite as well in you to take part of the blame yourself, instead of putting it all upon your sister," was Madam Conway's reply; and feeling almost as deeply injured as Mrs. Jeffrey herself, Theo began to cry, while Maggie, with a few masterly strokes, succeeded in so far appeasing the anger of her grandmother that the good lady consented for the young gentlemen to

Has shipped ores of an average net value of $40 per ton for first class and $18 per ton for second class, all the past summer and the summer before smelter and mill returns of which are on file in our office.

Has immense bodies of these grades of ore which cannot be exhausted in five years already opened up and its main working tunnel is nearing completion, cutting the apex of the vein at a depth of 1,000 feet.

This block of shares is offered to enable the Company to connect the above tunnel with its concentrating mill and projected terminus of railroad by tramway, a distance of 11,120 feet, thereby permitting shipments during the entire year.

A production of at least 125 tons daily will be maintained when these improvements are made, and if completed in the early summer, dividends can be paid from ore settlements before this fall.

We offer for a limited time only a SPECIAL BLOCK OF 50,000 SHARES OF THE TREASURY STOCK of these Companies.

We reserve the right to reject subscriptions over and above the 50,000 shares offered. Each subscription to be booked as received.

Investigate to your heart's content, and quickly, then let us hear from you.

The Black Queen Gold Mining Co.

1,500,000 Shares. Par value $1.00. Full Paid and Non-Assessable.

Selling at 7 Cents Per Share

Like its sister Company is today giving the best value for the money of any share offered.

This Company owns and controls over 300 acres of good mineral-producing ground, including the well-known Excelsior and Yankee Blade, which have produced upward of $175,000.

Tunnel B of the Black Queen Company is now going in at a rate of 100 feet per month, and early spring will see this work vieing with Tunnel A of the Augusta Company in its record of production.

Will cut known proven ore bodies 1100 feet from Apex, and open sufficient stoping ground to make an output of 100 tons daily.

Has already cut through a cross vein two feet in width of good marketable galena ore, the point of intersection being 600 feet beneath the surface. We have 800 feet of this vein in length.

We can show you these facts and ask that you ask us to do so.

If your investment becomes profitable you will tell others; therefore it is much to our interest to have you make money on your investment.

GERMANY MAY SOON GET INTO THE FIGHT

China's Attitude Likely to Lead to Grave International Complications

Berlin, May 10.—The Emperor's intimation that Germany may be called upon to intervene in the Far East is believed to forecast a probability of China being involved in the war. High officials express this opinion without reserve. The idea suggested in some quarters that the Emperor fears war with France is wide of the mark. With Russia and Japan alone contesting for the supremacy it is not thought that the German government would take sides with either, no matter what turn affairs might take, but the entrance of China into the struggle would change the aspect of the whole situation. In fact such an event would give a more serious turn to the troublesome Eastern question than did the Boxers' uprising, and the attempt to expel foreigners from China. Defeat for China would mean dismemberment—nothing short of it—and Germany could not afford to have Russia or France step in and grab the lion's share of the Flowery Kingdom.

Consequently, when China takes up arms against Russia, which she is considered sure to do, Germany will stretch forth her mailed fist and declare the conflict must cease. In this stupendous undertaking Great Britain is expected to support Germany. Some overt act on the part of China's troops is looked for at any moment, hence a crisis is near and the war may be brought to a speedy close on the lines indicated. The integrity of China will be preserved, not by herself, but by the intervention of Great Britain and Germany.

It is well understood here that King Edward has made the position of England clear and unambiguous. He has minced no words in his communications to the Czar and Kaiser, and there can be no doubt that, despite the growls of Russia a halt will be called on her pretensions in the east and that Corea will be left free from her influence. Japan can then develop her resources and resume the march of her improvement as a nation.

PORT ARTHUR MUST FALL

British Experts Say that the Stronghold Must Capitulate.

London, May 9.—Within a few days and perhaps a few hours the garrison of Port Arthur will be cut off by land and sea from communication with the outside world, and one of the most dramatic sieges in the whole history will have begun. There is a general disposition to believe that the Japanese landing on Liau Tung peninsula will be accomplished with success. It is pointed out that there are few instances in history of a powerful army backed by a fleet commanding the sea being unable to effect a landing. A military expert writing in the Daily Mail says. "It is not probable that the Russians have many troops apart from the Port Arthur garrison at Pitsewo, nor is it probable that the Russian garrison at Port Arthur will be able to spare many men to bagrass the Japs. The garrisons at Port Arthur and Dalny are variously stated at from 10,000 to 50,000 men. Probably the actual force is about 20,000 men. The town must now be well provisioned as Russians have had three months to move food into it, but coal supply is now running short and if their communications are cut, the warships in the harbor will be a grave embarrassment. If blockaded Port Arthur must in the end fall. In modern war armies and not places are the objects of offensive action. The storming of Port Arthur might, however, give the Japs the remnant of the Russian fleet and for such a prize great risks might be run." The London Telegraph's expert says; "Once the ring of hostile steel has been riveted around the Russian arsenal, we do not believe any human power can avert its ultimate fate. Kuropatkin could not march south to the rescue in any considerable strength without exposing himself to risk of finding another Sedan."

KAISER'S COLONY IN BRAZIL FAILS

Plan to Create German Nation in South America Unavailing

BREAK TIE TO FATHERLAND

Emigrants Forget Loyalty—Children of Mixed Marriages Speak Portuguese

Berlin, May 10—Discouraging tidings reach Berlin from Southern Brazil where hopes have just been cherished of planting the seeds of an overseas Germany. Settlers sent there by the thousand to colonize cities and farming districts and to "remain German" are adopting Brazilian citizenship, names and customs so extensively that "Deutschthum"—the preservation of German identity and ideals—is undergoing complete disintegration. To appreciate the disappointment these facts contain, the extent of the German colonial scheme in Brazil requires mention.

EXPECTED MUCH OF COLONY.

According to a recent compilation, Germans own more than 12,000 square miles of territory in southern Brazil, an area larger than Saxony and Alsace-Lorraine combined. About 50,000 Germans, either natives or Brazilian-born, children of natives, are resident in the republic. In communities where the German element has become most pronounced a sort of German local self government has been set up, with German as the official language of schools, churches and town councils.

Until now it has been supposed that the Germanizing process was going ahead steadily and thoroughly, and numerous colonial agitators and pamphleteers have expressed the belief that the way was at last prepared for a realization of the celebrated prediction of Prof. Schmoller, of the University of Berlin, that the world would witness within the next 100 years "the rise of a German nation of 20,000,000 to 30,000,000 souls in south Brazil."

BLASTS EXPANSION HOPE.

A communication to the National Zeitung of Berlin from the state of Rio Grande do Sul, the centre of the German movement in Brazil, has blasted the hopes of the South American expansion party. How the Germans there are proceeding to break home ties is described as follows: "the notion has long been propagated in Germany that conditions for the maintenance of 'Deutschthum' are more favorable in South Brazil than in European countries or in the United States. This is true in isolated farming settlements, but not in the cities where the vast bulk of the German element is concentrated. It is puzzling how little power of resistance Germans in Brazil are able to bring to bear against the racial assimilation of the Latin, negro and Indian elements with which they come in contact. The most distinguishing feature is that this culminating story in Canada.

manifests itself not only among the working classes, but in the middle and upper classes.

SECOND GENERATION BRAZILIAN

"Frequent intermarriages with Brazilian women have strengthened the preference for the adopted country. The education of the children being left to the mothers, it happens frequently that the German language is not spoken in families with German heads. Even in cases where both parents are German or of German extraction their children regard themselves with few exceptions as Brazilians, in accordance with the law which enrolls every native of the republic a Brazilian citizen. Most German immigrants change their names into Portuguese. Wilhelms have become Guilhermes; Friedricks call themselves Fredericos, and the Karls, Carlos.

MILITARY TITLES ATTRACT.

"The Brazilian government has, of course, not been blind to such opportunities of increasing the estrangement between these 'Germans' and their fatherland. Seeing the trend of events, it has made still easier the obtaining of Brazilian citizenship by permitting a man, if he wishes, to retain his German citizenship. The government has already understood how to cater to the average German by making workingmen eligible to the office-staff of the local militia. Many naturalized Germans proceed to acquire officers' positions notwithstanding that their importance usually is confined to the privilege of tacking 'captain' or 'major' onto their names.

"Many private schools, conducted by former Germans along typically Brazilian lines, are adding fuel to the German man-killing fire. The German schools receiving subsidy from the Berlin government are unfortunately not yet in a position to neutralise the effects of these pseudo-German schools. The German newspapers in Brazil also do little or nothing to stem the Brazilianization movement.

SHOW LITTLE PATRIOTISM.

"While American, English, Swiss and other nationalities represented in Brazil hoist upon their national holidays the flag of their respective countries and no other a large percentage of the so-called Germans may fly no flags, hang the German standard next to the Brazilian flag or else hoist Hamburg, Bremen or other local territorial emblems—a performance not calculated to improve either Brazilians or other nations with 'German unity.'"

This recital goes to show that the German emigrant, apparently, whether he settles in Brazil or in the United States, becomes sooner or later an assimilated, loyal citizen of his adopted country. The significant fact is that Germany has counted in vain upon transplanting to Brazil great communities of Germans, willing to remain loyal subjects of Kaiser and Empire for whatever purposes the future might make them useful.

TO CANADIAN INVESTORS

I desire to call the attention of investors to the

Smuggler Gold Mining Co.'s Proposition

of which I am the authorized agent

Investments in mining stocks where they can be purchased cheaply whose property contains merit and whose directors are men of unquestionable honor and integrity, and especially when sufficient work has been done to guarantee a producing mine and the leads have been demonstrated to be permanent, offer the greatest opportunity for large returns from modest investments.

The shrewdest capitalists of England and America are giving more attention to mining properties and putting more money into them than at any time in the past history of the world.

The Smuggler Group consists of five full sized claims; to-wit:—The Smuggler, Gangon, Black Jack, Star and Red Rock, located in the Greenhorn District of Eastern Oregon. Surrounding mines are Potosi, Pride of Pendleton, Bonanza and Rockefeller, developing work to the extent of 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifts and crosscuts have been made, exposing hundreds of tons of high grade ore, averaging from $25 to $45 per ton, based on smelter returns, and for the purpose of equipping the mines a limited number of shares of Treasury Stock will be sold at 25 cents per share, the par value of which is $1.00.

HIGH CLASS INVESTMENT

LA ZACUALPA RUBBER PLANTATION COMPANY

Incorporated Under the Laws of the State of California.

La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation is situated in the best location in Mexico for the cultivation of rubber. It has been known for a great many years as a very choice strip of rubber land and subsequent experience has shown that it is equal to all that has been claimed for it. The affairs of the company are in the hands of men of undoubted integrity and high reputation as successful men of business. To those seeking a safe investment which will secure a good income for life, this proposition offers a favorable opportunity

Shares in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation are not capital stock of a corporation, and carry none of the responsibilities and obligations, or liability to assessment of capital stock; but represent an undivided interest in the plantation itself.

The twelve thousand acres comprising the plantation are divided into twelve thousand shares, each share representing one acre of land, and the holders of shares in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation are the actual owners of one undivided acre of land, for each share held, with a guarantee expressed upon the certificate by La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company, under its official seal, to plant two hundred or more rubber trees per acre for each share sold, and to care for same for a period of five years, and at the expiration of that time to gather the first harvest and deliver the net proceeds thereof to the shareholder.

In other words, La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company sells to each shareholder one undivided acre of land in La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation, with two hundred or more rubber trees five years old, and their profits for all time, for each share sold, and agrees to plant so that the first harvest belonging to the shareholder in the case to be gathered from La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation during the sixth year from the date of the certificate.

After the delivery of the first harvest La Zacualpa Rubber Plantation Company will care for the plantation, and harvest and market the crop for ten per cent. of the net proceeds therefrom. Out of this commission the Company agrees to pay all costs of administration, including maintenance of its home and branch offices.

This plan gives the purchaser of shares an interest of definite acreage, and his proportionate share in the total yield of rubber from the entire plantation forever, making it absolutely certain that the interest of each shareholder will receive the same careful attention

FEAR CANNIBALS HAVE HIM

Exposition Officials Alarmed Concern in Commissioner to South Africa.

St. Louis, Mo., May 10.—S. P. Verner, a former missionary, who went to the heart of Africa for members of the tribe of pigmies for the world's fair, was last heard of Feb. 28, the date of his arrival in Congo. Because no letter has been received from him since that time grave fears are felt by exposition officials that he has been captured by cannibals.

COUNTRY OF CONFLAGRATIONS

London Economist Discusses Fire Insurance in Canada

London, May 10.—The Economist in an editorial on fire insurance in Canada, says: "As a rule profit, even at the high premiums charged, can only, with great difficulty, be extracted out of Canadian fire risks. Large as the profits have been in 1902 and 1903 they have been not much more than enough to cover the losses in Toronto, Canada, like the United States, is a country of conflagrations."

DEER DIED BY THOUSANDS

Victims of the Hard Winter in the North —Died from Weakness.

"I am quite satisfied in saying that I have seen 1,000 deer lying dead in the forest up in the French River district this past winter," said Mr. John Kelly the other day.

Mr. Kelly owns Kelly's Point, near Sturgeon's Point, Victoria County, and recently came down from the North Shore, where he spent the winter bushranging for a Saginaw lumber firm.

"I have travelled the woods a good deal in winter," went on Mr. Kelly, "but I never saw such a depth of loose snow, nor such mortality among the deer before."

"In 1861-2 there was 6 feet of snow on the level, but it was in two or three layers, with heavy crusts, between that would carry deer But this year the snow was very deep, and all light and downy, and the deer could make little progress through it. The habit of the deer is to keep to the runways and browse along them, but in this long, severe winter, the fodder close to the runways gave out, and then the deer starved. I came across their dead bodies everywhere. Often they had waded out into the deep snow toward other trees, and, overcome by weakness, sank down and died where they were.

"The lumberman saved hundreds of deer. Hunger drove the animals right up to the camps, where they were not molested, but allowed to feed at the haystacks. I never saw a lumberman try to hurt one of them, but have often seen deer lying beside the stack, chewing their cuds. This treatment and the horse feed littered along the cadge and draw roads have been a great help to the deer.

HELP CAME TOO LATE.

"Sometimes, however, even that help came too late. I have seen where deer had come across the oats left where the horses had been fed in the snow. The starving deer had eaten the remaining oats, but died on the spot, because the big feed of grain was too much for it. Hay does not injure them in such a case.

"The wolves had not killed the deer to any extent before I left. In fact wolves are very scarce. I came across only three or four packs, and there were not more than that many in each pack. They could not get through the snow any better than the deer, but I am afraid they will kill a great many more deer when the snow goes off; for the deer that are left are so weak that when on snowshoes I had no great difficulty in overtaking them. Where they had a chance to run they could not. You would be sorry to see the condition these fine animals of the forest have been reduced to. The worst about the wolves is that they do not kill to eat the flesh, but to drink the blood, and hence kill far more than they need for food.

"The deer have not suffered in all parts of Ontario as they did on the North Shore. North fo that again in the Sudbury district, for instance, I hear there was only about ten inches of snow. The region from Orillia away up the shores of Georgian Bay was the deep-snow area this past winter."

AT ST. ANDREWS CHURCH

Anniversary Services Continued at That Church Last Night

The anniversary gathering in St. Andrew's church last night was of special interest, and drew a large audience.

Dr. Pringle, who has become so well known in connection with his marvellous work in the Yukon, delivered an intensely interesting and instructive address.

Principal Gordon, of Queen's University, Kingston, was present, and also addressed the meeting.

A splendid program of music was rendered by the choir, under the capable leadership of Mr. Alf. E. Young.

COCKNEY "QUITTERS."

They Don't Like the Way They were Treated West of Winnipeg so "Go 'ome."

Montreal, May 9.—A party of a dozen English immigrants, mainly from London, who came to Canada at various times during the winter intending to take up land in the North-West, returned to England on Saturday by the Dominion, the first Dominion liner to leave Montreal. They were energetic in their denunciation of the methods by which they were induced to come to Canada, even while they admitted that they were deeply impressed with the possibilities of the Dominion, and that two or three would perhaps return at a later date and with a little more money.

"An English accent is regarded as an invitation to highway robbery when you go beyond Winnipeg," said one of them to a press correspondent. "They certainly did cook us for a fair out there. As an example, we wanted to go out and inspect some lots near Estevan, and the only guide we could get to take us to them asked $10. Even that wouldn't have been so bad, only he deliberately made a two-day trip of it, when we might have got back that night.

"The land is all right, and all that the London agents say it is. But the way it is being held for speculation is a sinful shame. Everybody you meet has a lot to sell you anywhere up to $15 and $25 an acre; but the 'free lots' the Government has to give away are all 20 miles from the nearest railway.

"I must except Mr. Smith, the Manitoba Immigration Commissioner, from the best of Canadian citizens who tried to do us. He was courtesy and sympathy itself, and seemed genuinely anxious to do his best for us. Those of his staff who were under his immediate supervision were much the same as himself."

TO CURE CONSUMPTION

Climate of Greenland Said to be Death to Tuberculosis.

Washington, May 10.—Dr. Frederick Sohon, of this city, will conduct a ship to the Fjords of Greenland this summer and test the treatment of tuberculosis in that climate. This is the outcome of Commander Peary's operations, and Dr. Sohon, who has accompanied two expeditions, observing the phenomenally rapid cure of one of the party, who was a consumptive.

He carefully studied the hygienic conditions of the north and the possibility of utilizing these regions in the treatment of tuberculosis and nervous exhaustion.

His conclusions resulted in the proposed novel experiment of a colony of invalids enjoying a Greenland summer.

ANTI-JEWISH RIOTS

Hardly a House in Jewish Quarter Escaped —The Synagogue was Attacked.

Vienna, May 10.—During the recent anti-Semitic riots in Lom-Palanka, Bulgaria, the authorities had to telegraph to Sofia for permission to interfere. The mere intimation that the troops would be ordered to fire among the mob unless it withdrew quietly was enough too restore order; but the work it had come to do was already done.

Hardly a house had escaped in the whole quarter of the Jews; not a window pane remained unbroken. In the synagogues alone the damage is estimated at 11,000 francs ($2,123.)

A government commission has been appointed too fix the amount of the loss and to take measures for the temporary relief of the victims, among whom the destitute is extreme. Many Jewish families have left the town for good.

SEQUOYAH OF THE CHEROKEES THE GREATEST CHIEF.

Life Work of the Wonderful Red Man Devoted to the Interests of That Tribe — A Statue in Prospect.

The effort on the part of several prominent Cherokee Indians to erect a statue in the capitol square at Tahlequah, I. T., to the memory of Sequoyah has renewed interest in this wonderful Indian, says the Kansas City Journal. He is unquestionably the greatest Indian this nation ever produced, and is so revered by the full-blood Cherokees, but as these do not form the most considerable part of the tribe, and the mixed bloods control affairs in the national council, bills for a monument to perpetuate his memory in marble have heretofore failed. A number of prominent men have been interested in the project this time, however, and it is hoped the bill will pass. No one doubts that President Roosevelt will sign the bill making it possible to erect the monument at once. Athough Sequoyah is the especial favorite of the full-blooded Cherokees, he was not one of their members. His life work, however, was devoted to their interests. This work was the formulating of an alphabet which consists of 85 characters. So simple is it that it has been learned by students in from three to four days, and it is grounded on such thorough principles that when learned by one knowing the spoken language no difficulty is experienced in reading. It has been pronounced one of the most complete alphabets in existence, and for it Sequoyah has been dubbed "the American Cadmus."

Sequoyah was born in 1770, in Georgia, where the Cherokee tribe was then living. His mother was a full-blooded Cherokee and his father a German trader, known as George Geist or Guess. In 1831, with other members of the tribe, Sequoyah moved to the Indian territory and lived on a little farm in a district known by his name, some 12 miles north of Muldrow. There it was that he, though wholly uneducated, fashioned the letters for his alphabet, which will doubtless live as a study long after the last Indian has passed away. He was a farmer and counted well-to-do, as he owned cattle, hogs and horses. A personal description of him, secured several years ago from Mouston Beng, of Fort Gibson, who has since died, shows that Sequoyah was a slender man, with fine features and a pleasant expression. He was lame in one arm, due to a white swelling he was afflicted with when a boy. When he traveled abroad he rode a white mule. In 1842, in company with his son and another Indian, he started on a trip west to try to find a band of Cherokees which had gone there years before.

The party traveled in a cart, drawn by a yoke of oxen, but had horses with them. Somewhere in the northern part of Mexico Sequoyah became separated from his companions, and they were compelled to return without him. He was never heard of again, and it is supposed perished from want. At the time of his disappearance he wore a large silver medal, presented to him by congress in recognition of his services toward the uplifting of the Indians.

The written language he invented has been of great use to people dealing with the Indians. Soon after it was made public the Bible and many other books were translated into Cherokee, and a paper known as the Cherokee Advocate started. This newspaper is still in existence. One-half of it is printed in English and the other in Cherokee. The office is located at Tahlequah, capital of the Cherokee nation.

AN ARCTIC HEALTH RESORT

Swedish Government Will Establish One Far North of the Polar Circle.

A curious health resort is about to be established in Lapland, way beyond the polar circle, according to news received from Stockholm, Sweden. The intention of the government is to erect a sanitarium on the shores of Lake Torne, a long and beautiful sheet of water at Wassijaure, the end of the Ofote railroad. The latter, by the way, is in itself a curious institution in that in a distance of 121 miles it boasts of only one solitary station. This is not anywhere near any human habitation, but right on the line between Sweden and Norway, and it was erected only for the requirements of the customs office.

The sanitarium would be an ideal one for people with weak nerves who need absolute rest. Aside from the small settlement of Wassijaure the country is absolutely void of any signs of human existence, except for a few Laplanders who, with their herds of reindeer, pass through once in awhile.

Guests at the arctic sanitarium will have for their only object of interest, aside from the scenery, a scientific station which has been erected by the government out of funds subscribed privately by scientists and laymen interested in the object of the station. The observations and investigations to be conducted here will be various. In summer biological, geological, botanical, entomological and other researches will be made, while at all seasons meteorological, magnetic and other observations are to be made. The station is a solidly built blockhouse containing seven rooms, and it is proposed to build the sanitarium in the same way.

ONE GOOD REASON

Why the Trenton Route Should be Chosen for Canal.

The following from the Cobourg Post shows the dangers of navigation between Port Hope eastward, and is one of the reasons why the canal should be at Trenton:

Saturday last a heavy fog hung on the lake which caused navigation to be very dangerous. The steamer Corsican came in early in the morning and after discharging a quantity of freight proceeded on down the lake. About half an hour after the Corsican returned and remained until late in the afternoon when another attempt was made to proceed down the lake, but about six o'clock the captain again returned to port.

THE GREAT WORK GOING ON IN MUSKOKA.

1,000 Patients Treated in the Two Muskoka Hospitals — the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Surprising Decrease of 25 Per Cent. in the Last Three Years in Deaths from Consumption.

Fifty-five Different Trades and Professions Represented by the Patients Admitted to the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Two Pavilions have had to be Closed Owing to Lack of Funds, and the Number of Patients Reduced from 75 to 50.

$25,000 Wanted this Year to Carry on this Great Work.

With a view of helping to bring to the attention of the public the needs of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, we have pleasure in publishing the following letter, in which an appeal is made for funds.

Dear Friend,—

It again becomes necessary to make an urgent appeal for funds for the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

A very heavy debt is pressing upon the trustees.

In addition to this, funds must be provided for the maintenance of patients. Last month there was a deficiency of nearly $1,500 over and above receipts from all sources.

The Free Hospital for Consumptives was opened eighteen months ago. 225 patients have been admitted.

No patient has ever been refused admission because of his or her poverty.

1,000 patients have been cared for in the two Muskoka Hospitals, the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

The majority of these have either been cured, or so helped that they have been enabled to again become bread-winners for the family.

The public are beginning to find evidence of our work.

Already there has been a decrease of nearly 25 per cent. in the death-rate from consumption in the Province of Ontario.

The last report of the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health shows that in the last three years the deaths from consumption in Ontario have decreased from 3,484 to 2,694, a decrease of 790, or nearly 25 per cent.

This is the more gratifying when we remember that for a number of years previously the same report showed a steadily increasing death-rate prior to 1899.

Who will doubt that the work of our two Hospitals in Muskoka, and the persistent educational campaign carried on, has not helped to secure this surprising result?

In what better way can your gifts bring so good a return?

We have no endowment, excepting the provision recently made by Canada Life, Confederation Life, and North American Life Insurance Companies for maintenance of 2 beds each for a year.

We can only rely on the philanthropy of our people and a knowledge of our needs.

Last year we asked $20,000 to reduce the debt and to pay for care of patients. We had a generous response, receiving $10,000, gifts coming from Halifax on the east and Yukon on the west. This year our needs are greater than ever. We will require $25,000.

The Bishop of Selkirk, Caribou Crossing, Yukon, sending $10.00, writes: "The trifling remittance I send is intended to express our sympathy for the sufferers in other parts, rather than to imply a special need for your institution here."

We are grateful for the large gift. We are grateful for the small gift; all gifts are helpful.

On account of our pressing needs, will you not make this your special charity?

During the year, for lack of funds, we had to close several pavilions, reducing the number of patients from 75 to 50.

The sorrowful part of our work is that nearly all of those in the Free Hospital are young men or women who were striving to make a place for themselves in the world. Many of them have wife, or child or husband anxiously watching the struggle for life.

Your gift will help to bring gladness to so many. Will you have the joy of giving?

Very truly yours,

W. J. Gage

Tuberculosis The Lungs Cured

The World's Greatest Physician Eulogizes Catarrhozone, which kills all the Germs Heals the Membranes, Cures Thoroughly.

That consumption is due to the presence of germs in the air passages is now admitted by all physicians. Before the disease can be cured of course these germs must be killed. Liquid medicine taken into the stomach can't possibly reach the air cells of the lungs, and is therefore useless.

Catarrhozone never fails to kill the bacilli of consumption for the following reasons, which are plain to every thinking person;

First—Each breath of medicated air you draw through Catarrhozone inhaler is at once sent through every air cell and air passage in the throat, bronchial tubes and lungs; it is then sure to reach the seat of the consumption germs.

Being a powerful antiseptic Catarrhozone at once kills these germs and establishes such a healthy condition in the lungs that microbes can't live there. Once the cause of this disease is removed it is only a matter of time till you get well and strong again.

That Catarrhozone does permanently cure Tubercular Trouble can no longer be doubted. Ample evidence of its marvellous merit is witnessed every day. Thousands have been cured after all else has failed by this great germ destroyer, which is inhaled to the very source of the disease.

Mrs. G. P. McCluskly, writing from Salt Lake City, U.S., says; "My doctor ordered me to Colorado, where I first used Catarrhozone. I inhaled it probably twenty times a day. In one week it stopped my cough completely, and it was not very long in taking every bit of soreness and hoarseness out of my throat. The antiseptic vapor of Catarrhozone must certainly have killed All the germs of consumption in my lungs, for I came home in seven months a cure. My doctor says Catarrhozone is a marvel. It is of the greatest assistance in lung trouble, and cured me permanently."

Not only consumption but every form of catarrh and throat trouble is easily cured by Catarrhozone. Two months' treatment costs $1.00. At druggists or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont. For a quick and certain cure use only Catarrhozone.

A PLEASING RECITAL

Given by Miss G. Dennistoun and Miss A Roger in the Y.M.C.A. Last Evening

There was a good attendance at the recital given by Miss George Dennistoun and Miss Alice Roger, assisted by Mr. J. Laurence, in the Y. M.C.A. last evening. Those who were fortunate enough to be present received a musical treat not soon to be forgotten. The pianistes of the evening were heard with great delight as in a simple and unaffected manner they interpreted sweetly and brilliantly the true meaning of the selections given. Miss Roger and Miss Dennistoun are both well known in musical circles, but never did their fine abilities appear to better advantage than last evening. Mr. J. Laurence was at his best and rendered his different numbers with great ease. Much enthusiasm was created by his rendition of the Scotch songs, "Mary or Argyle" and "My Heart is Sair."

At the conclusion of the recital Dr. Pringle gave a delightful and instructive address on his work in the Yukon. The singing of the National Anthem brought the delightful evening to a close.

LINDSAY MAN DROWNED

Sturgeon Lake Claims Its First Victim for the Season

Lindsay Post: Jos. McCreary, hostler at the Royal Hotel, Lindsay, for the past two years, issued his last stable check on Friday. On Monday at noon, his stiffened body was found in the shallow yacht slip at McConnell's Island, Sturgeon Lake, known locally as "Paradise."

On Friday last deceased accompanied by Mr. McConnell and a party of friends to the island, the understanding being that he was to remain till Sunday to fix up the grounds and make some repairs to the platform at the landing place. When the yacht left the island at 5.45 to return to Lindsay, McCreary was in good spirits and joked with those on board until they passed out of hearing.

On Monday morning about 11 o'clock Mr. McConnell and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Bagbie Mr. Jos. McConnell and a couple of others, left town about 11 o'clock for the island, which they reached about 12.30. As the yacht neared the dock the party on board expected to see McCreary on his way down to the wharf, but he was not in sight, although his dog came bounding down and seemed unusually glad to see them. Owing to the swell on the water Mr McConnell, at the wheel, did not steer the yacht into the slip as usual, but ran the bow of the boat alongside the outer edge. As he did so Mrs. McConnell pointed to a floating object in the slip and exclaimed "My God, what's that!"

The object proved to be the body of poor McCreary, face downward in the water, his feet almost touching the shore and the outstretched arms resting on the bottom, the water being only about two feet in depth. The body was raised and laid on the bank, and Mr. McConnell at once decided to proceed to Bobcaygeon, the nearest point where a coroner could be found. Coroner Bonnell, Mr. A. E. Bottum and other villagers returned with him and after examining the body Dr. Bonnell decided that death had taken place the previous night, and that deceased had taken a fit or a weak spell of some kind, as he had swallowed no water. It is supposed that the fatality happened as the Manita was passing on the down trip, as the state of the cottage kitchen indicated that McCreary had been at supper and had left the room in haste.

A verdict was rendered in accordance with the apparent facts, and the body was conveyed to town last evening about 8 o'clock in the yacht dinghy. The boat was met by Undertaker Nugent, who had received instructions by telephone from Sturgeon Point and the remains were interred in Riverside cemetery this afternoon, Mr. McConnell paying all expenses. Deceased came from Port Hope, where his people lived many years ago.

CELEBRATION OF EMPIRE DAY

A letter has been received from Lord Meath, 83 Lancaster Gate, London, W., relating to the celebration of Empire Day (May 24), in the several parts of the British Empire. His Lordship draws attention to the movement to secure a somewhat uniform celebration. The objects are to promote a greater knowledge of, and a more friendly feeling between, the subjects of King Edward, and especially the inculcation of the duties and responsibilities attaching to British citizenship.

The promoters of the movement suggest various means of officially celebrating the day. Among them are the assembling of the local military and civil dignitaries, the formal hoisting of the Union Jack saluting the flag, addresses on British citizenship, the Empire, or other patriotic topics, recitation of Kipling's "Recessional," and "The National Anthem." A circular enclosed indicates that his Lordship has been already informed that patriotic exercises are given in the schools of the Provinces of Manitoba, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Ontario on the day preceding the holiday.

Already representatives of British colonies and dependencies in every continent have written expressing sympathy with, and co-operation in, the movement.

PEACE AND GOOD-WILL.

His Lordship adds: "As the desire of the promoters of Empire Day is the advantage of a more accurate knowledge of, and consequently, of a more friendly and even affectionate feeling amongst the 400 million people who owe allegiance to King Edward, VII., it will be hardly necessary to say that the greatest care should be taken to introduce nothing into the proceedings which could in the least be interpreted as other than a sincere desire to promote the Christian sentiment of peace and good-will towards all men upon earth."

A SAD CASE.

The following letter, addressed to the Secretary of the National Sanitarium Association, Toronto, from the Rectory, Norwood, Ont., and signed by Rev. J. McKee McLennan, a well-known Anglican minister of the province, needs no comment of ours. It reads: "I desire to secure the admission into the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst of a young woman, a member of my parish. The case is a very sad one, and if help can at once be given, a promising life can be saved. Three years ago the mother died of consumption. Since that time it has been my painful duty to bury two of the sons with the same disease. Now Annie, aged about seventeen, and a boy of fourteen, are all that remain of the family. The poor girl has been in Muskoka, boarding at a private house, waiting to be admitted. She returned home last week, and within twenty-four hours of her return her father dropped dead in his buggy while driving into Norwood. The case is surely one that must appeal to the sympathies of everyone, and yet, I fear, only one of the many that are constantly coming under your notice."

[Note.—Readers—and may their number be many—who desire to assist in this worthy work may send their gifts to Sir Wm. R. Meredith, Kt., Vice-President, National Sanitarium Association, Toronto, or Mr. W. J. Gage, Chairman of the Executive Committee, Toronto.]

ARMY TO OPEN TRADE BRITAIN AND THIBET

Real Reasons Why England has taken Action Against the Hermit Kingdom Russians Has Forced Great Britain to Act

Calcutta, May 11.—There are many contradictory rumors concerning the progress and the experience of the expedition sent out in December to escort Colonel Younghusband to Lhasa, the capital of Thibet. As I told you in a letter from Bombay several weeks ago, Colonel Younghusband is an envoy extraordinary, very extraordinary, for, with 2,500 British soldiers, he has been sent to make a treaty of commerce and good will with the Grand Lama of Thibet, and his orders are to stay at Lhassa until the treaty is negotiated and as much longer as is necessary to compel the Thibetans to respect its terms and carry out its stipulations. That means the permanent occupation of Lhassa by a British army and the opening of an unknown and mysterious region to trade.

Colonel Younghusband is moving very slowly. Although the distance from the railway terminus of India to Lhassa is but 300 miles he has advanced little more than half way in three months. His slow progress is due to the lack of roads and heavy snows that block the trails. It has been necessary for him to build his own roads most of the distance, and the job has been done thoroughly, like all English work of the kind. Secondly, he has found great difficulty in securing native transportation. It is part of the shrewd policy of the Indian government to employ natives in every possible capacity and pay good wages. It is a businesslike proceeding. It softens their hearts and neutralises opposition. In all his undertakings thus far Colonel Younghusband has employed native Thibetans wherever they could serve him, in transportation, road building and in securing supplies. And, finally, it is considered good policy to move very slowly in order that the natives may become accustomed to the presence of the British troops in their territory before the crisis of the enterprise is reached.

Hence, although he has made only about fifty miles a month, Colonel Younghusband has wasted no time and is now constructing a military post or cantonment upon the Sampo River, where a garrison will remain to protect a base of supplies and keep open lines of communication with India.

He has received several messages from the government of Thibet. The priests have notified him to leave the country, and have warned him that he proceeds at his own peril. They have threatened him with annihilation with the ecclesiastical curse; with the vengeance of their gods and various degrees of punishment, but he has paid no attention to them. They have no army and are not a fighting race. The few soldiers that make up the opposing force are armed with ancient blunderbusses, jingals, bows, arrows and spears; they have stink pots to throw at the enemy and grotesque masks to wear in order to terrify him. They are about in the condition that the army of China was thirty years ago, and the well trained English regulars would walk through them without an effort.

The officials of Thibet continue to ignore all messages and communications from Lord Curzon, and even return them unopened. In order to understand the situation we must go back a little. In 1886 a band of Thibetans invaded the protected state of Sikkim and advanced to within sixty miles of Darjeeling. Sikkim is one of the smallest of the native states, having only about two thousand square miles of area and 59,000 population, but it is very important to the British, because within its limits is the Jeylup Pass, one of the only two gateways through the Himalayas, that great hedge 2,000 miles long, 500 miles wide and from 18,000 to 20,000 feet high, that protects the northern boundary of the Indian Empire. The only other gateway through this natural protection is the Kyber Pass, of which I wrote you several weeks ago. There are other passes through the gorges that lie between the mountain peaks, but none of them could be used by an army with artillery and supply wagons. Hence if an enemy ever enters India from the north it must find its way through either the Kyber or the Jeylup Pass.

The latter is 11,000 feet above the sea, a narrow defile through the grandest cluster of mountain peaks on the globe, about sixteen miles long and varying from 600 yards to seven miles in width. Nobody is allowed to go through this pass. Thibetan soldiers are always on guard to enforce the law rule prohibiting foreigners from entering the country and while several intrepid adventurous travelers have penetrated to the interior of the country and have related their experience, all of them have crossed the desert from Turkestan with caravans or have come westward through China. The latest attempt was made by O. F. Crosby of Washington, who has recently returned to civilization to confess his failure and relate his marvelous adventures and the difficulties which he found it impossible to overcome. His guides and attendants deserted him, he lost his camels, and was attacked many times by native bandits, and it was almost a miracle that he managed to get out alive. Nobody has ever succeeded in entering the forbidden country through the Jeylup Pass.

One of the objects of Colonel Younghusband's situation is to change this situation and persuade the ignorant and bigoted ecclesiastics who govern Thibet to open their gates and admit foreign merchants and foreign merchandise into that benighted country. There is considerable commerce however. Parties of Thibetan traders are continually coming across the frontier into Darjeeling with all sorts of native products that may be seen in the market that is held every Sunday morning and during the week days in the bazaars of the city. After selling their goods they buy cottons, drugs, groceries, hardware and other European goods and take them back into their own country; but foreigners are not allowed to pass the line, and practically all of the trade of Thibet is monopolized by the Chinese, who sell the natives large quantities of cotton fabrics and other imported merchandise, as well as tea, silk and other Chinese goods. This trade is supposed to be worth many millions of dollars, and the ability of India to furnish the manufactured goods that the inhabitants of Thibet may need is considered ample reason for sending the Younghusband expedition into that country. But there are other reasons quite as important.

TERAH HOLLEY AGAIN ARRESTED

Famous Company Promoter Charged with Conspiracy

IN A CANADIAN CASE

His Meteoric Career Recalled by New Development in Canadian Corundum Affairs

London, May 10.—Ernest Terah Hooley, whose meteoric career and company promoting a few years ago astonished the financial world, was arrested in London today on the the charge of conspiracy to defraud.

Hooley's colossal bankruptcy and the proceedings arising therefrom were the sensation of 1896. Since then he has been connected with various promotions, some fo which led to court proceedings.

Henry J. Lawson, another company promoter, was also arrested today in connection with the Hooley charge.

HOOLEY'S COLLAPSE.

A receiving order in bankruptcy was issued against Ernest Terah Hooley on June 8 1896. Hooley at that time was the biggest company promoter in Great Britain. He was prominently interested in bicycle, land, and meat extract concerns, and was supposed to be a multimillionaire.

He reached the pinnacle of his prominence in 1896, when he promoted a tire company as the result of which he was supposed to have cleared $12,500,000.

A MODERN MONTE CRISTO.

Hooley at that time was living a sort of Count of Monte Cristo existence, buying yachts, and racehorses and a number of historic county seats. In January, 1896, he purchased the racing cutter Britannia (then owned by John Lawson Johnstone, and formerly the property of the then Prince of Wales, now King Edward, who later repurchased the yacht). In 1896, Hooley, who was a member of a number of prominent yach clubs, purchased the schooner yacht Verona from the Earl of Lonsdale.

HE FAILED FOR MILLIONS.

The announcement of the bankruptcy proceedings against Hooley caused a great sensation in London, though in the best informed quarters his failure had been expected owing to his inability to float a large Chinese loan. Eventually Hooley was formally adjudged a bankrupt.

The capitals of the companies promoted by Hooley up to 1898 aggregated sixty million to sixty-five million dollars.

On August 10 last application was made to a London Magistrate for a warrant for the arrest of Hooley, on the charge of fraudulently and by false pretences obtaining signatures to cheques and bills of exchange amounting to over $650,000. The magistrate reserved his decision. Previously, on August 8, the Director of Public Prosecutions had been instructed to investigate some of the transactions of Hooley in connection with a sapphire corundum mine situated in Canada. This was an enterprise floated in London by J. Carling Kelly, of Ottawa, but it collapsed, and there have been repeated Police Court proceedings against Kelly in connection with a disputed bill of exchange. This is apparently the case out of which the present charge has arisen.

THE DRUCKER INCIDENT.

Shortly after the death in Bellevue Hospital, New York, of Adolphus Drucker, of London, who had been member of Parliament for Northampton from 1892 to 1900, it became known that his life was insured for about one million dollars, and that one of the policies, for $500,000, was in favor of Mrs. Ernest Terah Hooley. The late Mr. Drucker was named with many prominent people, including sixty-nine members of the House of Lords, who figured in connection with the one hundred and ninety companies which were connected with the Hooley flotations.

BRITISH ELECTIONS

Both Sides are Preparing for Elections in England.

Montreal, May 12.—Mr. G. W. Fowler, of Manchester, was seen by a reporter at the Place Viger Hotel. In reply to query as to the fiscal agitation in England at the present time, Mr. Fowler said there was a lull in the storm just now, but both sides were preparing for the inevitable clash which would happen so soon as the dissolution was declared and the general elections held. The health of Mr. Chamberlain, which was such an asset to the fiscal reform movement, was not of the best. The hard work done by the ex-colonial secretary during the autumn when he addressed a series of the most remarkable meetings ever held since the famous Midlothian campaign of Mr. Gladstone, had been a tremendous strain and the recent trip of Mr. Chamberlain had not completely restored that statesman to his former robust health. Mr. Fowler was of the opinion that free trade will win at the next election, but that ultimately the British people would accept the policy of Mr. Chamberlain, although, perhaps, in a modified form.

EXPECT TO INVADE JAPAN.

Russians Going to Front Ask what Mikado Calls Tobacco.

Mukden, May 12.—The men on the troop trains passing through Mukden on their way to the front are in excellent spirits and express confidence in Russia's eventual success. They ask their officers when they may expect to reach Japan and already want to know the Japanese names for tobacco, tea and other articles.

Picturesque scenery are frequently witnessed at the wayside stations, where troops frequently remain overnight. The soldiers are drawn up on the platform, the bugles sound and then all uncover as the priest utters the evening prayer. Then the troops in each car, led by a tenor voice, break out into folk songs. The Chinese villagers, with whom the soldiers quickly make friends, gather about, listening to the songs, which are mostly plaintive airs.

The men, many of whom have been forty days on trains on their way from the interior of Russia, are always cheerful and join heartily in the songs. The same good humor is shown by the troops after tiring marches through blinding dust storms and in the heat which is daily becoming more intense.

The Chinese commander of the district, accompanied by an escort attired in barbaric uniforms which contrasted strongly with their modern arms, waited at the station at Djandzun for an interview with General Kuropatkin, who later received the garrison here. A large concourse of Chinese assembled to witness the review.

No foreign newspaper correspondents are allowed at Liao Yang, where all the foreign attaches are detained. Captain William V. Judson of the engineer corps, U.S.A., who is to accompany the Russian army during hostilities, and Lieutenant Newton A. McCully, the United States naval attache, and others have been provided with quarters there.

FARMERS BRINGING IN HORSES AT TOKIO

The Japanese Government long ago made arrangements for all horses it desired. Prices were fixed, and the farmers deliver them immediately on receiving notice from the Government.

PORT ARTHUR IS DOOMED

Russian Stronghold Said to be Short of Both Food and Powder.

London, May 12.—General Kuropatkin is in full retreat with his whole army, and the Japanese are supposed to be in active pursuit. The Russians will not make a stand short of Mukden, even if there, if they can avoid doing so, but are in great danger of being forced to fight under adverse conditions somewhere near Liao Yang. If Kuropatkin is allowed sufficient time it is exceedingly probable that he will abandon Mukden and withdraw the whole of his forces to Harbin. So far from the sea the Japs would have to fight under some of the disadvantages from which the Russians are now suffering. In his report to the Czar General Kuropatkin states that realizing that the Russian forces in the Far East as insufficient in numbers to oppose the Japanese, he is withdrawing all the advanced detachments to concentrate them for the defence of Mukden and Harbin. The real stand will, no doubt, be made at Harbin, because the Russians cannot retreat beyond that point without allowing Vladivostock to become as completely isolated as Port Arthur.

A merchant at Shan Kwan, who is deemed to be worth quoting by the Associated Press, is authority for the statement that there is only enough coal in Port Arthur to last the warships for six weeks and only enough food to last eight thousand men for three months. At St. Petersburg it is claimed that the garrison of Port Arthur is thirty thousand strong. If both statements are correct the garrison could be starved out in a little over a month. But if the Shan Hai Kwan merchant knows the quantity of supplies in Port Arthur, presumably he knows the number of troops there also. If there are only eight thousand men to defend Port Arthur, the Japs will make short work of its capture.

It is announced on what seems to be good authority, that the Russian admiralty has definitely abandoned the idea of sending the Baltic fleet to the Far East—a very sensible decision.

GRAPHIC PICTURE BATTLE OF YALU

The Artillery Conflict Described by Correspondent

DOTTED WITH WHITE PUFFS

Appearance of the Russian Position During Engagement.

London, May 12.—In a despatch dated near Wiju, J. McHugh, special correspondent of the Daily Telegraph with the Japanese forces, gives the following description of the artillery battle which took place after the first batch of Japs had crossed the Yalu: "The battle which followed the discovery by the Russians that the Japs were on the Manchurian side of the river, was almost entirely an artillery duel, in which the Japs had much the best of the encounter. It began at 10 o'clock in the morning by the Japs shelling the Russians near Tiger Hill, in order to protect the advance of General Kiroki's infantry. The Russians did not reply for half an hour, when they began a vigorous bombardment of the village and the willow thickets on Kintsao Island, being apparently still under a misapprehension as to the real nature of the Japs' movement. The shelling of this position was terrific. A perfect torrent of shells was poured over the island, and the dust knocked up by the shrapnel hid the whole place in a sort of gray mist through which the flash of bursting shells gleamed like lightning among clouds. Never have I seen a fiercer fire. Quickly the Japs' batteries west of Wiju opened fire in reply, getting the range with the first round. They simply covered the eight Russian batteries with a hail of shrapnel.

The whole front of the enemies' position was dotted with white puffs of shell from which shrapnel darted in showers. Soon the Russian fire began to die down and ultimately it stopped and a lull followed, but the Russians broke silence by an attempt to shell the Japs' infantry on the Manchurian side. Their fire, however, was absolutely ineffectual, the shells bursting far short of their object and affording a perfect example of useless artillery practice. Other of the enemies' batteries opened fire, shelling the Japs' batteries to the northeast of Wiju. Japs replied and the artillery duel broke out with renewed violence till the very hills sobbed with the terrible concussion. The extreme fierceness of the action made one feel that the guns were voicing the desperate nature of the quarrel between the contending nations. Splendid practice was made by the Japs' gunners and their fire seemed much more accurate and effective than that of the enemy. There was a renewal of the bombardment at intervals until sunset, but the Japs' position remained unaffected."

WEATHER NOTES

Fine and cool.

JAPAN'S ASCENDANCY IS NOW ASSURED.

Analogy Between Buller's Battle to South Africa and The Fight at Yalu

London, May 11—The Japanese victories have been received without a trace of exultation in England. The analogies between the battle on the Yalu and General Buller's battle on the Tugela have been unpleasantly close.

The problem for the assailants was the same, for a swollen river had to be crossed after tremendous artillery fire, and a frontal attack attempted on a strongly fortified position, but the Japanese general knew how to plan his battle, whereas Buller was only equal to peace manoeuvres at Aldershot.

Buller had not taken pains to clear his own bank of the river in advance of the passage and he had left the attacking force at liberty to choose between two fords without locating them accurately on the map and when he lost a few guns gave up fighting and retreated before the battle was half fought.

The Japanese general sent men across the river at two places where the water was breast high and turned the Russian's left flank, as well as stormed the position in front. The Japanese are using their own brains as well as the guns and powder made by themselves. Their strategy on the Yalu is as good as the British strategy was bad on the Tugela, and they are following up their victory with a thoroughly scientific plan of campaign by landing a second army at Pitsewo, where it can cut off Port Arthur and co-operate with the first army in the advance against the main Russian force. The Japanese campaign against the Chinese has been followed in detail, and Mukden is likely to be the objective point. If that centre of administration can be occupied the Chinese themselves may rise against the Russians and expel them from Manchuria.

The momentous consequences of a Japanese victory over a European nation by land and sea are discerned by thoughtful Englishmen, and there is no jubilation in any quarter over the Russian defeat. The complete demonstration of Japanese capacity for organizing and using military and naval armaments is regarded as a menace to the future peace of the world.

Japan becomes at once a dominant power in the far east, challenging the mastery to the Pacific, offering a protectorate to China rekindling fires of Oriental imagination and creating a feeling of unrest in India. The balance of power in Asia has been upset by the rise of Japan as a power of tremendous resources in military and naval warfare.

Tokio, May 11.—Heartfelt joy is written on the faces of Japanese officials, who usually mask all emotion behind an affable smile, because at last the Mikado's flag is flying and the Mikado's troops are massing on Russian soil.

When General Kuroki crossed the Yalu and planted his colors on Chinese territory and when the marines of Admiral Hosoya's squadron hoisted their banner on the heights of Pitsewo, they signalized the occupation by the Japanese of Russia's concession in the Liaotun peninsula.

Japanese strategy in connection with Port Arthur, which is now isolated, is problematical. The most prominent officials here are dumb on this point and it is doubtful if at this moment it has been decided. It undoubtedly was the original purpose of the leaders to invest the fortress and await developments so far as it was concerned, but this plan was the result of conditions that may change.

THE ANGLO-FRENCH TREATY.

Mr. Morine Regrets That It was So Loosely Constructed.

Sydney, C.B., May 12.—A. B. Morine, leader of the Opposition in Newfoundland Legislature, in an interview here stated that while the recent treaty between England and France appeared to have settled the difficulty regarding the French shore, still it contained clauses open to dual construction that might possibly occasion some conflict in the future. He instanced the clause bearing upon the closing of the fishing season which is stated to be October 20; but whether this applies to the English or to the French or both, it does not state. If to the English it would mean that Newfoundland would lose its winter herring so far as those shores were concerned. As to the bait clause it states that the French can enter the ports and procure bait and supplies. The ambiguity here is whether this applies only to the treaty coast or to all Newfoundland. If the latter, then there will follow revival of the fishing industry in St. Pierre at Newfoundladn's expense. The clause bearing upon the patrolling of the coast to prevent smuggling, etc., is open also to a dual meaning. Should the French insist upon carrying out what their construction of the treaty might be, the result Mr. Morine fears might be disastrous to Newfoundland. He thinks, however, it is possible that no such conflict will arise. He says that a large element in the colony are far from being satisfied with the settlement apparently affected by the treaty. He thinks it should have been more explicit in its terms and less loosely constructed.

RUSSIANS DESTROYING THEIR WARSHIPS

London, May 11.—Once more there is a plentiful crop of war rumors, and a scarcity of facts. The only real news in the columns of guesses and conjectures, which fill the newspapers, is the official announcement by Viceroy Alexieff that railway communication with Port Arthur was restored during Monday night. This is confirmed by a despatch to The Central News from Liao-Yang, dated today, which says: "A train hence reached Port Arthur yesterday. The railway officials say that no Japanese troops were observed near the railway, but that it was reported that some Japanese cavalry were seen behind Feng-Wang-Cheng."

How officials of a train running from Liao-Yang to Port Arthur would know what was going on at Feng-Wang-Cheng, 110 miles distant from Liao-Yang, is not stated.

AN IMPROBABLE STORY.

A Chefoo despatch says that an unofficial Japanese despatch has been received there to the effect that the Russians had destroyed their fleet in Port Arthur.

A Tokio despatch says that Admiral Togo reports that since the sixth day of May many explosions have been heard coming from the vicinity of Port Arthur, but their cause was not ascertained.

The impression at Tokio is, that the Russians, despairing of their ability to defend Port Arthur, are destroying their ships before evacuating the place. Against this theory is to be placed the statement of officials at St. Petersburg that "the Japanese will not obtain possession of our fleet even if they capture Port Arthur. The orders to the commander there are that he shall, when a fall is inevitable, put to sea and engage the enemy. We do not propose for the Japanese to find in the harbor a number of valuable warships, which they can seize and add to their fleet. Moreover, in battle the Japanese will suffer as well as our ships, and those of the latter which do not escape will go to the bottom."

Of course, this plan depends upon the mouth of the harbor being open, a condition which the Japanese assert does not exist.

There is confirmation of the report from Tokio that a high angle bombardment of Port Arthur was in progress. The Russia garrison there is stated to consist of 20,000 soldiers and 10,000 sailors.

ATHLETIC WORLD

BY OUR SPORTING EDITOR

One of the best and hardest fought football matches ever witnessed in Peterborough in the history of the Midland League was that played on the Oval last night between the Quakers and the Caughnawaga teams. About 200 people witnessed the game, including a few supporters of the visitors who endeavored to make themselves heard and give their boys all the encouragement possible to assist them to return home victors. The game was a strenuous fight from the start. The Quakers were considerably handicapped owing to a number of their players being injured in the game at Keene on Saturday, which interfered considerably

CHINESE FARMER.

Sam Kee, a contractor of that city, has arranged to take over a hundred Chinamen to Raymond Alberta, there to work on a sugar beet farm which he will henceforth operate. This means that Chinamen may soon become almost as numerous on the east side of the Rockies as they now are in British Columbia, if they can meet the poll tax of $500. Last year Kee supplied large gangs of men for the Knight Sugar Company but now he is preparing to enter into the beet growing industry on his own account. He has leased eight hundred acres of land, where he will raise sugar beets on an extensive scale. The Knight Sugar Company has made a contract to purchase the whole of his output, and since he is thus assured of a market, Kee intends next year to increase the area under cultivation and employ many more Chinese. The first batch of Orientals for Raymond will leave Vancouver in a few days.

ARMY TO OPEN TRADE BRITAIN AND THIBET

(Concluded from page 1.)

6 While England was suffering the worst of the disasters of the recent war in South Africa the Russian government sent a secret embassy to Lhassa, carrying rich presents and large sums of money to the Grand Lama, for the ostensible purpose of securing permission to construct a branch from its Siberian Railway to Lhassa across Chinese Turkestan. The Grand Lama afterward sent an embassy to return the visit at St. Petersburg, which was received with great honors and presented with rich gifts. The Grand Lama, in recognition of these attentions, conferred upon the Czar the title of "Lord and Guardian of the Gifts of Faith." It is the supreme Buddhist honor, and while the title is empty, it is particularly significant in this case, because it implies protection. It is believed that a secret treaty was made under which Russia promised to guarantee the independence of Thibet and protect that government against invasion in exchange for the privilege of constructing a railway line through its territory. The Thibetans are supposed to have accepted these terms because of their fear of China. Until 1895 Thibet was a province of the Chinese Empire, and paid tribute to the emperor every year, but since the war with Japan the Grand Lama has sent no messenger to Pekin, has paid no tribute and has ignored the Chinese representative at Lhassa.

While these relations with Russia were being established the Grand Lama was treating India with contempt and insults. After the invasion of Sukkim in 1886 a treaty was made with the Chinese government designating the boundary line between India and Thibet and providing that it should not be crossed by a subject of either government without permission from the other. In order to carry out that stipulation the Thibetans, who have a passion for building walls, erected one sixteen feet high and twenty feet thick across the Jeylup Pass, closing it entirely. In 1890 the British sent up troops, tore the wall away and demanded that the frontier be opened to trade. The negotiations, which were carried on at Pekin, came to nothing, the policy of China being to keep the territory closed against foreign merchants in order to monopolize the trade itself. After the practical repudiation of Chinese authority by the Grand Lama, Colonel Younghusband was sent to Lhassa to treat direct with the ecclesiastics there. The priests postponed negotiations on the pretext that it was necessary to consult Pekin, and promised to send a mission to Calcutta within six months, but never have done so. In the meantime there has been continual friction on the border; the Indian authorities have repeatedly reminded the Grand Lama of his promise and its postponement, but he has studiously refused to communicate with them, and has even returned their communications unopened.

When the secret relations between Russia and Thibet were discovered the Chinese authorities were naturally indignant and the Indian authorities were alarmed. After a conference China granted permission for England to use whatever methods it thought best to bring the Grand Lama to terms. The reason Colonel Younghusband was sent to Lhassa again about a year ago. The Grand Lama again refused to see him, declined to appoint an official to confer with him and returned his credentials unopened and used other means to show his indifference and contempt for India and England.

When Younghusband returned to Calcutta and reported the failure of his mission and the faults offered him Lord Curzon decided that the time had come to act, and as soon as preparations could be made Colonel Younghusband started back to Lhassa escorted by 2,500 armed men and carrying provisions for two years. He was instructed to avoid collisions, to make friends with the people, to establish permanent posts on the line of march wherever he thought necessary, and to remain at Lhassa until he secured a treaty opening the markets of Thibet to British merchants. And he will undoubtedly remain there permanently. There is not the slightest doubt of the intention of Great Britain to occupy the capital of Thibet with a military force which can be strengthened and supported should it require and further instructions will be given him as conditions may justify.

Lord Curzon will not dispatch this expedition and undertake this strategic movement without considering the present situation of Russia. The Czar took occasion to engage in negotiations not only with Thibet, but with Afghanistan also, at the very moment when England was suffering her most serious disasters and embarrassments of recent history, and is getting fit for war. Before Colonel Younghusband's expedition was dispatched the British ambassador at St. Petersburg was instructed to inquire if the Russian government had any relations with Thibet or any interests there, and was officially informed that it had not, hence the etiquette of the situation has been complied with and Lord Curzon is perfectly free to act.

The frequent reports that Russia is sending an expedition to head off Colonel Younghusband and to defend Lhassa are perfectly absurd. Such a force would be compelled to march 700 miles over a great barren plateau between 15,000 and 18,000 feet above the sea. At this season of the year and until the middle of May it is covered with a heavy fall of snow. It is almost entirely uninhabited there is very little water, fuel or forage and every ounce of supplies would have to be carried along. There are neither roads nor shelter, and during the winter months the plains are absolutely impassable. Furthermore, the Russian army has important business elsewhere.

The Thibet enterprise is expected to be the greatest triumph and the most important achievement of Lord Curzon's career as viceroy of India and he will remain in office until it is concluded. He takes a vacation in April, following Lady Curzon to England, and will remain there during the summer. She intends to visit the United States in September or October, but it will not be possible for him to accompany her, as he cannot remain away from Calcutta so long.

Does Tobacco Affect the Health?

In a Thousand Ways its Excessive Use is Injurious to the System. Causes Heart and Nerve Troubles.

That tobacco exerts a very decided influence upon the body is unquestionable. Thoughtful physicians prohibit smoking in convalescence just as they do in the formative years of youth, when the system is so susceptible to the action of narcotics.

In functional heart trouble the tobacco habit is often looked for as a cause, and many a smoker wakes up at night feeling all the terrors caused by a fluttering, palpitating heart.

If there is something wrong with your heart that makes you wake up with a start, you ought to take Ferrosone regularly, because it is the best heart medicine made. All the muscles and nerves about the heart are strengthened and given new force by Ferrosone, which is noted for its prompt cures of heart disease.

As a rule weak heart and weak nerves go together, so it is important that Ferrosone should be used until the nervous system is completely restored. From every part of America comes convincing evidence that Ferrosone possesses merit far beyond the ordinary. Its cures are lasting, like that of a well known merchant in St. Johns, Mr. Philip T. Drayton, who writes; "I can give good advice to everyone suffering from heart weakness. I was in a very low condition a few months ago, and was unable to work. Without any apparent cause I would jump and start. I could not sleep more than an hour without being awakened by pain and palpitation of the heart. I used different preparations, but found Ferrosone the best. It improved my general health, strengthened my heart and nerves, and enabled me to go to work again. Nothing else has ever helped my heart like Ferrosone, which has cured me perfectly. I would advise others troubled with either nerve or heart trouble to use Ferrosone also."

No one ever used Ferrosone without lasting benefits. It builds up weak people, nourishes the starved nerves, and tones up the muscles of the heart. Ferrosone is prepared in tablet form, and is simple and convenient to take; it is sure to help you.

Do not allow an unscrupulous dealer to recommend anything in place of Ferrosone, which will be mailed to any address, price 50c per box or six boxes for $2.50, by N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

AN APPEAL TO THE FASHIONABLE SET IN CANADA.

"Lally Bernard," the Well-known Toronto Journalist, Writes from England of the Battle Against Consumption in Muskoka.

Lally Bernard, of the editorial staff of the Toronto Globe, writing to that paper from London, England, where she is now a resident, shows most clearly that the battle against the great white plague is one that should interest all classes of the community. It will be remembered that this writer entered incog. as a patient in the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, and afterwards in the Globe told of real life in that institution. In her present article she says:

"To-day I have found a letter at the club which nearly missed me, having been addressed 'Lally Bernard.' May I express to my unknown correspondent my warmest thanks for the kindly appreciation for the little I have been able to do in the battle being waged against tuberculosis in Canada. The need of sympathy and interest is a tremendous one, and I am always puzzled when I find really well educated and intelligent people in Canada so criminally ignorant of the extent of the danger, and the means which are being taken to combat it.

"It may be of some interest to those who feel as I do in regard to the responsibility which rests upon each and all to aid in this fight against a most insidious foe, when I tell them, that here in London, where I have been for only a few days, I have already come across the dread enemy four times. First of all, in the back garden of our humble quarters in Kensington I espied, when morning dawned, a tent with two beds in it. I enquired of our landlord why the tent was there, and was told a long story about the consumption and sanitarium for some boys coming up from the country, and that he, the landlord, had subsequently found it more agreeable to sleep in the tent than in the basement bedroom he had formerly occupied. A little later, in conversation with the lady who secured the lodgings, I learned that the landlord's son was obliged to sleep in a tent! Comment was needless.

"In looking for quarters I found a charming home of a young doctor and his wife, where extraordinarily moderate terms were asked for really exceptionally good accommodation. The doctor in question had been 'ordered south,' and his wife had to keep the house going by accepting 'paying guests.'

"Yet again, in the third place, I found that the lady who was at the head of the establishment had not only lost her husband from the dread disease, but had managed one of the most fashionable sanitariums in England, and her knowledge of the treatment and the extent of the problem in England showed me how tremendous was the need for care and watchfulness in our own country.

"May I ask my correspondent to use all possible influence to make the question of combating tuberculosis one of interest in the 'fashionable set' to which she evidently belongs. I know full well, from the little experience I have had, how tremendously a little genuine interest and help might lighten the burden now resting on the shoulders of the authorities of the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. It is, of course, far away from wealthy centres, and out of sight is to be out of mind.

"I can quite understand that until people have seen forty or fifty patients together in different stages of consumption they do not realise what an immense amount of aid might be given by those who are fortunate enough to be free from the disease and by those who have little else to do than to invent or learn some new form of recreation.

"Mrs. Torrington has kindly promised me to try and get musical societies and people interested in music to provide a piano for the Hospital, and I feel sure it will be of immense benefit to the patients. Surely my correspondent who evinces such sympathy with the cause could make that sympathy take a practical form and organize a hospital library where books worth reading might be supplied, with some system similar to that of the Aberdeen Association, which has done such excellent work."

[Note.—Readers—and may their number be many—who desire to assist in the work of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives may send their gifts to Sir Wm. R. Meredith, Kt., Vice-President, National Sanitarium Association, Toronto, or Mr. W. J. Gage, Chairman of the Executive Committee.]

MOTHER OF FOUR CHILDREN.

The trustees, secretary, and other officers of the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Muskoka are daily in receipt of many piteous letters.

A few days since Mr. W. J. Gage, of Toronto, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the National Sanitarium Association, received a letter from a resident of Quebec, pleading for the admission of a victim of the dread white plague, living about a hundred miles south-east of Montreal, and asking if it were not possible to admit her into the Free Hospital. The writer says: "The applicant is a Mrs. Wm. Paterson, the mother of four children and the wife of a farmer in a place called Goshen, in the township of Windsor. The doctor says that her left lung only is troubled. She is able to go about, but her appetite is very bad. I believe if she could be admitted into the Free Hospital for Consumptives she might be cured. She could not pay much, if anything. Kindly let me know if you could receive her."

We are told by Mr. Gage that applications for admission to the Free Hospital reach the secretary from all points in the Dominion, and patients have been received from Prince Edward Island on the east to Alberta on the west. Two hundred and twenty-five patients have been admitted in eighteen months, and not a single patient has been refused because of his or her poverty.

We can hardly think of any charity that appeals more pathetically for the support of the Canadian people.

Subscriptions may be sent to Sir Wm. R. Meredith, Kt., Vice-President of the National Sanitarium Association, or to Mr. W. J. Gage.
